HAMILTON (CP)—A federal mediator continued talks with four Great Lakes shipping companies here today but union leaders, who have already called a strike against one of the firms, left the negotiations to return to Montreal.

Harold Banks, director of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL), said the union delegation left to count strike ballots of seamen aboard ships of the remaining three companies.

Mr. Banks said the union was ready to meet for further talks in Montreal.

Arthur MacNamara, federal labor department conciliator, continued discussions with representatives of Colonial Steamships, Canada Steamships, N. M. Paterson and Sons and the Upper Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation Company.

The union has called a strike for Monday against Colonial after rejecting a conciliation board recommendation that a reduction from a 56-hour work week to 40 hours be achieved by next August. The union seeks an immediate 40-hour week with overtime for Saturday and Sunday work.

A general strike would affect 3,000 seamen on some 276 vessels.

Re-Elect Mosher To 14th Term As CCL President

MONTREAL (CP) — A. R. Mosher, veteran labor leader, today was re-elected for his 14th term as president of the 370,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor.

The count was 585 votes for Mr. Mosher and 108 for Mr. White.

Secretary-Treasurer Donald MacDonald who fought a tough battle to retain his position at the 1952 convention was returned to office by acclamation.

VPs RE-ELECTED

Re-elected as vice-presidents were C. H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL); Silby Barrett, head of district 50, United Mine Workers of America (CIO-CCL); George Burt, Canadian director of the United Auto Workers of America (CIO-CCL); and Sol Spivak, Canadian manager of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Left winger Bill Stewart of the Vancouver Marine Workers was soundly defeated in his bid for a vice-president's post.

The vote was Burt 685; Spivak 662; Barrett 681; Millard 648; and Stewart 95.

The elections were scheduled for the dying hours of the week-long convention. It waded through a myriad of resolutions, finding only a scattering of opposition to a proposal to reaffirm the CCF as the CCL's political arm and to beat down a move to reinstate unions

Disarmament Proposals Seen On Way

Expect Russian Bid Before Long At General Assembly

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet government today claimed successful tests of "new type" atomic bombs in recent weeks, but said it still wants an international ban on mass destruction weapons.

The announcement by the Soviet news agency Tass said the blasts occurred "in the last few weeks" but gave no details of the "new type" weapons tested.

(In Washington, a spokesman for the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission said the Russian announcement "merely confirms" the AEC's statement Aug. 31 that a fission—atomic — explosion of about the same power as recent U. S. tests in Nevada had taken place Aug. 23 in Russia. The previous statement added the explosion "would appear to be part of a series."

NOT H-BOMBS

(The American spokesman emphasized again that the Aug. 23 explosion was a "fission," or atomic, blast. Observers in Washington concluded from this that the Soviet explosion apparently did not involve the thermonuclear reactions of a hydrogen bomb.

(Moscow's announcement stirred speculation at United Nations headquarters in New York that it was time to pave the way for new Soviet disarmament proposals to the UN assembly, which has just opened its eighth annual session in New York.)

The Soviet statement said that although the Soviet Union "is able to give attention to the production of atomic weapons," it would pursue a policy of attempting to reach agreement with other nations on arms cuts and the prohibition of

A. R. MOSHER was re-elected to his 14th term as president of the 370,000-member Canadian Congress of Labor. Mosher, 72, was opposed by W. L. White, left-wing leader of the Vancouver marine workers who received only scattered support.

MUNSAN (AP)—A Red correspondent said today the only Allied war prisoners still in Red hands are "the handful which won't go back." The Communists said later 10 or more of those have changed their minds and will be returned Saturday. The Reds did not give any nationalities. The Communists have said previously they were holding about 300 South Koreans and about 20 non-Koreans who had refused to return home. The Reds have given no official answer to an Allied demand for an accounting of what happened to about 3,400 Allied troops—three of them Canadian—who the UN says were once known to be captives.

Communist correspondent Wilfred Burchett of the Paris l'Humanite, told reporters at Panmunjom the Reds are checking the list carefully. But, he said, "there is nobody being held except a handful which won't go back."

Burchett said a number of names on the list are due 'to faulty book keeping."

RED MOUTHPIECE

The Red newspaper man, who frequently reflects official opinion, said he made "an exhaustive search" for Capt. James A. van Fleet Jr., son of the former 8th Army commander, but he said the young pilot is not a prisoner and never was. He indicated van Fleet died in the crash of his B-26 in April, 1952.

Burchett had told reporters last week that some Allied fliers are being held by the Communists, but he said they are special prisoners whose release must be handled through diplomatic channels.

Burchett said the fliers had gone down in Manchuria—forbidden territory to Allied pilots in the Korean war—and thus were not classified as war prisoners.

An Allied spokesman said names of the 10 or more prisoners returning at 11 a. m. Saturday (10 p. m. Friday EDT) would be released soon after they are freed. He said they will have their choice of whether to be interviewed.

Polio Kills 3 In One Family

TERRANOVA, Ont. (CP)—Three of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gallaugher's eight children have died from polio in the last two weeks.

It was the first family polio tragedy in 15 years.

Nine-year-old Luella died in hospital earlier this month. Her brother Errol, 15, died Wednesday and 17-year-old Floyd, oldest of the eight, died in Toronto Thursday.

Authorities said the three were stricken by an acute form of the disease. The remaining five children are under close quarantine and one, a 10-year-old girl, is under observation for symptoms which have not yet been diagnosed as polio.

In 1938 three children of a Burford district family died from the disease.

Floyd will be buried beside his sister and brother at a cemetery in this community 50 miles northwest of Toronto.

Status Of Troops In Korea Concerns Gov't

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—What will the Canadian troops in Korea do if President Syngman Rhee orders his Republic of Korea Army to resume the war against the Communists?

This question, it was learned here, is causing the Canadian government considerable concern. And there are so many uncertainties in the developing situation on Korea that the problem of reaching a definite policy is extremely difficult.

The concern isn't confined just to Canada. Britain, the United States and other countries which fought under the UN command are reported just as worried about what would happen to their forces if a new outbreak of shooting were initiated by the South Koreans.

CHOICE

They could stay and fight, but would public opinion at home let them? They might like to withdraw, but with their troops now patrolling the cease-fire line within a few miles of the Reds, such withdrawal could be hazardous. Another possibility is that the situation could be so confused it would not be quite clear whether the South Koreans or the Communists were responsible for resuming the fighting. By the time the UN command could learn who was responsible, its troops could already be involved.

The hope, of course, is that Rhee will be held in check by the United States and not carry out his threat to start fighting again in the event of failure of a Korean peace conference.

But there is still the question of South Korean public opinion. If it appeared there was to be no reunification of Korea, it might force Rhee into taking military action.

First In Four Years, U.K. Woman Executed

MANCHESTER, Eng. (AP) — Mrs. Louisa Merrifield, 46, was hanged today for murdering her 79-year-old employer with rat poison. She was the first woman executed in Britain in four years.

Mrs. Merrifield was caretaker-nurse of Mrs. Sarah Ann Ricketts, an aged widow who died shortly after naming Mrs. Merrifield a beneficiary in her will.

Mrs. Merrifield's husband, Alfred, 70, was accused with his wife but was released after a jury failed to agree.

New MPs Represent All Walks Of Life

OTTAWA (CP) — A survey of nomination papers of the new members of the House of Commons discloses that the men and women elected in the Aug. 10 election represent almost every walk of life, job or profession. There are 10 who have retired from the business or professional world and four who describe themselves as gentlemen.

The pursuits of the 265 members are so varied that the government will not lack advice on any problem arising during the next four or five years.

For legal help the government can rely on the abilities of 77 men and one woman, many of them distinguished members of the bar. The woman lawyer is Sybil Bennett, Progressive Conservative member for Halton.

LARGEST GROUP

The lawyers are the largest group represented in the new House, accounting for nearly a third of all members. Every province has at least one lawyer, but the bulk of them are from Ontario and Quebec.

The two central provinces each have 30 lawyers; Newfoundland, Prince Edward Island and Alberta one each; Nova Scotia, Manitoba and British Columbia three each; New Brunswick four and Saskatchewan two.

There will be a butcher in the Commons. He is Charles Yuill, Social Credit member for Jasper-Edson. He defeated John Welbourn, Liberal member in the last Parliament.

Colin Cameron is a pipefitter from Nanaimo, B.C. He is the new member for the Nanaimo constituency held in the last Parliament by Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, listed as a retired soldier. Gen. Pearkes was elected in the new British Columbia riding of Esquimalt-Saanich.

The House's four gentlemen members are Leonard T. Stick (L — Trinity-Conception); Joseph Lafontaine (L—Megantic); J. W. Murphy (PC—Lambton-West), and G. K. Fraser (PC—Peterborough). Their nomination papers list their occupation as "gentleman."

25 FARMERS

Farmers are the second largest group. There are 25, representing all provinces except Newfoundland and Nova Scotia.

Two thirds of the farmer representatives come from Ontario and Saskatchewan. Ontario has nine and the wheat province eight. There are two from Prince Edward Island, one from New Brunswick, one from Quebec, two from Manitoba, one from Alberta and one from British Columbia.

Merchants and business men come next with 21. They are followed by agents, salesmen and brokers with 18, teachers with 14, and editors, publishers, journalists and advertising executives with 13.

The remaining members represent just about every other walk of life, including that of the housewife. The women's viewpoint will be injected into parliamentary debate by four Ontario members—Miss Bennett; Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West), an accountant; Mrs. Ann Shipley (L—Timiskaming), a secretary, and Margaret Aitken (PC—York-Humber), a journalist.

There are eight doctors, one of them being Revenue Minister McCann. Four come from Ontario, three from Quebec and one from Manitoba.

THREE DENTISTS

The dental profession is represented by three members, William Buchanan (L—Cape Breton North and Victoria); W. A. Pommer (L—Lisgar), and J. L. MacDougall (L—Vancouver - Burrard). There is one druggist, S. R. Balcom, one of the two Liberal members from Halifax riding.

Besides teachers, the world of learning is represented by four professors, two educationists including Labor Minister Gregg, and four clergymen. In the professional field there are engineers, an architect, brokers, two civil servants, one surveyor and an agronomist in addition to doctors, dentists and lawyers. The agronomist, a professional agriculturist, is Leopold Demers, (L—Montreal Laval).

The business world has sent managers, directors, contractors, industrialists and manufacturers to the House. The white collar worker is represented by clerks, accountants, stenographers and salesmen.

The small business man has strong representation. His spokesmen are merchants of various types, lumber operators, garage owners and one jeweler, J. C. Nadon (L—Gatineau).

The working man is also well represented. Besides the butcher and the pipe fitter, there are two miners, Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton south), and J. A. Byrne (L—Kootenay East); one fisherman, A. Wesley Stuart (L—Charlotte); a millworker, Thomas Barnett (CCF—Comox - Alberni); an electrician, Harold Winch (CCF—Vancouver East), and a street-car motorman, Angus MacInnis (CCF—Vancouver-Kingsway).

And the House membership even includes a hockey coach, W. K. (Bucko) McDonald (L — Parry Sound-Muskoka). Mr. McDonald is a former National Hockey League star.

Identified

Sleeping Car Ticket Clue To Missing Maclean Family

GENEVA (AP)—Swiss police today began checking a theory that Mrs. Donald Maclean and her three children crossed the Iron Curtain into Austria last Saturday with a sleeping car ticket issued in London twelve days earlier.

Mrs. Maclean, the wife of a senior British foreign office official believed to have vanished into Soviet-controlled Eastern Europe in 1951, disappeared from her home here last Friday.

Mrs. Maclean and her children were last definitely identified by a fellow passenger, Professor Andre Guignard of Lausanne, on a train which left Lausanne for Zurich Friday evening. Beyond Fribourg, where the professor left the train, Mrs. Maclean's trail vanishes as completely as did that of her husband more than two years ago.

But Swiss police unearthed a slender new clue today.

A sleeping car compartment for two was ordered by Cook's head office in London from Zurich to Vienna, Austria, on the Arlberg Orient Express leaving Zurich at 11:34 p.m. Friday. Cook's Zurich office made the reservation for two berths and advised London accordingly, but received no notification of the name of the persons for whom the berths had been reserved. A ticket was issued to the unknown travellers in London on Aug. 31.

Swiss police said they would investigate to whom these tickets were issued in London. Mrs. Maclean apparently had help in her disappearance, since a telegram was sent on her behalf to her mother by an unknown woman who was definitely identified as not being Mrs. Maclean.

The Geneva police chief, Charles Knecht, recalled that hundreds of persons travelled by train into Austria every day, and the fact that the occupants of one compartment were unknown was not necessarily suspicious.

"Mrs. Maclean would have been able to keep her two-year-old daughter Melinda in her own berth and let the two boys share the other," he said.

30 More Douks Stand Trial Nudism Counts

VANCOUVER (CP) — Approximately 30 more Sons of Freedom were scheduled to stand trial for nudism today amid signs that their prison hunger strike was weakening.

They are the second contingent of Doukhobors to undergo swift trial before Magistrate Graham Ladner on charges of appearing in the nude in public.

Thursday, nine males of the 144 Doukhobors currently fasting in in Oakalla prison farm, were convicted in a series of hearings, longest of which ran 15 minutes. All nine were remanded until Monday for sentence.

Today's group is expected to continue the "conspiracy of silence" observed by Thursday's defendants, none of whom said a word or acknowledged that a trial was taking place.

REFUSE TO ANSWER

As one after another refused to answer when his name was called by Magistrate Ladner through a Russian-speaking interpreter, the judge remarked on "the similarity of conduct on the part of the accused."

First reports that the hunger strike might be abating came from warden Hugh Christie of Oakalla, where the 144 have been foodless since their arrest at Perry Siding Sept. 9.

Some of the "diehard" Sons, the warden said, have asked for vegetable juices. These men have existed solely on water since their arrest. Some of the women wavered earlier and accepted juice.

RCMP officers at the hearings, being held in a ramshackle Burnaby meeting hall, said Thursday they expected to "dispose of" 30 cases, some of them women, in today's hearings.

NO WOMEN APPEAR

Women have not appeared in the courtroom since Thursday morning, when only 14 of the 71 in custody were signified fit enough to travel the mile from Oakalla to the hall.

Some of these were carried bodily from the huge chartered bus into the court. They slumped forward in their chairs, refusing to acknowledge the charge as it was read. Then they were picked up again by the RCMP guards and carried back to the bus for the trip back to Oakalla. Only 57 men of the 73 held made the journey with them.

The 144 face a joint charge of contributing to juvenile delinquency, a holding charge on which they have been remanded until Sept. 25.

He had suffered a weak spell while out in the boat and was unable to get home. A search party of neighbors found him about five miles down the river and he was taken home suffering from shock and cold.

Mrs. Eley alerted her neighbors when her husband didn't return from his boat ride.

Report Refused On Jarvis St.

TORONTO (CP)—The Toronto police commission Thursday refused to supply a report to board of control on conditions in downtown Jarvis street.

No reason was given for refusal to make the report, requested Wednesday by three members of the board.

Mayor Allan Lamport, chairman of the commission, said the commission "doesn't have to supply any explanation of its actions. Maybe it was because they didn't feel any report was necessary."

Con. Louis Shannon said he was "shocked and really amazed" at the commission's stand.

Instead of the full-scale report, the commission issued a report dealing with law infractions in the area and giving a breakdown of arrests made.

Jews Observe Annual Feast Of Yom Kippur

Celebration of the Jewish feast of Yom Kippur, the day of atonement, culminating ten days of repentance at the opening of the new year of 5714, begins this evening at sundown, continuing with a fast of 24 hours until sundown on Saturday.

The ancient ceremony will be conducted by Rabbi A. M. Babb of the Peterborough congregation of Beth Israel. Cantor S. Schulman of Toronto will chant the Kol Nidre.

In his Rosh Hashanah sermon Rabbi Babb spoke of the realities of life, and the recognition of religion, with morals and ethics, as guide.

"We live in a period when modern thinkers have transformed philosophy into a form of abstract contemplation which has no bearing on the everyday life of the individual.

"Philosophy has become a device with which to rationalize our sins and excuse our transgressions. Mankind stands in danger of despair and misery. Philosophy which does not teach man how to live will not save the world from disaster . . . Let us, therefore, pray that the Lord grant us spiritual understanding of finding the right path in life."

Quoting from the Talmud the advice of Rabbi Eliezer, Rabbi Babb mentioned as ways to the correct path of life: "Be careful of the honor of your fellow men; when you pray, know before whom you pray; place your children at the feet of the sages."

"How much is written in America concerning brotherly love and decent feelings. Yet how backward are we when we behold organizations and individuals devoted to hatred, prejudice and anti-semitism. Such a paradox exists because those of us who are considered good people are willing to speak only of brotherly love, give the other man bread and water, but do not respect his feelings or his honor."

Rabbi Babb stressed the need of sincerity of religion in life, lest it become superficial. "Synagogues are on the increase, printing of prayer books and Bibles increase, but who can say that we are more religious than before."

expelled because of their Communist leadership.

The congress Thursday decided to launch a campaign to boost its membership by enlisting "white-collar" office workers and department store clerks across the country.

DIFFICULT JOB

They may be more difficult to organize than other employees "because they are much closer to management," said organizational chairman William Mahoney of the Toronto steel workers. But he was confident that by next year "we will be able to report considerable expansion in organizing the white-collar field."

Discussing human rights, the congress criticized the federal government for maintaining an immigration act which permits "the worst kind of racial discrimination."

There was a section in it which made an immigrant liable to deportation if he became associated with an organization which appeared to engage in subversive activities, said the CCL human rights committee.

These provisions "fill the immigrants life with apprehension and leave him at the mercy of constables, municipal clerks and others who have no special competence to determine what constitutes subversive activity."

Prices Go Down In Light Trading

TORONTO (CP)—Prices tended lower in light early afternoon trading on the Toronto stock market today.

Golds and base metals hit a three-year low as all groups eased.

Manufacturers, papers and refining oils in the industrials were weak. Utilities and agricultures showed some strength and foods, banks and liquors mixed.

A fairly wide list of western oils lost.

Base metals traded actively with most of the losses in the seniors.

Uraniums and New Brunswick base metals were mostly down or unchanged. Gains were scarce and losses small. The Bathurst-area issues attracted more interest after noon but still traded lightly and a majority of losses showed.

Golds, lightly traded all day, were mixed in seniors and juniors and down in holding companies. Prospectors Airways, down 40 cents after recent favorable trading, led the losers.

U.S. Bombers Try Greenland Base As New "Springboard"

By ELTON C. FAY

THULE AIR BASE, Greenland (AP)—B-36 bombers of the United States Air Force already are beginning to try out this new air base at the top of the world as a springboard for strikes at Eurasia should Russia turn to war. A half-dozen of the far-ranging B-36s have come in here during recent months, it now may be disclosed, from their home bases 3,000 miles away in the United States.

Here at this northern tip of Greenland is the northernmost of the chain of bases operated by the Northeast Air Command.

And only 1,700 miles away on a direct line, describing an arc over the polar ice, is the coast line of the Russian mainland with munitions-making cities and Moscow, the capital, lying a few hours beyond.

NEAR RED BASES

Nearer are such potential Soviet bases as the islands of Novaya Zemlya and Franz Joseph, land from which the Reds could launch their own strikes against North America.

But this powerful air base in the ice and rocks of the Arctic is much more than a springboard for the 12,000-mile range B-36s.

It brings Russia in a retaliatory bombing war within range of the swift-flying B-47 jet bombers or the older piston-engined B-29s and B-50s.

All three types of the medium bombers have operated into and out of Thule either in routine training operations or experimentally.

MILITARY MISSION

Together with providing a base for retaliatory bombing of Eurasian targets, Thule and the other bases of the northeast command have an equally important military mission. Thule and the bases south of here in Greenland and Labrador exist as a system of warning for and interception of a sudden strike by Red long range bombers.

At Thule is based the 318th Fighter-Interceptor Squadron of F-94 jets.

Col. Richard T. Hernlund, Thule base commander, showed reporters he could "scramble" the interceptors and get them into the air almost instantly upon a flash from the radar warning net that unidentified planes were heading toward Greenland and targets to the south. The jet fighters, like those at other USAF forward bases, stand on parking areas with engines warmed for immediate takeoff.

Reporters who arrived at Thule this time after a visit a year ago found all but some minor construction completed, the field and its intricate complex of supply and maintenance ready.

Approve Freight Rate Boost

OTTAWA (CP)—The seven-per-cent railway freight rate increase granted last March by the board of transport commissioners is here to stay. Prime Minister St. Laurent announced at a press conference Thursday night that the cabinet has rejected an appeal by eight provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—to rescind the rate increase which went into effect March 16. The eight provinces which opposed the boost have no further recourse. However, strong protests against the increase are expected to be made at the coming session of Parliament by western and eastern members.

The provinces' appeal against the increase which amounts to about $38,500,000 a year was heard by the cabinet in May. It was the first full-dress attack before the government on a general freight rate increase since 1949, after the original post-war increase of 21 per cent.

STATEMENT

A statement issued by Mr. St Laurent's office said:

"The government has advised the governor-general against rescinding the board's judgment and order, or referring to the board certain specific directions concerning such matters as the revenues, operating expenses and other income of the Canadian Pacific Railway and uniform percentage increases in freight rates. This had been requested by the provinces in a petition dated March 30, 1953."

The statement also said that two important points raised by the provinces during their cabinet appeal May 1—uniformity of accounts and equalization of freight rates—now are under consideration by the transport board.

STARTS JAN. 1

The board's tentative plan to equalize freight rates is slated to come into effect Jan. 1. Final hearings on the plan now are taking place in Quebec.

At the appeal hearing, the provinces asked the cabinet to rescind the increase and to order the transport board to:

1. Undertake an independent investigation of the prospective 1953 revenues of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the "yardstick" company used in fixing rates;

2. Take into account, in establishing rates for 1953, some transportation revenue which the CPR now terms "other income," which is not used in determining the need for rate increases;

3. Open an investigation to determine the extent to which, for rate-making purposes, the rail operating expenses of the CPR should be cut down.

Hurricane Rips Over Bermuda

HAMILTON, Bermuda (AP)—Hurricane Edna roared on into Atlantic shipping lanes 775 miles east of Cape Hatteras today after playing havoc with transportation and electric power on the vacation island of Bermuda.

The Miami weather bureau said indications were that the storm would slowly decrease in ferocity, but the area of gales would become larger as the storm centre curved further from North America.

Edna, fifth tropical storm of the season, did no apparent major damage to Bermuda although gusts up to 120 miles an hour whipped across the island. Downed trees and shrubs blocked most thoroughfares. Electric power and water service was cut off at most points.

During the peak of the gale a number of houses at the island were unroofed. Part of the roof of the colony's exclusive Saltus Boy's School was swept away.

Two small racing yachts were sunk at the Royal Bermuda Yacht Club and a larger one broke its moorings and splintered against a sea wall.

Asserting that Russia considers putting atomic energy to peaceful uses its most important task, the statement said the Soviets are "carrying out the task of employing atomic energy for industrial purposes."

The Soviet announcement on page two of the government newspaper Izvestia said:

"In the last few weeks, in accordance with the plans of scientific research work in the sphere of atomic energy in the Soviet Union, there were carried out trials of some new type of atomic bombs. The trials were carried out successfully. They fully confirmed the calculations and suggestions of scientists, engineers and constructors. . ."

The AEC spokesman in Washington indicated the commission had found nothing additional of interest to add to its Aug. 31 statement. At that time, the AEC said it would make no further announcement about Russian tests "unless intelligence indicates information of greater interest."

"We are standing on the Aug. 31 statement," the U. S. spokesman said Friday night.

Ask Canadians To Lose Modesty

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canadians must rid themselves of their national modesty if they are going to progress and live in peace "in this small atomic world," a former member of the Atomic Energy Committee said at the Western Fair Thursday.

Speaking before the exhibitors' and manufacturers luncheon, Clark Murray of Woodstock, former Oxford MP, told guests that Canada cannot allow herself to be insulated or isolated, that Canadians must sell their country, their products, and what she stands for to the world.

If they don't, he said, some other country will sell her products and what she stands for.

Canada might not have the glamor of the United States or the history of England but she has found a fascinating and exciting "middle road" along which she has expanded and become a world leader, Mr. Murray said.

companies intersted in trading in this area (Syria, Lebanon and Iraq).

"Wheat and flour are the main imports—in 1952 about $6,000,000 of flour and $3,500,000 of wheat. There's a market for a fair variety of products, from autos to toys. Some electrical appliances are also sold. The North American refrigerator has considerable eye appeal in those countries."

He described Lebanon as a small country with a population of a million and a quarter, but it has a commercial influence much greater than its size would indicate. Beirut is the banking and financial centre of the Middle East. Currencies are freely convertible there; through the free port last year there poured $13,000,000 worth of Canadian goods.

CANADA FAVORED

"Canada holds a very favorable position from both the political and commercial aspect," said Mr. Hughes. "But because of the freedom of exchange in currencies the market is one of price, and price alone. The Lebanese are shrewd businessmen."

Good wheat crops in Syria, Turkey and Iraq this year mean that Canadian exporters will have to fight harder than ever to retain their hold on that Midlle East market.

Mr. Wharry, who is naturally vitally interested in the flour and cereal situation in the Middle East, met Mr. Hughes last February when he was on his tour of North and Central Africa and the Middle East.

For his part, Mr. Hughes is a pro-Peterborough man. In 1940 he went through the CGE Test Course here. Since then he has been four years in Turkey and last October he opened up the trade commissioner office in Beirut.

"Peterborough certainly has grown since I was here last," he said. And there's one thing I must do before I go—that is see Roy Bogle, now works manager at CGE. He was on the Test Course here with me. You said it. Time does fly."

Handful Of PoWs

The Communists informed Allied members of the joint PoW repatriation committee that the prisoners changed their minds "as a result of repeated persuasion by our side."

All the 320 reluctant Allied prisoners were reported at Kaesong, waiting to be moved into Indian-guarded camps in the neutral zone this week-end.

Meanwhile, the provost marshal-general of South Korea accused the Reds of intimidating anti-Red North Korean PoWs in Indian custody. He threatened to block delivery of any more North Koreans into the buffer zone camps and indirectly warned he might try to free the few thousand left in Allied camps.

Lt.-Gen. Won Yong Duk said the Reds are taking names and addresses of the prisoners and threatening reprisals against their families in North Korea.

However, Indian guards at the neutral zone camp recently have kept Red observers 100 yards or more from the stockades, making it almost impossible to obtain the names of prisoners.

James Stark Senior Winner Of Jr. Farmer Competition

Junior Farmers from the counties of Peterborough, Durham, Hastings, Victoria, Ontario and Northumberland spent a busy day at the Exhibition on Thursday.

The Home-Makers displayed various projects of their feminine hobbies as well as their skill in home economics features. The 4-H members competed in such things as livestock identification and judging, tractor mechanics and conservation.

Top man in the senior bracket for the day was James Stark, RR 2, Uxbridge, with a total of 474 points while Gerald Brown of Newcastle took the junior class with an aggregate of 464 points.

GIVEN DINNER

The day was climaxed for the young farmers and farmerettes with a southern fried chicken banquet at Club Aragon as guests of Canada Packers at which 325 plates were served. Group were transported to the Exhibition Grounds immediately after dinner to witness the evening grandstand performance.

Lionel Browne, manager, of Canada Packers, welcomed the Junior Farmers at the dinner and congratulated them on their showing. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Jim Goldie, who among other things took the self conscious stiffness out of the group and caused easier relationships.

Highlighting the entertainment for the dinner was a young Junior Farmer, Bob Macdougall, 19, of Keene. Although pressed for time he was impressive in his performance of slight of hand. Within 10 mintues he managed to pull off a number of tricks, pleasing, and baffling to the onlookers. Performing in public for less than a year, he had the earmarks of a professional and yet retained the freshness of the amateur.

"The whole thing resulted from a juvenile obsession for magic tricks," said Bob. "I started reading books on the subject and before I knew it, I belonged to the International Brotherhood of Magicians."

When not perfoming his feats of magic, Bob helps to run the farm of his father, A. E. Macdougall.

JUNIOR FARM CHOIR

Further entertainment was supplied by the Junior Farmer's Choir under the direction of Charles Allen.

Miss Florence Eadie of Bowmanville was presented with a hamper of packing house products for her services to the Home-Makers as home economic director. Hampers were also given to Bill Dunk, Brighton, and Carol Reid, Belleville, winners of a draw.

Gerald Brown, winner of the senior section was presented with a gift by Jim Goldie. James Stark, who was not present at the dinner will receive a silver tray as winner of the senior section.

Prize winners for aggregate score in judging one class of beef cattle, dairy cattle, heavy horses, sheep, swine, identification contest, quiz on "Agriculture," forestry and conservation and tractor defects test. (Possible score 500 points):

Catholic Unions Vote Hike Of $200,000 In Strike Fund

QUEBEC (CP)—Delegates of the 100,000-member Canadian Catholic Confederation of Labor Thursday night voted to increase their strike fund from $100,000 to $300,000 annually.

The decision came after a four-hour debate following adoption of new strike fund regulations which, for the first time cover municipal employees and other categories of civil servants who are forbidden by law to strike.

Municipal employees now may apply to the strike fund committee for assistance in "exceptional cases." In the past these employees contributed but could not draw from the fund.

Discussion overflowed the set length of the convention, scheduled to close Thursday night, and a motion to adjourn and sit an extra day was adopted by some 400 delegates.

Today's business largely consists of adopting reports and electing officers for the coming year.

Increase of the strike fund takes effect Sept. 1, 1954 and represents a monthly contribution per member of 25 cents compared with 10 cents now contributed.

Convention delegates, closely watching developments in the dispute between the city of Montreal and its municipal employees, adopted a resolution expressing support "in any way necessary" of Montreal's civic workers.

Amedee Parent, a delegate of the municipal employers syndicate, said union members may strike Sept. 25.

However, Jean Marchand, CCCL secretary-general, said later no decision to strike has been taken and no date set.

A resolution urging the federal government to outlaw the Communist party was amended to say that the CCCL "reiterates its opposition to materialist doctrines and theories whether marxist or capitalist."

Ye Gods!—49th State

The cockiest and craziest notion in Labour circles this year was a petition presented by a Toronto local of the United Steel Workers of America to the Canadian Congress of Labour in its annual session in Montreal this week. The resolution proposed that Canada petition the United States government for admission as the 49th state.

* * *

The notion is fantastic, no matter how many immediate material advantages might accrue from Canada's becoming American. In the first place this country would be silly to expect that it could enter the American union as one entity. It would upset the whole American ship of state. Canada would promptly be broken down into a dozen states all less significant and less powerful than the most backwoodsy present member of the union. Secondly, the U.S. would not have us. The States is making too good a thing of us now, financially and diplomatically, to risk stewing the juice out of us in the American melting-pot. Thirdly, Canadians are better off as they are, even if the cost of living seems higher and wages lower.

* * *

The brief which the Toronto local presented to the Congress said, among other things, that rates of pay in the U.S. are higher, taxes are lower and most consumer goods are cheaper. Some of these statements could be argued, but we shall merely ask this: When have the formative years of any great enterprise been cheap? Before a business gets on its feet it has to plow profits back, live carefully and spend more on capital costs than it takes in by annual income. Canada is now passing through the great formative years of her career towards riches, power and plenty such as no nation on earth has ever had. Let us not be impatient. If the present cost of our future is a little high, it is a future worth indulging. Let Canadians remain Canadians. So the CCL decided Tuesday when to a man the seven hundred delegates voted against the Toronto local's resolution.

Greenland—The Great Dane

Greenland occupies so large a blob on maps of Canada—particularly when it is drawn to Mercator's projection, which distorts all the northern areas—that many Canadians loosely think of the island as Canadian. It is not and never has been, and now for the first time has become a tight part of Denmark. It is been integrated with the Danish Kingdom, not as colony or Dominion but as a piece of Denmark. Later this year two representatives of Greenland will sit in the Danish parliament as ordinary members.

The process from discovery to colonization to self-governing territory and finally to integration with the mother country has been long, but rapid in its final stages. Greenland—second largest of the continental islands of the world—was discovered by Norsemen in the tenth century. They settled the extreme southern parts. This colony vanished and the island was only rediscovered in the search for the North-West Passage towards the end of the sixteenth century. The foundation of Danish claims to Greenland was laid through the appointment by the King of Denmark of a Lutheran missionary in 1721. A settlement was created and colonial government started. This has continued until the present year, with progressive changes being made to give the native Eskimos and the few hundred Danish officials and commercial men self-government.

In 1917 the Danish domination of Greenland became complete when the U.S. relinquished all rights to any part of Greenland through discovery or occupation. This was in part an exchange for the Danish West Indies. However, in 1941 the U.S. signed an agreement whereby it took Greenland under its protection, with the right to establish American air bases and military facilities there. This agreement was superceded two years ago when the U.S. and Denmark signed a twenty-year pact for the U.S. use of air and naval bases in Greenland. A year ago today it was disclosed that the U.S. was constructing a 263 million dollar base for jet fighters and bombers in northwest Greenland, 930 miles from the North Pole.

The process towards self-government and integration with Denmark was speedy from 1950 when an act of the Danish Parliament provided for a Greenland Council of elected members headed by an appointed Governor. The first elections took place in 1951. Under an amendment to the constitution approved by Danish voters in a plebiscite conducted last May, the complete integration of Greenland into Denmark was approved. Because of its small population and thousands of square miles of ice-fields (where the ice may be as thick as a thousand feet), there is little chance that Greenland will overshadow Denmark, despite Greenland's being fifty times bigger.

A reason for these quick new politic developments has been the increasing strategic and commercial importance of Greenland. In this Canada is intimately concerned. Greenland is the world's chief source of cryolite, which is used in the manufacture of aluminum. Canada is one of the world greatest manufacturers of that product. There are other minerals in Greenland, and in June, 1952, plans were made by a Danish-Swedish-Canadian company to extract minerals, particularly lead, zinc and wolfram which were discovered in eastern Greenland four years ago.

Canada has a floating interest in Greenland—icebergs. Most of the northern hemisphere's icebergs are manufactured (by nature) in the great fiords of Greenland. Their water is very deep, their shore lines long and their sides precipitous. Under such conditions many thousands of icebergs are detached (the technical word is calved) from the parent ice-cap every year. These furnish the great icefields of the Atlantic off the Labrador and Newfoundland coasts.

We close this brief dissertation with the remark that Greenland is not entirely as cold as its position and reputation indicate. There are some hot springs on Anortok Island, in southernmost Greenland, where a water temperature of 108 degrees has been recorded.

Keene School

The old frame building pictured on our Feature Page last week is not School Section No. 4 Otonabee (Keene). It is not even a school-house, we are informed. Not at all. S.S. No. 4 is a brick building in the village, built in 1917, and a photograph was sent us to prove it. We have seen the stately building with its two lofty stories surmounted by a belfry and bearing the name-stone S.S. No. 4. The humble building we showed by means of a 1945 photograph of it was the Foresters' Hall. It is rented by the Otonabee school board to house the overflow of pupils from the brick school and it was first rented for this purpose almost a quarter century ago.

What are we to call the old wooden building if not a school-house? An outhouse of No. 4? Certainly the place has been used as a school long enough to think of it as a school-house, even if it has no belfry. The overflow from the other building into it has been continuous since 1929, long enough to believe it a permanent overflow. When the school (the wooden one, the senior school) opened its doors this fall again, more than forty pupils were expected to crowd into its fewer than forty desks. A sizable school.

Many communities and school boards in Ontario were found to be short of vision and long in pessimism when the war ended. The times continued to be prosperous and the population to increase. They seemed hardly able to believe their eyes—and certainly were not anxious to dig into their rising incomes to build schools which might not be needed, should prosperity dwindle and families decrease in size and melt away from the district. However, many places have now come to terms with the reality of prosperity and the inflation in families and dollars as well as tax-rates. They have built new schools and additions. The Otonabee school board and Council have temporized; they continue to rent the wooden building and to submit their children's education to one of the least desirable school houses to be found in prosperous and progressive areas in Canada. Township taxes are high; people have understandably been loath to add to them.

There are indications that the authorities in Keene and Otonabee, and the taxpaying farmers, have recognized the inevitable, that Keene and its district must have other, additional school accommodation. When a new building results we hope that we shall never fall into the error (natural under existing circumstances) of referring to the Foresters' hut as S.S. No. 4, or even an outbuilding of it.

NOTE AND COMMENT

In other days a gold strike meant that people had struck gold. The modern definition around Hollinger seems to be to strike the company for pay-gold.

Regina, with a population of 55,000, has a football budget of $260,000. Sounds as horrifying as the booze bill, with which populaces are frequently scarified by ardent temperance organizations.

Peterborough and its workers may be especially interested that a new electric induction furnace for melting zinc sheets is now in operation at the Trail (B.C.) plant of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company of Canada. It is the largest of its kind in the world and the first to be used in the Western Hemisphere. It was designed and constructed by Societa Italiana Costruzioni Elettrotermiche of Milan, Italy.

NORWAY AT THE CROSSROADS

Sober, Modest Cheerful Folk

By E. MICHAEL SALZER (In Oslo)

NORWAY is essentially a country of small farmers and small traders, of people earning less than £500 a year. Cheerful, modest, sober folk; they are prepared to work hard, but demand their full share of leisure—and generous labour laws are increasing this from year to year. The living standards of the "little man" are steadily rising and as class distinctions diminish they cease to provide slogans for political warfare between Left and Right. All the political Parties except the Communists, who are not represented in the present Parliament, support a common foreign policy, advocating close collaboration with the West. In spite—or perhaps because— of the common frontier with the Soviet Union, Norwegian Communists have failed to gain the support of more than five per cent. of the electorate. About half of the voters belong to Parties of the Right; but in the past twenty years they have rarely been able to claim a Parliamentary majority. Since 1935 the Prime Ministers have been Socialists.

✧ ✧ ✧

A REFORM of the electoral system in favour of a more even proportional representation has improved the chances of the non-Socialist parties in the elections for the Storting (Parliament) that will be held early next month. Under the new system, which removes all distinction between rural and urban areas, the Socialist Party would now, on the basis of the 1949 election results, gain no more than 76 of the 150 seats, instead of the 85 they did in fact win. The next biggest single Party, the Conservatives, now see their chance, and have already started an all-out effort to swing the pendulum to the Right. They bank largely on the appeal of their call for "personal freedom from State controls," which has been accentuated by the last Parliament's big effort to enforce Socialist ideas of economic controls by passing the bitterly-resented Price Bill—which gives the government authority to do such things as fix maximum and minimum prices and conditions of supply, regulate production, incomes and profits: in short, to run trade and industry along controlled lines.

✧ ✧ ✧

MR. SJUR LINDEBRAEKKE, one of the leading Conservative opponents of the Bill, has said: "Today we stand at a parting of the ways." And another Conservative has called the Socialist Party's plan "an economic strait-jacket."

✧ ✧ ✧

SMALL TRADERS and farmers are naturally suspicious of trusts and monopolies; but workers and employees want to rely on constant employment. To the latter the Socialist Party's Minister of Trade, Mr. Erik Brofoss, appealed when he tried to justify the Bill—which is undoubtedly the most controversial subject of the election campaign. "Given a choice between stagnation under a free economy or progress under a regulated one, we will choose the latter," said Mr. Brofoss. And so the Socialist programme is to aid the "little man," rebuild the country after the war, help solve the housing shortage, hold prices down and wages up, create full employment and perfect the social welfare programme.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALL NON-SOCIALIST Parties voted against the Price Law. But when it comes to formulating an election programme, they are not so united. With a common onslaught they might dethrone the Socialists; but split as they are, they have small chances of forcing through a non-Socialist Government. The Socialists will probably be able to hold their present number of popular votes; but under the new electoral system they will lose their decisive majority, and so need a coalition partner to remain in power. And here it seems likely that Norway's farmers are prepared to follow the example of their Swedish and Finnish colleagues, and make a bargain with the Socialists to strengthen their own position, obtaining concessions in return.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE LIBERALS are fighting both the Conservatives and the Socialists, with little chance of improving their lot. The Communists are trying for a come-back (in the last elections they lost all their seats) and will probably benefit by the new system.

✧ ✧ ✧

NORWEGIAN ELECTION campaigns are usually uneventful. Opposing candidates stand on the same platform and harangue their listeners in turn, both getting cheers and catcalls from the crowd. Party newspapers exchange advertisements of one another's election meetings, and the "little man" is assured that all the candidates are decent fellows and fair players. This system has produced a state of affairs in Norway's Party politics whereby the voter goes home and decides that no drastic change is needed. But the ominous Price Law has shaken up the independent small businessmen, the small traders, the housewives. They have been reminded that decisions are slowly being wrested out of their hands. And this time they may be moved to action.

Which Market For Gas?

(Saskatoon Star-Phoenix)

The Canadian government must make a choice soon between American or Canadian gas for eastern Canada. We are convinced that the laws of economics would be followed and the best interests of Canada served in the long run if American gas were allowed into Ontario and Quebec and western Canadian gas exported to the nearby Pacific northwest. Of course, before opening the way for American gas, our government should make sure that the U.S. will reciprocate by allowing Canadian gas into the northwestern states. It has to be a two-way bargain. And it would mean mutual gains. Meanwhile, delays cost money. Eastern Canadian industry could use natural gas. And, as J. M. Gordon noted on this page not long ago: "More than $500 millions are lying idle underground in the Pincher Creek gas fields . . . until there is some decision on the ticklish argument over export of natural gas."

Canada's Gifts

(Port of Colombo Review)

The first instalment of Canada's Colombo Plan aid to Ceylon was received when two 32-ton motor-driven fishing vessels were unloaded from the freighter "Lawak" recently. A third vessel, the modern trawler "Maple Leaf" arrived towards the end of May.

Refrigeration plant, other equipment and technical assistance are further contributions generously made by Canada towards the development of Ceylon's fishing industry.

RUN DOWN AND OUT

Four-Year Plan For Colonies

('This Is Britain' Newsletter)

THE United Kingdom Government is working out a Five Year Plan for the 50-odd colonial territories which still depend on Britain. Under it new funds would be granted in addition to the $400 million already allocated for Colonial development under the Colonial Welfare and Development Act.

Since the end of World War II, the British taxpayer has contributed over £70 million ($196 million) for Colonial development and welfare. This is one-way aid—no British colony has to pay any tax or tribute to Britain.

The new Five Year Plan would run from 1955 to 1960, overlapping the original scheme by one year, to assure continuity. Colonial governments have been asked to provide information to Parliament in the form of financial statements showing their requirements for external financial assistance in this five-year period, together with their estimates on local funds available for the objects.

Private capital also is pouring into Britain's fifty odd colonies. Last year, the equivalent of over a billion dollars was invested in the colonial territories, largely by private enterprise.

The Colonies have also been granted permission to incur additional financial commitments over and above their allotment, on the understanding that Parliament will later be asked to vote these funds. The total of these commitments is limited to around $19.5 million, and must be entered into only when absolutely essential, as for instance in the signing of long-term contracts.

A further sum of $8.4 million will be requested for the Colonies to spend on rice investigation in view of the current world rice shortage. So far five territories have submitted suggestions for rice development projects. These are:

MALAYA—which plans to institute a full survey of an area of around 180,000 acres of flat land near the Perak River, now mainly swamp and jungle.

NORTH BORNEO—where a detailed soil survey is planned to establish which areas would be suitable for the cultivation of rice. It is believed mechanical cultivation is possible here.

BRITISH GUIANA — whose government plans to drain swamps, erect sea defence works to keep out sea water, and construct a dam to conserve seasonal flood-water in a reservoir. It is also proposed to expand the Agricultural Experimental Station programme for breeding new varieties of rice suitable to local conditions, to institute drainage and irrigation works, and provide new land and buildings for the scheme.

WEST AFRICA—here experiments are proposed in methods of tree-clearing and the cultivation of rice in the water of mangrove swamps.

TANGANYIKA—where large-scale development of 100,000 acres in the Kilombero Valley is believed possible. However, hydrological data must first be assembled over a period of years, so that complete water control may be planned and seasonal floods evenly spread over extensive rice fields.

Announcing the Government programme for extending the terms of the Colonial Development and Welfare Act, and subsidiary schemes in connection with colonial advances, Mr. Oliver Lyttelton, Secretary of the Colonies, reminded Parliament that expenditure of these funds opened up further fields for private investment.

The Colonies are exporting more, and importing more. New industries are springing up, and scientific research is going forward. At least fifty major development schemes—costing between $40 and $70 million—are due for completion in the Colonies this year. All of these are intended to contribute to the common economic strength of the whole sterling area and thereby augment world trade and economic activity.

The United Kingdom Government is also asking Parliament to extend the time limit for the first Ten Year Plan for the Colonies. Under the terms of the Colonial Welfare and Development Act, the original sum of $392 million had to be spent by 1956.

Hard Year For Mr. Pearson

(MONTREAL STAR)

SKILLED diplomat though he is, Mr. Lester Pearson must be giving some sighs of relief that his year as President of the United Nations Assembly has come to an end. He is on record as saying that, difficult though it was to come to a Korean truce, the obstacles in the way of a real peace there are greater still. This prophecy, made weeks ago, has already come true, and the special responsibilities of the U.N. Assembly President are, in such circumstances, heavy indeed.

That officer must, in the first place, never forget that the United Nations is a forum in which all sides of all disputes must be reasonably heard. At the same time it becomes inevitable that, while presiding with complete impartiality, he must also play an important role in the creation of effective coalitions of members designed to attract wide enough support to produce acceptable settlements. To create compromises without sacrifice of essential principle is an exacting and an exhausting task.

Added to all this is the constant doubt, under existing U.N. conditions, as to whether the Communist bloc of members is actually bargaining in good faith. In the free world we are accustomed to the business of tough, hard bargaining. But we do not enter the bargaining phase without the idea of making a deal. The U.S.S.R., on the other hand, more than once, has made it clear after weeks of debate that it never intended to come to any settlement at all. One of its international techniques is to leave as many problems as possible in endless suspense. This has already become a possibility in the case of the Korean peace conference.

It was Mr. Pearson's lot to preside over a series of particularly difficult sessions. Added to his burden was the domestic business of a general election. It has not been an easy year for him, but the judgement upon his work both at home and abroad will be that he has conducted himself with distinction, with resultant benefits to Canada's international posiiton.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now there is at Jerusalem by the sheep market, a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches. In these lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water. For an angel went down at a certain season into the pool, and troubled the water: whosover then first after the troubling of the water stepped in was made whole of whatsoever disease he had.

And a certain man was there, which had an infirmity thirty and eight years. When Jesus saw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that case, he saith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole? The impotent man answered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another steppeth down before me.

Jesus saith unto him, Rise, take up thy bed, and walk. And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked and on the same day was the sabbath . . . Afterward Jesus findeth him in the temple, and said unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: sin no more, lest a worse thing come unto thee. (John 5: 2-9, 14.)

Letter To The Editor

KEENE SENIOR ROOM

Sir:

There is a little school house
Right on the beaten track,
In fact it can't be called a school.
It really is a shack!

September eight arrived this year,
(It really is not fair.)
Our most worthy of officials
Had neglected to prepare

For the surplus population
(The brave and worthy seven)
Of this growing corporation
This near suburb of Heaven.

And for two and forty children
In Senior Room at Keene
Just five and thirty seats provided
'Twas somewhat short, 'twould seem.

And the bewildered teacher,
Hemmed in - behind - before,
Gazed all around; then seated them
Upon the classroom floor!

Everyone's so busy
That the time cannot be found.
To improve the situation
Or advance a plan profound.

But if all wait with patience—
There'll surely dawn a day
When someone will think of something.
That won't offend a soul!
—And the kids will all be seated
When the Teacher calls the roll.

SURPRISE

A woman visiting the Holy Land went to a tourist office for information on roads. Told that it was now possible to go by car from Dan to Beersheba, she confessed, "Do you know, I never knew that Dan and Beersheba were places. I always thought they were husband and wife, like Sodom and Gomorrah."

Muskies One Of Biggest Kawartha Assets: McGillen

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—"Poachers of muskies eat the most expensive dish known to Canada today," stated Pete McGillen, Outdoor Editor of the Toronto Evening Telegram, addressing a dinner meeting of the Chamber of Commerce at South Beach Wednesday evening.

"Muskies are the greatet attraction of the Kawarthas. You can't fish the lakes out legally, but you can with poachers.

These muskies are part of your merchandise;—they belong to you. See they are protected in the spawning season. See to it that there is a 24-hour guard on the nets. You, as a Chamber of Commerce can do a great deal towards the conservation of these fish."

Referring to the Kawarthas as a God-given asset, Mr. McGillen deplored the fact that many owners were indifferent to their real value. He considered that a 30-pound lunge caught in these waters, and properly advertised, could easily attract at least 50 people to this area, whose average spending would be $200.

RESORT AREA

He urged resort owners to promote the Kawarthas as a resort area and not to worry too much about their own little places. As the success of the area grew, so in turn, would their resorts.

The beauty of the Kawarthas was unsurpassed. Champlain, the first tourist, spoke in glowing terms of the beauty and abundance of these lakes, and here it was that the Indian braves were sent to recuperate after battle, so beautiful and sacred were these lakes considered by them.

"You have 1,100,000 people in Toronto, right at your door, a made-to-order gang of customers. Encourage them. It costs you less than advertising in American papers", said Mr. McGillen.

The speaker made several suggestions to resort owners: (1) That the owner should not try to have a better time than his guests, who were, after all on a holiday; (2) To keep fiction out of their advertising folders. Don't advertise fishing if it's 10 miles away. People take quality for granted, but the one promise that fails to materialize is poison. That's the sore point that sends him to another place the next year. (3) Don't drink during the tourist season even if you have to manufacture a stomach ulcer as an excuse. (4) Tell the tourists what you have to offer in your folders. If you haven't what is advertised, get it. If you can't get it, burn the folder and make up a new one. If you don't, you are doing yourself, your industry and your province an irreparable harm.

URGES HOLIDAY

Mr. McGillen urged both resort owners and business men present to take a holiday each year.

I'd like to think that some of the philosophy I have given you tonight will soak in and that you will take a holiday and save yourself a lot of heartache and headaches. If you're too busy to take a holiday, you're too busy" concluded Mr. McGillen.

Introduced by Gillis Purcell, Toronto, general manager of The Canadian Press, Mr. McGillen was thanked by R. K. Slater, who also presented him with rod and reel from the Chamber and a set of fishing flies from the Lucky Strike Bait Co. Mr. Purcell was presented with a casting certificate by Tom Lawlor, owner of South Beach Hotel.

President Donald Hendren welcomed the guests and gave a comprehensive summary of the year's work done by the Chamber. He thanked all members of the executive and committee chairmen.

The blessing was asked by Mrs. W. W. Leonard and the toast to the ladies, proposed by Neil Wood, was responded to by Mrs. W. A. Killoran.

E. H. Northey gave a report of the work done so far by the Department of Lands and Forests towards the control of algae.

The following members were elected by ballot to the board of directors: Mrs. Verna O'Brien, Jack Dawson, Percy Archer, Neil Blewett, William Sheppard, Harry Morgan, Dr. L. O. Bailey and B. F. Blake.

Community singing, led by Mrs. Donald Hendren with Stanley Northrop at the piano, concluded the evening.

Make Schooling Mandatory In Army For First Time

By JACK MacBETH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Compulsory schooling has been ordered by the Canadian Army for the first time in its history.

Beginning next month, any soldier who doesn't know his three Rs must learn them as part of his regular training. Aim of the program is to raise the minimum educational level of the army to grade eight—the high school entrance standard.

Army authorities said that the order, dated July 27, had been contemplated "for a long, long time." They added that no inference should be drawn from the date of issue that it constitutes a response to recent criticism of army educational standards.

Admitting that present standards are lower than before the Korean war began or before the Second World War, senior officers insisted that this is not reflected in the "high" efficiency of today's units, either at home or abroad.

The army order said the training program would be divided into two parts:

"1. The compulsory training of any soldier of the active force who is below the grade eight level. The attainment of grade eight standard will permit a soldier to perform his duty satisfactorily as a private soldier, specialist or tradesman, and, in addition, will prepare him for the more advanced courses.

"2. The voluntary training of personnel of the active force, who hold a grade eight standard, to the educational level which they themselves may wish to obtain in order to further their career in the army."

In the past, all education has been on a voluntary basis.

In a recent three-month survey, the average educational standard of Canadian Army recruits was found to be between seventh and eighth grade. This means, presumably, that roughly half of them will go to school under the new rule.

Postal Workers Ask $720 Boost

CALGARY (CP)—The Canadian Postal Employees Association Thursday requested an annual salary increase of $720 for all postal workers and expressed strong disapproval of the postal department's overtime policy.

The salary-increase request came in a Vancouver resolution, which was passed unanimously and which will be forwarded to the post office department.

The association, in annual convention here, also requested an annual boost of $240 for postal clerks.

Delegates protested the action of the post office department in a Sept. 4 directive instructing postmasters to pay no overtime until workers had completed a 48-hour work week. They said postal employees are supposed to work 44 hours a week.

Victoria Fans Cooling Off On Western Finalists As Petes Roll Right Along

By DON GRANT, Examiner Staff Reporter

VICTORIA, B.C. — If anyone wants to come from Peterborough tonight for the Mann Cup series' third game, they'll quite likely be able to get tickets for the game. For the first time in the Canadian lacrosse finals the Memorial Arena isn't expected to be filled to capacity. The Victoria Shamrock fans, very staunch supporters of the team all season until Wednesday night, apparently are losing faith in their favorites. They aren't rushing for the reserve seats.

The lacrosse enthusiasts in Victoria jammed the arena for the first two games and both times they've been sent home unhappy. Those are the first times this year they've gone home that way, for the Rocks have previously won every game, 22, at home this season.

The average fan, the Victoria type at least, has now changed his outlook on the series and think it may end Monday night with the Trailermen running up four straight games.

Climbing out on an old rotten limb, I'll predict that this won't be so, that is unless the Rocks have lost interest in the cup. In both games the Rocks have made the Trailermen hustle and that's something new this year. They started off well in the second game and seemed destined to win until coach Red McMillan's "faux pas". Another time the Rocks might not make mistakes.

FEWER PENALTIES

The Trailermen will be after the third game tonight. Sticking with the same lineup as in the first two games, coach Bob Thorpe has for a second time ordered fewer penalties. Although they did stop the Rocks' power play, he doesn't want to take any chances.

At the same time McMillan who has made one big mistake isn't making any announcements until the last moment, attempting to think the situation over. Although injured, he may even try to play.

Trying to play the Trailermen's game Wednesday was fairly costly for the Rocks. Nip O'Hearn crashed Lew Landess, picked up from the North Shore Indians (Vancouver) into the boards. Landess had to have six stitches to close the cut. Jackie Northup, whom the Trailermen respect, hurt his leg and will be on the limp tonight.

Meanwhile Dr. John Epping reports that Moon Wooton's ankle is in good shape after his tumble at the goal-mouth and that Don Ashbee's eye (hit by Harry Irwin's pass) is also all right. At the same time he said Ashbee was very lucky he didn't lose the sight of that eye.

Incidentally, tonight's game will see the last of Ashbee who will leave Saturday for the Cleveland Barons' hockey training game. If possible the Trailermen will try to get Ike Hildebrand away from the New York Rangers' camp at Saskatoon for the remaining games.

WENT FISHING

The Trailermen had a big day Thursday. In the morning (before dawn at that Bob Pierson, Bob Thorpe, Don Ashbee, Mick Magee and Harry Wipper went salmon fishing. Believe it or not they returned with a good catch, including a four-pound Cohoe and a five-pound Spring.

Others rose much later, some as late as noon, and after dinner went golfing, to the show and to the pool hall. A few who haven't seen this city of gardens thoroughly were taken on tours again by the Shamrocks' executive.

Apparently the Trailermen didn't see enough action Wednesday night for they attended the profesional wrestling matches at the arena. Some Victoria scoundrel said the matches looked like the Trailermen playing lacrosse.

Harry Udy of 484 Parnell St., landed at the Strathcona Hotel Wednesday in time for the second game and the remainder of the series. He was joined in his cheering for the trailermen by Arn Dugan, former Timberman and this year Nanaimo coach, Jim Heffernan, a Peterborough youth playing with Nanaimo, Fred McMasters, a Navy roamer and former city minor lacrosse player, and by Mrs. Cyril Lambe, a former Peterborough teacher now living in Victoria.

Mrs. Lambe who is niece of W. H. Andrews, the 74-year-old fan who came West with the club, offered to show the players about Victoria, her adopted city.

WHAT THEY SAY

Regarding the Wednesday game, the Morining Colonist Thursday gave the Trailermen full credit for the win, saying the Rocks had outplayed the Petes for the first time in the series, then that was only for 15 minutes, the first quarter. It said the Trailermen then took over.

As far as individual stars were concerned the Colonist described the Trailermen as having a dozen stars, but the three main ones, Russ Slater, Curly Mason and Ross Powless. These players have certainly been that, scoring 13 goals in the two games.

The Evening Times summed up the Rocks' loss by saying, officially it takes a maximum of seven games and a minimum of four to win the Mann Cup. But, "The prize diadem of Canadian lacrosse supremacy may have been won in 14 seconds Wednesday". Bill Walker, the Times' sports editor, told his readers that time waits for no man and it almost stood still for the Rocks in the second game.

"In the agonizing space of 14 seconds, four years of hoping and planning may have exploded into the thin air of bitter disappointment," said Walker.

The Vancouver Sun's Jack Richards came right out by telling the Victoria lacrosse fans to put their Mann Cup hopes back in mothballs for another year unless there is a "really-truly miracle".

Richards went on to say that all but the most rabid Rock supporters were convinced that the Trailermen will have possession of the Mann Cup for the third straight year.

He blamed the loss on "serious mistakes on the floor and on the bench".

Baltimore Leads Rochester 2-1 In Playoffs

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Orioles took a 2-1 edge in their International League best-of-seven semi-final playoffs Thursday night by defeating Rochester 5-3 in a battle of home runs.

Bob Greenwood opposed Rochester's Octavio Rubert in the starting roles but neither was around at the finish. Kent Peterson, in relief, received credit for the victory at Baltimore as the Red Wings were held to five hits.

Rubert, relieved by John Crimian in the seventh, was charged with the loss. Baltimore scored twice in the second inning on three hits, Archie Wilson punching a double between singles by Roy Weatherly and Russ Kerns.

Ralph Caballero homered for Baltimore in the sixth, and Russ Kerns in the seventh. A triple by Jack Mayo sent the second run home in this inning.

Rochester scored its three runs in the sixth when Wally Moon and Charley Kress both hit for the circuit and chased Greenwood. The big right hander hit Don Richmond on the side of the head in this inning. He was carried off the field but Baltimore team physician Erwin Mayer said no serious injury resulted.

Montreal Royals and Buffalo Bisons, tied at one victory each in their best-of-seven playoff, resume action in Buffalo tonight.

Ed Roebuck (15-14) will start for the Royals against Frank Lary (17-10).

Lindsay Combines Take Final Series

LINDSAY (ENS)—Lindsay Combines added the Grills Cup, emblematic of playoff supremacy in the Lindsay men's softball league, to the Bacon Trophy they won during the regular schedule as they won their fourth straight game from Carruthers Drugs 7-2 here last night.

The Combines hammered out seven hits and Carruthers committed five errors in the first two innings to give the winners all their runs. Woodie Ritchie, pitching for the Druggists, shut out the champs through the next six frames. Jack Kean who shut out Carruthers for 15 innings before they finally scored two runs in the eighth innings of the final game held them to six hits, struck out four and walked only two.

The game, which was played in the record time of 55 minutes for the nine innings, produced some of the best fielding seen here all year. Herb Baker, in right field for the winners, accepted six chances in great style while Jack Graham, hustling third baseman for the losers, had the same number of chances retiring the side alone in the fourth inning. Ralph Wakelin led the winners with three hits while Jack Richards had a pair. Maurice Jones and Mel Hickson had two each for the losers. Combines had a highly successful season in which they only lost five of 23 games, taking the championship which eluded them last year when they lost the finals to Omemee after winning the pennant.

For Manager Russ Hanson it was the first championship since he came here from the Beaches League in Toronto.

Barnes Rolls High

J. Barnes had high three of 840 and G. Girven top single of 358 this week in the men's City Bowling League. Sunocos' 3,550 was best team total, with McGillis leading in single games with 1,343.

The 6-0 wins went to Novelty Shoe, McGillis and Monumental over McBride & Anderson, Calvert and McMillen; the 4-2 victories were taken by Ferguson, Payne, Sunocos, Royal York and McCormick against Basciano, Parkhill, MacDonald, Primeau and Outlaws.

Good scores were: A. Pilling 815, J. Playford 716, R. Shearer 777, J. Murray 717, C. Cornwall 739, M. Akers 757, H. Legrow 726, D. Haines 755, R. Lewis 718, H. Davis 736, H. Harris 701, C. Mattucci 713, J. Wade 748, D. Crary 769, G. Girven 749, and singles of A. Pilling 325, D. Haines 310 and J. Wade 321.

Mrs. H. Baptie Wins

Mrs. H. Baptie won the 18-hole putting competition in ladies' weekly play at the Peterborough Golf and Country Club, and she also took low gross and second net. Mrs. S. Pearson won low net and Mrs. R. G. Maniece had third net. In the nine-hole section, Mrs. C. L. Upper won low gross, net and competition.

A large group of the club players enjoyed golf and tea with the Kawartha ladies last week. Tonight, it will be White Elephant Day, playing a two-ball foursome. Ladies' closing day is set for Sept. 29.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

The two-platoon system of football is still very much in effect in Ontario grid circles, but it was tossed out this year by U.S.A. officials. The two-platoon method makes for a club having two teams, one for offensive play and the other used defensively when the rival squad has possession of the ball. Coach Charlie Caldwell of Princeton recently had an article on it in which he said: "Spectators won't miss the two-way system, but coaches and players will." He went on to say that the offensive-defensive system gave coaches a great opportunity to innovate, alter, adapt, develop and change, all within the framework of the rules.

* * * * * * *

As for players, their injuries were cut down and more got a chance to play and to specialize, thus playing better. He didn't think it made much difference to fans one way or another. Well, Orfuns use the two-platoon style and use it effectively under Coach Tony Kotowski's tutoring. They hope to take their fourth straight ORFU intermediate "A" win here tomorrow when they tackle Toronto Marauders at 2:30 over in Riverside Park. It's Toronto's "home" game as the Marauders haven't a field of their own. Orfuns will have Oshawa Red Raiders at Morrow Park next week, when the Ex. is over.

* * * * * * *

Where'll They Go Now?

Wonder where Jake Wade and Arn Dugan will play their hockey this winter, now that Brantford had dropped out of OHA senior "A" action for a year. Arn and Jake left the Petes last fall to go "A" with the Brants, and both have jobs in the Western Ontario city—though Arn got leave to spend the summer out west playing lacrosse. Mayhap, they'll continue working in Brantford, or they may cut loose and go elsewhere for the paying puck season. We doubt if they'll return to Peterborough, but one never knows. Brantford found high salaries and rather slim crowds in an old arena too much to keep going in senior "A" ranks. They hope in time to get a large, modern rink and have good hockey again.

* * * * * * *

Orillia is grouped with Petes and other clubs in the OHA senior "B" setup, and that team is seeking a coach. Some talk of Al Shewchuck taking the job and bringing in some good players ere the Nov. 1 deadline. Though the O's didn't do too much in a strong group last year, they drew far more home fans than the Orillia senior lacrosse squad did, the arena receiving $5,000 as its hockey share compared to $300 garnered through the Yorks' lacrosse games. The puck club there hopes to have Red Favero back as well as Ab Bowen, Earl McCrone, Clarence Payne, Jack Davidson, Rabbit White, Terry Gordon, Jack Antonia and others. Goalie Harv Reeding is thinking of returning to Toronto, and Pud Hammond will be an OHA referee. The O's proved a rugged outfit last cold semester, as Petes will testify.

Gunning For The Third

Tonight in Victoria, the Petes' Trailermen go gunning for their third straight victory in the Mann Cup finals. Barely won the opener but had it easier next start, and reports have it that they think they can wrap it up in four or five games. Fourth fray is listed for Monday. While they've had no serious injuries to date, they lose Don Ashbee this weekend as he must report to the Cleveland Barons' hockey camp at Barrie. The Thorpe team hasn't lost a Mann Cup playoff game since the fifth one in Vancouver two years ago. Word from the coast is that the Vics' fans are starting to sour on their pets—but no doubt they'd sweeten up again fast with a home win or two. Ah, fickle fandom . . .

Some excellent racing seen these afternoons and evenings at the Exhibition harness meet. The .22 class goes tonight, while there'll be two races Saturday aft and the feature free-for-all that night for $500. Clayt Hodgson's horse Peter C. of Haliburton was a double winner Thursday afternoon in the 2.24, while Miss Highlight of Cobourg and Nifty Patch of Port Elgin each won a heat in the .20 event. The night race for non-winners of $2,000 saw Peter Direct L. of Ohsweken win twice. There was a nasty accident in the second heat of this one when crowd-bikes caused Charlie G. of Ohsweken and Empress Elgin of Campbellford to go down. The latter was owend and driven by T. A. Atkinson, and the other horse owned and driven by William Anderson. Both drivers received injuries—though they've been released from hospital—and bikes were smashed up, but the horses are okay.

Odds Better 3-1 As Gavilan Still Favorite

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Cuban Kid Gavilan, drying out to make the weight limit, remained a strong 3½-to-1 choice to whip young Carmen Basilio of nearby Canastota tonight in his sixth defence of the world welterweight championship.

The 15-round match, scheduled for 10 p.m. EDT, will be beamed on radio and television.

Norman Rothschild, promoting Syracuse's first title bout in co-operation with the International Boxing Club, expects a crowd of more than 8,500 fans at War Memorial Auditorium and a gross gate of about $80,000.

Gavilan claimed he would make the 147-pound class limit without too much trouble, but he shadow boxed and skipped rope for eight rounds in an unusual day-before-the-fight workout. Basilio, a determined underdog, had no weight problem and did not show up at Irv Robbins' gym.

CONFIDENT

"I think I will still have the title," was Gavilan's only prediction of the scrap, his first defence since he stopped Chuck Davey at Chicago, Feb. 11. The Cuban Keed has no love in his heart for Syracuse because he dropped a decision to Danny (Bang Bang) Womber here May 2. It was his first defeat in 29 bouts over a 2½ year stretch.

Under New York state athletic commission rules, the bout will be scored on a round basis with a supplementary point system by two judges and a referee.

The challenger rocketed out of nowhere in the last year. His career record for 51 pro starts is 36-10-5. He has scored 18 knockouts and never was stopped. An upset triumph over Billy Graham for the New York state welter crown, June 6, was his most important success. In a rematch, the rugged little fellow battled Graham to a draw, July 25.

I.C. Team Captures Catholic Loop Title

Immaculate Conception captured the Catholic Softball League championship by beating St. Peter's 15-9 at the Bowl to take the final series three games to one.

Jack Bacon toed the slab for East City and pitched good ball, with Terry Shaughnessy hurling well in a losing cause for the Saints. The latter got a run in the first and second innings, three in the fourth, and six in a big fifth frame.

Herb Heffernan and Gord Snape led the winners' attack at bat with four hits each in five times, while Bacon homered in the sixth. Shaughnessy and Quinlan got three for five each for St. Peter's. Fielding features were supplied by Dave Quinlan, Danny Quinlan and Terry Quinlan for the losers; as Gord Snape, Jack McCarthy, Herb Heffernan and L. Towns stood out for the champions. Teams:

Seven-Man Lacrosse Done As Six-Man Game In Following New CLA Rules

By DON GRANT, Examiner Staff Reporter

VICTORIA, B.C. — The Canadian Lacrosse Association made history this week when they followed a pattern taken by hockey two decades ago and officially switched from seven-man lacrosse to six-man. The CLA rules committee recommended that the six-man game be played in the 1954 season and their recommendation was passed without opposition from either the eastern or the western senior lacrosse centres.

Six-man lacrosse has been hanging fire in Canada for several years, first introduced in the British Columbia League. This year the Intercity League, taking in Vancouver, Victoria and Nanaimo, played the entire season using the six-man variety. At the same time the Ontario senior "A" clubs played seven-man game until August 1 and then until the schedule ended and into the playoffs experimented with the new game.

British Columbia lacrosse officials have been under the impression that Eastern Canada teams didn't like the new game. When the Trailermen arrived in Victoria this week, the Westerners were all endeavoring to find out if the Trailermen were going to press the seven-player issue. They fully expected that the Trailermen would.

SURPRISED THEM

Much to the British Columbia and Victoria officials' surprise, the Trailermen raised little opposition to playing six-man.

They did pull a few legs by hinting they would demand to play seven-man lacrosse.

Since the Trailermen didn't oppose it in the Mann Cup finals, the Western officials realized that the Ontario clubs liked the new game and weren't going to oppose its adoption for next year.

The rules committee recommendation was passed unanimously.

This change to six-man lacrosse is a CLA move to make the game faster and therefore more crowd-pleasing. It is believed to be the first of a number of steps to build up lacrosse's crowd-appeal to the point where it will actually be Canada's national sport, not in name only.

Coupled with the player change is the new four-foot goal which was introduced in both provinces this season at the same time as six-man lacrosse. The committee also recommended that the smaller goal (by a half-foot) be accepted as uniform for 1954.

It was also passed unanimously.

The smaller goal is designed to relieve the monotony of high scores and to help more thrilling plays around the goal-mouth. In other words, it's another step toward better crowd-appeal.

These were the two major rule changes in the 19 recommended by the committee. All were passed.

HAS 10 SECONDS

At that meeting they decided that two dotted lines from the back of the goal crease to the boards would be drawn. Any player standing between those lines, behind the goal, while with the ball, would have only 10 seconds to move out. If he stands there longer or moves out, only to run back in again without passing the ball, a whistle will be blown and the ball faced off in the corner.

That series rule was adopted for next season, too.

A previously unwritten rule was written Wednesday when the CLA officially decided to include a rule in the 1954 book allowing teams to pull their goalie with a minute or two left in a close game in favor of an extra forward. This move is seldom made in lacrosse, but its possibility rose out of the Victoria-Peterborough-CLA rules discussion meeting, resulting in its recommendation for adoption in the 1954 rules.

Another rare occurrance was dealt with by the CLA. That one was the case when a goalie receives a major or misconduct penalty. Previously one of the players, not the alternate goalie, had to take the regular goalie's place. But the new rule permits the use of the spare net guardian.

The feeling of the CLA executive was that if a goalie was penalized under the old situation it often meant that the game was ruined while he was off. It didn't help keep interest in the game.

As in the case of a major penalty to a goalie, the penalized team will still have to play a man short for five minutes.

The remaining rule changes were minor, generally only small technicalities resulting from the changes of the rules mentioned above.

Dressen Thinks Dodgers Are Better Than Yankees, If . . .

By BEN PHLEGAR
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York Yankees haven't fooled Charlie Dressen by losing one game to Cleveland and two out of three to St. Louis Browns under his watchful eyes.

The Brooklyn manager, who has been doing some personal world series scouting from a Yankee Stadium box, declared Thursday: "They look about the same as last year."

As for his own ball club, Dressen said:

"I think we're better than last year."

But he added quickly:

"I don't say we're going to win. But if we can put the same fellows on the field we were using a couple of weeks ago and if we can get the pitching, I think we're better than they are."

LAST YEAR'S STORY

A year ago the Yankees beat the Dodgers in a seven-game series.

The American League champions bowed 1-0 to Bob Lemon of Cleveland; split a twin bill with the Browns, losing 5-3 and winning 3-2, and lost to the Browns Thursday 7-1.

Against the Browns Casey Stengel used a flock of his Yankee second stringers. They couldn't do much against the Browns' Don Larsen, who set them down with four hits while winning his fifth straight game.

"Our scouts don't get to see them very often," Dressen observed. "I was glad to get the chance."

Dressen said he understood that Johnny Podres, one of his young pitchers who has been injured, was fit again and said he was going to see Carl Furillo Saturday. Furillo, the league's leading hitter, has been out of action for two weeks with a broken finger.

MISSED 10TH WIN

Because of his self-imposed scouting duties, Dressen wasn't on hand to see his club win its 100th game of the season in St. Louis Thursday. A three-run ninth inning rally gave Carl Erskine his 20th victory by a 4-3 margin as Wayne Belardi singled home the tieing and winning runs.

In other action Thursday the Red Sox edged Detroit 2-1, Washington shaded Chicago White Sox 3-2 and Cleveland beat Philadelphia Athletics for the 19th time this year, 5-4, in the American league. Philadelphia Phillies smothered Chicago Cubs 16-4 in the National.

Ted Williams belted his 13th home run with a man aboard in the eighth inning for Boston's victory. The Tigers got five hits off Sid Hudson who worked the first eight innings and none off Ellis Kinder who pitched the ninth. Kinder's appearance, his 67th this year, set an American League record. The old mark of 66 was hung up by Ed Walsh of the 1908 Chicago White Sox.

WINS 20TH

Bob Porterfield of the Senators, who had won a total of 30 games in five major league seasons up to the start of the present campaign, became the first Washington pitcher in 20 years to win 21 games in one year. He scattered nine hits in beating the White Sox for the fifth time in six tries. The last Washington pitchers to win as many were Al Crowder (24) and Earl Whitehill (22), both in 1933.

A double by Jim Hegan followed by a sacrifice and a long fly produced the run Cleveland needed to beat the Athletics.

Curt Simmons of the Phils won his 14th game as his teammates battered five Chicago pitchers for 18 hits. Don Elston, just up from Springfield, Mass., of the International League, was charged with the loss.

Two Race Drivers Injured Following Spill At Ex. In Evening Harness Event

An accident marred the night harness horse race Thursday at the Exhibition, resulting in William Anderson, of Ohsweken, being taken to hospital with a suspected fractured leg, and T. A. Atkinson, of Campbellford, being treated for a cut on the head. They were owners and drivers in the race for non-winners of $2,000. X-rays revealed there was no fracture and Anderson later returned to the track with only a badly bruised leg.

The accident occurred some 50 yards past the starting wire in the second heat of the race, one horse apparently crowding too close to the other to have the sulkies lock wheels and throw both horses and the drivers. Mr. Atkinson was driving Empress Elgin while Mr. Anderson handled the reins for Charlie G. Though the bikes were smashed, the horses escaped with stratches. Ambulances were on the scene immediately, and police finally cleared the track.

FINISHED IT OUT

The remaining horses continued around the half-mile track and only good handling of them by the drivers prevented further accidents as the wreckage had not been cleared off the track when they crossed the finish line in some confusion. The judges of the race (who are continuing an investigation to learn who was responsible for the spill) ruled the second heat a race as the horses finished.

Peter Direct L., owned by Carl Longboat, of Ohsweken, and driven by Russ Smith, took both heats of this event. Two races were run off in the afternoon. Peter C., owned by Clayton Hodgson, MP, of Haliburton, and driven by Dave Dowson, was a double heat winner in the 2.24 class. The 2.20 saw the heats split, Nifty Patch taking the first and Miss Highlight the second. The latter is owned by B. C. Sammons, of Cobourg, who also did the driving, while Hugh McLean, of Port Elgin, was the owner and driver of Nifty Patch. The results:

Peter C. (C. Hodgson, MP, Haliburton)	1	1

MISS HIGHLIGHT, owned and driven by B. Sammons of Cobourg, leads the pack at the finish line in the second heat of the 2:20 class before the grandstand at the Exhibition on Thursday. Nifty Patch finished second and Hilcrest Alice placed third. (Examiner Staff Photos.)

Gallinger Leads Panthers To 10-3 Win Over Waterloo

WATERLOO (CP) — Playing manager Don Gallinger showed his boys what, when and how to do it Thursday night as he led his Kitchener Panthers from behind a 2-1 deficit to a 10-3 victory over Waterloo Tigers in the third game of the best-of-nine Senior Intercounty Baseball League final. The Panthers lead the series 2-1.

The Tigers led 2-1 until the eighth when Waterloo pitcher Bob Schnurr, with two out and Panthers on second and third, sent home the tying counter with a wild pitch.

Professor Gallinger then gave his lesson with a run-scoring single that hoisted his runs-batted-in total to three. Gallinger had three hits, including a double, in five trips to the plate. Pitcher Mel Duncan, who went the route for Kitchener to gain the victory, duplicated the teacher's example in everything but RBI's.

Errors played a large part in the scoring, eight miscues accounting for five unearned runs. Kitchener bobbled five but the Tigers only took advantage once. Three boots by the Tigers, on the other hand, gave Kitchener four free rides to home plate.

Tigers tried a comeback in the eighth when they scored a run and then loaded the bases but all the runners were stranded at the end of the inning and the Panthers ran away with it in the ninth when they chalked up five runs.

Playing-manager Hank Biasatti was the leading hitter for the Tigers, banging out three singles in four trips.

Top WHL Scorer Joins Red Wings

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (AP)—Earl (Dutch) Reibel, who topped the Western Hockey League in scoring last season, appears to have won a starting spot in the first line of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

General manager Jack Adams announced Thursday the 23-year-old Kitchener centre will start between forwards Gordie Howe and Ted Lindsay in an exhibition game against Edmonton Saturday.

Howe and Lindsay finished first and second in the NHL scoring race last season.

After watching the Wings complete their fourth day of training, coach Tommy Ivan said he has come to the conclusion that Lindsay is gunning for his best NHL season.

"Ted looks great," Ivan said. "And the way he's going so early in camp, he will again be a real contender for the scoring title."

Meeker To Coach Stratford, May Be Recalled

TORONTO (CP)—Conn Smythe, managing director of Toronto Maple Leafs, said Thursday that Howie Meeker would be allowed to coach Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A league this year but he made a provision.

The 28 - year - old rightwinger, plagued by a recurring back injury suffered in a National Hockey League game last year, must agree to an immediate recall by the Leafs in case of an emergency. Meeker wouldn't be recalled unless at least two rightwingers were sick or injured, Smythe said.

Excluding Meeker, Toronto now has four rightwingers. They are Ron Stewart, George Armstrong and Eric Nesterenko, all in their second term with Toronto, and rookie Bob Bailey, a former centre with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League.

The Leafs looked surprisingly fast Thursday as they held their second day of ice drill.

Tod Sloan, reunited with linemates Harry Watson and Armstrong, was the fastest man on the ice and scored one of the goals in a 1-1 intersquad tie game between the Blues and the Whites. Ron Stewart scored the only goal against Toronto's regular netminder, Harry Lumley.

Four Shoot Way To Semi-Finals Of U.S. Amateur

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A navy airman on leave, a fidgety ex-pro and two brash college boys shot their way Thursday into the semi-finals of the 53rd U.S. amateur golf championship.

The serviceman, Gene Littler of La Jolla, Calif., lone remnant of the U.S. Walker Cup team, quickly was established as the one most likely to go all the way. The other semi-finalists:

Dale Morey, 3, of Indianapolis, holder of the western amateur crown; Don Albert, 1, strapping Purdue University junior of Alliance, O.; and Bruce Cudd, 20, of Portland, Ore., student at Portland University.

Today Albert meets Morey and Littler faces Cudd in two 18-hole rounds over the 6,852-yard, par-71 course.

The 36-hole championship round will be played Saturday.

Littler eliminated the last Briton, John Morgan, in the fifth round 3 and 2 and then rallied after being two down to oust Ted Richards of Los Angeles 4 and 3.

Cudd toppled Arnold Blum of Atlanta 2 and 1, and 40-year-old Raymond Palmer of Grosse Ile, Mich., 2 and 1.

Albert struck down Arnold Palmer of Wickliffe, O., one up, and then trounced Robert Kuntz of Larchmont, N.Y., 4 and 3.

Morley whipped Bill Campbell, Walker Cup player from Huntington, W.Va., one up and Angelo Santilli from Greenwich, R.I., one up on the 20th hole.

HORNSBY OUT AGAIN

CINCINNATI (AP) — Rogers Hornsby, a blunt and rugged individualist, was ousted again Thursday as a big league manager.

He was fired from Cincinnati Redlegs by general manager Gabe Paul, who gave no reason for his action. His contract would have expired Dec. 31.

Buster Mills, a coach, will handle the team the rest of the season. Meanwhile, Paul said he would look for a new manager.

Paul said there was no friction with Hornsby. The Rajah veered away from that angle when talking to a reporter.

"I've had a lot of jobs and I'll have a lot more," he said. He expressed belief that he had done a good job here.

Redleg officials are known to be disappointed because Hornsby did not lift the club higher than sixth place in the National League.

Hornsby rode into Cincinnati last July after being fired as manager of St. Louis Browns of the American League. He succeeded Luke Sewell in Cincinnati.

Hornsby, who was elected to the Hall of Fame in 1942, has managed St. Louis Cards, Boston Braves, Chicago Cubs and St. Louis Browns twice. He managed the Cards into the world series in 1926. Before coming back into the majors, he managed several minor league clubs.

HAWKS SIGN COSTELLO

BEAVERS WIN TITLE

SARNIA (CP)—Sarnia Beavers Thursday night downed Scarboro Maitlands 10-5 to win the Ontario Lacrosse Association's intermediate A championships. It is Sarnia's first OLA title. The victory gave the Beavers the best-of-five final in straight wins. They won the other two 18-6 and 13-7.

✦ ✦ ✦

BOMBERS DROP CARPENTER

WINNIPEG (CP) — Release of import centre Keith Carpenter was announced Tuesday night by Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the Western Interprovincial Football Union. Carpenter, who had an unsuccessful try-out last year with Edmonton Eskimos, came to Canada from San Jose State College. Dropping of Carpenter leaves Bombers with 13 imports.

✦ ✦ ✦

BENTLEYS SEPARATE

SASKATOON (CP)—The immediate hockey future of the Bentley brothers, Doug and Max, was settled Thursday when Doug signed a contract as playing coach for Saskatoon Quakers in the Western Hockey League and Max signed a New York Rangers' contract. Since Max was sold by Toronto Maple Leafs to Rangers this summer, it was frequently rumored that he and Doug would be reunited on a New York forward line.

GIANTS EDGE 49ERS

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Giants narrowly averted dissipating a four-touchdown lead in the final period Thursday night, escaping with a 28-21 victory over San Francisco 49ers in a National Football League exhibition. Trailing 28-0, the 49ers pushed over three touchdowns in the final period.

✦ ✦ ✦

EAGLES UPSET LIONS

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Adrian Burke pitched three touchdown passes to lead Philadelphia Eagles to a 28-17 upset exhibition victory over Detroit Lions Thursday night, the first defeat for the 1952 National Football League champions in their last 11 games.

✦ ✦ ✦

RESHEVSKY HOLDS LEAD

ZURICH, Switzerland (CP) — Samuel Reshevsky of the United States and Vassily Smyslov of Russia, who are running one-two in the 15-round world chess championship challengers' tournament, drew their respective adjourned games Thursday as eight unfinished matches from the ninth, 10th and 11th rounds were played off. Reshevsky gained a half point in his game with Paul Keres of Russia and tops the standing with 7½ points to seven for Smyslov.

London Hurler Signs With Bums

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Another London sandlot baseball product has signed a professional contract. David (Dutch) Perkins, a left-handed pitcher, signed with Brooklyn Dodgers a few days ago.

Perkins, who won eight games and lost one with London Lou Ball juniors this season, included in his victory string three shutouts.

Doug Lowry, St. Catharines, the Brooklyn scout in western Ontario, said Perkins will be sent to Santa Barbara of the class C California League next season. Santa Barbara is a Dodger farm club.

Guard Robinson As Threat Made

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Police and agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation guarded Jackie Robinson, Brooklyn Dodger outfielder, after he received a letter threatening death Wednesday night.

Acting police chief Joseph E. Casey said he was inclined to dismiss the letter as the work of a crank but decided to "play safe." Officers accompanied the Negro star to and from his hotel and stayed near the Brooklyn bench during the games Wednesday night and Thursday.

Robinson received the anonymous, penciled note, at Busch Stadium late Wednesday. He turned it over to police.

Casey said the note read, in part:

"Wednesday night, Sept. 16, you die. No use crying for the cops—you'll be executed gangland-style at Busch Stadium."

It was signed "Dodger Hater."

Yankee Stadium Said Sold Out For Series

NEW YORK (AP)—New York Yankees announced Thursday that all box and reserved seats for their portion of the world series have been oversubscribed. The seats have been allocated and will be mailed out soon to those whose applications arrived early enough to be filled.

Standing room tickets at $4 each for single games may be obtained by mail to:

Ticket manager, Yankee Stadium Bronx 51, N.Y.

Bleacher seats at $2 per will go on sale the day of each game.

Brooklyn Dodgers announced three days ago that the seats for the games at Ebbets Field had been sold out.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Detroit Tigers set a major league record 13 years ago today by scoring at least one home run for the 15th consecutive game. That eclipsed a record held jointly by the Tigers of 1938 and New York Giants of 1935. The Tigers stretched the string to 16 games before it was halted by Cleveland Indians. Hank Greenberg homered in 12 of the 16 games.

Yesterday's Stars

Batting—Ted Williams, Boston Red Sox, hit his 13th home run with a man on base as Boston edged Detroit 2-1.

Pitching—Bob Porterfield, Washington Senators, became the first Washington pitcher since Al Crowder and Earl Whitehill in 1933 to win 21 games in a season, beating Chicago 3-2.

TIGERS TAMED—Tip Logan, of Hamilton Tiger-Cats, fumbles a forward pass as an unidentified tackler from the Toronto Argonauts hangs on grimly. The Tiger Cats lost a 21-20 decision to the Argos at Hamilton to create a three-way second place tie in the Big Four Football Union. The tackler coming up fast in the above play is Ted Toogood (89) of the Argos.

.45 Automatic Like Extra Finger To Slayer Of Five

CANANDAIGUA, N.Y. (AP)—A .45 calibre automatic pistol used in the slaying of five persons by Fred Eugene McManus was "almost as much a part of him as his index finger," a psychiatrist has testified in the firs tdegree murder trial of the 19-year-old former U.S. marine.

Dr. Christopher F. Terrence, director of Rochester State Hospital for the mentally ill, who was called by the defence late Thursday, said that McManus had trained himself to react with a pistol almost instantly.

McManus is being tried for the killing of William Allen Braverman, 19, a Hobart College student from Rochester, last March 27. He has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Dr. Terrence said the Valley Stream, L.I., youth was suffering from schizophrenia and "did not know it was wrong" to kill.

Schizophrenia is a mental disease marked by loss of contact with environment and disintegration of personality.

Dr. Terrence's testimony was in contradiction of a report by psychiatrists at Willard State Hospital, who said last spring that McManus knew the nature of the act with which he was charged and was capable of standing trial.

Dr. Kenneth Keill, director of Willard, was expected to testify in support of the report.

Dr. Terrence's statements on the youth's mental condition were in reply to a 43-page prepared question by M. Maurice Chacchia, the defence lawyer.

The question included confessions by McManus that he killed Braverman for the young man's new convertible, and four other persons during a four-day spree through the east and midwest with his 'teen-aged sweetheart.

The only other defence witness Thursday was Miss Marye I. Scoville, a Rochester social worker, who testified that McManus apparently had been "deeply interested" in psychology.

She said she met the youth when he came to see his girl friend, Diane Marie Weggeland, who was in her care as a ward of the children's court.

ROYAL TOUR LINER—The Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh will board the liner Gothic at Jamaica Nov. 27 for their trip to New Zealand, Australia and other South Pacific points. The Gothic, 15,902-ton cargo and passenger ship, will have special fittings for the tour. She will have a royal suite and special communications system installed.

2,000 Yachts, Motorboats Will Greet Queen and Duke

By R. A. KENNER

AUCKLAND (Reuters) — As the liner Gothic sails into this lovely Waitemata ("sparkling waters") harbor two days before Christmas for the Queen and her sailor husband to begin their tour of New Zealand, the couple will be greeted by cheering crews from some 2,000 yachts and motorboats, some from hundreds of miles away.

From North Head, around which the Royal liner will sail into the inner harbor, guns already sited will fire a Royal salute.

For the Queen's landing — the New Zealand—the Royal Navy will provide the Royal guard, while Britain's Royal Marine band, on loan to the New Zealand navy, will sound a stirring musical welcome.

Given normal southern hemisphere December sunshine, the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, on their half-mile drive to Government House, should see Auckland at its gayest since Englishmen founded it over a century ago.

The Royal couple and their immediate attendants will reside at Government House where the head gardener and his five assistants are replanting annuals and display flowers in preparation for the visit.

Rows of carnations, a favorite flower of the Queen, are already in the kitchen garden, 400 choice specimens have been planted in the rose garden and more than 1,000 hydrangea in the main terrace.

Government House itself was elaborately refitted for the planned visit of King George VI and Queen Elizabeth in 1949. This was cancelled because of the late king's health.

In addftion, a magnificent cream - colored carpet for the Queen's bedroom has recently been imported from England.

One of the highlights of the Royal visit will be the Queen's broadcast Christmas Day to the peoples of the Commonwealth, the first Royal Christmas message to be broadcast outside the United Kingdom.

The time selected will probably be between 7 and 10 p.m. so that the voice of the Queen will be heard in Britain on Christmas Day morning, New Zealand being about 12 hours in front of Britain.

Emphasis on youth is a feature of Auckland planning for the visit and some 40,000 children are expected to assemble to greet the Queen.

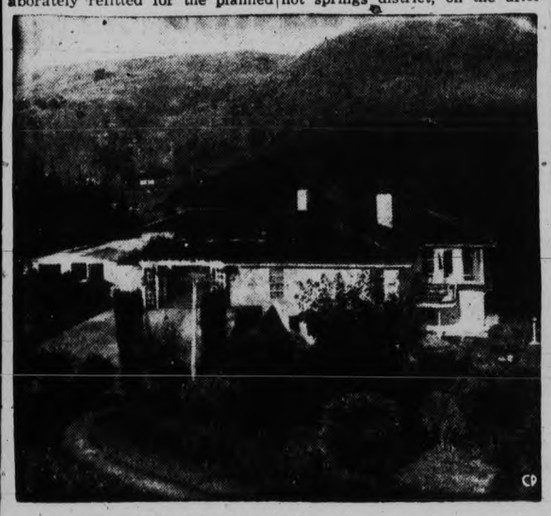
There also will be held the biggest fireworks display in the Dominion's history. This will be put on by business men in co-operation with a British fireworks firm.

A Royal race meeting will be held on the beautiful Ellerslie race course on the day following Christmas with special trophies to mark the occasion. The Queen is to present the gold trophy to the winner of the Auckland Cup.

Some 5,000 Maori natives—2,000 from the four host tribes and 3,000 from tribes in other parts of New Zealand—will welcome the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh to Rotorua, the main centre of the hot springs district, on the afternoon of Jan. 2. The ceremony will be held in Arawa Park. The Arawa chiefs, in welcoming governor-general Sir Willoughby Norrie recently, asked to "have the Queen for a whole day."

The Royal couple will rest for a few days in January at Moose Lodge, an elaborate vacation home at Lake Rotoiti, about 12 miles from Rotorua.

Another country home the Queen and her husband will visit in New Zealand is Long Beach. This farm home was founded by John Grigg who came to New Zealand 99 years ago, took a 30,000-acre tract of uninhabited swampland and made it the largest farm in the world. Now operated by his descendants, it comprises some 4,000 acres.



QUEEN TO STAY HERE—Moose Lodge on Lake Rotoiti, 12 miles from Rotorua in the main hot springs tourist area of North Islands, New Zealand, will be the home for a few days next January of the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh during their round-the-world Commonwealth tour. Set on a small hill in 16 acres of grounds, Moose Lodge is among the most beautiful holiday homes in New Zealand. Its guest book includes such names as Lady Mountbatten, Anthony Eden and the late Admiral and Lady Keyes.

Mission Circle Plans Annual Fall Rally

MILLBROOK (ENS) — The Golden Links Mission Circle of St. Andrew's United Church met Tuesday evening for their first meeting of the fall season at the parsonage. Mrs. M. E. Hobbs, the president, was in the chair.

The worship service was conducted by the Rev. Margaret Butler with Mrs. Homer Ouellette giving the scripture reading. The devotional theme was "The Church and the Household of God". Mrs. Eric Fallis gave the temperance report.

It was decided to purchase the Circle Book Shelf for the coming study and to pass the books out to the members in turn, so that each one would have an opportunity to read them all.

Mrs. Hobbs read a letter from Miss Jean Stewart, returned missionary from China, for many years the circle's special missionary in China until the coming of the Communist regime. For some time Miss Stewart has been a port worker at Halifax, welcoming new Canadians as they arrive, now she is to go to work among the Japanese in Hamilton.

An invitation was read to attend the autumn Thank-offering meeting of the Centreville Presbyterian Women's Missionary society, being held on September 30th.

The treasurer, Mrs. Alex Gilbert reported that $170. had been realized from the tea held last week at the home of Mrs. Ernest Powell to help with one project of the church renovation program.

Plans were made for the taking of 20 pies and two bottles of pickles to the Circle's fall rally which is to take the form of a supper meeting in Mark Street Church, Peterborough, on October 7.

Mrs. David Lunn gave an interesting account of the four days spent at the school for leaders in Whitby the latter part of August.

The new study book, "Where'er the Sun" was introduced by Mrs. B. E. Ingham. Supper hostesses, assisting Mrs. Butler in serving refreshments were Mrs. Melville Ball, Mrs. Clarence Ball and Mrs. Earl Armstrong.

WA Hears Account Of Trip To England

ROSENEATH (ENS)—"My trip to England" was the subject of an address by Mrs. Harold Taylor, president of Roseneath Women's Institute, guest speaker at St. James' Anglican WA.

The meeting was held at the rectory with the Rev. and Mrs. A. J. Patstone as host and hostess.

The president, Mrs. Ray McCracken, presided. The scripture read was by Mrs. James Webb.

The treasurer's report, presented by Mrs. James Brown, showed bazaar receipts of $141 and a balance on hand of $216.

Mrs. James Timlin presented the Little Helpers' report.

Five persons were remembered by the good cheer committee during the month. The quilt committee reported two custom quilts had been quilted.

Two dozen eggs or the equivalent were handed in from each member. Plans were made to attend the deanery meeting at St George's Church, Peterborough, October 8.

WI Fall Season Opens At Bethany

BETHANY (ENS) — Opening meeting for the fall term of the Bethany Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Isabel Fallis, with Mrs. T. Jennings presiding. A letter was read from the district secretary regarding the Women's Institute booth at the plowing match next month asking each branch to serve tea and cookies during the afternoon. A committee comprised of Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Rupbert Woods, Mrs. H. Rayson and Mrs. M. Finney were appointed for Bethany. Requests were received to cater for two banquets in the near future and it was decided to accept.

Mrs. M. Finney reported for the Girls' Garden Club. They had competed at Orono Fair with an exhibit of flowers and vegetables and received honorable mention. The same group have entered at the Peterborough Exhibition. Four of the girls, Janet Bigelow, Eleanor Rowan, Marie Finney and Grace Bigelow received their county honors and pins for having completed six units in a junior Girls Homemakers Club.

The program covered "Citizenship and Education." Mrs. Clarence Rowan gave a paper on "Our New Canadian Citizens." "With our new immigration scheme we now have a steady influx of new Canadians. It is our duty to make them welcome and help them understand our way of life. In return they have much to offer us in the cultural arts of their native countries."

Miss Leone Jordon sang a solo to her own accompaniment. Mrs. R. W. Price gave a report of the recent meeting of the Associated Country Women of the World held in Toronto, which she had attended accompained by Mrs. Lionel Monk, Mrs. T. Jennings, Mrs. Charles Reynolds and Mrs. Rupert Woods. "The Pageant.. Dominion of Destiny . . given on Canada Day was an outstanding performance, which told our Canadian history in a musical cavalcade of 34 scenes. From Indian Village to Coronation the story unfolded in folk song and ballet, war drum and broadcast speech. All this was swiftly, colorfully and accurately portrayed on the stage.

Mrs. R. Carr spoke briefly on "Education." She said it had become fashionable to knock and slam our schools and the so-called new system of education. "If a child runs into difficulty at school, the parents conclude that the school is no good. We older people try to persuade ourselves that, when we were young, we were better than the new generation that is coming along. But after all, we are educating children for the world of tomorrow, not for the world of yesterday."

Following the meeting, the hostess assisted by Mrs. C. Rowan, Mrs. William Jordan, Mrs. Clarence Rowan, Miss L. Thompson and Mrs. R. Rowland served lunch, with Mrs. Orlo Wright expressing the thanks of the ladies to the hostess group.

PLAN WRECK—The tail section of an ill-fated American Airlines plane stands amid the wreckage as if put there as a monument to the 25 passengers and three crew members who were carried to a fiery death when the plane crashed, exploded and burned, while en route from Boston to New York Wednesday morning. Volunteer rescue workers and firemen were still searching the blackened remains of the plane when this photograph was taken in the hope of finding some of the occupants alive. The accident occurred about eight miles west of Albany after the plane had been circling the fog-bound airport area for 15 minutes.

Hard To Find Acting Jobs In Hollywood

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What are actors doing about the dearth of movie making in Hollywood?

I put this question to William Holden, an actor who is busy enough himself, but still has concern for his fellow craftsmen. He is a vice-president of the Screen Actors Guild.

"What can we do?" he asked. "We cannot create employment. . . All we can do is wait until they call us for work."

Holden admitted that the situation looks grim for those who seek acting jobs in the studios.

NOT ENOUGH WORK

"MGM will make 18 pictures in the coming year, compared to 40 and 50 in the past," he remarked. "Paramount will make 12 and Fox 12. The plain fact is that there won't be enough work to go around.

"But the actor has traditionally been a very resilient sort of a person. He has always been able to move around and find jobs somewhere else in the country.

"Television has provided a great deal of work for actors, both live and on film. Many actors who once worked only in Hollywood now live in New York. They can do TV there and come out here when they are needed for pictures.

"The stage offers a lot more work, particularly in the summer time. Alexis Smith and Victor Jory just came back from a long tour and made a lot of money. Other stars have done the same.

"The night clubs are booming, too. Not only in Las Vegas, where the business is terrific. In other towns, too. People like Van Johnson, who haven't sung and danced before audiences in years, are going out and making big successes.

"So don't worry about actors. They generally make out all right."

Parole Officers Picked By Basher

TORONTO (CP)—Patrick Smith, Ontario's chief parole and rehabilitation officer, said Thursday he has no say in picking the men hired to work under him.

He told the legislature's select committee on reform institutions he does not pass on the qualifications of men appointed as rehabilitation officers.

W. J. Stewart of Toronto, committee chairman, asked him:

"You are telling us you have to take what you are given, that you haven't anything to say about their selection?"

"That's putting it crudely, but that is it," Mr. Smith replied. He said he presumed his staff is picked by the deputy minister (Col. Hedley Basher).

Diplomacy Valuable Says Chief Constable

FORT WILLIAM (CP) — Diplomacy usually overcomes most problems which face law enforcement officers, Trevor Matthews, president of the Police Association of Ontario, said in an interview Thursday.

Mr. Matthews is chief constable of the Fort Erie police department.

He said devotion to duty is the prime requisite of a good policeman.

"A person entering police work must like it, and must be prepared to make it first in his life if he is to make an absolute success of his work."

TO DOWNEYVILLE PARISH

The recent appointments in the diocese of Peterborough by Most. Rev. Gerald Berry have been changed in one particular. Rev. S. J. Coffey is being transferred from the parish of Trout Creek to St. Luke's parish, Downeyville, instead of Rev. Charles J. Carroll, who remains parish priest at Norwood.

RCAF Station Trenton will mark its seventh annual observance of Air Force Day Saturday with "Open House," featuring ground exhibits, a flying display by T-33 Silver Star jet trainers, parachute jump by members of the station's para-rescue crews, and a draw for 42 free rides in a Dakota aircraft.

FEE FOR NEW CANADIANS

New Canadians who want to learn English at night school will pay a $3 registration fee, the same as students taking other subjects, if a recommendation by the advisory vocational committee is approved by the Board of Education. Ward Of Training School Caught After Theft Of Car

A 17-year-old ward of the Bowmanville Training School for Boys was captured in the maze of CGE traffic at Park and Albert Sts., at noon today, 10 minutes after he had stolen a car from the Nisbett funeral home and started a wild ride south on Reid St. Robert Stewart, the arrested youth, told city police that he had come from Dunsford early today. He stole a truck in Lindsay, abandoned it somewhere in Peterborough, and stole a 1950-model convertible from Nisbett's to continue his journey to an undisclosed destination.

Ironically enough, it was 21-year-old John Nisbett who put the finger on the thief. His wife—and the police, naturally—both rate assists.

SEEN IN CONVERTIBLE

John was installing some oxygen in the ambulance at the funeral home, 347 Charlotte St., when his wife, Mary, came up and asked him: "Who's the crazy kid that's driving the convertible?"

Mrs. Nisbett had seen the excited driver run over the curb as he wheeled the stolen car south on Reid St. from Charlotte St.

John remembered he had seen "a kid" looking at the convertible for a considerable time before his wife reported the theft. He thought he would recognize him again and he would certainly know the convertible; so he jumped in the ambulance to give chase.

With the siren wailing he sped down Reid St., the heavy traffic parting to let him through. At Park and Albert Sts. he informed Constable William G. Scott and Constable Scott grabbed the youth and handcuffed him to the steering wheel after the stolen car had been boxed in by cars at the intersection.

THREE THEFTS

A car, carpentry equipment and a power lawn mower were stolen in three thefts in the north end of the city sometime Thursday night. The car was owned by F. W. Whitton, 40 Manning Ave., the carpentry equipment from a tool shed in the Queen Elizabeth sub-division, and the lawn mower from the garage of Mrs. Alfred Hatton, 252 Aberdeen Ave. The tools included two skillsaws, three long extensions and two sets of carpenter's tools. City police detectives are investigating all three thefts.

Will Send Help Direct From City To Greek Islands

Louis Yeotes has announced plans for a committee in Peterborough to organize relief for victims of the recent earthquakes in the Ionian Islands of Greece.

Mr. Yeotes, who for several years has been chairman of the Peterborough district Red Cross organization for Greek war relief, said that the earthquakes constituted one of the worst disasters ever to have befallen his homeland.

Some 1,200 homeless children are being cared for on the outskirts of Athens by Queen Frederica. The property damage throughout the islands is unbelievably extensive.

All donations from Peterborough will be sent directly to the headquarters of the disaster relief organization in Greece. Donations can be made through the local branch of the Royal Bank of Canada or to Mr. Yeotes.

Although a local committee to administer the fund has not yet been set up, city council has promised its wholehearted support. Some donations have already been received and Mr. Yeotes hopes to have a committee of women from the local Greek community canvass the stores.

3 Boys Arrested On Charges Of 14 Thefts

Three boys have been arrested by city police on the heels of a series of 14 break-ins, in which about $500 was stolen. The lads, aged 12, 13 and 14, will face three charges of attempted break and entry, one charge of theft, and 10 charges of break, entry and theft.

Two were arrested early Thursday morning by detectives who found them hiding under a table in McWilliams Service Station at Wolsley St. and the Chemong Rd. The third was arrested at his home several miles outside the city.

Police say the boys admitted some of the charges but weren't sure of the others.

The first offence that officers allege, took place on July 31 at Innes Service Station which had previously been the victim of a $600 theft.

SEVEN IN THREE NIGHTS

Five more charges dated in August and the remainder in September, including seven within three nights, face the boys.

The two eldest were arrested following an alarm in the city police station early Thursday morning. Sergeant of Detectives John Stevenson raced to the scene and saw two youths crouched behind a table in the darkened station.

More help was dispatched when the sergeant radioed there was more than one exit from the building. Detective Douglas Farthing and Inspector of Detectives Bud Clarke soon arrived and arrested the lads.

Soon afterwards, Inspector Clarke and Detective Farthing drove to the 12-year-old's home and found him alone there, huddled around a kerosene lamp in an attempt to keep warm.

The youngster's home was described by police as being "miles from nowhere" while the other two were "ramshackle" at the very best. Inspector Clarke remarked: "My dog sleeps on a better bed than he did," in noting the living conditions of the 12-year-old.

Sergeant Gordon Puffer, of the detective squad, who had visited homes of the other two earlier in an attempt to locate them, described squalid homes and lice-ridden beds.

All three live well outside the city in little-visited districts and are children of exceptionally poor parents.

Of the $500 reported stolen, only about $8 was recovered. Inspector Clarke quoted the boys as admitting they had spent the rest on clothes, air rifles, knives and other small items attractive to boys.

They will appear next Thursday in Juvenile Court before Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Following is a series of offences the trio has been accused of engineering:

Innes Service Station, break and entry, July 31; Coca Cola Co., attempted break and entry, August 19; Hendron's Service Station, attempted break and entry, August 26; Dorrington's Service Station, break, entry and theft, August 28; National Grocers, theft, August 27; Belleview Service Station, break, entry and theft, August 31; Ruselle's Service Station, break, entry and theft, September 5; Wood's Truck and Equipment Co., break, entry and theft, September 14; Williamson's Garage, break, entry and theft, September 15; Hickson Motors, break, entry and theft, September 15; Moore's Service Station, break, entry and theft, September 15; Dewart Milling Co., break, entry and theft, September 14.

CONTRACTS RENEWED

Civic Hospital Board of Governors have approved contract renewals with Dr. J. H. Whiteside, director of pathology, and Dr. W. M. McCutcheon, director of radiology. The contract with Dr. Whiteside will be made effective September 1, 1953, and the contract with Dr. McCutcheon January 1, 1954.

May Get Oil For Ontario From West

Premier Frost Sees Hope Of All Needs Met

LINDSAY (ENS)—Premier Leslie M. Frost has expressed the hope that all Ontario's future needs for oil, natural gas and coal would be filled by Western Canada.

The statement was part of an address delivered to the Eastern Ontario Municipal Electrical Association's annual two-day convention at Gilmar Lodge, Sturgeon Lake. Mr. Frost spoke to Thursday's noon luncheon of the convention.

Looking torwards future developments in Ontario, the premier said the province's population would probably reach six million in five or six years. The population is growing at the rate of 15,000 a month. These people would increase the need for power, he said, perhaps beyond what Hydro would be able to provide.

44 PER CENT

He said he hoped the West would be able to provide the essentials to produce the power needed in this province during those years. He pointed out that today Ontario fills about 44 per cent of her oil requirements with Alberta products. He hoped all Ontario's oil in the future would come from the West and the same could be said for natural gas and coal needs.

Premier Frost's statement is considered particularly significant in regard to natural gas, in view of the competition between United States and Canadian interests to capture the Ontario market for natural gas.

Last month the United States federal power commission approved an application by Tennessee Gas Transmission Co., of Huston, Texas, to transport gas from the southwestern United States to the Canadian border for resale in Toronto.

PLAN PIPELINE

Niagara Gas Transmission Ltd. plans to build a pipeline from Toronto to Queenston on the lower Niagara River, connecting with a spur from the Tennessee Gas Transmission Co.'s main line between Buffalo and New England.

A spokesman for the Consumers' Gas Co., of Toronto, which owns Niagara Gas Transmission Ltd., has said that all gas purchased by Niagara will be sold in Toronto. First delivery of gas from Texas is expected to reach Toronto in November of 1954.

Meanwhile, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines plan to build a $320-million pipeline to serve nearly all Canadian cities east of the Alberta gas fields as far as Montreal, including Peterborough. Capture of the huge Toronto market by the Tennessee company, however, might make the Canadian pipeline venture unprofitable.

Trans-Canada have applied to the Alberta Natural Gas and Petroleum Conservation Board for permission to sell 365 million cubic feet of gas a day through its proposed pipeline. Canadian government approval is thought to be required for import of United States natural gas into this country.

Since the pipeline carrying United States gas would not be extended beyond Toronto, its construction would cut off cities such as Peterborough from either source of natural gas.

REQUIRE VISION

In his Thursday night address, Premier Frost said the problems of the development of Canada require "the vision and sense of all her people, and, above all, co-operation between the provinces."

"The long view of the development of the country should be taken," he concluded, "that needs for resources should be filled from home supplies in order to make the country as self-sufficient as possible."

This was not narrow nationalism, he said, but a desire to make the whole country as prosperous as possible.

Premier Frost also introduced his guest, Premier E. C. Manning, of Alberta, who flew with the Premier to Gilmar Lodge from a mining convention at Niagara Falls. Premier Manning made a few remarks on oil developments in his province.

Premier Frost was introduced by George Baldwin, of Lindsay, vice-president of the association.

On Wednesday night, Ontario Hydro Chairman Robert Saunders addressed the convention on a surprise visit.

During Thursday's session, addresses were given by W. R. Strike, QC, second vice-chairman of the HEPC, Dr. Otto Holden, assistant general-manager of the HEPC, J. G. Batwin, P. C. McGuire and E. V. Dyke, Smiths Falls, vice-president of the association.

The convention was attended by W. Howard Powell, general manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, and James Beatty electrical superintendent of the PUC.

Wins $1,400 Award

THOROLD (CP)—The fourth annual Ontario Paper Company scholarship has been awarded to Jennifer Marjorie Ashmore of Port Dalhousie, a student at Linwell-Thorold high school, the company announced today. The award totals $1,400 spread over a four-year university course.

CGE Apparatus Division Reorganized, 6 New Departments Created

Three Departments Located In Peterborough Works Manager Roy T. Bogle Given New Position At Head Office

The apparatus division of the Canadian General Electric Co. has been reorganized to add six new departments which will operate almost as separate companies within the apparatus division. The re-arrangement of the apparatus division is an extension of the re-organization of the entire company made in April, 1952.

The new lines along which the division will operate were announced today by division general manager, A. M. Doyle. They will take effect Jan. 1, 1954.

Five other departments, non-manufacturing departments —engineering, finance, marketing and relations and sales—established last year will operate as they have been doing since April, 1952.

The new departments are: motor and control, motor and generator, switchgear and industry control, apparatus products, power transformer, and meter. Three of these will be located in the Peterborough plant—largest of the CGE's group of works. They are motor and control, motor and generator and switchgear and industry control.

James E. Girven will head the motor and generator department; S. O. Shields the switchgear and industry control and J. W. Willis, motor and control.

The other three will be located: apparatus products at Davenport; power transformer at Guelph (newest CGE plant); and meter at Quebec.

NO WORKS MANAGER

There will no longer be any works manager. Roy T. Bogle who has been works manager since April, 1952, has been promoted to manager of manufacturing in the Manufacturing and Engineering and Relations Services Division. Mr. Bogle will continue on as works manager here until Jan. 1, 1954, although his new position at head office becomes effective October 1, this year. He will be accountable to Ian F. McRae, former Peterborough Works Manager, and now vice-president, who made the announcement.

In the new organization each of the six new departments will be a business in itself with its own responsibility for design, manufacture and marketing of its products.

Mr. Girven's motor and generator department for instance has five sections, each with a manager: engineering, E. Whiteley; manufacturing, A. L. Malby; marketing, W. J. Shortall; accounting, Stanley R. Adamson; works services and employee and community relations, R. M. Hardie. Each of these new managers, with the exception of Mr. Shortall of Toronto, has been working in the Peterborough plant.

SIMILAR ORGANIZATION

In a similar organization in the motor and control department of which J. W. Willis of head office in Toronto is manager. A. R. Jones is manager of engineering; J. M. Taylor, manufacturing; R. M. Alemang, marketing; and D. I. Ireland (formerly of Peterborough) accounting.

The managers in Mr. Shields' switchgear and industry control department are: W. B. Brown, engineering; D. F. Frankine, manufacturing; D. R. McGregor, marketing; B. Duder, accounting. All are Peterborough plant men.

Motor and generator department, as the senior of the group, will serve in effect as the plant landlord and will provide services for the other Apparatus and Industrial Products groups in the Peterborough plant.

(Industrial Products division manufactures its wire and cable and small motors in the Peterborough plant).

The origiral re-organization of the CGE was designed to give

Heavy Horses Not Extinct Fair Reveals

More of a good class of horses than expected turned out for the heavy horse judging—heavy and grade draft and Clydesdales — Thursday afternoon, said Judge Roy H. Hardy, of Melbourne.

"You'd think horses were almost extinct, to look around a lot of farms now," said the judge. "But just bring on a fair and the horses are there to be judged. And most of them are better than you'd have a right to expect."

Not all the horses were good, Mr. Hardy was quick to point out, but it was a good representative class of Clydes and draft animals that appeared on the Exhibition's third day.

TORONTO (CP) — Representatives of the Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto and the Chemical Workers' Union (AFL) Thursday signed a two-year agreement covering wages and working conditions. A two-per-cent general wage increase retroactive to July 8 has been granted and a further five per cent is to be paid when the work week is reduced from 42 to 40 hours, probably next Monday.

THE INSTRUMENTS of the miracle of increased agricultural production comprise a significant assembly of substitutes for the once indispensable hired-man-power. When the manual helpers went off to war or into the munitions factories, farmers were left to shift for themselves in fulfilling the promises their leaders had made to the government and the armed forces.

Tractors, harvesting combines, forage harvesters, and other agricultural machines were soon flowing from the manufacturing plants in quantities that accomplished the national job of food production. Without the aid of such machinery farmers would have been reduced to the narrow limits of their horse-powered implements, and the work of themselves and the domestic help at home.

The farm machinery dealers of this district always put on a show of their products for farmers to see and discuss. This park of tractors, cultivating and harvesting tools is worth anybody's visit at the Exhibition. A big story of agricultural production and revolution of productive methods is written around this farm equipment.

"Battle Royal" To Determine Price Of Wheat

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

EDMONTON (CP) — A "battle royal" is going on behind the scenes to determine the price of wheat, H. G. L. Strange, of Winnipeg, said Thursday.

Mr. Strange, director of the research department of the Searle Grain Co. Ltd., addressed the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, and, as an advocate of "free trade," drew sparks, though coupled with applause and laughter, from his business-man audience.

He spoke, too, as an opponent of government marketing, on a panel of speakers which included W. F. Bull, deputy minister of trade and commerce.

The "battle royal," as outlined by Mr. Strange, is principally between Britain, big grain importer, and Canada, the United States and Australia, big grain growers.

"Wheat now is being sold at $2.02 and Britain, feeling it is too high, is scouring every market in the world in the belief that the unsold surpluses of the producing countries will force them to cut the price," he said.

"Who is right, and who is wrong, in regard to prices, only events will reveal."

Mr. Strange said if there had been no government marketing during the last eight years, "present wheat surpluses would hardly exist, and I think the average price over the years would have been at least as good as under government operation."

Mr. Bull commented:

"We don't think it is a calamity that we have a big crop, such as would have been the case if we had had a drought. . . .

"The prospects are that we will move a good part of our crop—not all, because fortune has given us one and one-half crops each year over the last five years."

Mr. Strange said Canada "should consider a policy of reducing her tariffs by, say, 20 per cent for the next five years, to assure prosperity to Canadian farmers."

C. Bruce Hill, St. Catharines manufacturer, asked:

"Does Mr. Strange's advocacy of 'free trade' extend to agriculture?"

Mr. Strange: "Absolutely."

Mr. Hill: "To New Zealand butter? To fruit and vegetables?"

Mr. Bull: "I think Mr. Strange was speaking more for the western grain grower than the eastern dairy farmer. New Zealand cattle can pasture all year round. It would be difficult to meet that sort of competition."

Mr. Strange: "The farmer doesn't live on prices but on income. If he sells a larger volume he can afford lower prices."

Mr. Hill: "A Canadian manufacturer paying $1.62 in wages competes with foreign manufacturers paying 40 cents an hour. Why isn't industry entitled to protection."

Mr. Bull: "I think industry has some protection."

Vancouver Actress Lauded For Role In "Tepid" Play

NEW YORK (CP)—Actress Joan Miller of Vancouver stars in the first melodrama of the new theatre season, "A Pin to See the Peepshow," which opened at the Playhouse here Thursday night.

The play, a fictional rendition by F. Tennyson Jesse and H. M. Harwood of a murder case which stirred Britain 30 years ago, points its dramatic efforts at a doomed woman moving toward her inevitable fate.

As the doomed woman, Miss Miller deftly passes from girlhood to dreary matrimony, to romantic escape and finally to the gallows.

Brooks Atkinson, in the New York Times, calls it a "Tepid" play which was conscientiously acted by all members of a cast which includes 20 speaking parts.

Atkinson says Miss Miller, in the role of Julia Almond, "gives a flawless performance that becomes powerful in the last two or three scenes. When the law catches up with Julia and she goes on trial for her life, Miss Miller has something to act. She takes full advantage of it in a forceful, harrowing performance."

Walter F. Kerr of the Herald Tribune says the play "more than anything else . . . seems to be intended as a sort of spectacular showcase for an actress" but calls Miss Miller's performance, "for all its admitted dexterity . . . cold, measured and distressingly mechanical."

The play is the story of a silly girl who, in 1916, is looking for a rosy life and romantic excitement. Seven years later she is being dragged off to the gallows. During the years between she marries a chump she doesn't love, and then falls recklessly in love with a young ship engineer who fatally bops her husband on the head with a wrench.

Both Atkinson and Kerr agree that the play itself, written in two acts and thirteen scenes, goes into too much detail.

Kerr calls the direction of Miss Miller's husband, Peter Cotes, "sound, sensible, and businesslike" but "very, very dull."

Stewart Nelson Shows Best Hay

The best sample of the first cut of hay this season was shown at the Exhibition by Stewart Nelson of Keene. His bale appeared to be a mixture of alfalfa, timothy and red clover.

Clarence Coons of Glynwood Farm, Lakefield, was awarded first prize for the best bale of second cut hay, and also the top money for the best bushel of cut hay. It was alfalfa, that was cut on Labor Day.

"You have to watch it closely to get the best idea of when it is ready for cutting, reasonably dry," Mr. Coons said. "You can't go into a pasture and pick out any cow to bring to the show. It's the same with hay."

The judge was W. O. Kennedy of OAC. The hay show is in the vegetable tent at the rear of the arts building.

Results were:

Bale of first cutting of Hay—1 Stewart Nelson, Keene; 2 Wesley Wilson, Omemee; Charles Lane, Oakwood; 4 G. H. Mark and Son, Little Britain; 5 Esmond Storey and Sons, Omemee; 6 Donald Irwin, RR 2, Peterborough; 7 Fred L. Lowery, Millbrook; 8, Howard N. Shepherd, Codrington.

Bale of 2nd cutting of Hay—1 Clarence Coons, Glynnwood Farm, Lakefield; 2 Lloyd Jackson, South Monaghan; 3 Donald Franks, RR 1, Omemee; 4 Walter Bowles, RR 3, Peterborough; 5 Wesley Wilson; 6 Henry Sharpe, Smith; Donald Milburn, Smith; 8, Carmen Bell, RR 4, Peterborough.

Bushel of cut hay—1 Clarence Coons; 2 Esmond Storey and Sons; 3 Walter Bowles; 4 Donald Milburn; 5 Charles Lane, Oakwood; 6 Clarence Johnston, RR 5, Peterborough; 7 Donald Irwin; 8 Stewart Nelson.

Top Holstein Bull Dies Of Stroke

BRANTFORD (CP) — Montvic Rag Apple Marksman is gone and the Holstein world has lost one of its outstanding figures.

The head office of the Holstein-Friesian Association here announced the bull's death Thursday.

Marksman's owners, J. E. McCague of Alliston and C. J. Cerswell of Beeton, advised the Association that he suffered a stroke which paralyzed his hind legs and had to be destroyed.

Marksman, as most breeders called him, was the most famous Holstein bull Canada has ever produced. His male progeny are sires of some of the most famous herds in Canada and his blood line will not die for 100 years or more.

The 13-year-old bull, with 500 offspring in Canada, did not miss a meal until last week-end when he was destroyed.

McCague and Cerswell bought Marksman from the late T. N. Macaulay of Hudson Heights, Que., for $1,325. One of Marksman's male offspring sold for $40,000 and one of his female offspring brought $17,600. In 1947 Marksman was declared the best bull on the North American continent.

The two were ejected from the game with seconds to play.

Welton paid his fine. Mastersky's cheque covering his is understood to be en route to league officials.

NEW YORK (AP)—Protestant churches of America this year have increased the amount of relief supplies sent to needy areas of Europe and Asia by 72 per cent over last year. Church World Service, overseas relief arm of the National Council of Churches, said Thursday 13 million pounds of food, clothing and medicine—worth $3,820,180—have been shipped in the first eight months of 1953.

COBOURG (ENS)—The site of the international and world plowing match on the northern outskirts of the town is becoming a busy place with the approach of the match October 6 to 9.

The Bell Telephone Co. is installing considerable equipment, including teletype machines and lines. The HEPC has been busy for some time setting up special transmission lines to handle the large amount of power that will be used.

There is still much to be done but, by the time the date of the match rolls around, a huge tented area complete with all necessary utilities will be in evidence.

Acid Fumes Eat St. Paul's Outer Surfaces

By EMERSON CHAPIN

LONDON (Reuters) — St. Paul's Cathedral, which survived the German blitz through the heroic efforts of London's fire-fighters, now faces a more insidious menace from the air.

The cathedral's officials have declared that acid fumes in London's heavily-polluted atmosphere are eating away the outer surfaces of the massive 17th-century building.

Though no "fundamental" damage has been done yet, the loss is "impossible to estimate," says Canon Lewis Collins, chancellor of St. Paul's.

The cathedral is the latest of many outstanding architectural works in London to take measure of its losses. The Houses of Parliament, built of a less-resistant stone, have been undergoing extensive work to counteract the influences of erosion. Only recently an appeal was launched for funds to save Westminster Abbey from imminent danger resulting largely from stone decay.

DAMAGE TO ART

Many of the capital's other stone buildings are being slowly eaten away by the fumes that lie heavily over the city, and art experts also are concerned over damage done by the atmosphere to works of art in the London galleries.

Stone figures atop St. Paul's are noticeably disfigured by erosion, while the outer surface of portland stone has been worn away as much as several inches. Overhanging stonework put in place to protect the walls beneath has been eaten so deeply that rainwater, carrying the acid, washes unimpeded down the sides of the great cathedral.

PLAN APPEAL

But the weakening of specific sections of St. Paul's by wartime bombing is a more immediate concern and the cathedral authorities plan an appeal soon for a fund in the neighborhood of $1,500,000 for repairs. As for the erosion, the best they can do is keep tabs on its progress and hope that city authorities will halt the threat before irreparable damage occurs.

Damage to London's great buildings is dramatizing the effects of a grime-ridden atmosphere which deposits as much as 40 tons of soot every month on every square mile in the city. Public awareness of the danger has been rising since last winter's great fume-laden fog which caused 4,000 deaths and was estimated to have affected the health of 1,000,000 persons.

STUDY AIR POLLUTION

Though a governmental commission has been appointed to study causes and cures for air pollution, authorities have little hope of any early solution. Cost of installing equipment to cleanse industrial fumes is prohibitive at present, they say, while there is no hope of altering the living habits of Londoners.

With central heating a rarity in Britain, most households are dependent on small open fires. Increasingly coarse grades of coal result in tremendous waste of soot and heat up the chimney, where the particles join with industrial gases and the fumes of automobile exhausts in a poisonous pall. In damp weather this furnishes a perfect base for the famous London fogs.

Technical experts look increasingly to the example of United States cities that have been successful in banishing smog. But the government has made it plain that it regards the attempt to follow such steps as too costly for the present.

Air Cadets Given Permission For Tag Day

Permission was granted the Air Cadets to hold a tag day this year by the Police Commission Thursday, in spite of a promise by the cadet group last year they would not ask for one.

In a letter to the board, H. L. Garner, past national president of the Air Cadet League, said a tag day was "absolutely necessary" if the group was to continue locally. Referring to a denial for a tag day earlier by the commissioners, Mr. Garner pointed out the junior lacrosse organization held one this year, and suggested the Air Cadet League was a more important group.

Commenting on the letter, Mayor Hugh A. Waddell said the junior lacrosse day could "hardly be construed as a tag day," nevertheless it was still a solicitation for funds.

Rating the air cadets on a par with boy scouts and sea cadets, the board finally decided to let the group stage a tag day.

Seconds later, members refused, with regrets, a similar request by the Community Nursing Registry, and granted the Kiwanis Club permission to take up its annual silver collection this month.

Bowmanville Sheep Breeder Wins Top Honors At Show

Praising entries in the Peterborough Exhibition's sheep classes, Ray Clarkson, of R.R. 1, Brampton, judged a large entry in nine separate classes at the sheep building.

The veteran judge, no stranger to local sheep breeders, said this year's contestants entered more and better animals than in previous years, combining to put on a better show.

Top winners during the day's judging were Lloyd Ayre, of Bowmanville, who took ribbons for best ewe and ram in Southdown, Hampshire and Cheviot classes, and the ewe ribbon in the Suffolk entries.

Other high scorers were the entries of N. R. Green and Sons, Harold Skinner and Son, G. H. Mark and Son, J. M. Murray and Son, and John R. Kelsey.

N. W. McConkey, chairman of the fair board, was another entrant. He carried off a third and fourth in the Hampshire class.

Need For Schools Grows In Cobourg

COBOURG (ENS)—The town's growing pains, painful to the taxpayer, are becoming more evident, particularly in the matter of schools.

Ready for use at the start of the fall term was the east end Public School, which cost a couple of hundred thousand dollars. There is a $116,000 addition being built to the Separate School.

The Collegiate addition, built during the Second World War, met the need for some years. The school, which is now a district collegiate, is becoming overcrowded again and further expansion is required.

Even with the east end Public School now in use, there is going to be a further need of increased accommodation, which may eventually result in a new west end school.

Jailed By Communists For More Than Two Years

Grim Regime Provided For Reporter-Prisoner

By WILLIAM N. OATIS

(Copyright 1953 by The Associated Press)

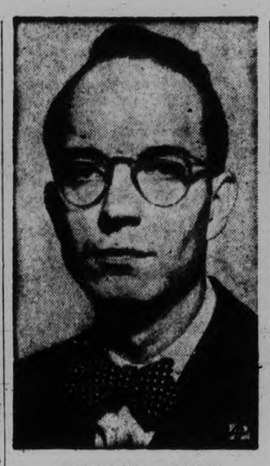
I spent more than 24 months, from the spring of 1951 to the spring of 1953, in Ruzyne Prison near Prague, Czechoslovakia. All that time I lived in a cell.

I was arrested while serving as an Associated Press foreign correspondent. I was accused of espionage, convicted and sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment. I got out in less time on a pardon.

In retrospect, the weeks and months seem to have gone by fast. That is because the prisoner remembers little that happened in them—because they were empty. This very emptiness makes each day itself seem to go by so slowly.

I used to wake, to the guard's reveille call, and think, "It is 16 hours till I can sleep again; how can I ever pass that time?"

It was as if I had just fallen to the bottom of a deep well and must swim upward and upward, holding my breath, to save my life.



WILLIAM N. OATIS

DREAMS

In a cell a man lives while he is asleep; while he is awake, he only exists. In dreams he lives the life he cannot live in reality. I dreamed of buying newspapers, walking the streets, riding trains, eating in restaurants, talking with my wife and friends.

Time goes most slowly when the prisoner is alone in his cell, because then he has only his own mind to help him fight time, and his mind is likely to play him false and turn to his fate. If he has a cellmate, he has the strength of two in the fight, because he has another's resources as well as his own.

I was alone only about three months in Ruzyne. But I knew one man that had spent more than nine months in solitary confinement, and another that had been waiting more than two years for trial, alone or with a companion.

I had several cellmates, one after another: two Czechs, two Moravians, a Slovak, a Slovakian Jew and an Austrian. They ranged in age from the 20s to the 60s—two mechanical engineers, a clerk, a priest, a policeman, an army officer and a politician.

The long day began with reveille around 5:30 a.m. and ended with taps around 9:30. In between, every incident, however routine, was a milestone; it meant that a certain amount of time was past, and the prisoner was that much nearer bedtime.

We dressed, folded our blankets, washed in cold water with coarse laundry soap and had breakfast. We waited for the mid-morning sandwich, given to the skinnier prisoners like me. It came, and we waited for lunch. That came, and we waited for the mid-afternoon sandwich. Then there was supper, and then there were three hours to bedtime.

THE MENU

A meal was always a notable event. It meant time was past, and we listened eagerly for the sounds that told us that inmates from a nearby labor camp were shuffling down our hall, setting food outside each door.

There was always the fascinating question of what was coming for lunch.

Each mealtime, a guard opened the cell door so we could take the food in. Each inmate got a small double boiler full, with liquid below and solid above.

Breakfast was always a chunk of coarse rye bread with a coffee substitute, probably made from roasted grain. Lunch included soup, usually excellent, and mashed potatoes with gravy, spinach, cabbage, sauerkraut or carrots on top, or else heavy Czech dumplings with gravy. Supper might be potatoes, rice or boiled pearled barley, this last a tasteless dish that many prisoners flushed down the toilet.

A time or two during the week we got bits of canned meat—parts of the animal that should have been thrown away—in our gravy. There was an honest-to-goodness slice of meat on Sundays or holidays. Sometimes it was good roast pork, sometimes tough, dry boiled beef. Now and then we got fresh lettuce, often with a dividend of sand. The food was not elegant, but it was usually tasty and filling.

RECREATION

Between meals, we found a few things to pass the time. From my cellmates I learned a little Czech and Slovak and a few words of Russian, Hungarian, Hebrew and Arabic. I spoke rudimentary French with the priest, and taught him English.

We sang songs in several languages. The politician taught me "Dark Eyes" in Russian, and I taught him "Dinah," "Me and My Shadow" and "The Battle Hymn of the Republic" in English.

We played questions - and - answers. We drew a chess -and- checker board on toilet paper and kneaded figures out of rye bread, which is as hard as rock when it has dried. (The priest colored the "red" chessmen with toothpaste.) That gave us two more games to play.

We got books in Czech and Slovak, at the rate of one or two a week, from the prison library. They were mostly propaganda novels.

I got three parcels of books in English—from my wife, from the U.S. Embassy, and from The AP—novels, plays, poetry and writings on music and science. And I got some Soviet publications in English—Gorki, Dickens, Howard Fast and some propaganda magazines—from my referent. So we had something to read.

In January, 1952, I started writing songs—one-voice melodies with words—on toilet paper. Before I got out, I wrote more than 400 songs, three revues and numerous skits. (Don't look for any of these at your music store.)

We looked forward to the scheduled events of each week: The buying of cigarettes, candy, cookies and fruit from a prison officer who took orders at the cell door and delivered the goods a few days later; the arrival of clean unbleached-muslin underwear from the prison laundry (we got a change of our tan burlap uniforms only when they began showing dirt or holes.)

OUTSIDE TRIPS

There were shower baths about every two weeks, trips to the doctor's or dentist's office as needed. (The dentist filled numerous cavities in my teeth. The doctor put me in the priscon hospital with what was diagnosed as tuberculosis.)

There were, on rare occasions, walks in the prison courtyard. And there were, for me, five automobile trips to Prague, when I eagerly drank in all the sights of streets and houses, and people and trees and grass and sunshine and sky and space that I missed in my cell.

The first time, I went to Pankrac Prison to testify at a trial of a group of Czechs accused of espionage and linked through a devious web with my case. The police made it clear how I was to testify. That was in March, 1952.

Six weeks later I was taken to the downtown police station to meet U.S. Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs. (Only then did I learn that the police had been wrong when they told me, "The American Embassy is doing nothing for you.")

HANDS OUTSIDE

There was a visit the following October with another embassy man, Charge D'Affaires Nat P. King, and a trip to a hospital for a physical examination some five months after that. I had a second vicit with King only two days before my release. (Neither of us knew then that I was about to be freed.)

Incidents like that were rare breaks in the monotony. In the cell there always came a time when we ran out of things to do, and there we were again, pacing the floor and waiting for bedtime.

There was a rule, probably intended to prevent suicides, that every prisoner, unless specifically excused from doing so, must sleep with his hands outside his blankets. (As a frail-looking foreigner trusted not to do himself in, I got an excuse.)

A few of the guards, especially the younger and newer ones, enforced this to the letter. While a prisoner sleeps, he is likely to pull his hands under the covers almost by habit. And when my cellmate did so, such guards banged on the door, "Hands outside the blankets!"

And then we were both awake, and back in prison. And then we went back to sleep, and pretty soon again we heard the same cry, at our own door or somewhere down the hall. On nights like that, nobody slept right.

Through every night, the electric light burned overhead. Every few minutes a guard looked through a peephole in the door.

If he was the right kind of guard, we slept in spite of all that. But always there came the dawn, and there was another day to get through—16 hours—960 minutes—57,600 seconds. That way, I struggled through two years.

Shortly before midnight, May 15, 1953, a guard awoke me and took me before a secret police officer. The officer told me that President Antonin Zapotocky, acting on a letter from my wife in St. Paul, Minn., had forgiven the rest of my sentence. The next morning at 9:30, I left the prison for the last time. And less than six hours later an American Embassy car carried me out of Czechoslovakia.

Vandals Target

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Vandals caused extensive damage to a Boy Scout camp three miles from the city during the summer months. The scouts occupy the camp only on week-ends, and gangs of teen-agers were said to be responsible for the raids in between.

Panthers Stalk N.B. Forests, Thought Extinct

FREDERICTON, N.B. (CP) — Elusive and wary eastern panthers, long-lost cousins of the western mountain lion, are stalking New Brunswick forests in increasing numbers, Bruce S. Wright, of Fredericton, says.

But the panther, for years considered extinct in the Atlantic provinces, has not attacked man since the 1948 discovery that members of this rare species still exist.

Evidence has been found, however, that panther cubs have mauled cattle in some areas. One report says a heifer survived a savage attack believed made by a cub cat.

WIDELY STUDIED

As director of the northeastern wildlife station of the Wildlife Management Institute, a private organization with headquarters in Washington, Mr. Wright has carried out extensive investigations into the existence and whereabouts of this rarity.

He first reported the panther's existence in New Brunswick in 1948, and since has offered evidence of its increasing numbers.

A year ago he identified as an eastern panther a picture of an animal killed in Kent county in 1932. It is presumably the last of the species ever captured, dead or alive, in the Atlantic provinces.

Last January, Mr. Wright says, a hunter reported tracking a panther over river ice north of Saint John. Two years ago, a resident of the Grand Lake area in Queen's county said he was stalked by a panther-like creature. But reports of panther attacks on humans were unfounded.

Call By-Election In Niagara Falls

TORONTO (CP)—Attorney-General Dana Porter announced Thursday that a provincial by-election will be held in Niagara Falls riding Oct. 26. Nomination day is Oct. 19.

The seat was left vacant when William L. Houck, a Liberal, resigned to contest the new federal riding of Niagara Falls. Mr. Houck was elected.

The legislature standing now is: Progressive Conservative, 79; Liberal 6; CCF, 2; Labor-Progressive, 1; Liberal-Labor, 1; vacant 1. Total: 90.

The by-election is the first since the provincial Progressive Conservative administration was re-elected in November, 1951.

Mr. Houck was first elected in the Liberal sweep of 1934. He lost in 1943 to the CCF and again in 1945 when the riding went Progressive Conservative. He regained the seat in the 1948 election.

Cyanamid Ups Wages 75 Workers Benefit

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Wage increases averaging 8½ cents an hour to all hourly-paid employees at the Welland plant of North American Cyanamid Limited were announced Thursday. The boost was effective Sept. 13.

The announcement by the company and the international Chemical Workers Union (AFL) followed reopened talks provided for in the current contract.

About 750 workers will benefit from the increase, which brings the minimum rate to $1.47 and the maximum to $1.93.

Fire-Fighting In Factories Tough Job, Declare Chiefs

TORONTO (CP)—Firemen find fighting a blaze in a big modern factory a tough job.

Fire chiefs attending the 80th convention of the International Association of Fire Chiefs discussed the problem Thursday. Speakers said the huge factories often have acres of floor space unbroken by fire walls, while sometimes special chemicals add to the difficulties.

Chief H. G. Thomas of Hartford, Conn., said fire officers must seek adequate legislation for fire prevention in nursing homes and other places of public accommodation. Then they must "sell" the regulations to the management of the institutions.

Chief Thomas described circumstances surrounding a fire at a Hartford nursing home Christmas Eve, 1945, in which 16 persons died.

Chief Roi B. Woolley of New York said some nursing homes are being moved from the cities to the suburbs because their operators want to escape high taxes. He said that, in consequence, some chiefs of suburban fire departments might find themselves confronted with problems beyond their experience.

He advised that mutual aid pacts be established with adjacent fire departments and that requests for help be made at once if fires are reported in nursing homes.

A panel considered the problem of transportation of inflammable liquids and explosives.

Said chief George McA., ne of Oklahoma City:

"We make the proprietor of a filling station put his storage tanks underground. Yet the driver of a gasoline truck, with as much gasoline aboard as there is in the filling station tanks, can park his truck for an hour while he goes into a tavern or a restaurant."

Another panel discussed the problem of finding suitable men to hire as recruits for fire departments. Chief C. Gray Burnett of Ottawa said most chiefs are being asked to cut down the administrative costs of their departments at a time when wage scales are rising and the work week is being reduced.

Pollution Reports Heard In Windsor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Officials of Windsor, Sarnia and Amherstburg industries gave reports Thursday before the advisory board of the international joint commission on control of pollution of boundary waters.

The reports, most of them highly technical, outlined steps being taken by various industries to reduce or eliminate waste spillage into boundary waters.

The advisory board has been working on the water pollution problem since 1946. Earlier this year the city of Detroit charged that the water supply was being polluted by waste dumped into the St. Clair river by oil companies at Sarnia.

As a result of investigations by the joint commission during the last 10 years, a spokesman said Thursday, pollution of the St. Clair river, the Detroit river and Lake St. Clair has been greatly reduced.

Canadian Soldier Faces Charge Of Kidnapping

LINTON, N. D. (AP)—A mental examination will be asked for a Canadian soldier, his lawyer said, at his arraignment in district court Monday on a charge of kidnapping an expectant mother last July 15.

Donald Blackwell Argyle, 31, described by Sheriff Anton G. Anders as a member of a Canadian Army ordnance unit stationed in Regina, is in the Emmons county jail here in lieu of $25,000 bond in the kidnapping of Mrs. Albert Geigle, 33, of Strasburg, N. D.

Argyle's lawyer, T. E. George of Jamestown, N. D., said he plans to ask Judge A. G. Porter to direct a mental examination of the Canadian before further proceedings.

Mrs. Geigle was left bound on a country road near Medina, N. D., about six hours after she had been abducted by a hitchhiker in Canadian Army uniform to whom she gave a ride.

Mrs. Geigle and three other women with her said the hitchhiker drew a bayonet-like knife, forced the other women and three children from the car and ordered Mrs. Geigle to drive away with him.

Argyle was taken into custody at Medina by a police officer who found him wandering in the village street. The Geigle car was found abandoned near there, and shortly afterward officers found Mrs. Geigle, who had freed herself.

She was treated for cuts on the hands, and a physician said she had been raped. The North Dakota penalty for kidnapping is not less than five nor more than 20 years imprisonment.

Sunday Sport Strategy

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Rev. Walter T. Stevens of Hamilton said Thursday the church must remain in the background if it wants to defeat commercialized Sunday sports.

Addressing the 36th annual convention of the Thunder Bay Association of Baptist Churches, he said that in Hamilton the church stayed in the background but worked through business and labor people to bring about rejection of Sunday sport.

Lynn Lake Comes Into Its Own As Boom Town

LYNN LAKE, Man. (CP) — Northern Manitoba's new town is preparing to come to life.

Two years ago Lynn Lake was a gleam in the eyes of Sherritt-Gordon mines officials. Today it is on the verge of boom activity as it primps to welcome the life-giving steel arteries of the railroad.

When Sherritt-Gordon holdings at Sherridon, 147 miles due south, started to peter out, officials decided to develop valuable nickel-copper deposits at Lynn Lake. Many Sherridon buildings, including homes, bank and church, were loaded on sleighs and carted by cat train across the frozen muskeg to the new site.

At first Sherridon buzzed with renewed activity as the Canadian National Railways prepared to cram a three-year construction job into two years. Then the town slowly faded. Now the railway is within 25 miles and just more than a month of its destination, 500 miles north of Winnipeg.

The railway is due in Lynn Lake Oct. 30. Until then the town's only connections with civilization are cat train and aircraft. By early 1954 traffic will be booming north with supplies and south with nickel-copper concentrates headed for a new multi-million dollar chemical metallurgical plant at Fort Saskatchewan, Alta., near Edmonton.

Accident Kills Two In Western Ontario

STRATFORD (CP)—Two persons were killed Thursday night in a head-on collision between two automobiles on a hill on No. 7 highway near St. Marys.

Dead are William R. Fraser of Stratford and a woman identified as Mrs. Mary Roberts, 65, of South Euclid, Ohio.

Mrs. Roberts' sister, Mrs. Jane Miller of West Palm Beach, Fla., was admitted to Stratford General Hospital with severe injuries. Also in hospital is Robert Hunter, 42, of Stratford, believed to have been driving the car in which Mr. Fraser was riding. His condition was reported serious.

New Hydro Projects Enough Until 1961, Saunders Says

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A new generating station and the proposed St. Lawrence river power development will supply Ontario with enough electric power until 1961, the 10th annual conference of mines ministers was told Thursday.

Robert Saunders, chairman of the Ontario hydro commission, said the commission also has plans for four additional units at the new powerhouse site here to provide further power.

The Niagara Falls development was the 14th and largest undertaken by the commission since the end of the war, with Canadian capital carrying most of the financial burden.

Mr. Saunders spoke to delegates as they took time off from business sessions to tour the big hydro project.

Talks aimed at bringing Alberta's natural gas to Ontario via an all-Canadian pipeline are expected to resume today.

In previous discussions, Premier E. C. Manning of Alberta indicated the province did not care whether it sold its surplus gas to the Canadian market or exported it through another proposed pipeline to the United States border.

"It all depends on who offers us the best deal," he told a press conference.

Just how much gas was available for export remains to be decided, he said, "but I think we could fill the need of the East."

P-TA Hd. Stresses Adult Education

One or more study clubs in each Parent-Teacher Association unit in Ontario is the goal set for this year by provincial president Mrs. Margaret O'Brien, of Peterborough. "I think today adult education is the thing in every phase of life," says Mrs. O'Brien.

"The secret of successful adult education is to get people to speak—to express themselves—which means that they have 'thought' for themselves," she believes. She adds an important thought to this comment: "The new knowledge put before them must be related to the ideas already in their minds."

A pilot course to train leaders who will organize the new groups in every parish is planned by Mrs. O'Brien. She is speaking about them at local meetings of the units and has outlined her plans in the president's message in the Association's monthly booklet.

Nylon Stockings Disintegrate While On Voyage

VICTORIA (CP)—Fair guests on a Canadian Navy cruise recently got a lesson in chemistry as well as a pleasant sea voyage. Their nyoln stockings disintegrated suddenly, leaving them bare-legged.

They were wives of delegates to the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants in convention here and the cruise was part of the entertainment program.

A freak mixture of funnel gases with salt sea vapors turned the nylons into cobwebs.

"We couldn't believe our eyes," said one woman. "I looked down and there were my bare toes sticking out of my open-toed sandals."

"It couldn't happen twice," said a naval man. "Atmospheric pressures must have been perfect to mix water vapors with funnel gases which include sulphur dioxide. Result was a mild sulphuric acid which the stockings could not withstand."

Council Of Women Business Meeting

Mrs. E. Chambers, education convener of the local Council of Women, gave a detailed report of the events leading to and the formation of the Peterborough Council for Retarded Children. Mrs. Chambers has acted as a leader in this project.

She advised that no accommodation for the school, which it had been hoped to start early in September, has yet been found. The council cannot pay rent as it has as yet no funds and the $4 per week per child which parents are required to pay will only cover the teacher's salary. A government grant can be obtained after January 1st if the school has been in operation for the fall school term.

There will be eight children in the class; and Mrs. Chambers remarked that the Toronto school for Retarded Children, commenced several years ago with only eight pupils. She and the teacher, Mrs. Hamilton, and several members of Local Council and the Council for Retarded Children visited this Toronto School on Wednesday to observe the program in use.

As well as seeking free accommodation, the Council also seeks volunteer drivers for the children, and Local Council was asked to help in this.

Local Council hope to hold a meeting during October to discuss further the Housing for Older People in Peterborough. The date and the speaker is to be set by the executive and will be advertised, and the affiliated societies will be notified by the secretary.

President Mrs. A. W. Nelson also sought permission of the Council to arrange the annual dinner meeting with Mrs. Marchbanks who is connected with United Nations and World Understanding as the speaker if possible.

Treasurer Mrs. P. Martyn was authorized to purchase a wreath to place on the war memorial on Remembrance Day.

On a motion by Mrs. H. Tremain, Mrs. H. Dunford and Mrs. K. Simpson the sum of 50. was voted to be given to the Unitarian Service of Canada for the welfare of children in Europe.

It has been decided to relinquish the custom of holding an autumn tea and to celebrate the anniversary of the Local Council at the next meeting, October 15th, by having as speaker Mrs. R. J. Marshall of Agincourt, and following the meeting with afternoon tea.

Mrs. Nelson reported to the 25 members present on the 60th anniversary meeting of the National Council at Winnipeg in June, to which she was sent as a delegate. She also described the plaque in memory of Lady Aberdeen, founder of the Council of Women, which is now in the Peace Garden. Peterborough Council donated toward this plaque and Mrs. Nelson was present for the unveiling.

Dawson-Romig

TORONTO—Of interest was the marriage of Miss Muriel Stewart Romig, daughter of Mrs. Romig and the late John H. Romig, to Mr. John Walter Dawson of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Dawson of RR 11, Peterborough. The Rev. James M. Finlay performed the ceremony in Carlton Street United Church.

Mr. John S. Romig of Peterborough gave his sister in marriage. The bride's bouffant gown of Chantilly lace over ivory satin had a fitted bodice with off-shoulder neckline and lace bertha. Her fingertip veil fell from a satin coronet trimmed at one side with a spray of flowers, and she carried stephanotis centred with a white orchid and white gladioli petals.

Miss Mary Louise Kilgour, maid of honor for her cousin, chose sunlit yellow taffeta, with tight bodice, off-shoulder neckline and very full skirt. Mrs. John S. Romig wore soft green taffeta and both head addresses in colors to match their nosegays of Queen Mary roses and apricot chrysanthemums. Miss Susan Doy, flower girl, was frocked in yellow taffeta with overdress of pale green net, and carried a basket of yellow roses. Mr. Arthur Dawson was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were Messrs. Dee Hurtubise, Peterborough; Bruce Donaldson, Hamilton; J. W. Kilgour and Robert Gunn.

After the reception at the Malloney Galleries, Mr. and Mrs. Dawson left for Northern Ontario. They will live in Toronto.

Norwood Club's Ladies' Night

NORWOOD (ENS)—The Lions Club held their annual ladies' night on Wednesday at Irwin's Inn, when the members entertained their wives. It began with a turkey dinner.

The guest speaker was Stan Darling, the International Counsellor from Peterborough. His talk was on what it means to be a Lion. Lion Dr. A. R. Atkinson introduced the speaker and Lion Irvin Warner thanked him. Lion Alan McNab proposed a toast to the ladies to which Mrs. Stan Flett responded.

A Chinese auction sale was held and the winner, Lion Ivan Begg, was presented with a grill. There were other lucky draws.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin were thanked and the entire party went over to the Sunset Pavilion for dancing with Art Jones and his orchestra. There were spot dances and square dances.

The Lions Club have been very active in this district for a number of years. One of their planned projects for this year is a new wing for the town hall.

DEPTH IS THE NEWEST THING about fall handbag fashions. It's depth that makes for harmony with the slender fall silhouette. Closed bucket bag (upper left) is in antique amber calf, has a vibrant color tone. Grained leather satchel with slim handles (upper centre) is in maple-toned calf, is lined in honey-color smooth leather. Typical of larger sizes in dressy bags for late day is elongated, sleek box (upper right) in red chiffon velvet. This is lined in blonde leather. Oversized deep bucket (lower left) is in rich silver gray mouton fur with longer than average handle in black leather. French purse (lower centre) is leopard-dyed rabbit, is worn opened out, not folded over as in previous years. This is a smart bag for dressy daytime wear. Dramatic satchel in giant size (lower right) is made of black wool yarn, has gros point design of single huge rose in varied shades of pink and spray of green leaves in two tones.

Anglican Women's College To Mark Diamond Jubilee

TORONTO (CP)—The Anglican Women's Training College here will celebrate its diamond jubilee this week with a reunion of graduates of the last 60 years from many parts of Canada and the United States.

The three-day conference and reunion will mark the college's 60 years of contribution to Anglican Church work in which more than 400 graduates have gone out to many parts of the world.

The college was founded in October, 1893, and was known as Deaconess House. It was later enlarged to include a small hospital and Mildmay Institute was added to become the busy centre of social work.

27 YEARS SERVICE

The college moved to its present midtown location in 1947 with Annie Edgar as its head. A University of Toronto and Toronto General Hospital graduate, she has a record of 27 years' service as a nursing sister in the Kangra mission in India.

The Anglican Women's Training College has a three-year course with girls enrolled from across Canada. Entrance requirements are matriculation for pass courses and university degrees for honors courses. Those with university degrees are admitted to theological courses at Trinity and Wycliffe Colleges, University of Toronto.

Students do much practical work during their courses. Together with women from the United Church and Presbyterian Colleges, they take recreational leadership, handicrafts, singing, drama, public speaking and sociology at various Toronto colleges.

PARKHILL SCHOOL

Parkhill Home and School Association opened its current season with a meeting Tuesday. Mrs. R. Parnell, president, was in the chair. Mrs. C. Gledhill conducted an appropriate devotional with scripture reading from Proverbs being a description of "The Perfect Woman", followed by a short prayer.

Attendance prize was won by the kindergarten room of Miss June Adams.

Principal Miss Cora Bailey then introduced the new teachers, Mrs. C. Osborne, Miss Evelyn Goheen and Miss June Adams and each gave a few words of greeting.

Mrs. Osborne then introduced the guest speaker for the evening, Miss Phyllis Moore, primary supervisor for Peterborough public schools, who gave a helpful talk with full explanation of the new reading program for kindergarten and junior grades. She pointed out that reading is a means of relaxation and escape from the pressure of everyday living. Reading means an understanding of the printed word, not just saying one word after another but an interpretation of the picture presented in the story. "The words must tell us something — that is what "Reading Comprehension" on the child's report card really means", she said. The child must have experiences to draw from in his everyday life. These need not be unusual or expensive but can be shared with his parents and friends

Miss Moore pointed out that parents should talk to their children and be sure to talk in sentences, not just words, for a child that talks in sentences will read in sentences. Parents can enjoy reading with a child, not just by reading, but by asking what a child learned from a story, what pictures it brings to his mind. Thus you can share and learn what your child is thinking. "Love of reading" she pointed out, "is like charity — it begins at home. If a child sees a parent enjoys reading, is happy doing it and has fun, the child will copy them as in other things.

Miss Moore strongly advised against too harsh comparison of a child with anyone elses. "The difference might be in age as the entering age can be from 4 years 10 months to 5 years 9 months. Some do not talk as readily, they vary emotionally and their home life differs. Minds are like faces, they differ just as much."

Emphasis in modern teaching is on the ability and understanding of the individual child. Another point brought out was the importance of telling a child when you were discussing a problem with his teacher and being sure the child understands which it is all about and that you are not trying to "put something over on him". Thus a good relationship can be formed between the parent, child and teacher.

Mrs. A. Fort thanked Miss Moore for her help in understanding the new system. Mrs. Frank Barker, program convener, announced that the October meeting would have as its theme, "Health", with the speaker, Mrs. Phyllis Kingdom.

✧ ✧ ✧

HAVELOCK PUBLIC SCHOOL

Mrs. R. Howard, the kindergarten teacher on the public school staff was the speaker at the opening meeting for the Home and School Association held in the school.

Mrs. Howard took as her subject, "Aims of the Kindergarten Work" and dealt with her subject under the following heading: (1) To teach the child to learn to be courteous to classmates and adults. (2) To be a leader and a follower. (3) To learn to work within a group. (4) To eliminate fears and tensions. (5) To develop self-control. (6) To accept responsibility. (7) To use and care for material property. (8) To share and wait one's turn. (9) To listen to and to be able to follow group and individual direction. (10) To develop good habits of safety and health. (11) To work up to the level of their ability. (12) To adjust easily to new experiences.

In closing, Mrs. Howard said the kindergarten is not a play class, because your child is always learning and developing.

The health convener, Mrs. W. Nobes, Sr., took as her topic, "Your child needs good shoes".

Mrs. G. Corneil was the program convener and led a period of community singing. A solo was sung by Mrs. W. Goadsby. Mrs. G. Kennedy was the pianist for the evening and the president, Mrs. J. Calman presided.

A social half hour was enjoyed and lunch served by the refreshment committee.

New Church Women's Org. On First Profit Venture

The newest church women's organization in the city is probably also the busiest this week with every one of its 80 members having some part in the first money-making project.

Friendship Group of St. Gile's Presbyterian Church is operating a light lunch concession on grandstand row at the Peterborough Exhibition. Financial success of this effort will be one more step toward a new church—surely a worthwhile goal.

Business has been good so far—and is likely to improve for the final two days of the show, especially with warmer weather here now—so the ladies should make a substantial profit. Overhead expenses are only the concession fee and rent of the 20 by 30 foot tent, as all other equipment has been loaned. They have a three-burner gas stove, two small electric plates for coffee and a heater that keeps boiling water on hand at all times for various purposes, with the dishes and silverware from their church kitchen.

As this is a "sit down" booth, customers usually make their order sufficient to take the place of a regular meal. Hot grilled sandwiches with potato chips are most popular. Someone has the job of peeling potatoes throughout the day and fillings for the sandwiches are made by two groups of women at their homes.

"Forty pies a day" were scheduled to be made each day of the fair, but on Thursday it took 44, so production has been stepped up today. Two women have the sole job of picking up these pies. Several cakes and several dozen tarts are also on the daily list.

A "hot dog" remains the traditional symbol of the Canadian fall fair, and St. Gile's tent supplies that too—real hot ones. They have all sorts of soft drinks, and hot chocolate, hot coffee and hot tea—and "believe me it is hot" said a customer sipping the refreshing brew.

Mrs. Lionel Monk has been the general convener, and a constant worker at the booth. Group president Mrs. William Clark was convener of the pies, Mrs. Jack Easton convener of the sandwiches and Mrs. Gregg Wilson convener of the cakes.

Others on the committee in charge are Mrs. Bert Mortlock, Mrs. Gerald Rose, Mrs. John Robertson, Mrs. Leo Herr, Mrs. Arnold Smith, Mrs. Edgar Stevenson, Mrs. Alex. Thompson, Mrs. Clayton Hodson and Mrs. J. McCuaig.

All other members of the group have co-operated fully and up to 15 are working at busy times. Their husbands too are giving all assistance they can in this venture.

"We need the money so badly we felt we had to make the effort" explained Mrs. Monk. Though the concession was spoken for in July, the group has been scattered throughout the holiday season, and her organization work got underway only a week before the fair opening.

ST. JOHN THE BAPTIST SCHOOL

First fall meeting of St. John the Baptist Parent-Teacher Association was held Thursday evening in the school with Mrs. Wm. Larocque presiding. It was well attended.

She stated that many suitable books and pamphlets, as well as the Christopher recordings, are available to assist units in their study. "The formation of a library for the school would be a very note-worthy project for the year", suggested Mrs. O'Brien.

The speaker was thanked by Mr. Boulter.

Sister M. Garnier introduced new teachers on the staff.

An enjoyable social hour followed and lunch was served by Mrs. Doug. Scanlon, Mrs. Ed Curtin, Mrs. John Hodgson and social committee members.

Slim Silhouette, Closely Moulded, Beltless Torso Line In Winter Style

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—The new elegance of winter fashion is one of line and figure. The slim silhouette with the closely-moulded, beltless, torso line was used by many designers in a collection presented by a large department store fashion show here.

In late day and evening dresses the fuller skirt is included, sometimes its fullness flowing toward the back, at others using the cupola line, a shaped skirt that stands away from the body.

Daytime skirt length in this collection was generally mixed at one inch above mid-calf. It is balanced with an economy of line through the body of the dress, and a bulky look about the shoulders, achieved with wing push-up sleeves the filled-in neckline and the high-rising frame neckline.

Growing in popularity for fall and mild winter wear is the box-jacket suit, sometimes with a fur-lined jacket. One import in the new important camel color had its stand-away neckline filled in with nutria. The costume, slim woollen dress with matching box jacket, was exemplified in a fine midnight blue worsted wool crepe with satin-banded midriff, the hip-length straight column jacket lined with white mink, designed by Anthony Blotta of New York.

WOOL POPULAR

Wool dresses for late day wear are mentioned in almost every report from Paris. One European sheath dress of black wool was tiered and fringed, while a Ben Reig of New York design was intricately tucked. Richness and elegance are achieved with material and color, lace and iridescence. A Mainbocher model of red chantilly lace with covered shoulders and short sleeves, flowed down into a full skirt over a five-toned lame underskirt.

Hats for daytime wear are in furry textures, deeper in the crown and frequently with a backward flow. Fabrics are rich in color and material with added jewelled motifs. A Laddie Northridge of New York pill-box in gold metallic with turquoise beads had a collar to match. From Mr. John of New York was a small black evening cap with jewels, while the veil had little clusters of burnt ostrich feathers; each could be worn separately.

Important evening gowns have a gleam about them, whether of material, color or ornamentation. As in daytime dresses, the slim silhouette gown is present, sometimes with a backflowing line.

A black peau de londre sheath by Oleg Cassini of New York had faded pink and aquamarine bands on the bodice flowing down into a swan-like back movement. Norman Hartnell's champagne net was given an almost wool-like appearance, hand-tucked and bugle-beaded with high-rising waistline and full skirt. An olive green chiffon by Jean Desses was treated with classical column drapery and a flower stole in matching tones.

There is no "overnight cure" for irregularity

But there is a simple, natural answer to the common problem of irregularity due to lack of bulk

There are men and women (perhaps you're one of them) who won't let "nature take its course". THEY TRY TO SUBSTITUTE UNNATURAL "FORCING ACTION" FOR THE NATURAL REGULARITY WHICH SENSIBLE DAILY HABITS AND SUFFICIENT BULK IN THE DIET COULD PROBABLY MAINTAIN.

Many fall into the habit of using laxatives in a way laxative makers never intended. They take "big doses" willy-nilly without even reading the directions on the label.

Naturally, such overdosing—with products intended only for overnight relief of a temporary stoppage—exerts upon the delicate digestive system an unnatural strain.

There's nothing wrong, of course, with taking laxatives occasionally. If you feel you have to take a laxative, just be sure you take it wisely—in an accurate, recommended dose.

BUT THERE IS A WAY TO AVOID TAKING DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES AND TO PLACE YOUR DEPENDENCE ON NATURE, IF LACK OF BULK IN THE DIET IS YOUR TROUBLE.

In many natural foods—such as certain vegetables, fruits, and grains—nature grows abundant natural bulk which normally and naturally aids the rhythmic process of elimination.

In no other natural food is natural bulk so ideally found as in the outer layers of the whole wheat kernel, known generally as bran.

Bran is nature's "laxative food instead of a medicine". When properly processed and shredded, whole wheat bran yields smooth natural bulk that the digestive system can handle in a natural way.

The Kellogg Company has made whole wheat bran into a delicious breakfast cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran.

KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN PERFORMS NATURALLY WHAT DRUG-TYPE LAXATIVES DO CHEMICALLY. IT HELPS CLEAR THE INTESTINES OF WASTE IN A NATURAL WAY. IT PROVIDES SOFT NATURAL BULK FOR EASY NATURAL ACTION.

There is no stomach upset, no churning, no after-effect except the feeling of satisfaction and fulfillment that comes with natural, normal elimination.

To obtain lasting relief, of course, Kellogg's All-Bran must be eaten regularly. You can have it for breakfast every morning secure in the knowledge that it isn't habit-forming.

More than one million servings of Kellogg's All-Bran are consumed each day. This popularity of itself is proof that this natural laxative cereal lives up to what we say about it.

But even better proof comes from thousands of satisfied All-Bran users. They write of their own free will to tell us what natural relief they receive from eating Kellogg's All-Bran daily and drinking plenty of water.

EAT KELLOGG'S ALL-BRAN EVERY MORNING FOR BREAKFAST FOR 10 DAYS. THEN, IF YOU'RE NOT COMPLETELY SATISFIED, SEND THE EMPTY CARTON TO THE KELLOGG COMPANY, LONDON, ONTARIO—AND GET DOUBLE YOUR MONEY BACK.

Remember—Kellogg's All-Bran has helped millions. Why not you?

Readers' Friday Column By Mary Moore

QUESTION: Some time ago you had a recipe for non-separating French Dressing, but I noticed the amount of vinegar or lemon juice was missing. Would you please send me the recipe with error corrected?—(Miss) R. W.

ANSWER: Sorry something was missing. I am glad to reprint this.

NON-SEPARATING FRENCH DRESSING

In a cold bowl mix together ½ cup cold vinegar or lemon juice, 1 tablespoon paprika, 1½ teaspoons salt, sliced small clove garlic or ¼ teaspoon garlic salt, 3 tablespoons sugar and 1 whole cold egg. Mix these well with rotary or electric beater, then slowly, very slowly, begin to add 1 cup cold salad oil, beating constantly. Stop pouring the oil if an excess collects on top of mixture and beat until all of this is incorporated, then start pouring slowly again, until all is used. Store this covered in refrigerator.

QUESTION (Continued from H. Marjorie C.): Sometime publish recipe for large tapioca — the "fish-eye" variety.

ANSWER: I'll give you my favorite tapioca recipe.

APPLE TAPIOCA

Three-quarters cup pearl tapioca, 2½ cups boiling water, ½ teaspoon salt, 6 or 7 sour apples, whole cloves, ½ cup sugar or honey. Soak the tapioca several hours in enough cold water to cover. Drain. Add the boiling water and salt and cook in double boiler until almost transparent. Wipe core and pare apples and stick 3 cloves in each (or pare and slice apples). Place them in buttered baking dish and fill their centres with sugar or honey. Pour the tapioca over apples and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until apples are soft. Serve with Brown Sugar Hard Sauce: Cream one-third cup butter until very airy, then gradually begin to add 1 cup sugar—for apple tapioca light brown is best, but fruit, icing sugar may be used. When all sugar is beaten in add one-third teaspoon lemon juice and two-thirds teaspoon vanilla. Pile on shallow serving dish, score top with fork, sprinkle with freshly grated nutmeg and chill. This is popular when made into rosettes through pastry tube, and chilled on plate before serving.

QUESTION: I would like help from you about canning corn . . . I had a recipe for kernel corn where you boil corn for 5 minutes and instead of scraping it off the cob I just give a little twist with my palm and the kernels fall off. That way there is no much . . . Mrs. S. De G.

ANSWER: The reason you do not see the recipe for canned corn in this column is because I am reluctant to print it because I am afraid readers will use the method without the equipment. You must have a pressure cooker to can corn. The factories do not preblanch corn any more. They cut it from the cob—using only the very best young corn—with a machine called a whole-grain cutter, which extracts a minimum of the milk. The grains are then washed in cold water. They are then filled into the cans without "packing" too hard and to each 20-oz. tin a weak boiling hot brine is used to fill to within ¼-inch of top. In home canning 1 teaspoon salt per tin is sufficient or 2 teaspoons to each quart jar. Jars or cans should be "exhausted"—that is they are stood in boiling water to heat contents of can to 170 or 180 deg. Fahr. for a "closing" temperature. Then they are sealed and processed in pressure cooker at 240 deg. Fahr. for 50 minutes for 20-oz. tins or pint jars. Chill cans 35 minutes in cold running water. If glass jars are used (which is not recommended) let out steam with care, and do not tighten seal on jar. The jars and contents will shrink to form a vacuum.

QUESTION: . . . I made pickles from one of your recipes that did not take long brining—they were done in a couple of days . . . . could you send it? Edith A.

ANSWER: I hope this is the one, Edith. Thanks for your complimentary letter.

SWEET CUCUMBER PICKLE
(Short Process)

Three and one-quarter quarts small cucumbers, 6 cups sugar, 1 cup salt, 1 cup water, 1¼ quarts vinegar, 2 tablespoons mixed whole spices. Wash and dry cucumbers. Dissolve salt in 3¼ quarts cold water and pour over cucumbers and let stand 24 hours and drain. Puncture each cucumber 3 times with a needle. Combine half of the sugar, to all of the vinegar, water and spices. Simmer 30 minutes, add cucumbers and simmer 10 minutes. Let stand in crock 2 days. Drain off liquid and pack pickles in hot sterile jars. Add remaining sugar to liquid and boil 5 minutes. Pour over pickles and seal.

DOROTHY DIX

Dating At College Sensible If Young Couple Separated

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a college sophomore, very fond of a boy who's a senior in a college several hundred miles away. We've known each other for more than a year. We've corresponded regularly, and dated when we've both been home on weekends. When we were preparing to return to college this fall, he said he thought we had both been missing a great deal by not dating young people at our respective schools. His attitude towards me hasn't changed, but I was quite shocked by this opinion. I guess I had about accepted for granted the fact that we were going steady. I don't know whether to agree with this dictum, or to make a clean break.

DOLLY G.

HIS SENSIBLE DECISION

ANSWER: You must bear in mind, Dolly, the fact that romance isn't always a clear-cut, straight road from first meeting to the altar. Much more likely, there will be many detours along the way. Very often, it's better that way, since one learns a great deal from the side trips. Your young man has been very fair by telling you his intentions, rather than dating without telling you. He's right in his contention, too—that it would be better for both of you to date others while at school. Life at a co-ed college is much more pleasant if you engage in its social, as well as scholastic life. Furthermore, there are many activities which necessitate social contact with the opposite sex.

I think you should appreciate the sensible and practical aspects of the boy's decision. Do as he suggests: dating others while at school, continue writing to him, and seeing him while at home. You have lots of time to reach a serious stage; a postponement through the remainder of your college course will do no harm.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have a son, Billy, who is two, and my brother has a boy of three. The children seem to like each other, but certain things have happened between them to cause tension among us parents. If one child has a toy and doesn't want to share it, bad feeling is created between the two families. My brother's child is particularly possessive and won't let my son touch anything of his.

MRS. G. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Just who are the children in your respective families. The adults are acting more childishly than the babies. In a few years I hope you have sense enough to realize how foolish you are now.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What can be done with a boy who definitely will not attend church with me. I've asked him time and time again, but he always has excuses.

B. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There's no way to force a young man to attend church, and in this case it would be inadvisable. Voluntary attendance is what you want; setting a example for him is the best way to accomplish that wish.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Wives Of Duck Hunters Fall Into 2 Classes

By JOAN BARBERIS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Now the duck-hunting season approaches again many wives face the annual problem of what to do with the proud hunter's bag. Many women seem to feel that shooting ducks must be more fun than cooking them.

Wives of duck hunters fall into two groups—those who will clean the birds inside and out, and those who won't.

The woman who doesn't balk at a duck with head and feathers intact doesn't need any advice. For those who do object, one suggestion is that they reach a firm understanding with the hunter of the family that the hunt isn't over until the bird is thoroughly cleaned.

ROAST DUCK TASTY

Anyway, here's a suggested recipe for roast duck with savoury cherry stuffing, from the Poultry Products Institute of Canada:

Make sure the body cavity is clean, remove any pin feathers and singe to remove down. Wash duck thoroughly, allowing a stream of cold water to run through it. Dry and rub inside of cavity with salt. Fill with cherry stuffing (see recipe below), sew or skewer to close openings.

Roast uncovered in an open pan in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees F., allowing 30 minutes a pound. Baste occasionally with a spoonful of the syrup from the cherries.

Duck is cooked when the meat is tender and no red tinge shows in the juice when the meat is pricked with a skewer or fork. If meat thermometer is used, place it in the thickest muscle being sure it does not rest on bone. Thermometer should read 190 degrees F. when duck is cooked.

Stuffing: 1 tablespoon butter; 2 tablespoons chopped onion; 4 cups fine, soft bread crumbs; one half teaspoon salt; 1 teaspoon poultry seasoning; one half teaspoon celery salt; dash of pepper and one 15-ounce can pitted cherries.

Melt butter in pan, add onion and cook slowly for five minutes. Add onion and melted butter to crumbs and seasonings and combine thoroughly. Drain syrup from cherries and reserve for basting the duck during roasting. Add drained cherries to crumb mixture and mix together lightly so that fruit is not crushed. Yields enough for a 4-lb. duck.

Sub Sunk At Genoa Still Troublesome

GENOA, Italy (AP)—An old submarine caused almost as much trouble in this harbor today as it ever caused in wartime.

A worker entered the decommissioned boat to find if everything was in order and was overcome by gas fumes. Another worker entered. He was overcome, too. A third man went aboard — same result.

Fellow workers found the three unconscious and called the fire department.

En route, the fire truck collided with a crowded bus. Three firemen were critically injured and 10 bus passengers suffered bruises.

Another fire truck got to the submarine safely. The three workers were rushed to hospital, revived, and pronounced out of danger.

Committed For Trial In Double Slaying

LONDON (Reuters) — Alfred Charles Whiteway, 22, was committed for trial here today for the murders of two teen-aged girls at a beauty spot on the banks of the Thames river last May.

The prosecution alleges that the girls, Barbara Songhurst, 16, and Christine Reed, 18, were brutally attacked and sexually assaulted on the towpath before their bodies were flung into the river.

CGE Apparatus

the company more flexibility and speed up decisions by making division managers responsible for decisions.

The most recent re-arrangement carries the plan another step along the line.

Two of the new department managers are well known to the CGE workers and the citizens of Peterborough.

Mr. Girven, probably best known because he was at one time assistant plant manager and plant manager in Peterborough, joined the company about 30 years ago.

BEGAN AS APPRENTICE

He started as a materials laboratory technician apprentice. He switched to the Wire and Cable Department, and in 1938 became engineer in charge of wire and cable. In 1941 he was chosen assistant to Mr. McRae who was then works manager and then succeeded Mr. McRae in 1951. Under the 1952 re-organization he took another step along to become manager of manufacturing for the whole apparatus division.

Mr. Shields was born in Belfast, Ireland, and came to Canada in 1904. After his education in the west and a hitch with the Royal Flying Corps in the First World War, he joined the CGE in 1924. As a University of Toronto graduate, he began in test and then moved to industrial controls engineering and then induction motors engineering.

He was later appointed general foreman of the winding and insulating department (now armature) until 1940. He became production manager for the Peterborough works. In 1952 he assumed the management of the switchgear division.

Mr. Willis began his CGE career in the test in Peterborough; continued here in industrial control engineering and then was moved to motor section of the apparatus sales department. After serving in a variety of positions he became a specialist on the sales force of industrial control at Davenport in 1931.

In 1945 he was named assistant manager of the industrial division and soon manager. In 1952 he became manager of product planning for the marketing department of the apparatus division. His latest appointment brings him back to Peterborough.

Vet Fined $50 On Cruelty Count

OTTAWA (CP) — Veterinarian Robert C. Radmore was fined $50 and costs with an alternative of 10 days in jail when he was convicted in magistrate's court Thursday on a charge of cruelty to animals. He exhibited a pet skunk and a kitten in the same display window.

The Ottawa Humane Society laid the charge after receiving complaints that the skunk was confined in the window and a dead kitten was found in its cage. Mr. Radmore said he will appeal the conviction.

Wayne Robinson, conservation officer, testified as an expert on skunks and said they are members of the weasel family and are vicious. Dr. Radmore said the dead kitten had been put in the window without his knowledge or consent.

Warren Payne contributed a piano duet and Mrs. Carmen Payne a reading. Mrs. H. C. Wolfraim gave talk on the 23rd Psalm. The Rev. H. C. Wolfraim spoke briefly.

The president, Mrs. P. H. Darling, presided for the business period and welcomed three new members. The visiting committee announced that 20 calls had been made during the summer months.

The association planned a rummage sale in the basement on September 26 and voted in favor of a canvass replacing the turkey dinner.

YoungPeople 19 To Get Vote In B.C.

Premier Believes Teen-Agers Capable of Voting

VICTORIA (CP)—In a surprise move, the British Columbia Social Credit government has announced that it will lower the voting age requirements in provincial elections.

In making the announcement during the throne speech debate Friday, Premier Bennett said only that the franchise would be extended to "young people," but it was learned after the session that the age limit would be reduced from 21 to 19.

"Young people coming out of schools and colleges . . . with 12 or 13 years of schooling" are responsible enough to vote, the premier said.

He elaborated little on this statement, saying only that many persons who "should be entitled to vote" were not allowed to cast ballots. Young persons could judge the problems of the country as well as present voters, he said.

UNFORTUNATE CURB

Mr. Bennett said a person reaching the age of 21 this summer after the government had just been elected for four years would not be able to vote until he or she was 25.

The speech from the throne Tuesday revealed that the government planned to make extensive changes in the province's Elections Act, but it was thought that these would deal mainly with the controversial alternative voting system.

The premier left no doubt that this system, which allows voters to mark their first, second, third, etc., choices on the ballots, would be scrapped under the planned amendments.

The alternative voting system was introduced by the coalition

On off days the boys go fishing and from the look (above) of club director Ken Kingston (left) and team manager Pop Curtin they are pleased. Curtin battled half an hour with the 32-pounder spring salmon and Kingston caught the five-pounder and the baby. Victoria sportsmen have supplied the boats and equipment.

Big Shakeup In Regime At Peiping

Report 15 Changes In Administration, No Reason Given

HONG KONG —(Reuters)—Communist China has removed two leading members of the government in a major shakeup involving 15 administrative changes, Peiping radio announced tonight.

The broadcast said Finance Minister Po I Po and Li Wei Han, secretary-general of the government administrative council, have both been replaced.

The broadcast said Po I Po had been replaced by Ten Hsiao Ping, who has been appointed both minister and vice-chairman of the finance and economic affairs committee.

Hsi Chung Hsun had been appointed to replace Lie Wei Han.

Reasons for the shakeup were not mentioned in the announcement.

Held Against Will Men Charge, 400 Others Kept

PANMUNJOM (AP)—Twelve South Koreans and a Turk were freed today by the Reds and some of the RoKs said they were held against their will, a flat contradiction of the Red story that all 13 originally had refused to return home. There were no Americans in the group of 13, but the South Koreans said they had seen some Americans at Kaesong, in a special camp for about 320 Allied prisoners the Reds say refuse to go home. The Reds said about 20 of these are non-Koreans, but have not said if any were American.

U.S. officers had expected some Americans might be included in today's delivery after the Reds said Friday they would release "10 or more" PoWs, without revealing the nationalities.

FIRST DELIVERY

This was the first delivery of Allied prisoners whom the Reds say have changed their minds and decided to return home. The Allies have sent back 15 Red PoWs they say reversed their earlier stand against repatriation to their Red homelands.

The regular exchange of prisoners willing to return home ended two weeks ago. Those remaining in captivity are reported to have wanted to stay.

However, Lee Choo Bok, a 20-year-old South Korean labor corps worker who was captured in August, 1951, while working for the U.S. 3rd Division said most prisoners still held by the Reds are forcibly detained.

He said some voluntarily elected to stay in Communist North Korea. Lee said these included men who co-operated with the Reds in prison camp.

Lee said the Communists held him against his wishes—while telling the Allies he refused repatriation—because he was "unco-operative."

44 Tribesmen Sentenced To Die

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Forty-four Kikuyu tribesmen were sentenced to death and four others to prison terms by this British colony's Supreme Court Friday for the Mau Mau's Lari massacre.

The 48 were charged specifically with killing a year-old child who was among 150 natives, loyal to the Britons, hacked and burned to death by the anti-white Mau Mau secret society in a night raid on the village of Lari March 26. A 49th defendant was acquitted.

Similar trials have been going on since last May. The verdicts, delivered while the court was sitting at the town of Githunguri, increased the total convicted to 105.

"I do not know whether to look for a human motive in this crime or to describe it as an animal urge," the presiding judge said. "The raiders were possessed of a spirit of atavistic reversion to Kikuyu tribal custom. The whole massacre was just a blank, uninteresting barbarism."

Most of the victims of the mass killing, the greatest single terroristic outburst since the nationalist-minded society launched a campaign in 1952 to drive white men from Kenya, were Kikuyu home guardsmen or government officials and their families.

Gordon Graydon Peel MP Dies In Toronto

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon Graydon, 56, died early today and with his passing the Progressive Conservative party lost its foreign affairs expert and one of its veteran members of Parliament.

The popular lawyer from Brampton had represented Peel in the Commons since 1935. He retained the seat handily in the Aug. 10 federal election.

The body is at a funeral home in Brampton, about 20 miles northwest of Toronto. The funeral is to be held at 3 p.m. Monday at Grace United Church in Brampton.

Mr. Graydon was a Canadian delegate to the United Nations founding conference at San Francisco in 1945 and alternate delegate to the first assembly of the United Nations in London the next year, but he retained something of the rural background gained from a boyhood in a farming district that endeared him to his constituents in Peel.

He was born Dec. 7, 1896, on a dairy farm at Snelgrove, a few miles north of Brampton, received his elementary education at a rural public school in Chinguacousy Township, at Brampton High School and at the University of Toronto. He completed his law training at Osgoode Hall here and was called to the Ontario bar in 1924.

KEPT IN TOUCH

He set up law practice in Brampton, county town for one of Ontario's richest cattle-raising and mixed farming areas. While solving the legal problems of the farmers and taking part in the community life of the region, he came to know practically everyone in Peel. After he entered Parliament through a doorbell-ringing campaign, he continued to keep in close touch with his constituents.

An eloquent speaker, good mixer and clever parliamentary strategist, he rose swiftly in the esteem of his party. He served as chief opposition leader under party chieftain John Bracken from 1942 until Mr. Bracken entered the Commons in 1945. Admirers mentioned Mr. Graydon as a prospect to be Mr. Bracken's successor, but in 1948 the choice fell upon George Drew, then premier of Ontario.

BULLETIN

VICTORIA (Staff)—Bob Thorpe, coach of Peterborough Timbermen, was suspended as a player for the 4th game of the Mann Cup series Monday night.

Thorpe was notified of the decision by the Canadian Lacrosse Association at noon Pacific Time today.

The suspension came as a surprise for Thorpe who commented: "I haven't the slightest idea of what it's for."

Bob (Pup) Curtin, club manager, was thrown out of the game and out of the arena for pushing referee Gord Folka in the third period of last night's game, has had his automatic suspension lifted.

Gene Dopp, secretary of the CLA, who sent the telegram two blocks from the Empress Hotel to the Strathcona Hotel was unavailable for comment on Thorpe's suspension.

CCL Against Appeasement

MONTREAL (CP)—Untold numbers of workers behind the Iron Curtain languish in slave labor camps, says the Canadian Congress of Labor in accusing Russia of fomenting world tensions and forcing the free world to rearm. Standing "firmly against appeasement in any form," the 370,000-member labor body Friday fully endorsed "the right of all democratic countries to strengthen their means of defence." But while the free world must maintain military strength, it should lose no opportunity to negotiate a world peace, with "Canada taking the initiative in exploring every possibility of such a settlement," the congress said.

This foreign policy, adopted over the objections of minority left-elements, highlighted a week's work in which delegates heard reports of growing unemployment in some industries.

RESIST DEMANDS

It resisted demands that it begin a drive for a 35-hour work week, with no cut in take-home pay, and instead adopted a policy to seek progressive reductions in the work week without naming any specific figure.

In the same way, a demand by some delegates that the congress launch a campaign for a new firm round of wage boosts was rejected in favor of asking affiliates to consider "the desirability" of a general wage increase to offset a trend "towards an unbalanced economy."

This cautious approach to the future followed a warning from convention delegates that the increasing number of jobless in the agricultural implements industry

Jailed 7 Years Boat Rider Tells Reporters

MARSEILLE, France (Reuters) Michael Patrick O'Brien, who has been riding boats for a year for lack of a country willing to give him a home, today revealed his "life story."

He admitted to a reporter he served seven years in United States jails as Stephen Stanley Raggan. He said that is his real name.

O'Brien sailed the Hong Kong-Macao ferryboat for 10 months, trying to get permission to land. Now he is shuttling between Marseille and Genoa, Italy, still trying to set foot ashore.

Last January, the U. S. justice department said his real name was Raggan and that he had served time for assault, robbery and burglary convictions. Today "O'Brien" said "I did a seven-year sentence in America" under the name Raggan.

BORN IN HUNGARY

The justice department said he was born in Budapest, Hungary, in 1905. Raggan today said, "I ain't sure where I was born—Hungary, I guess."

"I can hardly remember my folks . . . We lived in Washington; we were so poor I had to steal to eat."

Raggan, heavily tattooed and sifting as a prisoner in the brig of the French liner Bretagne, added that Washington police arrested him in 1931.

"Later I made a getaway and beat it quick on a freighter for China. Ended up in Shanghai—Without papers, he saidd. The justice department said he was ordered deported, but dodged out beforehand.

Raggan attained international notice for riding the Far Eastern ferryboat for 10 months ending last July. At last a Brazilian consul gave him a visa and he went hopefully to Rio de Janeiro where, he said, a wife was waiting for him.

The Brazilian government did not honor the visa. Back he went to France.

Rescue Three Plane Survivors

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. coast guard said today three survivors of a missing B-29 weather reconnaissance plane had been picked up from life rafts in the Atlantic about 200 miles east of Savannah, Ga.

Coast guard air-sea rescue headquarters said one man was taken aboard the SS Nassau and two others were rescued by the freighter Seatrain Georgia.

Rescue operations were still under way.

The ships sped to the area after three life rafts were spotted by searching coast guard and air force planes near the last reported position of the weather reconnaissance plane.

In addition to several commercial ships and coast guard boats in the area, more than 10 planes had been engaged in the search since dawn.

Hunter AFB said the 16 aboard the plane presumably were air force men.

Falls Tourist Badly Injured

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Belva Blahl, 58, of Lanard, Ill., was critically injured today when a car jumped a curb and pinned her against a railing while she was viewing the Horseshoe falls. Police said the woman's legs were torn off.

Mildred Josiak of Chicago suffered severe bruises and cuts when brushed by the car.

Police identified the driver of the car as A. E. Lang of El Paso.

Police said no charges will be laid against Lang. They quoted him as saying he had intended to step on the brake as he pulled into an angle parking space but his foot slipped and hit the accelerator.

Awarded $2,680 In Car Deal

TORONTO (CP)—Gordon Yearsley of Baltimore, Ont., was awarded $2,680 by a jury Friday in an action against a Toronto used car dealer.

Yearsley sought $5,000 compensation for the embarrassment he suffered when arrested for fraud on information police got from Fred Switzer, owner of Northview Motors, a used car dealership in northeast Toronto. Yearsley was freed on the charge after spending a night in jail.

Switzer filed a complaint against Yearsley when the latter stopped payment on a $50 cheque he issued as down payment on a 1937 car he bought from Northview Motors in September, 1952.

Yearsley testified Friday he had agreed to buy the car, a 1937 model, for $250, and made the $50 down payment. The car broke down several times on the way to his home 40 miles east of Oshawa, so he telephoned Switzer and said he didn't want it. He also called his bank and stopped payment on the cheque.

Switzer sent a mechanic to Baltimore to repair the car, but Yearsley told him he was no longer interested. After Switzer laid the fraud charge, Yearsley was brought to Toronto to stand trial.

Arrest 5th Ringleader In Betting Scandal

LONDON (Reuters) —Scotland Yard today arrested a fifth alleged ringleader in a "horse-switch" betting scandal at Bath track last July.

The arrested man, 57-year-old Robert Dill, appeared in court today with four men—two racehorse owners and two bookies—rounded up last night by detectives. The five were freed on $4,200 bail apiece for a further hearing Oct. 7.

They were charged with conspiracy to defraud the Bath track in the greatest attempted betting coup of modern turf history.

Half an hour before the first race, a telephone line used by off-track bookmakers was cut. This prevented odds on Francasal, the 10-to-1 supposed winner, from shortening to even money.

Bath track officials have refused to pay off more than $600,000 worth of bets on Francasal on grounds the horse's fleeter stable mate, Santa Armaro, identical in appearance, was the real winner.

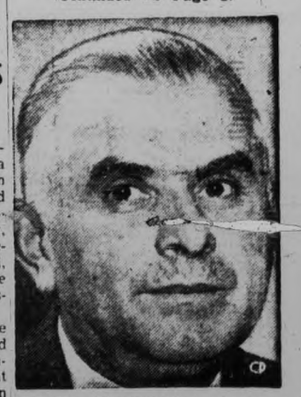
Soviet Russia Demands Quick UN Debate

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Soviet Russia today demanded a quick United Nations debate on Red China's request for a "round table" Korea peace conference.

A note from Andrei Vishinsky, chief Soviet delegate, to UN Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold, asked that the question be made a special item on the UN assembly agenda.

He based his demand on a note issued Thursday night which called the attention of UN member nations to Red China's request that Russia, India, Burma, Pakistan and Indonesia be named to sit in the Korean peace conference as "neutrals."

The United States and its Korean allies oppose this.



DIES IN HOSPITAL—Gordon Graydon, MP for Peel, and the Progressive Conservative party's foreign affairs expert, died Friday night.

Duke Has Set Second Record

DUNSFOLD, England (Reuters) Squadron Leader Nevi'e Duke set his second world air record in 12 days when he reached 709.1 miles an hour in his jet plane over a 100-kilometre closed circuit here today.

The crack British test pilot flew the same red Hawker Hunter jet in which he set a world straight-course speed record of 727.6 m.p.h. Sept. 7.

After flashing around the 62-mile triangular course today, Duke made a triumphant victory roll over the airport here.

"I think I've made it," he said as he climbed out of his plane, grinning broadly.

The old record for the 100-kilometre closed circuit was 690.118 m.p.h. set by Brig.-Gen. J. S. Holtoner of the U. S. Air Force in a Sabre jet Sept. 1.

600 Drivers End Walkout

TORONTO (CP)—The 600 employees of Silverwood Dairies, one of the city's largest, were back at work today after a two-day strike. The company said it had plenty of milk for its 70,000 customers.

Settlement of the walkout which began Wednesday midnight was announced Friday. Details of the agreement were not disclosed.

The drivers, members of the Retail and Wholesale Union (CIO), accepted a settlement reached by company and union officials with Louis Fine, Ontario's chief conciliation officer, as conciliator.

Drivers are to be out on their routes today. Company officials said enough milk will be brought into the city overnight to serve the firm's 70,000 customers.

Port Hope Man Has His 106th Birthday

PORT HOPE (CP) — William F. Walker will be 106 Sunday. It will take three birthday cakes to hold all the candles.

Mr. Walker says he's slowed up a bit lately and won't be able to greet his guests at the door but he's going to supervise the show from his bed directly off the living room.

Although he suffered two strokes recently, his hearing is excellent and his eyesight is "not too bad."

Graydon's Death Great Loss To Nation—St. Laurent

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent today said Parliament and the whole nation has suffered a "grievous loss" in the death early today of Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Peel.

In a statement, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"Mr. Graydon was not only successful at the polls in his own riding from the first occasion on which he stood for election, but he always took an active part in national political affairs. He has been chairman of the Progressive Conservative Association of Canada, his party's House leader and in the late stages of the last war, leader of the Opposition.

"Mr. Graydon's particular interest was foreign affairs. He was present at the conference at San Francisco which drafted the charter of the United Nations. On several occasions, he was a parliamentary adviser to the Canadian delegation to the United Nations General Assembly. In parliament, he was his party's spokesman on external affairs and, ever since its establishment, was vice-chairman of the standing parliamentary committee on external affairs.

"His advice whether given in public, in speeches in the House of commons or in private talk was sensible, sound and moderate. Naturally there were frequent occasions on which his political opponents did not agree with him. But his convictions did not prevent him from having the warmest and friendliest relations with everyone regardless of party.

"Gordon Graydon had a host of friends and ever since I have been in public life, I have considered it a privilege to be counted amongst them.

"To Mrs. Graydon and her daughters goes out our deepest expression of sympathy."

Suffering Food Poisoning

Entire Lacrosse Team Taken To Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—The entire New Westminster Salmonac junior lacrosse team was taken to hospital in ambulances and police cruisers early this morning suffering from food poisoning.

Eight of the 20, including manager Al Browning, were still in hospital for observation. It is expected they will be released later today.

Many of the players became violently ill during the third game of the Canadian final with Long Branch Monarchs Friday night. The Salmonacs lost 16-6 and now lead the best-of-five series 2-1.

Ontario Lacrosse Association officials postponed tonight's scheduled fourth game until Monday but it is likely the Salmonacs will ask for a further postponement.

Coach Ken. McDonald, who was not affected, said by the time the game was over, every member had become ill. The police and St. Joseph's Hospital were called. All were taken to hospital and had their stomachs pumped out. Eight, including the manager, are still in hospital for observation.

"Doctors have told me they probably will be out today and after 48 hours' rest will be ready to play Monday night," said McDonald. However, he will ask for a postponement if they are not ready by then.

McDonald wasn't sure where the food poisoning originated.

"The team ate at about 3:30 p. m. Friday and rested awhile just before game time. They looked all right then, but started to wilt as soon as they got worked up in the game.

"Their meals were eaten at two separate restaurants around our quarters in southwest Toronto. I don't know what they ate."

The coach said the players "passed out right and left when they returned from the game." He added:

"A couple of boys were so sick they dropped unconscious to the floor."

The defeat Friday night was the first Salmonacs suffered this season in regular and playoff games.

Polish Delegate To UN Asks Asylum In U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Dr. Marek Koriwicz, Polish diplomat who got his first look at America last Monday, is seeking political asylum here after a pre-dawn flight from his country's Communist-dominated United Nations delegation. "Life in Poland was a nightmare," Korowicz said Friday. The graying, 50-year-old Korowicz left Polish UN headquarters Wednesday. Pretending to be working on a document in the early morning hours, he eluded armed guards and slipped out of his mid-town hotel to telephone an old friend from the Polish underground.

Safe in the friend's home, Korowicz, first alternate of the Polish delegation to the UN, wrote identical letters to Mrs. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, president of the UN General Assembly, and Dag Hammarskjold, UN secretary general.

SENDS TWO LETTERS

The letters said:

"I have the honor of bringing to your attention that I formally renounce my membership in the Polish delegation to the assembly of the United Nations.

"The members of the delegation, headed by Messrs. Naszkowski and Katz-Suchy, do not in any way represent either the Polish nation or the people. It is thus absolutely impossible for me to collaborate with these representatives—not of my beloved country but solely of the Soviet regime in Poland."

Korowicz, author of some 20 books and former professor of international law at the University of Krakow, said he is unmarried and has only distant relatives in Poland.

Last Thursday Korowicz sat as grim-faced as the rest of his delegation listening to a speech by State Secretary Dulles before the UN General Assembly.

Friday, Korowicz said he was deeply moved by Dulles' speech.

Later, Dulles smiled when asked for comment by reporters, then quoted from his UN speech:

"Our hope is that the Soviet Communist leaders, before it is too late, will recognize that love of God, love of country and sense of human dignity always survive. Repressive measures inevitably lead to resentment and bitterness and perhaps something more."

CONSIDER EACH CASE

Dulles added that American policy was in favor of granting asylum, but that each case must be considered separately and in conformity with the law.

Korowicz is the fourth Polish national to flee to the West in the last six months. Two Polish jet fliers and a Polish interpreter in Korea previously sought and gained asylum in the United States.

Korowicz made his formal appeal for asylum in the offices of Radio Free Europe, operated privately by the National Committee for a Free Europe, Inc.

He told how his chance came on Sept. 1, when he was "suddenly" asked to go to New York with the Polish UN delegation.

He was surprised at the offer, he said, because he was a non-party man, but added: "I told them I'd be delighted to go."

Korowicz said he never even told his closest friends of his idea.

What the Polish people needed, he said, was "the true news from abroad" to combat Communist propaganda.

Police, Neighbors Guard Threatened Man

ROCKLAND, Ont. (CP)—Police and neighbors are standing nightly guard at the farm home of John Mathurin, whose life has been threatened in three notes during the last week.

The first note appeared Sept. 10, the night after Mr. Mathurin had shot at chicken thieves in his farmyard.

Written in French, the note said: "You have shot at my son and wounded him. You will die on midnight Sunday." It was signed with a dagger drawn in red.

Last Sunday night police waited in vain at the Mathurin farm for the person who wrote the note. A few minutes after police left, at 2 a.m., another note was found pinned to the door.

Provincial police constable Fred Goddard, stationed at this village 90 miles east of Ottawa, said the chances of the threat being a joke are "remote."

Forced To Dig Holes For 18 Hours Day

MERRITTON, Ont. (CP)—Sgt. Alan Wedsworth, 25, of Buffalo, N. Y., for 19 months a prisoner-of-war in North Korea, said Friday night he spent almost five months in a camp where prisoners were forced to dig and fill holes for 16 and 18 hours a day.

Wedsworth is a member of the United States Air Force who grew up in this community near St. Catharines. He said treatment improved when he was transferred to another camp.

"They tried to indoctrinate us with communism but gave up after a week when no one responded," he said.

He was in Merritton Friday night attending a dinner and reception in his honor. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. George Wedsworth of Buffalo.

$80,000 Smuggled Evidence At Trial

LONDON (AP)—A witness at the trial of Roman Catholic priests, nuns and church dignitaries in Warsaw has testified that more than $80,000 was smuggled to Communist Poland from the United States to finance anti-state activities, radio Warsaw said today.

Chief defendant is Bishop Czeslaw Kaczmarek, who pleaded guilty and then made long statements to the court in the usual procedure of Communist-run trials.

The witness who told of smuggling funds from the United States in a double-bottomed trunk was identified by the Warsaw radio only as Mieczka.

Must Eat Words

LONDON (AP)—Former prime minister Clement Attlee has been known to boast that his wife is the best chauffeur in Britain—she took him on thousands of miles of campaign tours without scratching a fender. Today Mrs. Attlee had a summons to appear in court Friday on charges of obstructing traffic and parking on a dark street without turning on the headlights.

Trieste Crisis False Alarm, Just Cold War

LONDON—It can now be seen that the "crisis" which recently blew up over Trieste was a false alarm, due to some extent to misunderstanding. What has happened is that the Yugoslavs have shifted their diplomatic position. The Italians mistook the preliminary publicity of this for a sign of impending forcible Yugoslav action, and replied with military and naval movements, Sebastian Haffner writes in the Montreal Star.

On the whole, this looks like hypersensitivity on their part: it was never very likely that the Yugoslavs would put themselves in the position of aggressors vis-a-vis their British and American friends by attempting a forcible coup in the British-American-occupied Zone A of the Trieste Free Territory; or that they would make such a pointless move as the formal annexation of Zone B, which would add nothing to their existing advantages of possession and would merely weaken their diplomatic position by putting them in the wrong. As it is, the situation, after much excitement and recrimination, remains as it was before, except that the chances of an Italian-Yugoslav agreement on Trieste, which were never very bright, are now more remote than ever.

BARGAINING BID

On the Yugoslav side Marshal Tito's new proposals for a Trieste settlement — internationalization of the city, and accession of the whole hinterland, in Zone A as well as Zone B, to Yugolslavia—do not, of course, stand any chance of being accepted by any Italian government; nor can he hope to find positive suport for them from the Western Powers. They must be in the first place considered as a bargaining bid, meant to balance the increased Italian insistence on a return of the whole Free Territory to Italy, in conformity with the three-power declaration of March, 1948. This Italian stiffening is in turn caused by the fall of Signor de Gasperi; a relatively strong Italian government, like that of de Gasperi between 1948 and 1953, could consider some compromise on Trieste as a possibility, although any compromise would have been unpopular in Italy; the unstable governments which are the result of the Italian elections of this year cannot afford to override Italian popular feelings, and have to maintain maximum demands even though there is at present no way of realizing them.

There are, of course, no last words in diplomacy, and hope need not be lost that at some future date and in a different political or diplomatic constellation, both Italy and Yugoslavia might return towards an exploration of possible compromises. But for the moment the position is that the countries confront one another with irreconcilable demands, and that in the meantime the situation stays as it is — although it satisfies nobody.

Marshal Tito's new attitude may, however, also be addressed to the Western Powers and may be meant to warn them not to expect Yugoslav compliance if, at some time, they should be inclined to return to the original terms of their agreement with Russia — the internationalization of the whole Free Territory, Zone A and Zone B, under some neutral administrator. By staking out a claim for the hinterland of Zone A as well as for Zone B in case of any renewed move for the internationalization of Trieste, Marshal Tito seems to be implying that he could certainly never be persuaded to hand over Zone B to international control. Similarly the Italians, by moving troops at the slightest suspicion and reminding the Western Powers, with some bitterness, of their 1948 declaration, seem to imply that they would never put up with any reduction of the status they have re-acquired in Trieste in the last year or so.

Such speculations may seem far-fetched, and at the moment there is certainly no indication that the Western Powers are thinking of their 1946 agreement with Russia. But in the present fluid international situation, positions on such local issues might change if at any time there should be a loosening of the deadlock of the overall great-Power conflict in Europe. Trieste is not only an apple of discord between Italy and Yugoslavia. Since 1945 it has also been a token in the great dispute between Russia and the West, and any changes in the climate of great-Power relations might not inconceivably affect it again.

KEY ISSUE

What made Trieste a key issue in the Big Four negotiations of 1945-46 was that the frontier between Italy and Yugoslavia was at that time a frontier between the Western and Russian worlds. If Trieste went to Italy, it would become a part of the Western world: if it went to Yugoslavia, it would disappear behind the Iron Curtain. But at that time the cold war had not begun in earnest, and the West and Russia still hoped for some agreed settlement on the terms of co-existence; the result of this, in the case of Trieste, was the agreement making Trieste a neutral, internationally - administered, Free Territory.

Then the cold war began, and its local result in Trieste was the failure to agree on an administrator, the de facto partition between the British-American-occupied Zone A and the Yugoslav-occupied Zone B; and the Western shift of diplomatic position embodied in the March, 1948, declaration that the three Western Powers favored the return of the whole territory to Italy.

Then came the breach between Tito and Stalin, and the gradual rapprochement between Yugoslavia and the West. Trieste ceased to be a frontier between the "two worlds"; it became a local problem inside the Western world, and the Western Powers, while bound by their 1948 declaration, became ready, and indeed anxious to accept and underwrite any local settlement freely agreed between Italy and Yugoslavia. But no such agreed settlement materialized.

That is the present position. But what if, as the result of progress at a Big-Four conference on Germany and Austria, the end of the cold war in Europe should come into sight, and a European settlement between Russia and the West should again become as much of a practical possibility as ie seemed to be in 1946? Might not such a development (and it is not unthinkable) rather tend to revive the 1946 agreement on Trieste, which in any case has never been legally abrogated?

CONDITIONS CHANGE

The Russians have for years tried to couple the Trieste question with the Austrian Treaty question. Could this be read as a hint that they might be ready to move out of Central Europe—Austria, Hungary, Romania—provided the British and Americans also moved out of the parts of Central Europe they occupy—Trieste as well as Austria? In a generally changed climate of great-power relations, such a bargain might make sense; and agreement on a neutral administrator for the Trieste Free Territorise might not prove as impossible as it was in 1947 and 1948.

All this is highly speculative. Nothing like it may ever happen. But in the present unpredictable state of great-Power relations, it is a speculation that may not sound utterly far-fetched to the countries with the most immediate interests in Trieste. Marshal Tito's new demands and Italy's military and naval demonstrations are ostensibly, and primarily, moves in the Italo-Yugoslav tug-of-war for Trieste; but incidentally, and whether intentionally, they are also reminders to the Western Powers that Trieste has become a highly-inflamed spot, which the great Powers might not find it easy to dispose of among themselves without risking serious local trouble.

Conductor Sure Mrs. MacLean Not On Train

VIENNA (AP) — An Austrian railroad conductor said today he was "100 per cent certain" that Mrs. Donald Maclean did not catch an overnight train from Zurich to Vienna when she disappeared last week in Switzerland.

Oskar Rybiczka, a conductor on the Paris-Vienna express in which it was believed Mrs. Maclean might have travelled to Austria, told reporters: "I have seen pictures of Mrs. Maclean and I am positive she was not in the sleeping car.

"I remember pretty much everybody who was on that train and I am certain that there was no lady or couple with three children," he added.

Rybiczka said only a Swiss couple and two women boarded the sleeping car at Zurich and took compartments.

Representatives of the Austrian interior ministry, meanwhile, reported efforts to establish definitely whether Mrs. Maclean actually entered Austria had been "utterly without result."

ESTIMATE 400 PoWS

Another South Korean, Kim Sang Bong, 25, estimated the number of Allied prisoners at Kaesong at about 400.

The freed Turkish soldier, Cpl. Kepebir Cavit of Ismir, was taken to the U.S. 121st Evacuation Hospital at Seoul by helicopter. He was not immediately available to reporters. At Panmunjom he told an American officer who spoke Turkish he was "sick."

Cavit looked bewildered when he stepped from the helicopter at the hospital, dressed in blue Communist prison camp garb.

The South Koreans were taken to the 36th Republic of Korea Army Hospital in Seoul, where they were interviewed briefly by Associated Press correspondent Bill Shinn.

TAKEN TO ISLAND

They are scheduled to be taken to Yoncho island off the southern tip of the Korean peninsula where they will be screened ideologically.

Some 7,000 South Korean soldiers who returned in Operation Big Switch are on Yoncho island now. They are to begin returning to their homes Monday.

The 13 South Koreans who returned today were in good health.

The Communists indicated, meanwhile, that they would turn over the "unwilling" Allied prisoners to Indian custodial troops in the demilitarized zone next Thursday.

Earlier, the Reds were expected to turn over the Allied PoWs Sunday. There was no immediate explanation for the change.

Iron Lung Fails

San Diego, Calif. (AP)—A boy polio patient died in an iron lung when it failed here Friday. Prentys Freels was found dead in the idle respirator by a nurse at county hospital, who had left him for a few minutes. Dr. A. F. Crumley, assistant hospital superintendent, said failure of an electrical contact apparently caused the lung to stop.

Police Join Forces To Catch 2 Suspects

SIMCOE (CP)—Police of Tillsonburg and Norfolk county communities joined forces with the Simcoe town detachment early today to catch two youths believed to have smashed a downtown sporting goods store window and stolen four revolvers.

Simcoe police said they are holding Kenneth Boam, 17, and Jim Forbes, 18, both of Tillsonburg and charges of breaking and entering will be laid later.

The two youths were arrested in a Tillsonburg diner, 14 miles from here, less than an hour after the break-in was reported.

Prefer Soap To Premiums

LITTLE CURRENT, Ont. (CP)—Hundreds of country women from the Sudbury-Sault Ste. Marie and Capreol-Manitoulin districts want soap instead of premiums, they decided at the two-day annual women's institute convention at nearby Mindemoya, Manitoulin island.

At the close of the convention Friday they came out strongly for: Non-rustable buttons and buckles on women's garments; removal of the luxury tax from toothpaste and an extension of family allowances to the age of 18 for children who continue school to that age.

About 300 official delegates and members attended. They represented 68 Women's Institute branches with a total membership of more than 10,000 country women.

The resolution on soap read: "Whereas soap is a necessity, and a large part of its cost and the cost of detergents goes toward prizes, premiums and coupons instead of the needed soap, be it resolved that soap companies should discontinue the practice and give us value in soap for our money."

Spanish Freighter Limps Into Port

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Spanish freighter Marte limped into port here Friday night ending a three-day battle to check the rise of water in her hold.

The 3,744-ton, 53-year-old vessel developed a bad leak in her hull about 560 miles southeast of here Tuesday. Her crew and a band of sailors from the United States coast guard cutter Bareteria worked round-the-clock pumping out the hold.

The Bareteria escorted her to St. John's.

The Marte was loaded with grain going from Montreal to Spain.

Rome Printers Stage 24-Hour Strike

ROME (AP)—A 24-hour printers' strike today stopped publication of all Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning newspapers in Italy.

The strike was called by Italy's three top labor organizations when negotiations with editors and publishers broke down. The unions have been asking papers to sign a new country-wide contract with printers which would increase overtime, night and holiday pay rates.

WOULD INCREASE CONTRIBUTION

In the foreign field, the congress, observing that poverty is a menace to peace, called on the government to quadrupie Canada's $25,000,000-a-year Colombo Plan contribution to $100,000,000 a year.

It urged also that Canada boost its grant to the United Nations technical assistance program for under-developed countries to $5,000,000 a year from $800,000.

The Colombo Plan is the Commonwealth five-year, $6,000,000,000 program to build up the economic strength of Southeast Asia as a bulwark against Communist aggression.

and Mr. Graydon became the new leader's right hand man on foreign affairs.

Previously, Mr. Graydon was president of the Young Conservative Association from 1934 to 1936, national chairman of the Progressive Conservative party in 1941 and 1942, and national president in 1943.

VICE-CHAIRMAN

In 1945 he was elected vice-chairman of the House external affairs committee, a tribute to his ability as an opposition member, and he still held the position at dissolution of the House before the August election.

Mr. Graydon became ill during the election campaign. Despite warnings from friends and associates, he continued with his speaking engagements, touring the province as one of the party's six main speakers.

Just a week after the election, in which his party met defeat but he himself was returned for a fifth consecutive term, he suffered a gastric condition and was admitted to hospital. An operation was performed Aug. 26 and he remained in hospital.

Surviving besides his widow, the former Daisy Giffen of Stayner whom he married in 1927, are three daughters, Carol Louise, Leone Elizabeth and Patricia Anne, and his mother, Mrs. William Graydon, 82.

People Paid $5 For Smiling

TORONTO (CP) — Wages for smiling is one example of the unique social work of the Loyal Order of the Moose in Ontario, Ontario grand governor R. Dean Wills said today.

Mr. Wills was speaking at the opening sessions of the order's three-day convention here Friday night. He described a self-sufficient $20,000,000 community for the aged, 14 miles south of Jacksonville, Fla., where every man had a cottage of his own. If persons were able to pursue a trade they were paid for it, Mr. Wills said. If they couldn't work, each one was paid $5 a week to smile.

It was announced that the Barrie Moose Lodge, which sponsors the Barrie Air Cadets, was the winner this year of the civic award for community service.

The council accepted the resignation of Oscar Dunford, township road superintendent, and instructed the clerk, Bruce Johnston, to advertise for applications by October 1 for the appointment of a new superintendent.

Council is applying to the Ontario Department of Highways for a grant on the township road expenditure of $4,320 to August 31. Subsidy eventually amounts to 50 per cent.

EXTEND FRANCHISE

During the throne speech debate, it has come under fire from CCF Opposition leader Arnold Webster and Liberal leader Arthur Laing.

Another amendment will extend the franchise to most of the Doukhobor population of the province. This is one of the steps the government is taking in its efforts to control the troublesome Sons of Freedom sect.

Only two other provinces in the Dominion have lowered the voting age requirements below 21 in provincial elections. The age limit in Alberta is 19 and in Saskatchewan 18.

All other provinces and the Dominion government demand a minimum voting age of 21 except Newfoundland where the limit is 25.

Waterfront Damage

GENOA, Italy (AP)—Genoa's entire waterfront residential section was under two or more feet of water today after two days of torrential rains. Homes were flooded, bridges were washed away, shops reported hundreds of thousands of dollars' damage, and scores of parked automobiles were submerged. Dockside housewives, holding bottles of scarce drinking water, were carried to their homes on the shoulders of firemen.

A compulsory retirement age of 65, with voluntary retirement at 55, be enforced.

A cost-of-living bonus be added to the pension payment made to retired employees.

A pensioner's widow receive 75 per cent of the superannuation benefits instead of the present 50 per cent.

With the celebrations marking the first anniversary of the revolution now over, more than a hunderd journalists from two dozen countries are busy sorting out the tangle of new and vivid impressions. Generally, these are favorable. Newcomers expecting little have been agreeably surprised by the regime. Those already friendly have not been disappointed but they maintain some reservations and anxieties for the future, writes the Cairo correspondent of The Manchester Guardian Weekly.

RICH PERSONALITY

General Neguib, the president, has made a universally good impression on his guests. His popularity among his own people is obvfously immense and enhanced by his unassuming accessibility. To strangers he is frank, courteous, and sympathetic without being pliable. Close observers think that he has grown in stature during his year of office. The only danger is that he may allow himself to be worked to death. Today his personality is still the regime's greatest asset. He is probably better placed as president than premier.

Of the rest, Colonel Nasser has struck all who have talked closely with him as a man of high intelligence and energy. The finance minister has not been seen by visitors but particulars of his budget currently published have impressed them and shown him as an Egyptian Cripps in his firm grasp, courage and resource. A group of civilian ministers met the correspondents and answered questions on social policy for two hours. Specially able and attractive among them are the minister of education (Ismail el Kabbany) and social affairs (Abbas Ammar) whose approach compares with the younger ministers of the British labor government in 1945.

As minister of national guidance, Major Salah Salem seems a little out of his depth though he is undoubtedly a skilful propagandist in territory familiar to him. There is some surprise and resentment that internal censorship is still maintained.

LAND REFORM ACT

The biggest thing in the year's work, as General Neguib himself said, is certainly the Land Reform Act. This was designed as much to break the political power of the great landowners as also to improve the conditions of the smallholders. Having established the principle the government has moved cautiously. The law was passed in November, 1952. The first title deeds were handed to the new owners during my visit and these transfers covered only 15,000 acres out of half a million acres, which it is proposed to redistribute over a five-year period. It is intended to transfer another 50,000 by November. This caution is perhaps a good sign, indicating that the real difficulties were overlooked in drafting and are now being appreciated.

Little fresh light was shed during my visit on Anglo-Egyptian relations. But popular expectations are kept high by official pronouncements. A point of interest in the second Cairo parade, mainly composed of cadets, women's services, and scouts, was the first public appearance of the volunteer commandos. These volunteers receive a fortnight's training in guerrilla fighting, then return to their own employment on promising to respond if called for. There seemed to be about 4,000 in the parade. Although individually uimpressive to the military eye, they received considerable applause.

FULL PROGRAM

The hosts made assiduous efforts to give the visitors an enjoyable time and a good idea of Cairo and Alexandria. The program was sometimes over-ambitious, leaving little time to write or sleep. A few odd episodes occurred. One evening a theatre was put up adjoining the Great Pyramid where, on a temporary stage, we saw a cabaret performance ending with a skit on Farouk and his ancestors. This hardly seemed in accord with dignity of Egypt's greatest monument. Why not appropriately the "Magic Flute"? Another odd episode was the introduction at the end of a long session explaining land reform of selected Southern Sudanese denouncing the villainies of British rule in the Sudan especially the alleged refusal to let Dinkas wear clothes.

In spite of a variety of interests, the most lasting impression that correspondents will carry home is that of the charm and courtesy of General Neguib himself, whether reviewing parades or sitting informally at table with visitors crowding about him. His pipe is on the way to becoming as famous as Stalin's or Baldwin's.

29 Doukhobors Wait Sentence

By BRUCE LEVETT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Twenty-nine Sons of Freedom, four of them women, today began a weekend of waiting in Oakalla prison farm.

Convicted during the last two days of appearing in the nude in public, they will be the first of the 144 accused to be sentenced.

Chief prosecutor John Farris has asked the maximum penalty of three years, but Magistrate Graham Ladner, though angered by what he says is a Doukhobor "conspiracy of silence," indicated he would show mercy wherever possible when he said: "I would rather dismiss a charge than convict."

All the Sons of Freedom so far tried have refused to speak in the suburban Burnaby courtroom. The Doukhobors, who claim they have broken none of "God's laws" which they say govern them, refuse to recognize the trial.

This attitude, Magistrate Ladner has termed "an obvious conspiracy."

The delay in sentencing, prosecutor Farris said, was to allow the prisoners' documents to be brought here from Nelson, B.C., in the west Kootenay valley.

Mr. Farris said prison records could have an effect on severity of sentence.

Only four of the 29 Sons so far convicted have been women.

All were assisted into court by RCMP constables and a young police matron and within minutes, each was found guilty.

The word mausoleum originated with the monument erected by Queen Artemisia in 353 B.C. in memory of her husband, King Mausolas, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

SULTAN ATTACKED—As Sidi Mohammed Ben Arafa, newly-enthroned Sultan of Morocco, rides to the Touranga Mosque at Rabat for Friday Moslem prayers, he moves into the grim shadow of assassination.

THE ATTACKER FIGHTS—The would-be assassin of Sultan Sidi Mohammed Ben Arafa holds his knife high over a Moroccan guard who intercepted his murder plan. Identified as Alla Ben Abdullah, he had succeeded in ramming his car into the Sultan's horse. The Sultan was thrown to the ground (his parasol lies at right), and police jumped into the scene. The man in the black suit (foreground) is an off-duty policeman.

THE PLAN'S END—The would-be assassin of the newly-enthroned Moroccan Sultan lies dead on the ground at the feet of an off-duty policeman who ended the death plan with a pistol shot. The attacker had fought with a guard, lost his knife, and was thrown to the ground.

Likes To Judge Such Swine As Seen At Exhibition

Initial fears that swine showings would be denied exhibitions and fall fairs this year as a result of widespread hog cholera were overcome and James Leonard, of Stroud, Ontario, was on hand Friday to judge the local entries at the Peterborough Exhibition.

Speaking to the gathered herders and spectators, Mr. Leonard complimented entrants on their swine and said the junior classes were "exceptionally" good. Sows, he declared, entered in the local show were "a credit to any man."

NO BERKSHIRES

Because of a shortage of space in the swine building, there were no entries accepted in the Berkshire classes. In the Tamworth and Yorkshire groups, however, Judge Leonard said there was a "real champion" in each breed.

"The class of pigs I saw today are the kind I like to judge," he concluded.

Esmond Storey and Sons, of Omemee, were top winners in the Tamworth grouping while C. L. McNeill took the Yorkshire honors. Keith Van Camp won first prize in the bacon class.

Indian Youth Serves With Canadian Navy

VANCOUVER (CP) — It's his name and he's proud of it, but it does make things a little difficult for William Alvin Big Canoe.

Big Canoe is the surname of the 23-year-old Indian from Ontario's Lake Simcoe district, who is ranked as an ordinary seaman in Her Majesty's Royal Canadian Navy.

OS. Big Canoe was a member of the HMCS Naden honor guard at the Pacific National Exhibition just closed here. He is the son of a Chippewa chief, and he joined the navy just after his 21st birthday.

William isn't kicking but he says such wisecracks as "go and paddle somewhere else" or "don't get your feet wet" became a little wearing after more than a year in the navy. "It was a great name to my forefathers and I'm proud of it too," he explained.

Bill is the descendant of a Sioux child who was captured by the Chippewas after a battle. The child always preferred to play with a canoe and later, when he grew to well over six feet, he received the name Big Canoe, which has been handed down ever since.

The chieftainship of the Kitchemou band might have gone to Bill if he had stayed with them. It has been in his family for three generations.

"My father moved away and became a carpenter in Sutton on the mainland soon after I was born," he said.

"It took me three years to make up my mind to leave. But I'm sure I did the right thing."

Dismiss Charge Against Driver

LINDSAY (ENS) — A careless driving charge against a Minden man, Irvin Kellett, was dismissed by Magistrate E. A. Gee on Friday, when Kellett told the court he had been forced off the Minden-Haliburton road by an oncoming car, causing damage of over $1,000 to his late-model car.

Kellett was charged after he had reported the accident to OPP Constable Alex Edwards on July 31.

According to the officer's evidence, Kellett's vehicle had left the road, travelled 43 feet along the shoulder, struck a rock formation, jumped through the air some 32 feet, landed on the highway, crossed it, and travelled another distance before coming to rest in the opposite ditch.

Kellett told the court another car had appeared at the crest of a hill, just as he was making a curve. He pulled over he said, then struck the rock, which tore out the front end on the right side, throwing the car completely out of control. He was thrown to the floor of the car.

The other car involved, said Kellett, did not stop.

Japanese Reds Oust No. 3 Leader

TOKYO (AP)—Japanese national police headquarters said today the Japan Communist party is getting rid of its No. 3 leader, Ritsu Ito.

Police said a Communist document entitled "Central Memorandum No. 6" was seized recently, and that it said Ito, a Red chieftain in the underground since 1951, was deprived of all his posts in the party.

Ito, one of the most militant reorganizers of the party after the Pacific war, was branded as "anti-Communist" in the document, police said.

Historic Spots

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — Dr. Ronald Longley, president of the Wolfville Historical Society, told a meeting here "no province in Canada is so rich in history as Nova Scotia and local historical societies must co-operate with national and provincial bodies to preserve historical sites."

Valuable Cow

BELMONT, Ont. (CP)—A pure-bred Holstein, Ourville Princess Phyllis, owned by E. L. Sweet, is credited with a world record for butterfat production in the junior three-year-old class. On twice-a-day milking she produced 22,785 pounds of milk with 1,101 pounds fat.

CABINET SECRETARY — Robert B. Bryce, 41, has been named Clerk of the Privy Council and secretary to the federal cabinet. He succeeds J. W. Pickersgill who resigned last June to become Secretary of State. Mr. Bryce also has been secretary of the treasury board.

College Placed Off Limits Now

MONMOUTH, Ill. (AP)—Monmouth College has been placed off limits as an educational institution for students of the Roman Catholic faith.

The ban, which became known Friday, was imposed by Bishop William E. Cousins of the Peoria diocese, who defined Monmouth as a denominational school.

There were 550 students registered there during the last academic year, of whom 28 were Catholics.

Monmouth College is governed by the United Presbyterian Church, which supplies $20,000 of an annual budget of some $700,000. The bulk of financial support for the school comes from endowment investments, student fees and alumni gifts.

In Peoria, the Rev. G. A. Carton, chancellor of the Peoria diocese, said Bishop Cousins' ban was based upon Monmouth's requirements that all students, including Catholics, attend daily chapel and weekly vesper services, and, before a degree may be obtained, have five hours of scholastic credit in a bible and religion course.

Probe Double Death

WINNIPEGOSIS, Man. (CP)—A verdict of murder and suicide was returned here by a coroner's jury which heard a story of violent death in Manitoba's lonely Waterhen river area. The jury was told Thursday that Mary Laquette fatally wounded her husband after a bitter quarrel and then took her own life. The couple's bodies were found Aug. 27 at their home near Skownan, 100 miles north of here.

Jailed Month For Theft Of Wrist Watch

LINDSAY (ENS)—A 19-year-old former Lindsay youth, Ralph Cooney, was sent to jail for a month Friday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of theft of a $40 wrist watch from an Ops township man.

Cooney was also charged with obtaining board and lodging from a Lindsay woman, Mrs. Pearl Copeland, by false pretences, but the case was dismissed for lack of evidence.

Cooney surrendered himself to New Toronto police a week ago when he "heard" he was wanted in Lindsay. He was alleged to have left town owing his former landlady, Mrs. Copeland, some $55. She had sworn out a warrant for his arrest.

He was returned to Lindsay and questioned on the theft of a watch from James Foster, of Lindsay. He confessed to this offence also.

LEFT SUDDENLY

Mrs. Copeland told the court Cooney had paid board only spasmodically during his four-month stay at her home. He left suddenly, she said, without paying her some $55 still owing. Crown Attorney Lorne Jordan, hearing this evidence, told Magistrate Gee he did not think there were grounds for a conviction for false pretences.

Cooney told the court he left town to seek his parents, whom he had not seen since he was 15.

A Federal-Provincial Committee

The problems of the relations between the ten Provinces and the Federal authority are as complex as they are diverse, yet no really steady rational approach has ever been made to them. The periodic Federal-Provincial conferences have been notable failures, largely because a ten-ring circus cannot deal with all the fauna of the territory of Canada; when the big tent is folded again the trails into the constitutional and fiscal woods are as myriad as ever. Unilateral action by the Federal Government (for instance, in the "tax-rental" agreements) has had good but not complete results. Premier Frost, one of the most consistently reasonable Premiers in his approach to the problems, last Wednesday made a sound suggestion, as remarkable for its simplicity as its common sense. He advocated establishing a continuing conference of provincial government officers and Federal representatives.

• • •

Premier Frost was speaking at Niagara Falls, to the Mines Ministers' Conference. The occasion was apt for his suggestion, for this Conference (of which he was one of the original members in 1944) is, in the field of mining, a successful prototype of the kind he advocates in the wider fiscal, economic and constitutional area. Here is the core of his recommendation:

"I have found that in the Federal-Provincial Conferences I have attended there is usually an agenda which is overwhelming in its extent, which involves thought and consideration which is quite impossible in the period of the Conference, with the result that usually a large part of the agenda has simply to be passed over and forgotten and the Conference has to deal as best it can with the most pressing problems.

"Federal-Provincial relations are a continuing thing and indeed a changing thing as many of us have seen. Perhaps the organization of such conferences should be on a more permanent basis somewhat after the fashion of the Mines Ministers with our technical committees constantly in collaboration and in consultation on particularly Canadian fiscal problems from a fact-finding standpoint, not in any way binding on any of the governments. By this method could come the understanding of the problems of all wth the information and technical advice which would enable better consideration and probably better results."

The suggestion is practical, sensible and, we think, likely to lead to the resolution of stresses and problems which a full-blown Federal-Provincial Conference cannot achieve, sailing into them as into a sea and not as a river with many streams and freshets.

"The work of such an Economic Committee need not be confined to questions of finance and tax sources although this should be an important phase of its work. Problems of economic stability, income and employment, capital investments, public borrowings, housing, conservation, departmental projects—in other words, these great and important subjects instead of being left to sporadic, 'ad hoc' meetings would be under constant study along the lines that I have mentioned and would provide the information and the background to enable Federal-Provincial conference on a government level to make decisions and agreements with every bit of information available to all."

The world is becoming smaller. So is Canada—its boundaries and affairs are drawing closer together. Constant co-operative consultation and action by all governments in the country is not only becoming more desirable; it is essential.

Did The War Retard Atomic Energy Development?

It is sometimes said that war has a beneficent value to society because it is the spur to invention. New processes, new products, new techniques and even new materials are reputedly occasioned by the stimulus of wartime needs, and are put to the work of fighting a war. After it, these new developments are converted to the uses of peace. For instance, heavier-than-air flying was advanced during the Great War; during the Second World War jets were manufactured and trans-ocean flights became commonplace. Iron-clad vessels were devised during the Crimean War; radar made its appearance during the Second World War. The most spectacular development of this century, atomic energy, came loudly to the public world in the last war. Is war then the handmaiden of invention and discovery? Without wars would civilization be still in the Dark Ages?

The proposition is suspect; the truth is that development of a process already begun may be more rapid because of wartime concentration on it for military application but the invention has usually been at hand. The possibility of practical use always speeds development from theory to fact, from laboratory to consumers. The stimulus to this development may be war; it is just as likely to be another force in society equally demanding—civilian consumers rather than military consumers. Television, for instance, was not advanced by war; it may indeed be said to have been retarded, for by 1936 television was well developed in Britain. It had to be put on a shelf until after the war, when the United States (among other countries) could turn the energy of designers and commerce to it .

A striking refutation of the thesis that war breeds invention and discovery is the atom bomb itself. It was on January 6th, 1939, just six months before the outbreak of the Second World War, that the first recognition of nuclear fission was announced in Berlin. On December 2nd, 1942, the first nuclear chain reaction to be initiated by man occurred on the campus of the University of Chicago. Thereafter came the A-bomb. Yet all this was the result of foundation work done by a large number of scientists working in many countries long before the war.

J. Robert Oppenheimer, an outstanding American physicist who is now director of the Institute for Advanced Study at Princeton declared as long ago as 1945: "It is true that we learned a lot during the war. But the things we learned were not very important. The real things were learned in 1890 and 1905 and 1920—in every year leading up to the war. And we took this tree with a lot of ripe fruit on it and shook it hard, and out came radar and atomic bombs."

Gordon Dean, chairman of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, commented a year and a half ago on Oppenheimer's remark and said: "This, of course, was a perfectly true statement. And it might be added that, since 1945, we have continued to shake this tree of accumulated knowledge with a good deal of vigour."

It is even possible that the war retarded the development of atomic physics by the concentration of scientists, laboratories and equipment on producing bombs. As a scientist at Chalk River has written in a survey of Canada's atomic energy project there: "The more spectacular nuclear reactions—atomic bombs and 'thermonuclear experiments'—have unfortunately overshadowed the remarkable and rapidly growing applications of atomic energy to industry, medicine and agriculture." The finest fruits of the tree of atomic knowledge are not the A-bomb developed during the war, but other applications being made since the war, in places like Chalk River.

Mr. Stevenson's View

The analytic value of Mr. Stevenson's brilliant "Report to the People" on his global tour outshines its significance as a statement of positive policy. His searching mind probed the condition of men and states, difficulties, hazards, hopes and problems. He has brought back with him to the United States a wise analysis of world conditions which reflects his own liberalism and statesmanlike tolerance. Excerpts from his Chicago address are printed elsewhere on this page.

Travel often sharpens one's view of one's own country because it sets it in a perspective background. So Mr. Stevenson has important things to say about American policy and foreign opinion on the United States. "The ideological conflict in the world doesn't mean much to the masses. Anti-Communist preaching wins few hearts. They want to know what we are for, not just what we are against." And: "There is an uneasy feeling that the United States is showing signs of economic nationalism, of a drift towards no trade and no aid. But our friends must trade to live, and not many are going to go hungry, I suspect, to prove to us how anti-Communist they are."

One could have hoped for clearer definition of what might be his foreign policy; analysis without synthesis leaves a void, particularly when the critique is so able. "We owe it to ourselves and our anxious, weary friends to expose Communist intentions if we can; to confer when we can; to reduce tensions and restore hope where we can" is not a stalwart pillar of policy. But Mr. Stevenson is not in any executive or elected position now and perhaps his best service in his present role is to criticise rather than to formulate policy. He clears much ground for future courses and his caution against the U.S. adopting in advance "arbitrary positions" that would limit room for negotiation and manoeuvre is salutary. Certainly no person can accuse Mr. Stevenson of being "hobbled by inflexibility."

NOTES AND COMMENT

"Time and space are at war,' 'asserts a relativist. It is to be hoped that space will win, since most people probably could get along without time more easily than they could do without somewhere to keep themselves.

A stylist says she has designed a dress that "will make hips disappear." For some figures, this will no doubt be something after the fashion of a hoop skirt, with the hoops beginning at the chin.

French Posters In Five Centuries

By JEAN GALLOTTI

THE EXHIBITION just opened in the Galerie Mansart at the National Library Paris, is not a sensational one, nor is it even an event of great artistic importance. Yet it is worthy of note because it informs us of the origins of an art usually considered quite modern and which indeed only reached its full development towards the end of the 19th century.

Under the heading, "Five Centuries of Illustrated French Posters", 200 documents, selected from the print room and from several public or private collections, provided us with a kind of condensation of what has been sometimes called, " The Museum of the Streets". Posters, of course, have been used in all ages. The history of their use goes back as far as that of the art of writing itself. The Greeks traced them on wooden tablets and the Romans on blank walls, but if we keep to the dictionary definition: "Written or printed pages posted in an obvious place to inform the public of something", we can then only consider them from the day when the custom developed of writing notices on parchment to be fixed to the walls or columns of buildings.

IN THE Middle Ages, however, this type of advertisement was largely supplanted by announcements preceded by the sound of trumpets, the only way to reach the unlettered public. It was not revived till the Renaissance, after the invention of printing made it possible to turn out many copies easily and cheaply, and with the consequent increase of the literary.

As you come in you will see one decorated with pictures, dated 1434, and still hand written; it is the most ancient known example. Nearby there is a display of several political and religious notices of the 16th century, with pictures. Sometimes the text itself was also engraved, as can be seen on a wooden printer's block in one of the glass cases.

THE 17th century is represented only by a few notices circulated by brotherhoods. In fact, it seems that Louis XIV restricted the use of posters. There is no doubt, however, that considerable use was made of them, at least for theatre advertisements, if we may believe Boileau who wrote—There is no entranceway whose pillars are not plastered up to the very cornices with bills. And La Fontaine—The Monkey with the leopard made his money at the fair, and each one stuck up his posters for himself. But possibly these were not illustrated.

From the 18th century onwards the selection of specimens preserved is much greater. And from the First Empire, plays, circus performances and balloon ascents were publicized by visual advertisements, many examples of which still remain. There is, for example, the poster extolling the feats of the famous deer Coco at the Franconi circus, and the even more sensational one of an aeronautical race. In this one we see a magnificent thoroughbred, mounted by some dauntless jockey, suspended in the void from the ropes of a balloon, its legs reaching out in space in a fantastic gallop.

SUCH ILLUSTRATIONS, it can be easily seen, catch the popular imagination, and both Napoleon and Louis XVIII were quick to see this fact and to use such means to political ends. They encouraged the posting of placards intended to inspire a horror of crime and to make the necessity of religion felt. Many of these remain to the present day. Most are printed in black on white. None are of any great size and they generally depict episodes from some contemporary criminal affair, with explanatory titles and text, showing the punishment of the guilty parties. Their interest value would be small but for the fact that they constitute, in matters of dress, furniture, interior and exterior architecture of houses of the period, a precious document of folk history whose very unsophistication is a guarantor of authenticity. Many others are simply kinds of advertisement boards bearing edifying moral precepts, set in frames ornamented with religious motifs.

✧ ✧ ✧

HOWEVER, about 1830, two publishers had the idea of what were called book-shop posters. They were still not very large sheets of paper, never bigger than double-elephant size, and struck off in black. Each one publicized a new work whose sale they wished to encourage (they had not yet come to the time for "launching a book on to the market") and each bore a picture. For thirty years they enjoyed a great vogue and many book lovers collected them. Balzac in his "Cousin Pons" depicts this hobby as one of the striking fads of the time. And, need it be said, today they are even more curiously sought after than before.

BUT THESE were all indoor posters. About 1840, the printer Rouchon, upon the request of a number of the big novelty shops, reproduced by stencils some huge coloured posters intended for posting in the streets, and had the good idea of asking painters to provide the originals. The type of the modern poster was created. It was not long before they were used not only by book-sellers but by other shopkeepers and merchants, and certain examples still remain famous, like Daumier's ""Charbon d'Ivry" and Champfleury's "Cats". Later the chemist Geraudel, by asking Cherot to draw him some advertisements, assured at the same time the ready sale of his pastilles, his own fortune and the fame of the young artist. Those who knew the end of last century all remember his name and the names of Toulouse-Lautrec, Mucha, Josso who, before the modern Cappiello, Paul Colin, etc., bent their talents and imagination to the very special requirements of this new art.

Truth demands that we should say here that they have not been accorded a very large part in this exhibition. But this is the National Library and the collections from the print room serve rather to retrace the origins of a movement than to show its later development.

$1,800,000 School for Nurses

(Calgary Albertan)

If it will cost $1,800,000 to build and inaugurate a school of nursing adequate for the needs of the Calgary General Hospital, then there is no alternative but to go ahead with it.

The General is on the way to becoming one of the largest and best hospitals in western Canada. But a hospital without enough nurses is like a school without enough teachers.

Proper administration calls for a certain ratio between students and graduates. In the complete General, that means there ought to be 300 students. But the present facilities can handle only 130.

THIS IS CUPID?

The World of Mr. Adlai Stevenson

(Excerpts From His Chicago Address, September 15)

(Ed. Note: Mr. Adlai Stevenson, Democratic candidate in the last U.S. presidential elections, has returned from a six-month tour around the world in the course of which he visited most of the critical areas and spoke with many leaders, including Syngman Rhee, the Emperor of Japan, Churchill, Queen Elizabeth and Pope Pius. On Tuesday he made his first major speech since his return.)

Opaque View

Asia is in revolution. Civilizations are very old, but political independence is very young. In the new states the economies are shaky, public administration is weak; they are hungry and poor, sensitive and proud. Nationalism is rampant. And the West, identified with the hated colonialism, is suspect.

Utterly preoccupied with their own overwhelming problems, they see little of the world conflict and don't appreciate America's global responsibilities. They know from experience a lot about feudalism, landlords, money lenders and oppressors, and the ideas of Karl Marx sound pretty good to many of them who know surprisingly little about the ugly realities of Communism in practice. Nor is there the perception one would expect of the menace of international communism as a new imperialism.

There is little tradition of democracy, but independence, won at long last, is a passion, which partly accounts in some quarters for their opaque view of Communist China where to many Asians it appears that the foreigners have been thrown out and the ignominy of centuries erased by Asians.

Record Of Neutrality

And in nations like India, Indonesia and Burma they don't accept the thesis that everyone has to choose sides, that they have to be for us or against us. Nor do I believe that we should press alliances on unwilling allies. After all, we had a long record of neutrality and non-involvement ourselves and the important thing is that such nations keep their independence and don't join the hostile coalition.

✧ ✧ ✧

Hobbled By Inflexibility

We are on the eve of great decisions in Asia. Korea is the first step. Will Red China yield at the conference table what it fought to prevent on the battlefield? It would seem to me unlikely if we adopt arbitrary positions in advance and our room for manoeuvre and negotiation is limited. I hope our leaders will not be prisoners of domestic political propaganda or hobbled by inflexibility.

Personally I am skeptical of Red China's intentions, but when we search for settlements we have to search, and when we negotiate we have to have something to negotiate with as well as for. Many of our friends think China wants peace and trade above all, as they themselves do. With so much at stake in Asia—the unification of Korea, Formosa, peace and security in Indo-China—it would seem to me that we owe it to ourselves as well as to our friends at least to find out if we can, what Communist China's ultimate intentions are.

Germany And France

In Europe, the recovery since the war is spectacular. In Western Germany, which doesn't have to support an Army, Navy and Air Force, it looks ironically as though the vanquished were better off than the victors. In France the progress has not kept pace; there is grave social unrest and political frustration which can be remedied and will be pray heaven, by heroic measures.

Among Frenchmen the conviction is growing that France can no longer maintain the defense effort in Europe, fight Communism in Indo-China with weapons and at home with larger social and economic expenditures, all at the same time. We should bear in mind that many Frenchmen vote Communist, not from conviction, but in protest. Hence, the increasing clamor to get out of Indo-China altogether and spend more on housing, industrial development and social betterment at home.

World Weary

But the world is weary; there is universal anxiety and impatience to ease the tensions, to explore every possibility of settlements by conference and negotiation. The Soviet will exploit discord in our ranks at every opportunity in order to divide and enfeeble the grand alliance of the free. There is uncertainty abroad about America and our objective. Is our objective to discover through negotiation ways to relax tensions, or is it intensification of the "cold war"; is it co-existence or extermination of Communist power?

Some of the misunderstandings may seem incredible to us, but it is well to try to see ourselves as others see us. Many think we are intemperate, inflexible and frightened. And people who have lived in insecurity for centuries don't understand how there can be insecurity and fear in America which has never been bombed or lived in thralldom.

McCarthy Inquisition

Also, like ourselves, proud nations resent any real or suspected interference in their domestic affairs. Nor can they reconcile our exhortations about the peril with deep cuts in our defense budget. And everywhere people think they recognize the dominant mood of America in what is called "McCarthyism", now a world-wide word. Inquisitions, purges, book-burning, repression and fear have obscured the bright vision of the land of the free and the home of the brave.

Saved The World

Some hostile feeling (towards the U.S.) is inevitable, particularly in occupied areas, but I found surprisingly little. Misgivings about our wisdom, unity and clear purpose, yes; but also there is widespread admiration and gratitude for our faith and fortitude, and prayerful hopes for the sobriety, good judgement and moral vitality of American leadership. At my journey's end Winston Churchill said to me with emotion: "America has saved the world".

Not Alone

But though the imminent danger has receded, this is no time to wobble or lower our guard, not with the hydrogen bomb and no certain evidence that the softer music from Moscow reflects any basic change in the Soviet design of world dominion. And it is no time for arrogance, petulance or inflexibility either.

If I am not mistaken, holding our allies together is going to be an ever harder job which will tax mightily our patience, resolve and statesmanship. For we can't "go it alone". Unilateralism is but the new face of isolationism and it spells disaster.

Hydrogen Bomb

And at this moment a new fact confers a grim and pressing urgency on the international situation—the hydrogen bomb. For some years efforts toward the limitation and control of armaments have been stalemated. Once more, I think we should fix our sights high again, as we did in 1947, and resume the initiative in re-exploring the possibility of disarmament. The alternative to safety through an effective plan for arms limitation is safety through more massive military spending and more frightening weapons development.

As it is, we seem now to be taking the initiative in unilateral disarmament. We've tried that before, and I am opposed to unilateralism in our disarmament policy as I am in our foreign policy.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Then was Jesus led up of the spirit into the wilderness to be tempted of the devil. And when he had fasted forty days and forty nights he was afterward an hungered. And when the tempter came to him, he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread. But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God.

Then the devil taketh him up into the holy city, and setteth him on a pinnacle of the temple, and saith unto him, If thou be the Son of God, cast thyself down for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee: and in their hands they shall bear thee up, lest at any time thou dash thy foot against a stone. Jesus said unto him, It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

Again, the devil taketh him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them: and saith unto him, All these things will I give thee if thou wilt fall down and worship me. Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan; for it is written. Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God and him only shalt thou serve. (Matt. 4: 1-10).

Thus saith the Lord the King of Israel, and his redeemer the Lord of hosts; I am the first, and I am the last, and beside me there is no God . . .

Fear ye not, neither be afraid: have not I told thee from that time, and have declared it? Ye are even my witnesses. Is there a God beside me? Yea, there is no God; I know not any. (Isa. 44: 6, 8.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And God said, Let there be light: and there was light. And God saw the light, that it was good; and God divided the light from the darkness. And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night. And the evening and the morning were the first day. (Gen. 1:3-5.)

In Case You Don't Know!

(Ottawa Journal)

It was reported solemnly to the scientists at the International Physiological Congress in Montreal that farm animals feel the heat. Their rate of breathing goes up when the temperature ascends, the delegates were told, and not only that, "cattle became hotter and breathed faster when exposed to strong light or high wind".

They could have learned as much, of course, by consulting any farmer, or anybody who owns a cat or dog. In fact it was even easier than that. They could have consulted any human, because we may assume that when the weather is hot for humans it is hot for non-humans too.

New Age Of Atomic-Electric Power Dawns

Last week at Chalk River, up the Ottawa, Canada's atomic scientists pulled back the curtain on their research and development of atomic energy for industrial, medical and commercial uses, and exploitation by private companies

The Chalk River scientists are in the van of atomic research for peacetime uses.

Some 75 selected engineers from leading Canadian firms attended the three-day conference, and heard and saw more secrets about atomic energy than have ever been disclosed to ordinary civilians, if the 75 industrial engineering experts who attended the symposium may be called "ordinary". Among them was J. L. McKeever, engineering manager of the Peterborough works of the Canadian General Electric company.

The C.G.E. maintains an alert interest in atomic development, especially in the conversion of atomic energy into industrial power, supplemental to or replacement for electrical energy. This interest is natural in a company whose main work is on machinery and equipment for the generation and use of electricity.

So far the Canadian General Electric Company is not actively in production on nuclear energy lines, but the Peterborough plant has a special interest in it, since in the Peterborough works are concentrated the Canadian company's manufacture of heaviest power generating equipment. The parent company, the General Electric of the U.S.A. has already embarked on atomic energy enterprises, as the photographs on this page show.

Here follow excerpts from an address recently given by Harry A. Winne, Vice-President—Engineering, of the General Electric Company of the U.S.A., dealing with the development of atomic-electric power. The Examiner feels the subject is of special interest to Peterborough readers.

MR. WINNE'S SPEECH

In an atomic-electric power plant, an atomic pile will generate heat due to the fission, or splitting of atoms of uranium or plutonium. This heat will produce steam, or hot gas, to operate a conventional steam or gas turbine driving an electric generator. It would be very nice if we could convert directly to electric power, the energy released from the splitting atoms, but there seems to be no known or probable way of doing this on a reasonable scale. The atomic pile must be regarded essentially as a steam generator which could replace the steam boiler, with practically no other change in the station.

A small experimental plant of this nature is already in operation. However, an atomic-electric power industry will not be economically sound until it can compete with conventional electric power without requiring a government-supported weapons market.

ATOMIC FUEL CHEAPER?

On the basis of cost per BTU content, atomic fuel may become significantly cheaper than conventional fuel. But of the average price a consumer pays for electric power today, only about 20% represents the cost of fuel, so even if the atomic fuel cost were zero there would be no hope of fulfilling the forecasts of some of the over-enthusiastic, early atomic prophets. The cost of boiler and fuel-handling equipment in a large modern plant amounts to from $70-$100 per electrical kilowatt capacity. Exact knowledge of costs for a corresponding atomic pile are not public, but Dr. Donald Loughridge of AEC says that a fair figure for the land type of plant—as opposed to the submarine plant—might be from $500-$600 per kilowatt.

I firmly believe we shall build atomic-electric power plants which can compete economically with coal or gas-fired plants. But this, I think, is going to take a long time, time probably measured in decades rather than years.

Is there a significant amount of atomic fuel available? Yes! Presuming the use of both U-238 and U-235, the energy in economically obtainable uranium is at least fifteen times that available in the presently known oil gas and usable coal reserves of the world.

Consequently, nuclear fuel may well prove a very welcome addition to our energy reserves, and may become the bridge necessary to support our civilization in making its transition from the use of energy from combustible fuels to the employment of that last resource, energy from the sun. The energy content of one pound of nuclear fuel is equal to that of about three million pounds of coal.

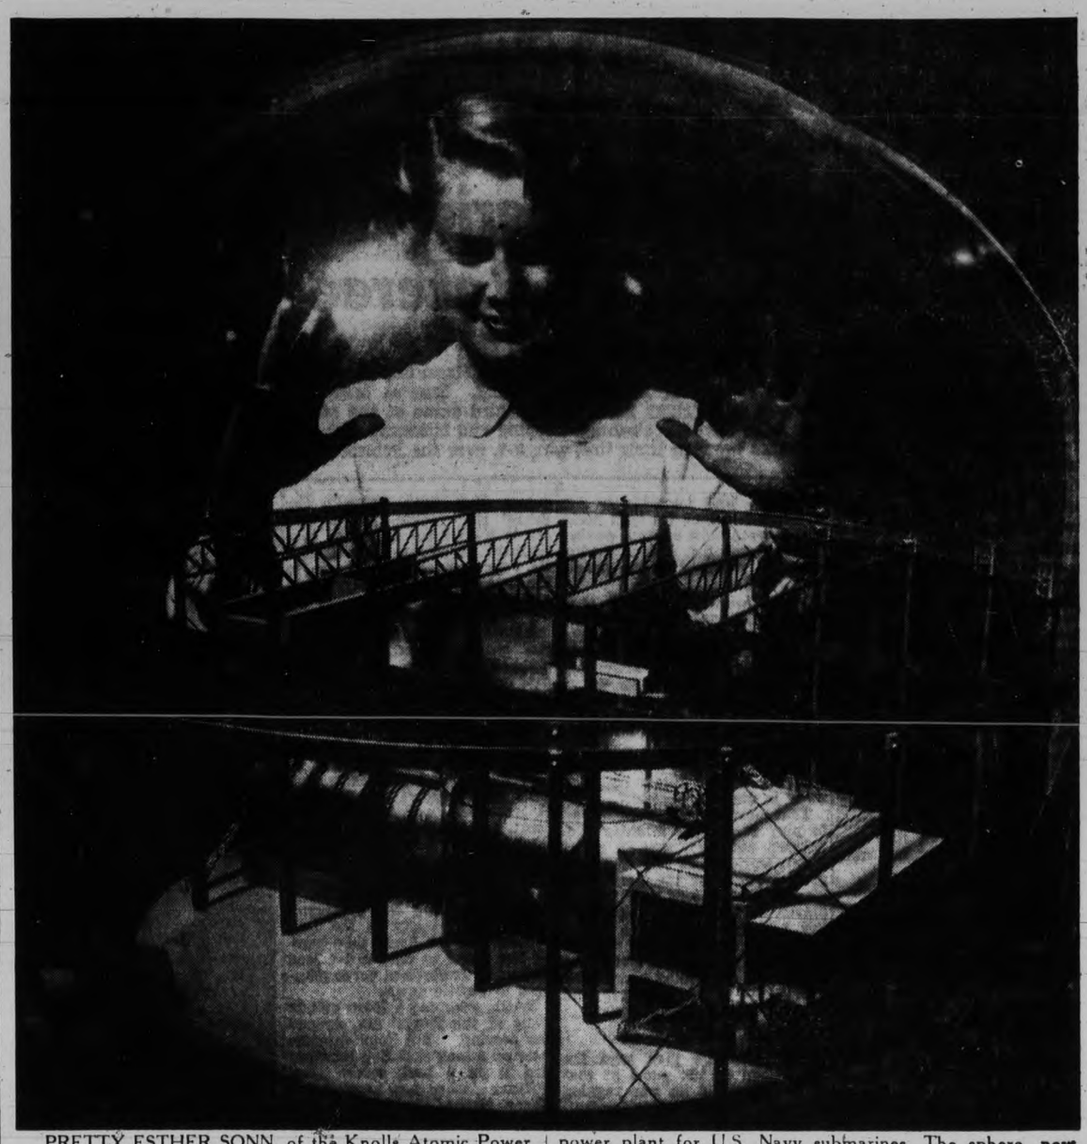
IN SUBMARINES

First applications of atomic-electric power look like being in the submarine power plant field. Research is being carried out in its application to aircraft. Heavy shielding required precludes any possibility of application to automobiles. It may be possible some day to build an atomic power plant for locomotives.

Becuse nuclear fuel is such an extremely concentrated source of energy, it may, before it comes into more general use, bring economical electric power where transportation costs on ordinary fuel are extremely high.

To be efficient and economical, an atomic power plant will necessarily be of larger capacity, except for military and other special situations. Attacking atomic-electric power production on a 'crash' basis, as in war, will not result in the building of a sound industry.

There is no need to get hysterical about the development of atomic-electric power. Rather, I am urging that we proceed on the basis of an orderly, well-thought-out program, with due regard for conservation, not only of money, but of that much rarer commodity, scientific and engineering manpower.



PRETTY ESTHER SONN, of the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, which is operated by the General Electric Company for the American Atomic Energy Commission, gets an early look at atomic things-to-come. She is peering into plastic model of 225-foot, 14-storey-high steel sphere, which will house laboratory's land-based prototype of an atomic power plant for U.S. Navy submarines. The sphere, now under construction at West Milton, N.Y., will contain a complete submarine hull section as shown inside plastic ball. Part of the hull will be surrounded by water, enabling atomic power plant to be tested under conditions closely approximating those encountered at sea.

From 1939 German Nuclear Fission To Canada's Chalk River NRX

BY A CHALK RIVER SCIENTIST

Fourteen years ago—on January 6, 1939—the first recognition of nuclear fission was announced in Berlin—"with hesitation because of the strange results"—by the German scientists O. Hahn and F. Strassman. Previous experiments by various researchers had revealed the "chipping" off small fragments of the atomic nucleus. But now it was recognized that the nucleus of the atom could be split into two fragments of similar size—a process for which the term "fission" was borrowed from the biologists' term for the division of a cell or organism.

With characteristic scientific caution, Hahn and Strassmann declared: "We cannot yet bring ourselves to make this leap in contradiction to all previous lessons of nuclear physics."

Before that year was ended, many scientific papers confirming the Germans' observations were published. But soon, too, the Second World War engulfed the world and atomic research for the moment drifted into the background as scientists were enlisted in many researches then more directly related to weapons. At the National Research Council in Canada, Dr. G. C. Laurance in 1940 began experiments directed at producing a chain-reacting process. For the great significance of the discovery of fission was not solely that an atom of one element could be split into two fragments consisting of two other elements of nearly equal weight, but the fact that at the same time neutrons were released. This gave promise of initiating a self-sustaining process which would generate energy continuously.

When it was learned that German scientists were concentrating considerable effort on seekikng military application of the vast energy now known to be available from the atom, the Allies moved quickly to establish atomic research programs that sought to apply atomic fission of a bomb. Canada played an important part in these programs.

FIRST CHAIN REACTIONS

At 4:25 Eastern Standard Time on December 2, 1942, the first nuclear chain reaction to be initiated by man began a controlled release of the tremendous energy stored within the atom. On the squash court underneath the west stands of Stagg Field on the University of Chicago campus, American scientists, working under the direction of Enrico Fermi, piled up layers of graphite and uranium (hence the term "pile") until the power indicators showed that a chain reaction had been initiated.

Behind this tremendous achievement, of course, lay the foundation work done by a large number of scientists working in many countries.

QUANTUM HYPOTHESIS

Important steps in the march toward release of the vast energy within the atom include Max Plank's statement in 1900 that radiated energy is given off in finite "quanta", the application by Neils Bohr in 1913 of the quantum hypothesis to Rutherford's model of the atom, Einstein's law of the equivalence of mass energy, Louis de Broglie's demonstartion that under certain conditions electrons behave as waves, and many others.

Using alpha rays from radioactive elements, Rutherford in 1919 was the first to break the nucleus of an atom. He bombarded nitrogen with the alpha rays. In 1930 J. D. Cockcroft and E. T. S. Walton smashed nuclei with artificially accelerated particles. In 1932 Ernest O. Lawrence invented the cyclotron, the first of many machines now being used to produce extremely fast particles for bombarding atomic nuclei.

In the same year James Chadwick discovered the neutron, that uncharged particle which splits uranium atoms in the Chalk River reactors.

FISSIONS

In 1938 Hans Bethe showed that the heat developed in the sun comes from the nuclear process whereby four hydrogen nuclei are fused to form a helium nucleus—a process which man is busy trying to mulate for the so-called "hydrogen bomb". And then Hahn and Strassman cautiously announced their discovery of the opposite process—"fission". Fermi and his associates brought the Chicago graphite pile into operation in 1942.

Ten years after this creation of a new elemental fire on earth, where does Canada stand in the development of atomic energy? Her scientists designed NRX, the "hottest" natural uranium "oven" in the world and have designed an even "hotter" one, NRU, which is now under construction.

IN FOREFRONT

With the aid of NRX, Canadian scientists have been able to stay in the forefront of atomic energy development. The more spectacular nuclear reactions — atomic bombs and "thermonuclear experiments"—have unfortunately overshadowed the remarkable and rapidly growing applications of

ONE HUNDRED and thirty million dollar's worth of radium, twice the world's present supply, would be needed to equal the rays from this powerful radiation source in the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory, operated by the General Electric Company. The actual source, which consists of cylinders of cobalt made radioactive by exposure in an atomic reactor, is at the bottom of a nine-foot deep tank of water which protects personnel from its rays. Checking the source and its radiations are Dr. Samuel S. Jones and Rudolph Fox of the laboratory staff. The source will be used for measuring the effects of high-energy radiation on various materials being used in connection with the land-based submarine atomic power plant the laboratory is constructing for the U.S. Navy. A sample of such a material may be lowered, through the long vertical tube, to the bottom of the tank where it is surrounded by the radioactive cobalt rods.

CANADA OUTDOORS

MORE HUNTERS USE BOW

By KINGSLEY BROWN, JR.

HALIFAX (CP)—Some hunters say deer are as wily as a flock of spooked ducks. Others say they are stupid.

The controversy will gain impetus when Nova Scotia's deer season opens Oct. 15 because more deer will be hunted with a bow and arrow than since the days of Micmacs.

The argument about a deer's intelligence usually begins when one is bagged by an archer.

Archers claim you've got to be a better hunter to get a deer with an arrow. Riflemen say it's just luck, unsporting, or that deer aren't too bright anyway.

* * * *

By unsporting they mean a bow is not a proper weapon. By the deer being stupid, they usually are referring to the timid whitetail's inherent curiosity.

The archers, however, are finding plenty of converts. Sport shops and department stores report they are selling more archery equipment, including broadhead arrows for big game, than ever before.

And fish and game officials say hunters are turning in droves to the bow as a weapon in the province's deer-ridden forests, where 40,000 were reported killed last year.

Nova Scotia's archers, believed to number in the thousands, got a boost in prestige recently when Newfoundland announced it was permissible to kill moose and caribou with a bow.

* * * *

Hitting moose, generally met at close range in their bush country habitat, is not considered difficult by bowmen. Caribou, however, live in barren country where there is little cover. Kills are at long range.

Michigan wildlife officials have proved that an arrow propelled by a modern bow has more penetrating power than a bullet from a 30-30 rifle, which has killed more deer than any other.

A deer wounded by an arrow will travel only half as far, all things being equal, as one wounded by a bullet.

* * * *

There is much to recommend a bow.

An archer pays the same licence fee as the rifleman in Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. New Brunswick's licence, at $4.50, is $2 more than Nova Scotia's.

Rifles start at about $80 in price, while a good bow can be bought for $18. Cartridges cost roughly 20 cents each, and a hunting arrow, which can be used indefinitely, about $1.25.

Your Garden:

Lawns: How To Grow And Keep Them

BY HENRY PREE (NEA)

Late summer or early autumn is the ideal time to start a new lawn or make over an old one. But before doing either, the home gardener should be aware of the several fungus diseases which can spoil his best efforts.

There are a number of such, which turn grass brown, especially in creeping-bent lawns.

These diseases can be prevented, to a marked degree, if the gardener treats the lawn with a fungicide three or four times a year, and, in the case of a new lawn, just before the seed is sown. The majority of the complaints come from novice gardeners who have just completed their first lawn.

When a stand of young seedling grass is spotted with dead, brown patches, varying from one to four inches in diameter, it is likely that "damping-off" has occured. Sometimes this fungus kills the seed sprouts just as they emerge from the ground, but before they have become large enough to be noticeable, making it appear as though the seed germination is faulty.

At other times, the disease comes after the grass is well started. The young grass turns dark as the blades seem to melt together, then wither and turn brown.

Following an attack of this disease, there is nothing to do but let it spend itself and then repair the damage.

The disease most common in established lawns is brown patch. Another and similar disease is known as dollar spot because the numerous brown spots start about the size of a silver dollar. The affected grass presents a moth-eaten appearance and the leaves are a much lighter brown than if attacked by brown patch.

A peculiarity of brown patch is that the attack is in definite patches which, while roughly circular, are most irregular in their outline. Unless this disease is very severe and long lasting, the roots are not injured—only the top growth.

Fungus diseases in the lawn are best controlled by an organic fungicide and there are several such available. These will not restore the damaged grass, but they will check the disease for a considerable period of time.

The majority of the fungicides are in powder form and the easiest method is to mix the chemical in water and pour it over sand and mix thoroughly.

The application may need to be repeated in 10 days. As insurance against subsequent attacks treat the lawn once a month throughout the growing season.

Get rid of pesky fungus before it infects and ruins your beautiful lawn.

Gardening Questions

Q—Our raspberries have grown unusually long cane this year, but very few berries developed. Buds form, turn brown and dry up. What is the trouble?

A—Your trouble may be a case of too much nitrogen and not enough phosphorus and pot-ash in the soil. A very moist spring resulting in a lush growth followed by dry weather at flowering time likewise cause poor setting of berries.

Q—Is superhosphate necessary to the health of shade trees?

A—Yes. A lack of phosphorus is frequently a limiting factor in tree growth. Hence the use of superhosphate mixed with the soil about the roots. Use 2½ pounds of it for the average tree at planting time.

Q—Is the borer damaging our dahlia plants the same as the European corn borer?

A—Yes. The corn borer likewise is a pest of many other plants including aster, chrysanthemums and gladiolus. Dusting or spraying with DDT offers good control.

Q—A similar discoloration has affected the foliage on our day lilies, the hemerocallis type. Could thrips be to blame?

A—Yes, thrips may streak blossoms and make foliage silvery. Spray or dust with DDT when treating your gladiolus.

Q—Will timothy make a satisfactory lawn?

A—No. In a lawn it produces a coarse stubby growth light green in color. For a low-cost lawn use Fescue, Red Top and Perennial Rye.

SHAMROCKS BEAT TRAILERMEN IN THIRD GAME

Vics Yank Out 8-7 Victory To Stay In Playoff Series; Petes Argue With Referee

By DON GRANT, Examiner Staff Reporter

VICTORIA, B.C. — It was bound to happen and it did. The 1953 Mann Cup series was going along too smoothly; everyone was holding his breath, hoping. They're breathing today. For the lid blew off the Mann Cup Friday night in the third game of the senior lacrosse championship and, amid high-sticking, slashing, tripping and bickering with the referees, the Victoria Shamrocks came up with their first win, 8-7, over the Peterborough Trailermen, who still lead the series 2-1 in games. It all started prior to game time when two new referees were appointed. They were Sid Greenwood and Gord Folka, a little chap whom the Trailermen remember from the 1951 series in Vancouver.

From the start they clamped down on the high-sticking and all. In fairness it can be said they called the roughness both ways. But they called it too tight and the game finally went out of their hands.

The referees, Folka in particular, started calling an infraction on the Trailermen's faceoff draws. Although Bob Thorpe and Jack Mason were drawing the same way they had in the first two games, Folka ruled that they were drawing illegally.

The Trailermen began to argue but to no avail.

WHISTLE-TOOTING

Folka and Greenwood then started their night of whistle-tooting, calling every little roughing play and there was a bushel full. The more they called, the rougher the game became.

Then Folka in the third quarter waved off a goal by Mason, ruling that he was in the Rocks' crease when he took a pass and scored. He topped it off by giving Mason a western "crease infraction" penalty, a rarity in Eastern Lacrosse. The lid blew.

In the argument which followed Folka handed out a one-minute penalty for arguing. Then the argument did start. Bob Curtin, the Trailermen manager, rushed out on the floor and bickered with Folka about the 60-second call.

Curtin tapped Folka on the shoulder and immediately the five-foot two-inch (in high heels, too) referee blew his top, waving Curtin from the Arena. Curtin, who had returned to the bench, wouldn't budge.

Police were called and then James MacLeod, president of the CLA. Curtin finally surrounded by five burly Victoria policemen was escorted from the arena and the rabid Rock rooters roared.

Since Ashbee had started the period off in the penalty box, Peterborough then had two men off. Play started again and Don (Nip) O'Hearn was penalized for slashing. Thorpe threw his stick away in disgust.

That meant the Trailermen had to play short four minutes (the delayed penalty was in effect then). During that time the only good lacrosse of the game was played. And it was only by one player, Harry Wipper, who ragged the ball for nearly the whole time. In fact his play was so good, that the staunch Rock fans who had been booing every play previously began to cheer and clap the tall, lean Trailerman.

HARRY RAGS IT

Only Wipper's play kept the Trailermen in the game at that point for, while he was ragging the ball, the Rocks didn't score.

That mixup didn't stop the rough play. It continued until the last minute when Thorpe slashed Whitey Severson. While Greenwood was trying to thumb Thorpe off, Derry Davies crashed Greenwood to the floor, quite by accident.

Folka's refreeing (quite expected by the Trailermen) may mean the Trailermen will default the series. At least it appeared that way after the game when Club President, Bob Peirson, said, "We won't be on the floor, if those referees are out again. We'll be home." To refuse to play would mean an automatic default.

Thorpe, quite discouraged about the refereeing, not so much Greenwood's calls but Folka's, commented, "The people at home will never believe how bad they were. It was about the crudest game we've ever played in."

The Trailermen's coach was particularly peeved about Folka's faceoff calls, pointing out that he draws the same way as Mason and was never called for it throughout the game. He also complained about the Rocks who were continually entering the Trailermen's crease.

"If the refs are out there Monday, you'll see the boys flying back via TCA."

LOST A PLAYER

This roughness was hard on both teams, especially the Rocks who have probably lost Al Gill for at least a game and quite possibly the series. O'Hearn caught him with a high-stick in the first quarter, sending him to the hospital with a severe concussion. He'll be under observation for at least 36 hours.

O'Hearn was waved for five minutes as Gill was stretched out across the floor. Finally the Rocks' star rookie was carried off on a stretcher and after preliminary inspection by Rocks' Dr. Jack Patterson, was taken to the hospital. At first they feared a slight skull fracture.

The Trailermen didn't escape the Rocks high sticks. Ross Powless was their target. He was clubbed by Tom Druce twice, first in the first quarter, and then harder in the second. Druce cut Powless down from behind on his second attempt.

The teams in this Canadian championship are supposed to play lacrosse for the Mann Cup. They simply didn't play lacrosse, at least not good lacrosse. The credit for the win or blame for the loss could not be pin-pointed on any particular play or the ability of either club.

If any play was to blame, it could have been Nip O'Hearn's five-minute penalty in the first quarter. For the Rocks then scored two goals to take a 4-1 lead which the Trailermen never managed to whittle down.

Smith, grabbing a loose ball in front of the Rocks' net, opened the scoring. But four minutes later on a long shot Bob Bamford tied it on a long screen shot. O'Hearn slashed Lew Landess and Mason slashed Landess. Wipper and Slater ragged the ball practically the entire time the Trailermen were two short.

Once the Trailermen were at full strength, they relaxed and Jack Northup sailed through their defence to put the Rocks' ahead. While O'Hearn was off, Anr Ferguson sank two looping shots to put the Rocks up 4-1. Wipper ended the period with a neat solo rush to score.

BROWNING SCORES

Archie Browning scooped up a loose ball and raced for a breakaway to score to open the second. Powless after four shots from the crease, taking his own rebound each time, scored on the fifth.

O'Hearn and Mason relayed a pass to Smith for his second goal before Wipper tripped Severson, Druce held O'Hearn and Croft high-sticked Severson. Just as Croft came back on, Harry Irwin sank a screen shot after taking a Bamford pass. The half ended with Bamford and Ashbee clashing as the whistle went.

Then came the Mason-Curtin-Folka fiasco and Mason's "crease violation" penalty early in the third. O'Hearn followed up with his slashing penalty. Powless with the Trailermen still one short scored after taking up a loose ball.

Northup, taking a pass from Duff McCaghey, was in the clear for the period's final goal. Ashbee and Severson ended this quarter with a roughing penalty.

Mason and Browning were penalized for roughing early in the fourth. Then Ashbee was gated for slashing McCaughey. Slater came through with a long, screen shot for a goal. Landess scored the winning marker cutting around Thorpe and giving Moon Wootton no chance.

The game's final goal was a Smith specialty. He took Powless' pass on the goal- crease, shooting as the ball hit the stick pocket. Thorpe received the last penalty for slashing.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

While the die-hard golfers tramp the links till snow covers the greens, the end of the local golf season officially is in sight. The Peterborough Club has its annual closing day on Sept. 26, a week from today, calling it quits as daylight saving is washed out. The usual afternoon competitions, evening dinner and presentation of prizes. Kawartha Club winds it up the same day with a field day nine-hole competition with prizes for the three handicap divisions. Also a driving, chipping and putting contest in the afternoon. Dinner and prize presentation at night, followed by a closing day dance. Yes, summer is all finished next week for 1953.

* * * * * *

Following the folding up of the Brantford senior "A" hockey club—where Wade and Dugan of Peterborough played last winter—is this item in the paper there: "We thought Fritz Fraser and Wally Hnatiuk were free agents but it appears they have been sold to Maxie Silverman at Sudbury. It is not likely they will go that way but he is the man who holds their contracts. Jake Wade is booked for Woodstock, in a coaching role, but the deal hasn't been made as yet unless the two parties have an agreement. Even Arnie Dugan, now in British Columbia, was released to a club the name of which we could not secure. The entire list of players is cleaned out." Hm, that means neither Arn nor Jake will return to the Petes this winter.

It's The Free-For-All

The $500 free-for-all event at the Ex. this evening winds up the five-day harness horse racing meet, which went each afternoon and evening during the fair. Results of yester aft and eve are in tonight. 'Twas a good race meet with some keen finishes by top trotters and pacers of the province, and the purses were good. A total of $3,700. The Exhibition Board has offered a special prize of $100 tonight to the driver piloting his horse to a local track record, and some of the entries in the free-for-all might come fairly close. However, we doubt if Danny Direct's mark three years ago of 2.06 1/10, with Vic Rowntree driving, will fall in Peterborough for a long time.

* * * * * *

Sooner or later a rhubarb was bound to sprout in the fertile B.C. lacrosse soil, and 'twas not surprising that the central figure in the patch last p.m. at Victoria was Referee Gord Folka. A crude character in a refereeing role, he nearly beat the Petes out there in the 1951 series, and last night he had the easterners so burned up and browned off that they threatened to default if he is appointed in the Monday game. He called anything that looked slightly rough, he refused to allow a goal by Curly Mason, he had Manager Bob Curtin escorted from the arena by police, and he ruled faceoff draws by Mason illegal. If these draws are illegal then all Ontario and British Columbia refs—except Folka—have been wrong all along.

* * * * * *

Settle It On Merits

It's too bad if the series develops into one of those bickering things, when a game isn't settled only on its merits. Petes drew 10 of the 17 penalties. We know they play a rugged game and probably rated the sin box sentences. Not being on hand, we can't say whether or not Mason was in the crease when he scored. But we do know that his faceoff draws are strictly according to the book, and always have been. No ref has ever ruled otherwise, except this Folka fellow out west. Rog Smith was top sniper for the Trailermen in last night's joust, and Harry Wipper earned applause with some great ragging to keep his side in the game. Thorpe team still lead the set 2-1, and they'll be hopping mad and hustling Monday in an effort to grab that four fray.

* * * * * *

Civic Softball League has finally worked its way down to the finals, and it'll be Foresters vs. Bell Telephone at eight p.m. Monday in the Bowl d'Ashburnham, a single game. This opens the best-of-five final series. Paul Maloney tossed a three-hitter last eve as Foresters erased Seabrook's in semi-finals, Ab Stewart clouting two homers and Ron Tyndall thumping one for the circuit. The other game saw Bell oust Bill's Place on a three-hit hurling chore by Keith Harrison, whose mates belted the ball with ducks on the pond. The losers were loose afield, also. This windup series next week concludes the '53 softball season around here.

Dese, Dem and Dose

There'll be two horse races at the Ex. tonight, starting at seven, the 2.17 and the free-for-all . . . Beth Hanover and Richard Grattan won heats there last e'en, while the aft saw Watts Crusader take two, and Molly Elgin and Lady K. Brooks one each in good races . . . Public School Soccer League schedules are in tonight . . . Too bad Jack Matthews won't be available for the grid Orfuns this semester, but he's busy coaching at Grove . . . Belleville officials say they don't expect to ice an OHA junior "B" squad come winter . . . Victoria lost player Al Gill last night with a possible fractured skull, a CP dispatch says, adding that a hospital report described his condition as "fair" . . . Jim Conlin has called a re-organization meeting of the CGE shop hockey loop for Monday after five . . . The cage colleens of that southend shop are seeking a coach . . . The pro matmen may start their winter series of shows here next month; they were left homeless in Oshawa when the arena burned down . . . . Saturday's sad dirge: "When Pup Curtin took a poke-a at Referee Folka, 'twas curtains indeed for Curtin."

Sturdy Campers

LONDON (CP)—Despite heavy rains during the peak period, a record total of 250,000 men, women and children holidayed under canvas this year on Britain's many recognized camp sites.

Out At The Kawartha

Ladies' Section — One more week, then closing day. Summer has surely gone and everyone is rushing around trying to get all matches played. We even had two field days this week to get caught up. The end of September certainly crept up on us.

On Tuesday, the competition was low gross, won by Mrs. H. Woodcox and Mrs. J. Gatfield, each receiving a point. The silver spoon was won by Mrs. J. Condon. Low net was won by Mrs. H. Allison getting a point and Mrs. J. Wood winning the golf ball.

In the 9-hole event the competition was blind score. Points were won by Mrs. W. Griffin and Mrs. N. Williamson, with the silver spoon won by Mrs. J. D. McNabb and the golf ball by Mrs. T. Everitt.

On Thursday, the 18-hole competition was total on par 3 holes. Mrs. J. Gatfield won a point and Mrs. L. Brown the silver spoon. The golf ball went to Mrs. J. Condon for low net.

In the nine-hole section, the competition was total putts, points going to Mrs. D. Meredith and Mrs. W. Wedlock, and the golf ball to Mrs. H. McGinness. Must be that everyone in the 9-hole group has won a silver spoon. Good girls!

Lunch was served on Thursday afternoon and a meeting was held afterwards. It was decided to have closing day as planned on Thursday, September 23, everybody to be at the club in fancy dress by 9 a.m. and be ready for monkey golf; dinner at noon; competition in the afternoon then tea and prizes later. Start digging in the attic and see how many laughs we can have this year.

Business Girls—The BGs have hardly time to play nine holes after five o'clock these evenings but there is only one more Thursday before closing day on September 27. Ray Calladine won the spoon for low net competition, and Dorothy Harle was given a point. Ella Down won the spoon for score on a hidden hole. There will be draws made for next Thursday's spoons as all BGs cannot finish playing before dark. Do not forget to let Jean McIntyre know if you plan to be present on the 27th for she has the dinner tickets and also it must be known for the draw to be made this weekend.

Foresters-Bell Gain Finals In Civic Loop

Foresters and Bell Telephone emerged victorious over Seabrook Electric and Bill's Lunch respectively, at the East City Bowl Friday night, in the third and deciding games of their best-of-three semi-final series, for the men's Civic League softball championship.

These two powerful teams will meet once again to settle for top honors in a best-of-five set commencing Monday, with a single game at eight p.m.

Ralph Parnell's fraternity squad defeated the East City Electric lads in the opener by a score of 11-1, behind three-hit pitching of Paul Mahoney, to gain a 2-1 edge in the short set. Paul fanned ten men and walked four as he southpawed his team to triumph with a neat twirling chore. Eldon Conroy took the mound for Ray Harrison's men and hurled well for five, but a sharp rally for five in the sixth gave Foresters a commanding lead and virtually sewed-up the ball game.

Leading the offensive for the Parnell squad was Ab Stewart with two homers, Bob Walling with a triple and double, and Ron Tyndall with one homer. Foresters banged out 15 hits in all.

Bell Telephone took the rubber game with Bill's Lunch 9-1 behind the veteran lanky Keith Harrison who also restricted the Monaghan Road lads to three bingles in a neat twirling display. Bob Welch's speedy crew had come from behind to win the second game 5-3, but the strong Gillespie Phonemen proved too potent with the willow last night as they banged out 13 hits off the combined efforts of Ellis Peters and Popper Sanderson to roll up a convincing victory.

The teams battled on even terms for five innings as in the first game, but Bell broke loose in the sixth for four runs and thereafter were never threatened as Harrison held control aided by excellent support afield and the big bats of his mates. Winning draw prize number 1131. Phone 21479.

Mel Parnell Has Chance To Be 20-Game Winner

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

Mel Parnell, the Boston left-hander who won 25 games in 1949 and who has slipped a little each year since, has a chance to climb back into the 20-game circle again this year, maybe today. Parnell drew the starting assignment for the Red Sox in the first game of a weekend set of three with the champion New York Yankees in Beantown. Up to today he had won 19 games and lost eight. Only two American Leaguers had won more.

So far this season five pitchers —Bob Porterfield of Washington, Bob Lemon of Cleveland, Robin Roberts of Philadelhpia Phillies, Warren Spahn of Milwaukee Braves and Carl Erskine of Brooklyn—have hit the 20-game mark.

Aside from Parnell the only hopefuls with a reasonable chance of joining these five are Virgil Trucks (19-10) of Chicago White Sox and Harvey Haddix (18-9) in his first full season with St. Louis Cardinals.

TIME RUNS OUT

With only a week to go time appears to have run out on such 20-game stars of a year ago as Early Wynn and ike Garcia of Cleveland and such early season prospects as Billy Pierce of the White Sox and Gerry Staley of the Cards.

Last year Roberts, with his sensational 28-7 mark, was the only National League pitcher in the charmed circle. This year, the strong-armed righthander quickly won 19 games, but has had a real struggle since early August in building his present total to 22. He's lost 14.

Spahn, a 20-game winner four years in a row, turned in a dismal 14-19 record last year. Rejuvenated by the switch to Milwaukee, Spahn now has a 20-7 mark.

Erskine, Brooklyn's first 20-game winner in two seasons, has a 20-6 record. Never before in any league has he won so many.

Porterfield is the first Washington pitcher in 20 years to win 21 games. His current mark of 21-10 is by far his best in professional ball. Lemon currently is 20-14. He has won at least 20 in five of the last six seasons.

Friday was a day off for all 16 teams.

Report Gavalin May Not Fight Again As Champ

By JACK HAND

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP)—Cuban Kid Gavilan may never again fight as world welterweight champion.

Alarmed at the champ's weight-making troubles for Friday night's split decision victory over gamester Carmen Basilio, manager Angel Lopez plans to take Gavilan to a doctor for a check-up next week. He wants to know if the champ is undermining his health by trying to scale down to 147 pounds.

"If you can't make the weight, you have to give it up," said Lopez. "It all depends on what the doctor says.

"At 150 pounds Basilio would have been no problem. aybe the have been no problem. Maybe the weights. He could beat both Bobo Olson and Randy Turpin."

LOOKS DOUBTFUL

Gavilan is supposed to defend his welter crown against Johnny Bratton within 60 days but that looks doubtful now. He is much more interested in the winner of the Oct. 21 Turpin-Olson scrap for the middleweight title.

"He had to take off too much weight too quick," said Lopez. "From 154 on Aug. 26 to 146¾ Friday was too much. He looked skinny, he looked bad."

Basilio, a courageous little fellow from nearby Canastota who put up a whale of a fight in flooring Gavilan, also thought the champ looked bad. Until they announced the decision, amidst a storm of boos, he thought he already had ended Gavilan's reign.

" I LICKED HIM"

"I licked him. I licked him good" he insisted in his dressing room. "I want to fight him again as soon as I can. He never hurt me but he stuck his thumb in my eye with one of those bolos."

From the moment Basilio, who weighed in at 147, dropped Gavilan with a left hook early in the second round, it was an interesting fight. Basilio tried to conserve his energy for the 15-round route. When Gavilan flurried, he flurried with him, but he couldn't match Gavilan's effective left jab that closed his left eye to a slit from the eighth on.

The two New York officials, referee George Walsh and judge Harold Barnes, voted for Gavilan to a din of boos from a partisan crowd of 7,103 paying a gross gate of $74,317 for central New York's first world title fight. Jack Kimball, the lone Syracuse judge, gave it to Basilio 7-5-3. Walsh scored 8-6-1 and Barnes 7-6-2.

When Basilio's left hook dumped Gavilan in the second it was the first time the Cuban had been down since Ike Williams decked him in their first fight Feb. 27, 1948. It was only the second time he had been dropped in his 112-bout career dating back to 1943.

The count of the knockdown was disputed. Walsh said it was eight but many ringsiders insisted they heard him toll nine.

HODGINS GETS CREDIT

NEW YORK (CP)—Katie Key, winner of the $50,000 Roosevelt Trot at Roosevelt Raceway Thursday night, is a milestone of a harness racing success story in which a major part was played by Clint Hodgins, talented driver from Clandeboye, Ont.

Pat Tuccio, a Long Island used car dealer who picked up the six-year-old daughter of Long Key for $4,000 last year, gives all the credit to the Canadian.

"It's all due to Hodgins," Tuccio said after the race. "He took the horse when she was nothing and now we have a $100,000 horse."

A superb job of driving by Hodgins was largely responsible for the victory in the Roosevelt Trot. Katie Key actually made a slight break at the start, then was tucked in by Hodgins.

Scotch Victor, driven by Joe O'Brien of New Glasgow, N.S., took the lead, then let Yankee Hanover take over to the mile when Dick Williams came alongside with Lord Steward. Yankee Hanover and Lord Steward knocked each other off.

O'Brien came back with Scotch Victor as they came into the stretch. Scotch Victor hung on gamely but Katie Key kept inching up and poked her nose in front as they crossed the wire.

HAMILTON (CP) — Jamestown Falcons made a clean sweep of Pony League honors Friday night by winning the Governor's Cup with a 13-12 victory over Hamilton Red Birds. The pennant winners won the best-of-seven series 4-1 and boosted their total of cup victories to six, a league record.

OUT FOR THE SEASON

BELLEVILLE (CP) — Belleville will not be represented in Ontario Hockey Association junior B competition this season but the Belleville Hockey Association decided Thursday night to continue its activities in the minor division.

The association has sponsored junior, juvenile, midget, bantam and peewee hockey here for several years and has had a working agreement with Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League for the last three seasons.

ASSUMPTION WINS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Assumption High School Friday night defeated St. Michael's High School of Toronto 17-10 as the two arch-rivals met in the ninth exhibition football game of their annual competition. Assumption now has won seven games and St. Michael's two.

GEORGETOWN AHEAD

BROOKLIN (CP) — Georgetown defeated Brooklin 7-3 here Friday night in the third game of the Ontario Lacrosse Association intermediate B series, taking a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven series. Fourth game will be played Wednesday at Georgetown.

NEW SAGUENEEN GOALIE

CHICOUTIMI, Que. (CP) — Chicoutimi Sagueneens of the professional Quebec Hockey League have acquired goalie Phil Hughes from Calgary Stampeders of the Western League, it was learned Friday.

Hughes will replace star netminder Marcel Pelletier, who led the Sagueneens to the championship of the now-defunct Quebec Senior Hockey League last season. Pelletier was picked up from a waiver list by Seattle Lions of the Western League.

CAGER REJECTS PRO BID

WINNIPEG (CP) — Carl Ridd, high-scoring centre of Varsity Grads of the Greater Winnipeg Senior Basketball League, has turned down an offer to turn professional with Milwaukee Hawks of the National Basketball Association. Ridd said Friday he had rejected the bid by Ben Kerner, owner of the Hawks.

At the same time it was announced that the Grads have withdrawn from the league because of "lack of sound financial support."

Little Downs College Student

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—A pair of tournament veterans with contrasting temperaments, ice-cool Gene Littler of La Jolla, Calif., and nervous Dale Morey of Indianapolis, play today in the 36-hole final for the 53rd U.S. amateur golf championship.

The 23-year-old California navy airman and the wiry 32-year-old ex-professional snuffed out the bids of two young collegians in the semi-finals Friday.

Littler, Walker Cup member, drilling even-par golf through gusts that reached 43 miles an hour, put down Bruce Cudd, 20-year-old Portland, Ore., university student, in a near-record beating, 10 and 8.

The jumpy Morey, gobbling vitamin pills and drinking orange juice to combat a nagging cold, took early command and never let go in a 5 and 4 victory over Don Albert of Alliance, O.

Littler is a strong favorite to end a Morey winning streak which has carried through seven tournaments.

Two Leaf Teams Have Hockey Workout

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — The Whites trounced the Blues 6-2 here Friday during a 70-minute scrimmage at the Toronto Maple Leaf training camp.

The line of Ted Kennedy, Sid Smith and rookie Bob Bailey was responsible for three of the goals, Kennedy getting two and Smith one.

Coach King Clancy was enthusiastic about the line of Tod Sloan, Harry Watson and George Armstrong. He rated them as the best all-round unit in camp.

DANGEROUS PRANK

MONTREAL (CP)—Children released the ropes holding a painters' scaffold from the edge of the roof of a building here. The platform crashed through the roof of an unoccupied auto parked outside.

Beaches Trip Varsity Blues With 23-16 Win

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto Balmy Beach of the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union Friday spotted University of Toronto Blues a 15-6 half-time lead and then cracked through for two converted touchdowns to win 23-16 in an exhibition game.

The Blues, runners-up in the Intercollegiate Union last year, showed up well against the bigger and more-experienced Beach team in their first public appearance of 1953, and led until the final 15 minutes.

After a scoreless first quarter, Varsity scored a safety touch, two converted touchdowns and a single in the second befor e Beaches started to roll. The ORFU club hit the score sheet late in the second quarter with a touchdown by Nayland Moll, added another major in the third by Maurice O'Callaghan and crossed Varsity's line twice in the last quarter.

SECOND MAJOR

Moll went over for his second major early in the final quarter to put Beaches in the lead for the first time. Jack Gregory added the finishing touch to the Beach offensive with a 57-yard touchdown run in the last play of the game.

Ellis converted three of the Beach touchdowns.

Steve Oneschuk topped Varsity scorers with a touchdown and two converts, all in the second quarter. Frank Palermo, in his first year with the Blues, picked up a Beach fumble on the Beach 20-yard line and scored a touchdown, also in the second quarter.

Single points were scored by Al Haig and Bill Horton.

Will Never Have Agreement—Bell

PITTSBURGH (AP)—There will never be a player agreement between the National Football League and Canadian Football leagues, if NFL commissioner Bert Bell has his way.

That was Bell's comment Friday night when reporters questioned him about American college football stars who have been signed by the Canadians after being drafted by NFL teams.

"I will never sign any agreement," Bell said, adding, "In the first place that would draw fire from the government as a monopoly in restraint of trade. We don't want to restrain any boy from making as much as he can in pro football.

"Secondly, and more important, we shouldn't need a signed agreement to be honest. We have legal contracts with players. If the Canadians refuse to recognize them . . . what good would any agreement be?"

Big Mission Field

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP)—Rev. Frank Carey, United Church missionary home on furlough, said in a sermon here "the gates of Japan are open to Christianity as never before." He said Japan had emerged from the last war with its faith in old customs shaken and the Christian church in Japan now was made up mostly of young people.

Orioles Edge Wings 2-1 To Take Lead In Series

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Baltimore Orioles moved a big step nearer the International League Governor's Cup finals by edging Rochester Red Wings 2-1 Friday night to take a 3-1 lead in the best-of-seven semi-final series.

Niles Jordan limited the Orioles to two hits in seven innings in the game at Baltimore. But he lost the game when Marv Rackley and Ralph Caballero punched successive singles and Jack Crimian, in relief, was then belted for singles by Russ Kerns and Stan Jok.

Starter Dick Starr, credited with the victory, went eight innings before retiring for a pinch hitter and Kent Peterson pitched the final. Starr yielded the only Rochester run in the fourth on Wally Moon's scratch hit to the mound, a wild pitch and Charles Kress' single. With two down and two on base, Peterson saved the night by striking out Lou Kahn, pinch-hitting for John Huesman.

ANOTHER BLOW

The Wings suffered another blow with word that third baseman Don Richmond probably is out of action for the balance of the playoff series. Dr. Erwin Mayer, team physician of the Orioles, said Richmond suffered a concussion when a throw by Bob Greenwood in Thursday night's game hit him on the side of the head.

At Buffalo, Montreal Royals registered a handy 8-5 victory over the Bisons to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven semi-finals. The Royals knocked Frank Lary off the mound with a four-run outburst in the seventh inning. Doubles by Don Hoak, Sandy Amoros and Rocky Nelson, coupled with one of three errors by Harvey Zernia, did most of the damage.

Ken Wood's double with the bases loaded in the first frame sent the Royals away to an early lead. Ed Roebuck, with aid from Art Fabbro and Ken Lehman, gained credit for his 16th mound triumph of the year.

Jack Wallaesa hit a bases-empty homer for the Bisons.

Public Schools Set To Open Soccer Season

The schedule committee of Central School has prepared the following list for Public School soccer. The executive of the Athletic Association has been granted permission for the use of those parks listed for senior games. In the case of King Edward Park, two fields will be available and are designated below as "north" and "south." For the use of Riverside rugby field until October they are indebted to Bev Goulding of PCVS. The schedule is divided into three sections, senior, intermediate and junior, and embraces eighty-three games. The top three teams in the final standing of each section advance into the playoffs. Walking and hitch-hiking, he figured his personal expenses at not more than $50.

Monarchs Score Lacrosse Upset Turn Back New Westminster 16-6

MIMICO (CP) — Long Branch Monarchs kept alive their hopes of winning the Minto Cup Friday night by defeating New Westminster Salmonacs 16-6 in the third game of the best-of-five Canadian junior lacrosse finals. Salmonacs lead the series 2-1.

It was the first loss of the season for the western champions who had come through in 27 previous games —seven of them playoff contests.

The Salmonacs were never contenders Friday night after the first quarter when Long Branch took a 4-1 lead. The eastern champions were in front 10-3 at the half and lengthened it to 13-5 going into the final period.

New Westminster used the same style of play that won them the openers Monday and Wednesday, but greater tension caused rougher play and penalties cost the Salmonacs five goals. New Westminster scored two while the easterners were short-handed.

HELD AT BAY

Instead of trying to outrun the lighter and faster Salmonacs, Long Branch converted to heavier and closer checking and held the New Westminster snipers at bay. An indication of the rougher play was the nine penalties handed out—most of any game in the final.

Two were accounted for when defenceman Ken Lytle of Long Branch and Don Martin of the Salmonacs staged the first spat of the series in the third quarter. The over-anxious pugilists were quickly separated, however, and both drew minor penalties.

Larry Ruse again led the Long Branch scoring parade. He fired four goals to raise his three-game total to 12 markers—highest on both teams. George Kapasky, who scored the winner, Ken Lytle, captain Jack Walton and newcomer Denny McIntosh, scored a pair each and Howard Smith, Joe Caruso, Jack Coleman and Bill McLaughlin added singles.

SHARE SCORING HONORS

Noble Collins and Ivan Gujar were tops for New Westminster, dividing four goals. The others went to Max Skinner and Stan Cowie. Cliff Sepka, New Westminster scoring star in the first two games, managed only one assist but still remains the leading point-getter in the series with 16—two better than Ruse.

Netminders Porky Russell of Long Branch and Ron Delmonico of Salmonacs have been taking turns in the starring roles throughout the series and Russell, after having the spotlight taken away from him by Delmonico in the second game Wednesday, again sparkled.

The best Jewish athletes from these countries will take part in 18 different sports during the 10-day games.

Turn Daytime Workers Into Opera Singers At Night

By JOHN TRACY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The Latvian DP who became "Mr. Opera" of the Maritime provinces is starting a movement in Toronto to turn daytime workers into opera stars at night.

Mariss Vetra, founder of an opera in his own country at the age of 20, hopes to "start a new fight for opera" here with a night school to train young Canadian singers.

Vetra, now 55, foresees the day when Canadians will be as opera-conscious as Europeans "but it may take 10 years." Meanwhile, he plans to "grow" his own talent from the pupils who will put in two-hour sessions twice weekly at his opera workshop.

ESCAPED TO SWEDEN

The singer, who played in European films and has sung on most of the operatic stages in Europe, fled his homeland nearly eight years ago in his "bare feet." He landed in Sweden in a fishing boat and then headed for Canada.

Vetra calls himself "one of Canada's first DPs, if not the first one." He landed in Halifax in 1947 and found a job in the vocal department of the Halifax Conservatory of Music.

But opera was his first love and he set out to found an opera company.

"Because I had to grow the singers, I opened my own school," he said.

The Nova Scotia Opera Company was formed and in quick succession produced "Don Giovanni," "Tales from Hoffman," "La Traviata," "Madame Butterfly," "The Marriage of Figaro" and "Countess Maritza."

PROUD OF PUPIL

One of the Canadian pupils of whom Vetra is most proud is June Grant, former Halifax Mail-Star reporter who has been playing in the London production of "Paint Your Wagon." The 26-year-old Miss Grant studied for five years with Vetra and was awarded a two-year government scholarship to continue her operatic studies.

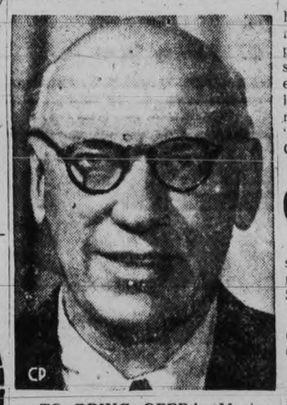
Vetra says he is here because he has found that of all Canadian cities interest in music is highest in Toronto whose Royal Conservatory has held opera festivals for the last four years.

"I very seriously hope that this opera school will produce something soon," he said. "If it is possible in Halifax it surely will be possible in Toronto."

The opera director looks forward to the day when opera in Canada will be supported by the government.

"In Europe every opera house has government support," he said. "Latvia had two government-supported opera houses. In Germany there are 60.

"Canada will eventually develop its own opera but it may take 10 years. Up to now Canadians have been busy with the economic side of things. Now the art will come."



TO BRING OPERA—Mariss Vetra, founder of an opera in his native Latvia before coming to Canada six years ago, is starting a movement in Toronto to turn daytime workers into opera singers at night. Vetras, who played in European films and sang on many of the operatic stages of Europe, formed the Nova Scotia Opera Company in Halifax and produced a number of operas before coming to Toronto.

Casey Jones' Engine Ten-Wheeler

"What's a 'six-eight wheeler?'" several people, both casual and fervid railroad hobbyists, have asked us, referring to our editorial of July 30 on the monument just dedicated to "Casey" Jones, relates the Christian Science Monitor.

"Frankly, we don't know," we have had to answer. The phrase doesn't fit any known locomotive nomenclature.

GARBLED TERM

It probably represents a phenomenon common to folk songs; word-of-mouth repetition garbling a contemporarily correct term before the stanzas are written down and published. So even the written forms vary—as they do with "Casey Jones."

Some further research indicates we were right—and reveals some other interesting facts. Another version of the song calls his engine a "big eight-wheeler," still another a "high right-wheeler," and yet another calls Casey a "six-wheel driver."

The latter comes nearer the facts both as to nomenclature and to Casey. For, as all railroaders and railroad fanciers know, steam engines are known by their wheel count; the number under the "pilot," the number of drivers, and the number under the cab—as a 4-4-0 or a 2-8-2.

REAL PERSON

Casey Jones (who, of course, was a real person) did drive No. 638, but not on his tragically famous last ride. He drove No. 638 a "consolidation" 2-8-0, on a freight run from 1893 to 1900. (We have before us an actual photo of this, with Casey in the cab.) Then, because of his record for speed and dependability, he was given a brand-new engine and a fast passenger run.

This engine was No. 382, a 4-6-0 "ten-wheeler," with 69inch driving wheels. And it was on this then-modern beauty that Casey mounted his personal six-chime whistle and began a brief tour of duty which ended with his epic run.

ENGINE REBUILT

No. 382 was rebuilt after the wreck and renumbered several times. It continued in regular service until it was scrapped in 1935. (We know a man who, in retrospect, is quite sure he has ridden behind it:)

Many may still be riding behind others just like it in commuter or "mixed" (freight and passenger) service where steam is still the power. Look for an old engine with a slim stack and three high drivers on a side and you may be seeing just the kind of "high rightwheeler" on which Casey "rode to fame."

Vaclav Uhlik And His Flight In A Home-made Halftrack

MUNICH—Vaclav Uhlik is a placid-looking man, rather on the thin side. By examining him briefly—the swift, visual once-over—you would never suspect him of conspiracies, or clandestine arrangements to get out from under a government that he loathes.

Moreover, when you inspect the more or less home-made armored half-track he constructed over two years in his garage, you would be inclined to think that maybe the man is a mechanic gone slightly daft. Under ordinary circumstances you would think so.

But Vaclav Uhlik, in that home-made halftrack, smashed through the tightly - guarded Czechoslovak frontier defences to deliver seven others, including his wife and two children, from the grip of Communist government. The escape was, of course, spectacular. It was as dramatic as the flight of his fellow countryman not so long ago, who engineered a train into West Germany. And it was in keeping with the embattled people who have forced transport pilots to fly in another direction—westwards.

TWO-YEAR TASK

Uhlik worked about two years on his escape vehicle. He had parts assembled, ready to be lifted from or superimposed on the carriage, as the emergency demanded. Uhlik wanted out. He didn't plot rebellions nor assassinations.

"I couldn't take the Communists any more," was his simple explanation. Thus, for two years, late at night, he worked on his armored halftrack. After he smashed through the frontier barriers into West Germany, his feat was hailed as a combination of talent and determination over totalitarianism. So it was. Uhlik shrugs at the idea.

"I had a few pieces of equipment and a mechanic's knowledge," he told us. "Other people have other ways. Perhaps the other ways don't sound so exciting. They are just as effective."

Without realizing the significance of his remark, Uhlik put his finger on something. Day in and day out, refugees from throughout eastern Europe plod their way westwards. They walk. Few of them have any preconceived programs, escape routes or what their objective is after they reach Western allied territory. Many of the never reach their destination and the fate of the failures is spread thickly for others who harbor such ideas. Lurid accounts of the capture of hopeful escapees haven't dimmed the hopes of their compatriots in the least.

Across the plains of Poland, through East Germany, from the timberland of Transylvania in Romania and over Hungary through Soviet-occupied Austria, and from Bulgaria, a steady trickle of purposeful men and women, often with children, strike out westwards by foot and nothing but the clothes on their backs.

When they make it, West Berlin, Vienna or West Germany, there is rarely an announcement more than the line that two or three or six more came across. Yet some have come a thousand miles or more, swimming streams, treading minefields and slithering through swamps to make their escape good. Once in a while, en route, they are struck by an idea to help themselves along.

After a four-hundred-mile trek, during which his shoes became tatters, a Polish farmer saw a lumber truck on a highway. He took the chance that it was going west. Then he wedged himself beneath the boards. Had the lumber shifted perceptibly in his direction he would have been crushed. The long shot worked and he came out.

Another, a skinny little clerk from Bucharest, curled himself into the hood of a large automobile. The car happened to belong to a diplomat from a satellite embassy. It got him to Budapest, and then he walked into Vienna. These exploits aren't as spectacular as driving a train or a home-made tank through prepared barriers. But as Uhlik said, they are equally effective. It is the men and women, and their families, who walk across the face of a continent, controlled by Communist security battalions and their network of informers, who are the prime targets of the governments they seek to elude.

For by walking seemingly right through all the prepared defences to contain the captive populations, these escapes mean a mockery of the puffed-up claims of the satellite states' security networks. Each successful flight by foot gets back to friends and families and fresh hope is thus stoked for the next attempt—and the next.

It is against the men and women walking out of captivity, without arms or means but with purpose, that new precautions are being put into effect throughout satellite Europe. Reward, as well as terror, are being promised with a lavish hand. The populations are told to report any and all strangers seen around large and small communities. Failure to report strangers, the people are warned, makes them as liable to punishment as the would-be refugees.

Yet the man fleeing to political sanctuary, it turns out in most cases, has a great sense of responsibility. He will subsist on crusts of bread he has brought with him and from fruit and vegetables he manages to scrounge from fields. Generally, he doesn't want to imperil anyone else.

All he wants, as Uhlik and his associates did, is out. So long as that will persists—and there is every evidence it has not waned—men, women and children will walk right through the Iron Curtain. And there will be a long line, stretching to the borders of the Soviet Union, walking right behind them.

Slide Cleared Skeena River Run Renewed

SMITHERS, B.C. (CP)—The disastrous slide on the Babine river north of here two years ago has been cleared and a record run of salmon is going up the river this season to spawn. The slide had threatened the big Skeena river salmon run.

Last year at least 500,000 sockeye died below the slide without spawning, although speedy remedial measures by the fisheries department enabled 376,000 salmon to pass the obstruction.

This year 750,000 sockeye are expected through the Babine counting fence, a few miles below the entrance to Babine lake.

To date 680,000 fish have been counted compared with 500,000 for all of 1950. This fine showing is attributed to clearing of the debris blocking the streams and to closure of fishing in the Skeena in mid season to permit maximum escapement.

Scientists are on the Babine river studying movements, timing and behavior of salmon passing into the Babine spawning area.

Want Clear-Cut Policy On Canada's Coal Industry

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Provincial governments were urged Friday to ask Ottawa for a clear-cut national policy statement on Canada's coal industry.

The recommendation was made in the report of a committee headed by J. P. Messervey, deputy mines minister of Nova Scotia, and presented at the closing session here of the 10th annual mines ministers' conference.

After a long look into the industry's problems, the committee received conference backing for further talks between the coal board and the conference's standing committee on coal policy.

The ministers also threw their support behind the coal board's investigation into the possibility of coal-burning electric power plants in an effort to offset the decline in traditional coal markets.

Western delegates contended the industry is facing dwindling outlets through the railways' diesel conversion programs and the competition of fuel oil, natural gas and propane in domestic and industrial markets.

But the westerners felt that long-term prospects are brighter because of increasing power requirements.

The committee spoke out strongly against further increases in railway freight rates and urged that subsidies be stabilized to avoid sudden and drastic policy changes.

The threat of United States competition was emphasized by eastern delegates, who said the distribution problem left them at a disadvantage compared with exporters across the border.

They urged that, "in the national interest," Canadian production should be maintained at the highest possible level.

Norwegian Betters 1,000-Metre Record

OSLO (AP)— Norway's Audun Boysen Thursday bettered the official and unofficial world records for 1,000 metres when he ran the distance in two minutes, 0.4 seconds.

The time was four-tenths of a second faster than the record-shattering performance of America's Mal Whitfield in Eskilstuna, Sweden, a month ago. Whitfield, the Olympic 800-metre champion, was caught in 2:20.8.

The listed world record for 1,000 metres is 2:21.3, set by Olle Aberg of Sweden in Copenhagen last October.

Thermostat Tampering Gives Uneven Temperature

A thermostat is intended to maintain a uniform temperature —it should not be used as a hand-operated off-on switch. Frequent adjustment is not necessary; excessive adjustment overtaxes equipment and results in uneven temperature—you may forget to reset the thermostat after such adjustment, and the house will become too hot or too cold.

Should it be desirable to raise the temperature from 65 to 72 degrees (such as after a night set-back), set the dial for 72 degrees and not at the top of the scale. Setting it higher than 72 degrees will not make the temperature reach 72 degrees any faster. Neither will setting the dial at the bottom of the scale cool the house any faster than if the temperature indicator were lowered only a few degrees.

DEPENDS ON EQUIPMENT

Speed of response to a change in setting depends on the nature of your heating equipment and the construction of the home. Certain conditions do, of course, justify a change in setting. These include: During the night sleeping hours the thermostat setting might be reduced 5 to 10 degrees—with a resulting savings in fuel of between 5 to 8 per cent. Lowering night setting more than 10 degrees is inadvisable as it may overtax the heating equipment in the morning. During periods of inactivity you may find a temperature of between 70 to 75 degrees more comfortable, instead of 68 to 72 degrees. Should your home be poorly insulated with resulting low wall-surface (or glass-surface) temperatures in cold weather, a change in setting may be required as outdoor temperatures change.

ELIMINATES NEED FOR CHANGE

The most modern electric clock-style thermostat practically eliminates any need for change of setting. During the night-time sleeping hours this thermostat lowers the room temperature — automatically raising it again in the morning to the desired day-time level. By the time you are ready to arise the house is warm and cosy. Designed to overcome the annoyance of see-sawing hot-and-cold radiators, it has its own tiny heating plant to nudge the house heating plant into action before temperature changes can be felt. This built-in heater causes the burner to turn off just soon enough so that the heating plant's "momentum" does not overshoot the set temperatures. On the other hand, the temperature need fall only a fraction of a degree before the burner is re-started. Fluctuations in temperature are reduced to a minimum.

Begin Rebuilding Cobourg Arena

COBOURG— (ENS) — Workmen started Thursday on a contract awarded to Ryan Construction Co. to rebuild the recreation centre which was destroyed by fire last month.

The roof rafters will be somewhat different from the ones which the Hippel Company installed in the building when it was first built a few years ago.

There will be a fire wall between the front of the building and the arena, in contrast to the wooden wall of before. There will be more fire-resistant materials used and a sprinkler system will be built into the auditorium.

If the weather does not become too inclement, there is every hope that the building will be advanced enough to permit skating and hockey by Christmas.

Graduation Held At Bridgenorth

BRIDGENORTH (ENS)—Annual graduation exercises of SS 5, Smith Township, in Bridgenorth, were held Thursday evening in the school. Nearly 100 parents, friends and pupils attended the ceremony sponsored by the Home and School Association.

Karl Blewett, chairman of the School Board, was chairman for the evening, which opened with a processional in which the graduates and the school choir took part.

Mr. Blewett welcomed the graduates and Dianne Wood said how glad the school was to see its former pupils back. The valedictory address was given by Michael Smith.

Pupils of the senior room sang two selections, The Little Red School House and I Love to Whistle, with Mrs. Clayton Telford accompanying them on the piano.

Guest speaker, the Rev. T. H. Fleetham of Bridgenorth United Church, told the graduates that education standards grow higher each year.

He said it now takes more concentration to attain those standards. It is natural, he said, that students want to go out into the world and earn big money, but the main purpose of education in life was not the ability to make money. It was learning to live with one another and to give service to their fellowmen.

The humorous readings from Kipling and Tennyson were read by Lloyd Hale of Bridgenorth and Donna Doughty added two short readings.

Gifts were also presented to the three students with the best attendance record, Dianne Wood, Bobby Lane and Joseph Wymangaid.

Refreshments were served by social convener Mrs. Earl Blewett and her committee. Convener for the evening was Mrs. C. Hartman.

Taxis Encroached But No More

A request for an amendment of the taxicab bylaw was turned down by the Police Commission Thursday after Police Chief John W. Thompson said an interference situation was clearing up on its own accord.

The request came from Carmen Deck, proprietor of Allied Cabs, who claimed other taxis were moving in on his territory by renting land adjacent to the Colonial Coach terminal and attracting passengers from the buses.

Mr. Deck had previous arrangements with the Colonial Coach management that his cabs have exclusive rights to its bus passengers.

He proposed to amend the bylaw to provide that cabs operating off property, such as that he described rival taxis as renting, be compelled to erect booths and telephones there.

Chief Thompson assured the commission, however, that members of the police force had had the area under observation and warned offenders that if the situation didn't straighten up, the department would take steps to straighten it up.

Since that time, there had been no recurrences of the incidents.

Tapes Have Myriad Uses In The Home

By MR. FIX

It is well known that cellulose and plastic tapes have no end of uses around the home. Doubtless they have been put to uses that their manufacturers never dreamed of—and some that they might not even recommend.

But canny homemakers go on thinking up new jobs for the stuff, so a review of some of them is called for. Cellulose tape, being the older of the two, knows a greater variety of jobs. Plastic tape, which is brand-new, is a comer—a trouble-shooter for repair jobs and countless others.

The latter is extremely thin, black, sticks on contact, and moulds itself to odd-shaped objects. Unusually tough, it has a rubber-like quality that enables it to stretch more than twice its length. It is waterproof and impervious to oils, acids, prolonged sunlight or intense cold.

Here are a few of the uses already found for it: repairing rubber boots and rubber mats, for leaky water pipes, for wrapping handles of golf clubs, baseball bats, tennis racquets, fishing rods, tool handles, repairing leaky garden hose, and for replacing putty around windows.

A good insulator, its electrical uses include: insulating wires leading to automobile radios and heaters, preventing moisture and possible short-circuiting on spark plugs, and splicing lamp cords. Home handymen and craftsmen will undoubtedly come up with many more utility jobs for plastic tape in short order.

Everyone should be able to recognize cellulose tape. Thin and transparent, it sticks like a rusty door latch. Here are some uses it has known.

Checking Cold Air—Strip tape over air leaks between window panes and frames to keep out wintry breezes.

Repairing Broken Screen — Place one strip of tape over the outside of the hole and another over the hole on the inside. Press the two together to mend screens temporarily.

Mending Linoleum—Run a strip of tape over the full length of the break, and shellac over the tape. This measure will avert the danger of tripping over the broken area.

Fixing Window Pane—A temporary repair for cracked window glass is to place tape over crack until glass can be replaced.

Storing Screens—To keep from losing or misplacing screws and other parts when removing screens, storm windows and doors, attach them firmly to each frame with tape.

Stopping Cracked Plaster — Next time you hammer a nail into plaster to hang a picture, apply a small cross patch of tape over the spot to keep plaster from cracking.

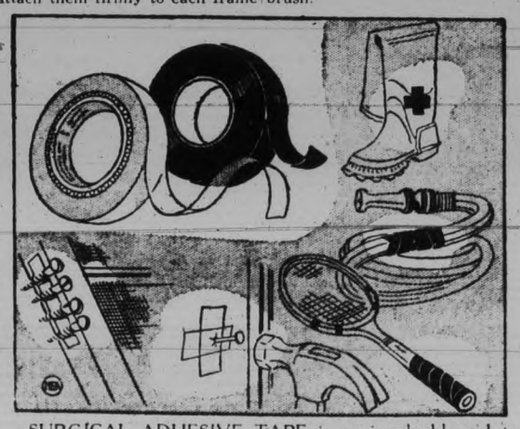
Sawing Plywood — Prevent splitting by stripping tape over plywood at point where it is about to be sawed.

Thumb-Tacking — To fasten thumb-tack in hard-to-reach place, first wrap forefinger with tape, sticky side out, then stick head of tack on tape and press into place.

FIX-IT FORUM

Q—Should a new paint brush be treated before use?

A—Yes. Suspend it in linseed oil for at least 12 hours. Squeeze out the oil when ready to use brush.



SURGICAL ADHESIVE TAPE is an invaluable aid to injured humans, and "stickum" tapes perform the same function for the ailing home.

Colin B. Mackay At 33 Head Of University

FREDERICTON (CP) — At 33, Colin B. Mackay is the youngest university president in Canada. His appointment as head of the University of New Brunswick here became effective Sept. 1.

A barrister at Saint John, N.B., since 1949, specializing in corporate administration work, Mr. Mackay also has been a lecturer at the UNB law school in that city.

"We are convinced we have a good man," Premier Hugh John Flemming said after announcing the appointment. "We were looking for a young man and we got one. We were hoping we would find a graduate who could take the post, and we did."

UNB GRADUATE

The new president is the first UNB graduate to return in that position since Thomas Harrison's term from 1885 to 1906.

Colin Bridges Mackay, handsome lean and a six-footer, has been a resident of Rothesay, nine miles from Saint John. He has an easy manner, gestures freely while speaking and, associates say, has an unusual capacity for work. Popular socially and in business, he is one of New Brunswick's most eligible bachelors.

He has sidestepped questions about any intention of changing his bachelor status and whether he will live alone in the large mansion which Lord Beaverbrook, UNB benefactor, bought as the official home of UNB presidents.

Former fellow students recall his exceptionally varied activities at the university. He was editor of the campus newspaper, co-editor of the yearbook, and an executive member of numerous societies. Now, little more than 10 years later, he remains a tennis enthusiast, reads widely and enjoys sailing on the St. John river.

SERVED IN NAVY

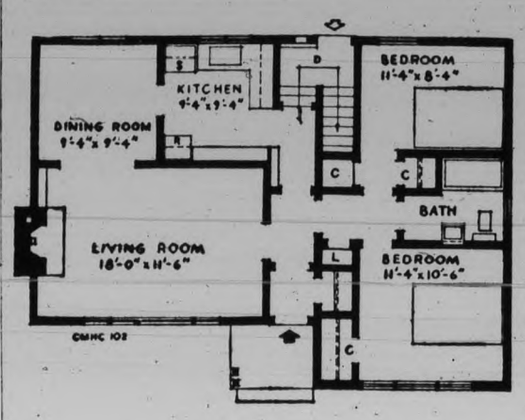
Mr. Mackay joined the Royal Canadian Navy in the Second World War just before graduating from UNB and served as a lieutenant. He commanded a landing craft in the Normandy invasion, later was loaned to the Royal Navy as an executive officer and took part in British operations in the invasion of Malaya. After his naval service he studied law at the University of British Columbia.

He is a nephew of Hugh Mackay, former New Brunswick Progressive Conservative leader. His father, Colin Mackay, is president of a lumber company at Saint John. His grandfather, the late Dr. H. S. Bridges, was superintendent of schools in Saint John and later a classics professor at UNB. Coupled with his administrative work in corporation law, the new UNB president has kept in close touch with educational developments.

He succeeds Dr. A. W. Trueman, who left the university to become chairman of the National Film Board.

Look Who Flunked Test

OAKVILLE (CP)—Six vehicles flunked a safety test held by police Wednesday in connection with the Oakville Safety Council's safety week. Among the offenders was the department's brand-new safety cruiser, docked for faulty headlights.



DESIGN-OF-THE-MONTH — This two bedroom bungalow designed by Ottawa architect, M. G. Dixon, has many attractive features. The house presents a pleasing exterior appearance, highlighted by the large living room window, while the roomy interior is well-planned with a hallway separating the living and sleeping areas.

The fireplace, which faces the entrance to the living room, provides a focal point for the arrangement of furniture, while the wide front window ensures good lighting and a pleasant atmosphere.

The kitchen is well arranged and has easy access to the rear entrance which leads directly to the basement stairs. It is also convenient to the separate dining room, a feature not usually found in a house of these dimensions.

The house contains a floor area of 904 square feet and the cubic measurement is 17,395 cubic feet. The exterior dimensions are 37 feet eight inches by 27 feet. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 102, may be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, at minimum cost.

Summer Farming, Winter Fishing Provide Dual Economy For Farmers In Manitoba

By JIM SHERBANIUK
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP) — On many Manitoba farms fishing nets rank side by side with threshing machines as standard equipment. A combination of summer farming and winter fishing makes the province both a major wheat producer and fishing ground.

In 1952 there were more than 3,000 part-time winter fishermen. Most of the fishermen engaged in winter operations are wheat farmers who take advantage of the slack times to earn extra money, sometimes almost doubling their incomes.

As a result, Winnipeg now is not only the home of Canada's only grain exchange but is the centre of the fresh water fishing industry in western Canada, handling the Manitoba production as well as large quantities of fish produced in neighboring provinces.

PRODUCTION INCREASE

The annual catch from Lake Winnipeg alone totals almost 19,000,000 pounds. The total for the other lakes in the province, Winnipegosis, Manitoba, Dauphin, Waterhen, and about 50 northern lakes, runs close to 20,000,000 pounds. Production value has increased steadily from only $1,051,547 in 1923 to the 1952 total of $7,664,503.

Pickerel is the biggest catch, registering 5,956,700 pounds compared with the 3,751,000 pounds of saugers, the nearest rival. Other major catches include bass, bullheads, carp, catfish, goldeyes, maria, perch, pike, suckers, tullibee and whitefish.

The hub of commercial fishing operations is Lake Winnipeg, seventh largest body of fresh water in the world and second to Great Slave Lake as the largest lake lying entirely inside Canadian boundaries. Situated within 50 miles of Winnipeg, the lake is close to major canneries and fish dealers. The lake itself is 258 miles long, from 1½ to 60 miles wide and covers 9,300 square miles.

WELL PROTECTED

The valuable fishing resources are protected by the Manitoba government. An army of fisheries department employees, including biologists, make detailed surveys of food supplies, water temperatures, and the spread of disease. One group devotes its time to recording the ages of fish caught every year.

A close check is kept on the number of fish taken from the lakes yearly, and the amount left for breeding purposes. Government radio-equipped launches patrol the lakes enforcing the laws under the Fish Dealers Act.

Operation of eight hatcheries and several spawning camps keeps the province's lakes well stocked for both commercial and sport fishing. Billions of eggs are collected and processed each year. They are allowed to hatch during the winter months and are transported by air to specific lakes in the spring. A process has been developed whereby fertile and infertile eggs are separated, thus saving time and shipping costs.

By arrangement with other countries and provinces, eggs from Manitoba hatcheries and spawning camps are exchanged for a variety of species, including black bass from North Dakota and speckled or lake trout from Alberta.

RUSSIAN ENVOY — Dmitri Stepanovitch Chuvakhin, former Soviet minister to Albania, has been appointed Soviet ambassador to Canada. He succeeds Georgi Zarubin, who returned to Russia shortly before the espionage trials in Canada in 1945. It has not been announced when the new ambassador will arrive in Canada.

John Smith

The funeral service for John Smith, 70, of 336 Mark St., who died suddenly at his home Wednesday, was held Friday at the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. Dr. W. D. Patterson, of Mark St. United Church, assisted by the Rev. E. W. Rowland, officiated. The pallbearers were: Walter and Thomas Townsend, James and William Johnson, Joseph Sexsmith and Robert MacKirdy. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Layoff At Chrysler

DETROIT (AP)—Chrysler Corp. announced Friday the immediate, indefinite layoff of 8,000 employees and the shutdown of its Plymouth division plant here. Chrysler blamed a shortage in trim material from suppliers for the shutdown. The corporation estimated that 4,000 non-production workers—maintenance, clerical and such employees—will continue working.

Expect United States Aid Revaluing Pound Sterling

By FRANK O'BRIEN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Persons in the know say the United States government will probably be willing "under the proper circumstances" to help back a fund of $4,000,000,000 or $5,000,000,000 to help make the pound sterling freely exchangeable again.

The proper circumstances, as outlined by administration sources, would include:

1. Participation by the international monetary fund.

2. Success by the British government in its efforts to halt inflation and increase production in the British Isles.

3. British agreement to lift, at least in large part, present trade and monetary restrictions.

4. Indications that the U.S. Congress is willing to institute a more liberal tariff policy.

5. Prospects that the Dutch, Belgians, Germans and, probably, the French would move with Britain or soon after to make their money convertible and free their trade of most restrictions.

This was learned in a series of talks with officials following the release by President Eisenhower of a hard-hitting report on dollar-sterling relations by Lewis W. Douglas, former United States ambassador to Britain.

Significantly, Eisenhower called the Douglas report to the "earnest attention" of Clarence Randall, recently-appointed chairman of a presidential commission to make a broad study of U. S. foreign economic policy.

Asked by Eisenhower to probe Britain's economic problems, and their relation to the United States, Douglas told the president:

1. Unless sterling becomes freely convertible into dollars and other money, it is doubtful if there can be world economic freedom.

2. Liberalization of United States "restrictive protectionist policy" would be a major factor in preparing the ground for convertibility by allowing Britain and others to earn more dollars.

3. Progress has been made by Britain in her trade and currency problems. This might be lost without prompt announcement by the United States government that it is "determined" to work toward freer trade.

4. A retreat abroad to widespread trade and currency fetters might signal the "final failure" of present-day capitalism.

High tariffs, Douglas said, are a contradiction of the United States' position as the world's biggest lender and seller. He said they prevent foreign borrowers and buyers from earning dollars to repay their loans or pay for their purchases of U.S. goods. They react with quotas that restrict buying in the U.S. and with regulations that make it illegal to use their currency, except on permission, for purchases of dollar goods.

Douglas thus put his finger on liberalizing American tariffs as the basic contribution of the United States to conditions which would make economic freedom, and perhaps freedom itself, possible in the western world.

But he said also that convertibility of foreign currencies, particularly of the pound sterling, must be the aim because free trade can not exist apart from free currencies.

Britain announced after last year's Commonwealth conference she wanted to move toward convertibility of the pound. But she has spelled out two basic conditions to convertibility:

1. Freer U.S. tariff policies, to allow her to earn more dollars.

2. Some protection cushion under the pound as it ventures out into convertibility.

The Economist suggested a $35,000,000,000 fund as the proper-size cushion. A stabilization fund cushion would give the British government ready dollars to borrow if, in freeing the pound from restrictions in use, so many people wanted to exchange the pound for the dollar that the British treasury ran out of dollars.

Britain has reserves at present of about $2,500,000,000 in gold and dollars. Figuring in price changes, that is only about one-third what Britain had in gold and dollar reserve in 1937, when the pound was a free currency.

Eyeing these slim reserves, Britain hesitates to plunge into convertibility without the protection of a dollar stabilization fund to prevent a "run on sterling."

Informed officials here say they agree. But, they say, the pound can never be made a sold currency internationally if it is sick at home. British domestic policy must produce a "hard pound" which does not lose purchasing power at home before it can again be made "hard currency" internationally, they say.

Further, they say, there would inevitably be a "run on sterling" if sterling became convertible before British production is strong enough to satisfy the purchasing demands of all sterling holders. Strong British production would mean that a Brazilian, for instance, who had sterling could and probably would use it to buy British products instead of demanding dollars and buying U.S. products.

In the last year, U.S. officials note, Britain has gone far to check inflation at home. British production has increased. These officials say another eight to 10 months must pass before it can be determined how lasting are the British economic improvements.

If progress continues, they said, and other conditions are satisfied, the United States will probably be willing to help underwrite a sterling stabilization fund as high as $5,000,000,000.

Measure Progress Made On Highway In Pounds Of Blasting Powder

GOLDEN, B.C. (CP)—Construction of the Trans-Canada Highway from here to Field, 38 miles away near the continental divide, is expected to take two years, and progress can almost be measured in pounds of blasting powder.

The road, when completed, will wind through the treacherous but picturesque Kicking Horse country, through Yoho National Park in the Rocky Mountains.

The road will equal the engineering wonder that takes the Canadian Pacific Railway track through the mountainous area. The highway is being blasted out of the sides of the steep slopes, about 500 to 1,000 feet above the white waters of the Kicking Horse river.

RAILWAY BELOW

Below the road is the railway, and, of course, the rock and dirt that is blasted from the side of the mountains cannot be dumped over the side and onto the roadbed. It must be hauled to safer spots.

It takes a pound of powder to blast ever yard of rock. The blasts vary in effectiveness and it is estimated that the job will mean removal of 500,000 yards of rock and an equal amount of dirt.

The job was started this spring and already considerable progress has been made. About 10 miles have been paved.

There have been many slides, but none so far of a too serious nature. For the protection of the workers—mostly hardrock miners—two first aid stations are maintained along the route and an ambulance continually patrols the road.

FOLLOWS OLD ROUTE

The old road—24 feet wide—presented many a problem when a motorist met a car coming in the opposite direction. The new road, which follows the old one, will be 38 feet wide.

Nine miles east of Golden what will be the park bridge, a 450-foot span, will cross the Kicking Horse river at a height of 100 feet. Twelve miles east of Golden a 160-foot span will cross Mount Hunter creek at a height of 75 feet.

The traveller will get his first glimpse of what will be the Rocky Mountains leg of the new road soon after he passes the east gate of Banff National Park.

Still a matter of interest is the route to be decided on from west of Golden to Revelstoke. From what work is going on, it is obvious a new route is at least under consideration.

Survey crews are working in the box-like Albert canyon country 70 miles west of Golden. A more direct route between the two points would cut 100 miles from the present 200-mile loop that follows the Columbia river.

It was in the Albert canyon area that the CPR was stymied by the mile-high Mount Macdonald, and first went through Rogers pass, with the roadbed climbing 500 feet in five miles.

In 1916, the CPR eliminated this by boring the five-mile Connaught tunnel through Mount Macdonald.

To illustrate highway - building problems in the area, the railway line between Golden and Revelstoke touches the Beaver, Columbia and Illecillewaet rivers and in this game of engineering tag crosses the rivers or their tributaries at least 15 times.

For Wise And Good Living

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.

Three things at least are valuable, if not essential, for wise and good living: good teaching and sound precepts; the power of great examples; and signposts and directions at the doubtful and perplexing paths.

We all need direction and guidance, as much in the journey of life as upon our modern complicated highways.

It was always so. That is why the Bible makes so much of wisdom, guidance and a working faith, even if all the perplexities were not made plain.

At its deepest and most intense point Job, or the author of that truth-searching drama, faced the doubts and perplexities. If he did not come to a solution, he did come to a working faith. "Shall not the judge of all the earth do right?"

It is the same unsolved mystery that underlies even the great words of Jesus' assurance. "Are not two sparrows sold for a farthing? And one of them shall not fa[illegible] the ground without your Father?"

The underlying mystery is, why does the sparrow fall? It is the mystery in the presence of war, suffering and disaster, as well as in the presence of death.

Perhaps, as the poet has written, "Whatever there is to know, that shall we know one day"; but at present life and death, despite all mystery, are very real.

We need faith, direction and guidance.

Where can we get the guidance w eneed? Counsel for living is available on every hand.

But the Bible is still our best guide. Hebrew saints and seers, and Christian witnesses, have made the Bible what it has been rightly called, "God's book for man's life."

What did the Hebrew saints and prophets have to say?

Deeply, profoundly, they stressed the fact that true guidance in life begins at its source. The first thing is getting right direction. "Keep thy heart with all diligence"; says one of the great proverbs (Proverbs 4:23), "for out of it are the issues of life."

It is amazing how repeatedly this stress upon the heart as the inner source of life and motive appears in the Hebrew Scriptures of the Old Testament.

Its intense, but typical, expression is in Psalm 139:23, "Search me, O God, and know my heart: try me and know my thoughts: and see if there be any wicked way in me, and lead me in the way everlasting."

Much of life's happiness and welfare depends upon good relations with other people, even with persons that one may not like. "Fret not thyself because of evildoers." "Agree with thine adversary quickly." "Let not the sun go down on thy wrath."

How much of strife, unhappiness and worry might have been spared if men had given more heed to such counsels.

The Bible is indeed God's book for man's life, and if heed is given to it, as the Book itself says, "The wayfaring men, though fools, shall not err therein" (Isaiah 35:8).

With The Boy Scouts

By CHAS. H. SPEARIN

The romance of cubbing is based upon the stories contained in Kipling's jungle books. More particularly it finds its basis in the story of Mowgli, the young boy left for dead by village raiders on the outskirts of the jungle.

Mowgli, so the story goes, was carried away by a pair of jungle wolves and spent the early years of his boyhood amongst the wolf cubs as one of them, living by the law of the wolf cub pack under the rule of the Old Wolf, Akela. So today our wolf cubs are free to run as a pack and still obey the commands of Akela the Cub Master. A Cub is taught to smile at all times here again emulating the wolf cub with his permanent grin. A cub gives in to the Old Wolf. A cub does not give in to himself.

ST. JOHN'S

The Scouts of St. John's Anglican Church held a very successful corn roast at the Nassau Scout grounds. Marshmallows, cokes and corn were enjoyed followed by a program of singing and story telling. Special guests for the occasion were the members of the Scout Mothers' Auxiliary who assisted at the Cub camp held in June.

New Chum, Charles Purser was called into the Circle during the Cub games and presented with his white Zulu Boy neckerchief by his father, Akela Stan Purser.

The group committee and scouts of St. John's Troop express their appreciation of the service of Mr. Ernest Trueman as acting scout master during the past several months. Mr. A. J. Fort, an engineer with the Hydro Electric Power Commission and a former scout is the new scout master. We wish him every success.

16TH TRINITY

At a group committee meeting held last Wednesday evening Blain Till was elected committee chairman for the following year. A vote of appreciation for the splendid work of immediate past (not retiring) president, Mr. Eric Westby, was roundly endorsed by all present. Mr. Ev. Robinson, though absent, was acclaimed vice chairman and Mr. Murray McCullough was named secretary for a second term.

The date of Friday, September 25, was set for the annual corn roast for the cubs, scouts and parents at the Nassau Camp grounds.

MR. ALBERT HOPE

News of the passing of Mr. Albert Hope in the Kingston General Hospital last Wednesday was received in deep sorrow by the scouting fraternity in Peterborough. Appointed to the executive of the Local Association at its seventh annual meeting in 1931, he was Cub Commissioner for a number of years. An honorary member on the executive of the association in recent years, Mr. Hope will be remembered as a faithful worker and champion of scouting.

The 1953-54 night school begins shortly with registration at PCVS on Oct. 5 and Oct. 7.

Trial Opens, Man Charged Tried Murder

Believes Stepfather Jealous of Love Between Girl, Mother

COBOURG (ENS).— Testifying at the preliminary trial of her stepfather on an attempted murder charge, 19-year-old Yvonne Saunders, Oshawa stenographer, told the court Friday that her stepfather, Stanley Cowling, a Bowmanville district farmer, had never been to her a "kind, loving father," and that she felt that he was jealous of the love which she and her mother had for each other.

The preliminary hearing is to be continued next Tuesday morning at Bowmanville, following an adjournment here late Friday afternoon. Magistrate R. B. Baxter is presiding; Harry Deyman of Cobourg acts for the Crown, and Arthur Greer of Oshawa is defence counsel.

The slight Tyrone farmer, who is 38 years of age, is alleged by the Crown to have sent poisoned chocolates to his stepdaughter.

Yvonne Saunders told the court during her hour on the witness stand, that on Jan. 19 she was waiting at the bus station in Bowmanville, where she was secretary at Bowmanville General Hospital, for the bus which would take her home.

CHOCOLATES SENT

An orderly from the hospital, Eddie Willis, whose duties included getting the mail, handed her a box wrapped in brown paper, at the bus station. She unwrapped it to find it was a box of chocolates with a note, "Till we meet again. Love.—A.S." She said that the initials were those of a young man she knew.

She offered some to a girl friend who didn't want one and she in turn decided against eating any. However, she passed a few out to some of the other girls on the bus.

"When I arrived home I handed the box to mother and she noticed a white powder in the bottom of the top layer. I hadn't noticed it before. We could see then, that they had been tampered with and mother said she would take them to the police. My father made no comment," testified the girl.

Continuing, she related that she had received three anonymous notes, two of them in the latter part of 1952 and one of them three days after she received the chocolates.

The first note she regarded as a joke and tore it up, but the other two she kept and gave to her mother, and these were turned over to the police.

She told of an incident which took place shortly before her fa-

$4,000 Fire Destroys Barn Burns Dog, Hay And Oats

WARSAW (ENS)—Fire that broke out Friday midnight in the loft of Fred Sharpe's barn, on the northern outskirts of the village, destroyed the barn and its contents and killed a hound trapped inside. The loss is estimated at $4,000. Cause of the fire that started in the loft where the hound was tied up is not known. OPP Constable John Cawood is investigating, and the OPP say that the Fire Marshal's office in Toronto may be called in on the case.

The loss is partly covered by insurance.

Destroyed in the fire were the two-storey wooden barn, which was burned to its stone foundations, and the contents which included 30 tons of hay, three tons of straw, 200 bushels of oats, a hay wagon and some wagon racks, several horses' collars and pieces of harness, and nearly 3,000 shingles.

BUCKET BRIGADE

Neighbors formed a bucket brigade but they were unable to put out the barn blaze. However, by pulling down a wooden fence they saved the flames from spreading to the nearby garage and drive shed containing the family car and the larger farm implements.

Mr. and Mrs. Sharpe were wakened at midnight by a telephone call from a neighbor, George Hawkins, who told them that their barn was on fire. When Mr. Sharpe ran to the two-storey building, the main floor was not yet on fire; but the loft, containing the hay and straw, was a mass of flames.

Mr. Sharpe tried to get up the stairs from the main floor to the loft to rescue the trapped hunting dog but he was forced back by smoke and flames. Neighbors had to hold him to prevent him making any further attempt.

Utilities Favors Natural Gas From The West

Supporting a proposal to pipe natural gas to Peterborough and Eastern Canada, the Peterborough Utilities Commission will ask for assurance on two points in contacting the Albera Natural Gas and Petroleum Conservation Board.

Members will ask, first, for continuity of supply and second, stability of gas prices. The company which intends to supply the natural gas, Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, has applied to the board for permission to sell it, and if permission is granted, will be able to undertake the project within the next few years.

Cost of supplying gas locally has been estimated by the commission at 9.7 cents per 100,000 b.t.u.'s, (therm), compared to the present cost of gas of 12 cents per therm.

On that basis and comparing natural gas costs with costs of other fuels, leading industries in the city were contacted by the PUC.

Quaker Oats officials said gas for their steam boilers at that figure would not warrant a changeover from the present coal system while Outboard Marine representatives said their gas consumption for industrial processes would be doubled if natural gas was available.

Western Clock Company estimated an increase from 284 therms per month to well over 1,000 if natural gas came to Peterborough. In addition, the management would consider using gas as fuel to operate boilers during summer months. This would add another 700 therms per month to the total.

Commenting on the industrial poll, W. H. Powell, general manager of the PUC, said "It is evident that natural gas may mean a doubling of the gas volume used for industrial processes." To obtain a consumption 10 times that at present, however, it would appear that gas must be used for firing heating plants in industry.

Such conditions have been met in U.S. industry and a switchover of smaller factories to oil and gas burning in their boilers does occur.

An independent firm, H. R. Ferguson Co., surveying leading industries here, predicted an increase from 1,925 cubic feet of gas a year, used at present, to 434,400 cubic feet if natural gas were supplied to Peterborough consumers.

Local manufacturers, however, were unwilling to make any prediction that their firms would use large quantities of gas, to back up the Ferguson estimates. A large part of the estimate was attributed to the use of gas for steam heating and it appears Peterborough industries would be unwilling to attempt such a project until it proved, locally, to be practical.

Trans - Canada Pipelines estimates it can provide an adequate supply to Eastern Canada cities and towns for at least 15 years without obtaining gas in addition to that now requested in Alberta and that available in Saskatchewan.

Known reserves of natural gas are sufficient to supply the Eastern market for 25 years over and above that, even in the unlikely event no more gas is discovered. Canada's Eastern market at a mil-

An official estimated Trans-Canada will serve a million consumers in centres not served at present with natural gas. An additional half-million customers are available in Southern Ontario which is already supplied from Texan and local fields.

FAR FROM HOME but loyal to Peterborough are these supporters of the Trailermen in their bid for their third Mann cup. Some, like Harry Udy, 484 Parnell St., shown talking to club manager Pup Curtin, went out to see the series. Others like Fred McMasters (beaming in top right photo) happened to be there. Fred, who used to play minor lacrosse in Peterborough, is in the navy stationed in British Columbia. Still others now have their homes in the west, like Mrs. Cyril Lambe of Victoria (lower right); who used to teach school in the district. Mrs. Lambe is talking to her uncle, W. H. Andrews of Peterborough, who at 74 went west to cheer the team on. —(Staff Photos by Grant)

Three New Courses Offered At Night School In PCVS

Three new night school courses are to be recommended to the Board of Education by the advisory vocational committee.

B. W. Switzer, vice-principal of the night school, has drawn up a course in mechanical technology for apprentices, similar to the Ryerson Diploma Night School Course, that will enable them to write the Ryerson examinations if they wish.

For persons in the automotive industry, or who intend to go into the industry, a program of automotive technical training has been worked out. It is divided into three parts: 1. Service station operations training; 2. Part One of the Auto Mechanics Apprentice Course; and 3. Part Two of the Auto Mechanics Apprentice Course.

On the advice of Miss Katherine Macdougall, head of the home economics department, the committee decided to do away with one of the children's sewing classes and substitute two 10-lesson courses in the smocking of children's clothes.

The women who enlisted in the sewing class last year were less interested in making clothes for children (up to five years of age or so) than in smocking. And this was reflected in the attendance. After hearing Miss Macdougall's explanation the committee decided to give the customers what they wanted.

"The Ontario Industrial Education Council hope that apprenticeship will . . . be more uniform throughout the province," said Mr. Switzer. "As a first step in this direction, it is suggested that we follow the Ryerson Diploma Night School Course in Mechanical Technology for apprenticeship related subjects."

Part of the program has already been approved by the advisory vocational committee but there would have to be other subjects added: mechanics and hydraulics, precision measurements, metallurgy, strength of materials. Entrance requirements would be completion of: (1) Grade XII of the Academic Course with three options, two of which must be mathematics and science; (2) Grade XII of the Industrial Course.

Mr. Switzer said that this would be a "pioneer" move for smaller centres in the province. "The program is an improvement because it will give a student a recognized standard of related training similar to the British National Certificate.

The topics taught in the proposed automechanic courses and the specialized instructors have been chosen after consultation with the training officer of the local Garage Operators' Association.

Registration for Night School will be Oct. 5 and 7 at PCVS.

City Gas Meters Due For Check

Gas meters in Peterborough, some over 40 years old, are due for an inspection by the government this year and the Public Utilities Commission is satisfied some won't pass.

To this end, members of the commission approved the purchase of 100 new meters valued at around $2,000 to replace the old timers.

Each year the government inspects some of the meters and 210 are slated to appear for examination in 1953. Of these, 2 are over 40 years old and as with all man-made products, have not escaped the ravages of time.

One such veteran, 1906 vintage, was displayed before the board of commissioners at their meeting Friday. It looked fine from the outside but suffered from rust and corrosion inside.

It, along with other aged meters, will get the hatchet when inspection time comes along.

Attendance At Exhibition Fails To Pick Up Friday; 2,500 Below Same Day '52

Visitors Agree Good Show To Be Seen
More Entries In All Classes
No Reason Evident For Lack of Crowd

Peterborough Exhibition was caught Friday with its attendance down by F. A. Lashley, director of agricultural societies for the Ontario government. What every director was saying through the Friday afternoon was simply this: they had never seen such a slim crowd for the second last day of the week. That was suggestive of the atmosphere into which Mr. Lashley entered as an official of the Ontario government. The point of interest is that the Ontario department provides considerable financial assistance for agricultural societies in their fairs and other worthwhile enterprises.

In the evening the attendance picked up but it was still well below the same day a year ago.

Total attendance for the Friday of last year's exhibition was 8,324 in comparison with 5,892 on the second last day this year.

Friday's attendance:

Adults	4,906
Children	986
Grandstand afternoon:
Adults	275
Children	33
Reserves	48
Grandstand evening:
Adults	843
Children	260
Reserves	365
Thursday's attendance:
Adults	4,013
Children	569
Grandstand afternoon:
Adults	257
Children	21
Reserves	73
Grandstand evening:
Adults	625
Children	148
Reserves	283

Ken Fallis, also of the Department, called Thursday on his way to Beaverton fair. His comment was "Peterborough has another good exhibition; everything but the people."

Mr. Lashley chatted with Harold Millen, Ken Best, Archie Clysdale and others.

They could report, if they wished, a show of around 600 dairy cattle; probably 150 or more head of beef breeds; big entries of livestock; interesting exhibits; a Junior Farmers' Day that was a fine success.

Melville Johnston was "sick all afternoon"; Alex Huston would have been a disconsolate bedfellow. They had never dreamed of seeing a Friday afternoon show at such a low ebb. They dreaded thinking of bills payable. On top of that weariness of spirit, was the visit of the director of fairs. What report and opinion was he likely to take back to the Department—and the Minister?

As for other opinions they were the liveleist around the park. They agreed on comment: Peterborough Exhibition over a long period of years, and not just of yesterday, has been unfortunate in its public relations.

The Examiner could quote a dozen or more of the observations of men who said they were interested first in the success of any Peterborough undertaking, and the reputation of the community in progressiveness. They felt hurt at a flopping afternoon for which there was no apparent or immediate reason.

Another certainty: Friday there was little or no difference between the responses of the urban and rural sections of Peterborough district. They were both absent, excepting a comparatively few loyal supporters from both communities.

Ducks Reported Scarce As Season Opens

Although sales of duck hunting equipment and licences were reported exceptionally good on Friday, the ducks themselves were comparatively scarce.

Opening day shooters claim that few birds were flying and the early returning hunters were more than a little disappointed. In the lakehead areas around Apsley, which usually afford the best opening day shooting, one party reported a bag of six black ducks as compared with more than 100 taken on the same date last year.

Blinds on Pigeon lake were almost silent with only the occasional shotgun blast breaking the stillness.

One of the reasons given for the slack shooting is the unnatural warmth of the season. Much of the duck population which would normally have moved down from the northern lakes have not done so, and, as in the case of lunge fishing, the best hunting is going to be later on, when things cool down and the nip of frost is in the air.

Hospital To Equip Recovery Room

One of the operating rooms at Civic Hospital is to be used as a recovery room.

The Board of Governors has approved expenditure of $667.64 to equip operating room B for the purpose.

It will have positions for five beds, making stretchers unnecessary, with bedside tables, oxygen and suction available at each position.

It is expected to have the room staffed next month under the general direction of the operating room supervisor. Equipment will be installed by the hospital staff.

Mother Bear, 3 Cubs Shot

WARSAW—(ENS)—A mother bear and her three cubs were killed early Tuesday morning on the farm of Percy Moore, Dummer township, by two neighbors.

Russel Tedford shot one large and two small ones and Alvin Bell accounted for the other cub.

Sherwood Moore was plowing about 10:00 a.m. Tuesday when he noticed two bears at the edge of the woods between his father's farm and Marvin Kidd's. He hurried to the house and told Miss Georgina Moore to phone Russel Tedford, who lives directly west of them, to come and bring his gun.

Tedford phoned Alvin Bell, another neighbor, to bring his gun. When they reached the Moore farm, they left Percy Moore on watch while Sherweed Moore entered the woods from the west with his .22 calibre rifle. Russel Tedford entered the woods from the east.

GETS THREE

Tedford encountered four bears instead of two. He fired five times and downed three of them. One cub got away. Alvin Bell saw it and shot at it but missed.

The men decided that Russel Tedford should get his Wolfhound. While he was gone, Mark Lansberry and George Hawkins arrived.

The cub finally climbed a tree after being shot at twice by Thomas Howe. Alvin Bell finished it.

Farm Woodlot Institute Topic

NORWOOD (ENS)—The Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Lionel Edmunds with 17 members and one visitor present.

Mrs. R. A. Armstrong gave the report of the building committee and also the current events.

Mrs. Roy Baker convener of agriculture and industries, prepared a paper which was read by Mrs. Jack Hyslop entitled "The Farm Woodlot." There are many important reasons why the woodlot should be preserved on the Ontario farms she said. "Leading authorities say at least 10 or 20 per cent of any agricultural section should be supporting forest growth or woodland. It has been observed that a community with a good proportion of wooded hills and forest growth is not so subject to damage by winds and floods.

"Trees prevent erosion of the soil by both wind and water. Woodland and swamps are natural reservoirs that provide water for both springs and wells, and many wells that formerly provided an adequate supply of water for the farm are now dry part of the time due to the lack of sufficient forest growth.

"Pasturing the woodlot is harmful as the stock browse the seedlings, break down saplings and also injure the roots fo the large trees."

Mrs. Gordon Parker was appointed delegate to the Convention to be held in Toronto in November, with Mrs. Milton Cornish alternative.

Mrs. MacPherson moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Edmunds for the use of her home, and the meeting closed with the Queen, followed by a delicious lunch served by Mesdames K. Edwards, D. Nixon, Wm. Golloher and E. Armstrong.

AFTER THE FUNERAL, DISGRACE—At his father's funeral, Vassily Stalin (centre) marched as pallbearer between Vyacheslav Molotov (left) and Russia's new boss, Georgi Malenkov.

VASSILY STALIN—For his downfall, few Russian tears.

Kremlin Puts Stalin's Son In Slave Camp In Arctic

By LEON DENNEN
NEA Staff Correspondent

PARIS (NEA)—Vassily Stalin, the dead dictator's hard-drinking and fast-living son, is a prisoner in a slave labor camp of Kolyma in the Arctic region, an Allied diplomat who just returned from Moscow reports.

Young Stalin, until his recent disgrace, had the rank of Lieutenant General of the Soviet Air Force and was a deputy of the Moscow Soviet.

The purge of the late dictator's dissolute son is believed to be another victory for Premier Georgi Malenkov in the Kremlin's bloody struggle for power, the diplomat told me.

Vassily Stalin was known to be Malenkov's bitter enemy. He openly charged the new boss of the Kremlin with responsibility for his father's death. He reportedly back Lavrenti Beria, deposed chief of the Soviet secret police, in the latter's frantic race to grab absolute power in the Red underworld.

HATED IN RUSSIA

Even during the tyrannical reign of his father, young Stalin was universally hated in Russia. Few tears will be shed over his disgrace. He was particularly despised in Red Army ranks where he once ran roughshod over many high ranking officers, including Marshal Gregory Zhukov.

The disgrace of Vassily was first noted by western diplomats on August 23 when he failed to appear as the leader of Russia's annual military air parade. In the past he was the star of the show.

Svetlana Stalin, the late dictator's spirited daughter, alarmed by her brother's sudden disappearance, asked to see Premier Malenkov. She was refused admission to the Kremlin where she was raised as a child and where her father once reigned supreme.

However, Svetlana was informed by the secretary of the district committee of the Moscow Communist Party that her brother was detailed to Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky's Far Eastern Command and could not return to Moscow in time for the air parade.

INTERVIEW REFUSED

After several weeks, Svetlana asked for another interview with Malenkov. The Red premier refused to see her. Neither would Vyacheslav Molotov, the No. 2 man in the new Kremlin, although she is married to one of Molotov's nephews.

This time, however, Svetlana was told the bitter truth. Her brother had violated the discipline and oath of loyalty which binds every Red Army officer. As punishment he was sent to a "correction camp" in Kolyma—one of Russia's vast net of slave labor camps which, ironically enough, the late dictator designed for his political opponents.

The disgrace of Vassily lifts a tiny corner of the Iron Curtain that veils the intrigue and conspiracy now being enacted in the Kremlin.

SOME QUESTIONS

Did Stalin die a natural death or did Malenkov and Molotov have a hand in his passing? Was Beria deposed because he knew the identity of Stalin's assassins?

Fantastic? Not if you know the history of Red Russia. The late Leon Trotsky once charged that Stalin, in his ruthless climb to power, actually poisoned the ailing Lenin. Trotsky was assassinated in Mexico in 1940 at Stalin's behest.

Young Vassily is known to have stated openly that Malenkov killed his father. He cited as proof, among other things, the fact that neither he nor his sister were permitted to see the dictator during his illness.

No even Stalin's life-long confidential secretary, Alexander N. Poskrebyshev, was permitted at the dictator's bedside in his last hours, young Stalin charged.

Poskrebyshev was the only man Stalin trusted completely. He handled Stalin's secret file of compromising data on Soviet prominents. Poskrebyshev "disappeared" on the day Stalin died and has not been heard of since.

Student Newspaper Shut Down At College

TORONTO (CP)—The Backlog, student newspaper of the Canadian Memorial Chiropractic College here, has been shut down and its editor, Bob Dryburgh, suspended from the college for criticizing the recent dismissal of R. O. Muller, dean of the institution for the last seven years.

Announcement of the newspaper's closing and the editor's suspension was made Thursday at a student assembly by A. E. Homewood, the new dean. He said suspension of the paper was temporary until it shows it has responsible direction.

More than 65 per cent of the college's 200 students have signed a petition asking that Dean Muller be rehired.

Naturalists Watch Migration Of Hawks

ST. THOMAS (CP)—Naturalists flocked to this southwestern Ontario district Friday for the annual migration of broadwing hawks to the south. The exodus is scheduled to take place this week-end.

For years great flocks of redtails, sparrow hawks, sharpshins and other species of hawks have been migrating south over a particular point near Port Stanley which has become known as hawk cliff. Members of the Ontario Federation of Naturalists count the hawks as they head south.

The birds were expected to wing over the cliff by the thousands today and Sunday.

Dismiss Charge Against Officer

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—A charge of being the owner of a car involved in an accident against Douglas Carter, a Windsor police constable, has been dismissed by magistrate Fred K. Jasperson.

In a written judgment, the magistrate explained that the dismissal stemmed from a legal technicality involving the precedence of federal legislation over provincial.

Carter was charged as the owner of the car which struck and seriously injured John Giedrivnas of Riverside on Aug. 15.

Evidence taken in the case last week showed that Carter had reported personally to Riverside police shortly after the accident that he was the owner of the car but was not driving it at the time of the accident. He did not reveal the driver's name.

Sweden Declares Amnesty On 5-Year Liquor Offenders

By THOMAS HARRIS

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Sweden has declared an amnesty for alcoholics.

The state liquor control board which, records the sobriety of citizens, has decided that henceforth it will keep the names of alcohol offenders on its books for five years only. After that, their names will be removed, leaving them once again with a clean record.

This measure has been taken to save board employees work. It is not a sop to the increasing criticisms made against Sweden's liquor laws by both drinkers and total abstainers. Nevertheless, it is a new step in the march towards freer drinking in Sweden which started after the war.

The biggest step so far is the planned abolition of the liquor ration book now recommended after some nine years' consideration, by both a state committee of investigation and the Central Association of Temperance Societies.

COMPLICATED JOB

Getting a liquor ration book has always been a complicated procedure here. The applicant has to fill in forms and present himself for an interview at the state alcohol administration.

The officials may make inquiries with the police or even of the applicant's neighbors.

If the officials are satisfied that the applicant is of good character, they will grant him a book with the full ration of three litres (three quart bottles) a month.

The book also theoretically authorizes the owner to buy as much wine as he likes. In practice, however, this is limited to as much as the officials think he can safely use.

Every bottle he buys is registered and if some official thinks that a citizen is over-buying, he will tell him so in a sharply-worded letter.

WITHDRAW BOOK

If the ration book holder fails to pay his income tax, if his neighbors complain he is drunk frequently, or if he is considered unworthy for any other reason, the officials will withdraw his book.

Liquor restrictions in restaurants will also be eased considerably. Customers do not need a ration book to buy drinks in restaurants. But they may not have more than about half a pint per meal if they are a man, or about a quarter of a pint if they are a woman under existing regulations.

The new regulations will give men and women equal drinking rights in restaurants and abolish the half-pint maximum.

Although it is going to be easier to buy drink in Sweden, it will be more dangerous to be drunk at the wheel.

Under existing laws anyone found at the wheel of a car when his blood contains .15 per cent of alcohol can be sentenced to imprisonment, whether he is involved in an accident or not.

Under the new regulations, the margin of alcohol content allowed will be reduced to .08 per cent.

No Support Price So Stop Fishing

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — The Newfoundland Federation of Fishermen said Friday that most of its membership, irked at lack of a federal support price for fish, has stopped fishing.

The movement appeared to be widespread in most of the island's major inshore fishing centres but it was not a strike in the sense of an organized walkout.

Max Lane, president of the federation which claims a membership of between 5,000 and 6,000, emphasized that the federation had not ordered the men to cease fishing or hold up their fish. It was a voluntary movement which apparently spread rapidly.

The movement apparently started soon after Fisheries Minister Sinclair announced last Saturday that the government did not intend to fix a support price this year.

Two Men Seeking Liberal Nomination

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Two men are seeking the Liberal nomination in the provincial by-election to be held in the Niagara Falls riding Oct. 26.

They are alderman Grant Donald of Niagara Falls and reeve George Bukator of Chippawa.

Arthur Jolley, 40-year-old former member of the Niagara Falls city council, is the Progressive Conservative candidate.

The CCF has yet to announce its plans for the by-election.

The seat was vacated when William L. Houck, Liberal, resigned to contest the federal Niagara Falls seat in the general election of Aug. 10. He was elected.

Births, Deaths Up

TORONTO (CP)—August births, marriages and deaths in Ontario all showed an increase over the same month of 1952. A report Friday from the registrar-general's department gave these figures, with those for 1952 bracketed: Births 10,806 (10,230), marriages 4,496 (3,996), and deaths 3,319 (3,273).

Urge Fumes Be Controlled

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—A standard classification to control fumes from explosives used underground was among recommendations made to the federal government at the closing of the 10th annual mines ministers' conference here Friday.

Also presented to federal authorities were committee findings on the supply of labor and technical personnel, but no specific recommendations were made.

Marc Boyer, federal deputy mines minister, told the conference that gold mines will receive between $15,000,000 and $16,000,000 in federal aid this year under terms of the Gold Mines Emergency Assistance Act.

The provincial ministers expressed the hope that the federal government would continue to give "sympathetic consideration" to the gold mining industry "in the difficulties under which it is operating."

They recommended establishment of an interprovincial committee on royalties and taxation to make a continuing study of provincial taxation of mining resources.

Salisbury Visits By Appointment Only

By GRAEME BROOKS

ADELAIDE, South Australia (Reuters)—They are courteous but cautious at Salisbury, 15 miles north of here, where guided missles are made.

Actually, there are two Salisburys.

First, there is the village, where all may come and go as they please without hindrance.

Then, three miles away, is "the establishment" where none may go without observing all the niceties of official obstruction, courteously applied.

At "the establishment," the cream of available scientists from Britain and Australia, aviation experts and researchers, and the most highly - skilled technicians and artisans, join forces to perfect the long-range weapons which Britain and Australia make and test jointly.

And one thing here that the controlling authorities appear to pride themselves upon is the smoothness of their handling of visiting laymen.

ENTRY GUARDED

Entry to "the establishment" is guarded. The caller states the name of the person he wishes to see and the nature of his business. If his visit far is proved legitimate, the caller is escorted to where he is to go and, after the business is transacted, he is escorted out.

Just how successful or productive was the call is measured by the opinion of the caller. "The establishment" is not much concerned.

"It's just like any other business," said one security officer. "You ask to see your man; make your request or put up a proposition. It is accepted or rejected and there you are. We always treat our visitors with the utmost courtesy."

But scientists and department heads at "the establishment" do not make statements for outside consumption. They leave all of that to Howard Beale, Australia's supply minister.

HAVE OWN INTERESTS

They are concerned with their electronic apparatus, cathode ray screens with their weird patterns of motion, intricate recording cameras, plotting machines and electronic brains.

Their investigations are so far-reaching, so intense, so varied, that they can be tackled only by dividing research staffs into subteams of specialists—mathematicians, engineers, draftsmen, administrators and general staff.

Security will not say how many British firms or their subsidiaries have set up business in Adelaide or in "the establishment" to cooperate with Australian firms in the Woomera project.

One estimate is that there are more than 100.

Officers explains that the number really does not matter. It is "policy," however, they add, not to state what part, exactly, these firms or enterprises are plying in the project. That is "secret."

DON'T DISCUSS MISSION

Almost every week, British scientists and technicians arrive at Salisbury and at Woomera itself, 300 miles away in the dsert. They never discuss their mission.

One thing apparent to all who go to "the establishment" is the airport now being built at a cost of more than $3,000,000. Products of factory and laboratory will go from the airport direct to the Woomera range.

The air-strip is another link in the security chain. No one has said so but it just could be that Britain's atomic bomb or bombs for testing somewhere within the 80,000 square miles of prohibited Woomera area next October have already been landed there.

Bumper Crop Of Cloves, Price Soaring

A bumper crop of cloves is expected this year from two small islands off the east coast of Africa, says National Geographic Bulletin. Zanzibar, former ivory and slave trade centre, and nearby Pemba produce nine-tenths of the world's supply of cloves.

Ruled by His Highness Seyyid Sir Khalifa bin Harub under the British protectorate of Zanzibar, the islands are enjoying a prosperity unknown even in the old days when Zanzibar was the chief gateway to Africa for traders from East and West and outfitting base for famous explorers.

PRICE SOARING

Since 1950, world demand and short supply has sent the price of cloves up 700 per cent, recalling the days when the spice was so valuable that a single cargo more than paid the cost of Ferdinand Magellan's ill-fated first round-the-world voyage.

The clove yield is periodically affected by hurricanes, droughts or heavy rains, and blight. In contrast to this year's supply, the 1952 crop was extremely small. Least affected by yearly crop fluctuations is the housewife's spice herself, where a box of cloves may last for months.

The largest shipment of cloves —about 3,000 tons annually—go to Indonesia and into the favorite Indonesian cigaret, a mixture of 40 percent cloves and 60 percent tobacco. Lately, due to high prices, smokers have had to be content with a proportion of four parts of clove to 96 parts of tobacco.

INDIA NEXT

Next largest customer is India where cloves are chewed with betel nut or mixed with other spice in highly seasoned dishes. United States and Europe combined import about 2,000 tons a year. Principle consumers are medicine and cosmetic manufacturers and confectioners. Oil of cloves as a fragrance, seasoning, and preservative was well known to the ancients and highly recommended by one Chinese sage in the third century B.C. as a breath sweetener.

While manufacturers try synthetic substitutes to combat the high cost, scientists have searched since 1947 for the cause of the clove blight. Latest suspect is a hitherto undescribed species of Valsa fungus which attacks the roots and spreads through the tree, producing an intense yellow color.

There are other exports from Zanzibar and Pemba, notably copra, but the island's economy has become increasingly dependent on cloves since the early nineteenth century. At that time Sultan Seyyid Said, ruler of East Africa, ordered the planting of cloves all over the island under penalty of land confiscation. The present government is encouraging greater diversification.

Civic Revenue, Expenses Exceed Estimates

Civic Hospital's expenditures and revenue for the first eight months of 1953 were both slightly higher than was estimated in the budget for the year.

Actual figures to the end of August were compared with two-thirds of the total budget estimates by Treasurer T. T. Rodger for presentation to the Board of Governors Thursday night.

Although the hospital has been running slightly over the budget estimates on both sides of the ledger, Mr. Rodger commented that the hospital was "actually holding very close to the budget".

While two-thirds of the total net expenditures estimated in this year's budget amounted to $663,708.45, actual total net expenditures to the end of August were $667,866.16.

Actual expenditures exceeded estimates in most categories, including salaries and wages, medical and surgical supplies, drugs and medicine, professional care of patients and general service departments. Less than the budget estimates was spent for administration, physical plant, including fuel, electricity, water, insurance and maintenance, and for bank interest, taxes and miscellaneous items.

REVENUE

Actual revenue for the first eight months of the year was $667,866.16, while two-thirds of the revenue estimated in the budget totalled $661,599.45. Actual revenue exceeded the budget estimates in practically all categories, including earnings from general services, earnings from special services, donations and telephones, with grants practically as estimated and cash discounts slightly lower.

Accounts receivable as of August 1 totalled $135,948.72, with $61,581.62 in reserve, leaving a balance of $74,367.10.

During August, earnings from patients totalled $60,225.45, while cash collected from patients totalled $56,366.82. There was $1,505.05 written off to reserve, making the total accounts receivable at the end of the month $138,302.30.

There was $1,138.10 added to the reserve for provision of bad debts and $611.32 from recovery of bad debts, which, with the $1,505.05 written off to reserve, brought the reserve fund to $61,825.99, leaving a balance of accounts receivable of $76,476.31.

LONDON (Reuters)—Two British jet planes—both claimed to be the world's best—will thunder over the African desert next week in a duel for the world's speed record.

The Hawker-Siddely Company announced Thursday night it will send its Hunter fighter to Libya. The Vickers-Armstrong Company announced Wednesday night that in Libya next week it will pit its Supermarine Swift against the mark now held by the Hunter.

The Hawker announcement, made by managing director Sir Frank Spriggs, said Sqdn. Ldr. Neville Duke will defend and try to better his newly won world title.

Two weeks ago, Duke and his Hunter blazed over a course along the south coast of England for a world mark of 727.6 miles an hour. It is still to be confirmed.

Vickers - Armstrong announced that Lt.-Cmdr. Michael Lithgow will try to break the record in a new Vickers Supermarine Swift fighter over a desert course at Castel Idris.

The Hawker firm plans to have the Hunter perform under the same conditions as the Supermarine Swift.

Devious Methods Are Used To Forge "Old Masters"

Particularly since the war, during years when works of art have been widely bought as investments, some painters and dealers in France seem to have abandoned their lawful occupations in favor of the more remunerative business of painting and selling pictures "in the manner of" well-known artists, not omitting the detail of a competently forged signature in one corner, writes Joyce Emerson in The Manchester Guardian Weekly.

MODERN FIELD

The majority of fakes with which the Paris police have to deal are of the work of living or, at least, modern artists—Utrillo, Vlaminck, Modigliani, Dufy, Renoir are the favorite victims—so the assistance of chemical technologists or art historians is usually unnecessary in establishing that the picture is not genuine. An inquiry is made by the police as in any other criminal case. If the forgee is alive, it is often quite simple to ask him if the work is indeed his (though painters do sometimes have lapses of memory and deny fiercely a paternity afterwards proved to be theirs). Otherwise, inquiries into the identities of past owners and the circumstances of sales reveal the source of the painting.

It may be that it was painted merely as an exercise by some innocent young painter and acquired for a small sum by an unscrupulous person who, recognizing its possibilities, appended a forged signature and sold it for hundreds or perhaps thousands of dollars. But generally the painter is not guiltless. One woman was discovered busily engaged in producing "Utrillos" and "Vlamincks" while her husband turned out "old masters." But he, apparently, did not have the courage of his convictions, for he sold his works at the modest price he might legitimately have asked for his own pictures. A painter of fake Van Goghs was exposed because he substituted for ultramarine (which is expensive) zinc white and blue glaze—a false economy as things worked out, for the blue glaze cracked off and left the white showing through.

HEIRS SUFFER

One young man sold his mother's collection of valuable paintings and commissioned a set of fakes to replace them. His fraud was discovered only after her death when her unfortunate heirs found that her bequest of paintings was valueless.

Investigations are often hampered by the reluctance of buyers who have been tricked to inform the police. If they bought a picture as an investment some years ago, they hate the thought of provoking the police into giving them conclusive proof that it is worthless. Even if they were reimbursed the sum they paid, that sum in francs would be worth considerably less now. If they bought the picture for a smallish sum, they still prefer to keep it and say nothing rather than face the fact that their bargain was a bad one. If they collect pictures to impress their friends, they do not fancy advertising that they were fooled. And then there are people who hang in their homes fakes bought fairly cheaply, knowing full well they are fakes, but trusting that their acquaintances will never suspect the seeming richness of their collection.

There are fewer fake Picassos than one might imagine. It seems that the more gullible art collectors much prefer the works of Dufy and Utrillo, which are in great demand. One portrait of a girl at police headquarters which claimed to be a Modigliani could have convinced only an unbelievably unpracticed eye—though the eye it had convinced had not blinked at the outrageous price which had been asked for it. On the other hand, we should have hesitated to denounce incautiously some of the other pictures there. (We were further confused by the presence of a Vlaminck at which we were staring somewhat sternly when we were told it was genuine —its authenticity had been suspected but finally vindicated.)

Not many people either in London or Paris have had opportunities of testing their skill at spotting fakes up to now, since the only permanent collection of avowed forgeries is the private one belonging to Helmuth Ruhemann, of the National Gallery. However, an exhibition of forgeries of the work of both old and modern masters aroused great interest in Amsterdam recently. The possibility of founding a museum of fakes in Paris is being considered; it would doubtless become a popular Sunday afternoon haunt for the cultivated Parisian crowds. No doubt either that it would soon become fashionable for bamboozled collectors to vie with each other in presenting their bad buys to this museum of the future.

Dead Model Sent To Canada For New Life

BELFAST (CP) — A beautiful young model found dead last month in her gas-filled apartment, had gone to Canada three times to start a new life but returned on each occasion, it was disclosed at a coroner's inquest.

Albert Walmsley, defending dancing teacher John Dossor, said in court Friday that Dossor sent the girl, 23-year-old June Ferguson, to Canada—"but she returned like a moth to the flame." What part of Canada the girl went to was not disclosed.

Earlier coroner H. P. Lowe said Dossor, 40 and a married man with a daughter, first met Miss Ferguson in a dance hall, a place where he was regarded "as a sort of king or prince."

COULD BE FLATTERED

The coroner said he could well imagine how a young girl "could be flattered by the great John Dossor taking notice of her, even if she had only a cheap frock." He returned a verdict of suicide, but said that Dosser would always hear a voice—'not the voice of June Ferguson but the voice of your conscience."

Bossor said earlier he had known Miss Ferguson five years. After the verdict was returned he told a reporter he would disregard the coroner's remarks.

"Three times I sent her to Canada to start a new life," he said. "I told her that seeing me was getting her a bad name, and that as I am married there was no future for her in our association. But after a few months each time she came back."

Trail Opens

ther was arrested. She and her father had had an argument and her mother said that if the bickering didn't stop the home would be broken up.

"He told me to go to hell and mother said that it was not a nice thing to say. She said it wouldn't have happened if he hadn't sent those chocolates and letters. He denied sending them and I didn't hear what was said after that," she testified.

NOT KIND FATHER

Questioned at considerable length by Mr. Greer, the girl went into considerable detail in regard to the attitude which she said existed between herself and her stepfather. He was a good provider but not a kind and loving father, she declared. About a year and a half ago, conditions between them grew worse until she felt that her being in the house was imposing upon him. Sometimes when she went home he would be friendly and other times he would not speak to her.

"I felt that he was jealous of the love my mothr and I had for each other. I don't think we ever got along as a father and daughter should. I told my mother that I couldn't understand it," said the witness.

She recalled that at the time of the "bickering," she was ironing with her shorts on and there was a knock at the front door and she put her skirt on.

Her stepfather said that "he didn't want to see my legs anyway. I felt he was annoyed because I put a skirt on."

Miss Saunders went on to say that when she was 14, her stepfather had tried to get her to be intimate with him in a certain way and that about a year ago she awoke one time to find him sitting on the edge of her bed. He did not say anything at the time, and she told him to get out of the room.

However, she did not reveal either incident to her mother until a week ago. In regard to her boy friends, her stepfather suggested that she should pick her boy friends from the young people's groups of her church.

"You can hardly term that other than good advice," commented Mr. Greer.

FELT NERVOUS

Miss Saunders admitted that apart from what she assumed from the chocolates affair, there was nothing about her stepfather's attitude towards her to suggest that he ever intended to do her any harm—"but I always felt nervous being alone with him," she added. She went on to relate that once she brought home a boy to meet her family but that her father was not very sociable and sat hidden behind his paper.

"We never had an actual quarrel, just bickering around. I know of no reason why he would want to get rid of me unless it was because he was jealous of the love and affection between my mother and me," said the girl.

Don Erskine, a constable on the Peterborough police force, and at that time a provincial constable stationed at Bowmanville, told of turning the chocolates and letters over to the Attorney-General's Department.

FOUND ARSENIC

Dr. Ward Smith, assistant professor of pharmacology at the University of Toronto, said he examined some powder removed from the bottom of one of the chocolates and found it to be arsenic compound. Professor Joslyn Rogers also examined it and it amounted to 2.6 grains of arsenic trioxide. Three authorities considered two to three grains fatal.

Professor Joslyn Rogers, who is associated with the Attorney-General's Department, testified that he had scraped most of the arsenic out of one chocolate and it amounted to 2.6 grains. Seven chocolates apparently had been tampered with, but only one had been tested so far. Three grains were considered a fatal dose, although, depending on the person, a smaller amount could be fatal.

At this stage, court adjourned until next week at Bowmanville.

20 British Women Rule If Goods Good Enough To Make For Sale In Stores

By ALISON SETTLE

LONDON (OFNS)—Helping to ensure that manufactured goods which reach British shops are of high quality are twenty women, each representing one of the country's powerful all-women organizations.

They form the Women's Advisory Committee and "Study Panel" of the British Standards Institution, a body which for half a century was content that men—and only men—should set standards for manufacturers; until three years ago the Institution woke up to the fact that women did more shopping than men, and invited women's organisations to send representatives who would pass on the opinion of the consumer to the industrialist.

NEW STANDARDS SET

It is greatly to the credit of this voluntary and part-time committee that already it has agreed on many new standards. Excellent work has been done in the plastics industry in eliminating shoddy goods from the market, a task for which the British Plastics Federation has expressed its thanks. Bedding standards are already higher, thanks to the committee's work. Here it was the industry itself which prepared the specifications.

While the standards set must be voluntarily accepted, already ninety per cent of all mattresses, pillows and bolsters produced now carry the British Standards Institution's kite-shaped mark of approval. Bedding traders have already spent many thousands of pounds in a campaign to advise shoppers to buy only goods marked with the kite sign. On the other side, the British Standards Institution sends out inspectors to make certain that the industry's goods really are up to standard.

Another instance of manufacturers asking for the help of the women's committee was in the pressure-cooker industry; while in the furniture industry, two women from the committee were nominated to work with the makers. The committee is also doing valuable work on a smaller scale. There was a complaint about the timing instructions of clinical thermometers. Doctors and nurses had long known about this trouble, and sought the views of the women on the advisory committee. Now each type of thermometer is to be plainly marked.

TEST BUTTONS

The Study Panel, which prepares the ground for the larger committee, is at present examining such things as sizes of clothing, the quality of shoes and types of deaf aid. Another line of investigation has been started by the National Federation of Dyers and Cleaners, which said that buttons should be tested for durability before being marketed. Launderers agreed, and the British Button Manufacturers' Association is giving the matter sympathetic attention; and makers have asked committee members to visit factories in order to get a first-hand view of the industry.

At the annual meeting of the Women's Institutes in London recently, it was suggested that the British Standards Institution should be approached to ensure high standards for sewing cottons—a measure of the care that is being taken to see that shoppers get high-quality goods. And a measure of the interest being taken in the work of the committee is that its members find it impossible to accept all the many speaking engagements which they are offered to help explain how important a part public opinion can play in keeping up standards.

RCAF Plays Host In Britain

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP) — The RCAF spread its wings over Britain today as part of its contribution to Battle of Britain week.

Sabre jet fighters from this fighter wing fanned out over England and Scotland, en route to RAF stations where they will go on show for the day. Displays were scheduled as far apart as Kinross in Scotland and at London airport, where FO. Don McIlraith of Montreal lined his Sabre alongside a Hawker Hunter and a Supermarine Swift.

At North Luffenham, remaining personnel welcomed British visitors to an "open house" marked by a flypast, aerobatic displays and other high jinks. Authorities scheduled a five-hour program and had film star Gary Cooper along to watch the fun.

Several thousand Britons, mainly from nearby towns in Rutland county, made it a day at the Canadian air base.

Find Girl's Body Brutally Stabbed

UPPER SANDUSKY, Ohio (AP) The body of a young, nightgown-clad girl, her features almost obliterated by stab wounds, presented authorities with a puzzling slaying today.

Sheriff Dean McAllister said he did not have a single clue to her identity.

The body of the brown-haired girl, believed to be between 18 and 25 years of age, was found Friday morning about 15 yards from a seldom-travelled county road three miles north of here.

The girl was attired in a light blue cotton flannel nightgown and red low-heeled shoes.

Officers described the victim as being five feet, four inches in height and weighing about 130 pounds.

Sheriff McAllister said she had been "brutally stabbed to death" and that the face carried what appeared to be at least 20 stab marks.

Fine Coboconk Driver

LINDSAY—(ENS)— A Coboconk man, Howard Bailey, paid a fine of $10 and $12.50 costs when he was convicted on careless driving in an accident on Highway 35, north of Lindsay, September 7. Bailey was charged by officers of the Lindsay OPP. He pleaded not guilty to the charge.

Drew Praises Graydon As Truly Great Canadian

OTTAWA (CP) — Hon. George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, today said Gordon Graydon, member of Parliament who died in Toronto Friday night, "was a truly great Canadian and our country has lost one of its most devoted and unselfish public servants."

In a statement released here, Mr. Drew said:

"Gordon Graydon's untimely death comes as a great shock to all who knew him. I have lost one of my dearest friends who was my closest associate at all times since I entered the House of Commons.

"He was a truly great Canadian and our country has lost one of its most devoted and unselfish public servants. Few men have given so much of their life to the advancement of their own community and their country as a whole.

"Since his early youth he had been active in the affairs of the Conservative party. At all times he encouraged young people to take an active part in political affairs and in that way he brought many men and women into the organization of the party in which he believed so completely.

"He was one of those rare human beings with an infinite capacity for friendship which will always be remembered by those who had the privilege of knowing him. For years he had been the spokesman of the Conservatives party on external affairs at all stages, from the drafting of the United Nations Charter in 1945. Up to the time of his death he had maintained a close association with the activities of that great organization.

"The sympathy of all Canadians will be extended to his wife and daughters who shared in such a large measure his great service to Canada."

Firm Action Needed In Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters)—Lt.-Gen. Sir Alexander Cameron, Britain's deputy commander in East Africa, warned today that native outbreaks in Nyasaland might lead to major trouble unless a firm hand was taken by the government there.

Cameron spoke to a press conference after returning from a week's tour of the central African territory. He will return to Nyasaland next week.

The British territory, disturbed by native uprisings since the middle of August, is scheduled to become a part of the central African federation, along with northern and southern Rhodesia.

Cameron is helping to lead the Kenya campaign against Mau Mau terrorists.

The Nyasaland government, he said, seems to be getting "a firm grip" on the situation and is determined to establish respect for law and order. Cameron said the disturbances consisted mainly of attempts to undermine native authorities. In every case where police had intervened firmly there had been no repetition, he said

Can't Agree On Sanity

CANANDAIGUA, N. Y. (AP)—Conflicting testimony concerning the sanity of Fred Eugene McManus has been given by psychiatrists in the first degree murder trial of the youth, which is expected to go to the jury Tuesday.

The defence rested its case Friday with testimony by Dr. Morton L. Wadsworth of New York, who said it was his belief that McManus "has crossed the line of responsibility."

But Dr. Kenneth Keill, director of Willard State Hospital, recalled by the crown, testified that it was his opinion McManus never showed that "he was suffering from any mental illness."

The former U. S. marine, who has admitted the slaying of five persons, is specifically charged with the pistol killing of William Allen Braverman, 19, a college student from Rochester. He has pleaded innocent by reason of insanity.

Man Jailed 80 Days For Indecent Assault

LINDSAY—(ENS)— Robert McFall, resident of Lindsay for a year was sentenced to 80 days in jail when he was convicted in police court Friday of an indecent assault on an 11-year-old girl.

The charge was laid by OPP officers on September 12. The night before, they had found McFall with the girl in his car just outside of the town limits after receiving a request from the girl's father to search for them.

According to the crown attorney, the girl was to have gone baby-sitting for Mr. and Mrs. McFall but when her father phoned to check with her Mrs. McFall told him the girl was with her husband in his car.

The trial was held in closed court here.

First Duck Hunter Killed In Manitoba

ASHERN, Man. (CP)—Manitoba's first 1953 season duck-hunting fatality occurred Friday—four hours after the season opened at noon.

Charles Surgeoner of Winnipeg was killed when struck in the back by a blast from a 12-guage shotgun. He was walking ahead of a companion whose gun discharged.

A coroner's jury passed a verdict of accidental death.

Unjust Criticism Of Newspapers

MONTREAL (CP)—Fred Jones, Toronto Telegram reporter and American Newspaper Guild alternate delegate to the Canadian Congress of Labor convention, said Friday that there has been "unjust criticism" by labor people of the newspapers' presentation of the news."

He spoke during a foreign policy debate at a concluding session of the CCL's convention. His remarks came after delegate W. L. White of Vancouver accused the press of trying to break strikes.

Jones said most newspapermen "have integrity" and are trying to do a fair and honest job in presenting the news.

Sometimes news stories that might appear unfavorable because of developments might arouse the anger of some people.

"If a radical in a union—and there are radicals in unions—goes out and cracks somebody's skull that is news and newspapers have got to print it," said Jones.

WELLAND (CP)—Cpl. Harold Shaughnessy of the Port Colborne detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police died today of injuries suffered Friday night when his car overturned near here.

Police said the officer, an OPP member for 16 years, was returning to his post after spending holidays with his wife and five children at Bala, Ont. He had been stationed at Bala for 14 years and came to Port Colborne last July.

Shaughnessy was discovered lying on the road by three men passing in a car, who brought him to hospital here. He had about six miles to travel of his 250-mile trip when the accident occurred.

Foiled By Weather

DOVER, Eng. (Reuters)—Bad weather Friday beat Richard Temple, 22, in his attempt to make a lone crossing of the English Channel in a 14½-foot canvas kayak fitted with an outboard motor. The Londoner, who set out from St. Margaret's bay near here got only a short way before bad weather forced him to return.

Parking Charge Dismissed; Lawyer To Answer Another

A second parking ticket charge will be defended Thursday by W. J. Arthur Fair, Q.C., who was recently the victor in a contested ticket case. Magistrate W. R. Philp dismissed a charge laid May 22 after considering written legal arguments for over two months. Mr. Fair's car had been ticketed after being found by municipal parking lot attendant Harry Gabbutt in the laneway between the lot and the backs of George St. stores.

Although it bears signs reading "Loading Zone," the lane is not metered. The charge against Mr. Fair read specifically he had parked overtime on the lot.

LANE SEPARATE

The lawyer contended the laneway was a separate entity from the lot and submitted photographs in his defence on July 2 to back up his argument.

Parking lot attendant Gabbutt and Murray Thomas, deputy city clerk, testified for the prosecution. City Solicitor W. F. Huycke prosecuted.

A parking bylaw, parking ticket and a layout map of the lots were submitted by Mr. Huycke.

The city solicitor's witnesses described the location. Mr. Gabbutt told the court how and when he ticketed the car.

At the time, the vehicle was parked behind the lawyer's George St. office in the laneway. Mr. Gabbutt said he saw no-one loading or unloading anything from the vehicle.

Delivering his decision, Magistrate Philp felt the laneway was not, as described in the charge, part of the lot and decided the charge was misworded.

British Officials Now Certain Mrs. MacLean With Husband

LONDON (Reuters)—British officials are convinced that Mrs. Melinda Maclean, 37, has gone with her three children to rejoin her diplomat husband, Donald.

Most of them believe she has gone for good, possibly to begin a new life behind the Iron Curtain.

Maclean, former head of the foreign office's U. S. section, and Guy Burgess, a co-worker in the foreign office, disappeared May 25, 1951, in north France under circumstances strikingly similar to Mrs. Maclean's disappearance in Switzerland eight days ago.

Police now are certain Mrs. Maclean and the children slipped through the high Swizz Alpine pass at Buchs into Austria. But how, or if, she met Soviet agents remains a complete mystery.

This morning, The Times chided other British newspapers for criticism of Mrs. Maclean's flight and said she "has done no wrong, and she has been sorely abused."

The Times editorial said, "this is a free country—Mrs. Maclean has committed no crime. She will have committed none even if she has in fact gone with her children to join her husband, should he still be alive."

The Times said that even Maclean and Burgess "have been proved guilty of no offence so far, beyond the flagrant desertion of their foreign office posts." It added, "British citizens are still free to go abroad, even if they should cross the Iron Curtain."

Other British newspapers continued to say the case was "not a private affair." The leftist Daily Mirror said it was like a movie scenario, "with the foreign office and security (officials) looking very foolish indeed."

This morning in Vienna Austrian police said they did not believe that the Maclean family travelled as a unit after entering Austria from Switzerland. They believed that if each member of the family was brought separately to Vienna it would have been easy for the Russian agents to get them through the Iron Curtain without detection.

Trapped Four Days In Tunnel, Rescued

TOKYO (AP)—A 28-year-old Japanese trapped four days in a tunnel cave-in was rescued today.

Haggard Kunihei Inokawa, who spent 92 hours entombed without food or water, was given medical aid while still underground.

Doctors gave him a good chance to survive but did not carry him to the surface immediately.

Rescue teams worked feverishly to reach three other workers entombed near Inokawa.

Inokawa told his rescuers: "One's dead, another cracking; don't know about the third."

Inokawa and 11 other workers were entombed Tuesday in the collapse of an underground power plant tunnel. One was dragged out the first day, seriously injured. Seven bodies have been recovered.

OLD OPPONENT—Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill shakes hands with Irish Foreign Minister Frank Aitken as Mr. Aitken and Irish Prime Minister Eamon De Valera, left, arrive at 10 Downing street, for luncheon with the British Prime Minister. Sir Winston wears a smile that would indicate he is recalling the days when De Valera, a man who has fought the British for more years than most people can remember, and himself, fought "hammer and tong," as the Irish Prime Minister sought Irish independence. Mr. De Valera was invited to the luncheon by Sir Winston during the former's stay in London where he is visiting Irish organizations.

Canadian Officials Study War-Time Broadcasting

By DONALD HAWORTH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian officials are starting to think seriously about the control of electro-magnetic radiation.

The United States has been investigating it for some time and has come up with a word to describe the matter. Americans call it CONELRAD.

Broadly it means the use of techniques to keep radio stations on the air during bomber attacks. It is understood the U.S. already has tested its systems.

UNSUITABLE HERE

Canada is not that far advanced. None of the American methods appear suitable for Canadian needs and engineers are working on the problem.

Canadian regulations now call for a complete closedown of broadcasting in event of an air-raid warning. But since the Americans have a system to keep stations on the air Canadian stations no longer can stay quiet. The band of silence would pinpoint the border.

In addition, civil defence officials want to use radio to keep up morale and to direct rescue work.

The problem is to keep on the air without helping to guide bombers to their target.

To take a bearing with direction-finding equipment bomber crews need a constant signal strong enough for them to tune in, adjust the equipment and take a reading. They also need to know the position of the transmitter from which they have made the bearing.

WEAKENED SIGNAL

To combat this the Americans have cut down on normal power output. The signal, usually called the broadcast, is so weakened that it should not be heard beyond the boundaries of the area to which it is beamed. Stations will not announce call letters and to prevent identification by frequency all will operate on one of two standard frequencies—640 or 1,240 kilocycles.

Canadian officials have sat in on the development of CONELRAD and stations in a couple of Canadian border cities, Windsor and Niagara Falls, are joining the American system.

This is similar to that which kept the United Kingdom on the air during the Second World War. The outgoing signal is switched at intervals of between five and 40 seconds from one to the other of a group of transmitters operating on the same frequency.

The break during the switch is not perceptible to radio listeners. However, for the radio operator in a bomber it means that the source of the signal is changing all the time.

POPULATION FACTOR

This plan requires a network of transmitters found only in highly populated areas. However, it wouldn't work in Canada, especially along the St. Lawrence valley and the shore of Lake Ontario. The transmitters line up northeast-southwest and have too little lateral spread to confuse a bomber flying on that line.

In other words, a bomber following the St. Lawrence river would find Montreal, Ottawa and Toronto lying along the qsame course. Switching among the transmitters in these cities might not cause sufficient change of direction to prevent a rough bearing.

It is recognized that modern bombers have better aids to navigation than bearings taken on chance radio stations. However, the idea is to deny them additional help.

Thus, lacking big networks of transmitters for the cluster system, as it is known in the United States, Canada has considered three methods proposed by the Americans in their areas of low population.

CONFUSING PATTERN

They are: Intermittent broadcasts of short duration from one transmitter; pulsating broadcasts in which the signal strength varies all the time; the synchronous method—putting several stations on the air simultaneously broadcasting the same program on the same frequency. This would give out to the aircraft an interlaced pattern of radiations with no significant direction.

None of these methods appeal to Canadian civil defence officials and they are attempting at a pilot project at Winnipeg to devise a system to meet conditions.

The idea being explored in Winnipeg is to broadcast during attacks on 20 transmitters covering the city in place of the big transmitters of Winnipeg's four stations. That way a given area can be covered with a much lower power output. Output is not cumulative.

For instance, 20 stations each putting out one kilowatt would have a total of one, not 20. This means there would be less danger of broadcasts reaching approaching bombers.

However, officials cannot give any date for completion of the Canadian plan, nor can they estimate the cost.

Two Oshawa Entertainers Hit Pay Dirt In England

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Barry Authors and Howard Swinson of Oshawa, Ont., had one great ambition when they headed for London last fall—to get their variety act into the London Palladium.

Then, ironically, when the chance came, they had to turn it down because they were so busy.

The sticker was a 14-week contract at a pier-end theatre at Clacton-on-Sea, east coast seaside resort. The management wouldn't release them for the big event and the Oshawa funny men are still breathing hard.

The Palladium is the dream of every variety act in Britain, providing billing with such top-notch guest stars as Bob Hope, Jack Benny, Betty Hutton and gagsters Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis.

PLAY TWO WEEKS

The big names are booked for just two weeks and most of the show is changed each new billing. But two weeks at the Palladium puts actors right on top with theatre agents.

Authors and Swinson, who mime impersonations to records, would have shared the spotlight with the American singer Kay Starr.

"It was quite a blow to have to turn it down," said dark-haired, 20-year-old Barry Authors. "We're just hoping the offer will be repeated before we leave for Canada in the fall."

The summer contract for Authors and the six-foot Swinson, 22, lasts till mid-September and they have three weeks off before sailing for home Oct. 14 on a five-week vacation.

Some of their five weeks in Canada will be spent in entertainment "spots," but they must be back in Britain before Dec. 1 to meet a contract for the pantomime season, which runs from December to March.

They signed up for three years in "panto" after appearing last season with film star Jean Kent in "Cinderella."

The miming Canucks have struck it rich since they came to Britain last August. From the start they went over in a big way and the second week here they signed up with a big American theatre agency. They've since played Scotland, Ireland and England, getting reviews like the following, written after their first television appearance:

"To say they mime to gramophone records is putting it mildly. They throw themselves so wholeheartedly into their work. . ."

Appearing with comedian Max Bygraves later they rated further mention for "cleverly combining their own crazy comedy with the recorded efforts of others."

"We sure have been lucky," says the fair-haired Swinson. Offers have been received from theatres in Sweden, India and Casablanca. Next year they make a Scandinavian tour.

Before coming to Britain the boys played night clubs in Ontario, New York and Buffalo.

G. H. Mark Sons, Won All Prizes With Sheep

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Due to a transposition in the key code at the Lakefield fair, the reports of the sheep judging were wrong.

G. H. Mark and son, of Little Britian won all the prizes in both the Oxford and Southdown sheep classes. The sections included aged ram, shearling ram, ram lamb, aged ewe, shearling ewe, and ewe lamb, in both classes. They took seconds as well as firsts in all but the first two sections of the first class, where there were no entries.

Pimmett & Sons Win Shorthorn Breeders' Banner

M. H. Pimmett and Sons, of Indian River, earned the Premier Breeder's banner in the judging of Shorthorn cattle at the Exhibition Friday.

A. Gibson, of Richmond Hill, piled up points that gave him the Premier Breeder's title in the Hereford division; and Malcolm Bailey was the top breeder of Aberdeen-Angus.

The Pimmett herd collected all the championships (apart from reserves) except one. Shaw Brothers, of Otonabee, took the senior bull championship on Louada Crusader, their herd sire, shown by Lou Shaw.

The Gibson Herefords made a similar sweep of championship ribbons, all but the junior, which went to J. R. Nokes, of Manilla.

Malcolm Bailey, of Uxbridge, won the top ribbons for bulls in the black cattle championships, but in the female section Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bowser, of Aurora, showed the three best animals of that Aberdeen-Angus breed.

Attendance was conspicuously small around the cattle ring at the southeast corner of the park, fewer than the number of spectators Wednesday for the judging of the dairy cattle.

Results of the judging were:

Honor Parish Priest Before Departure

MARMORA (ENS)—The Catholic Women's League met in Sacred Heart parish hall.

Mrs. W. A. Shannon, president, was in the chair and there was a large attendance.

Mrs. Shannon thanked the members of the various groups who assistd in catering to the Holy Name Society banquet and two weddings within the past two months.

Mrs. Teresa Warren and Mrs. John Crawford were appointed to the visiting committee for the ensuing month.

Plans were made for a bazaar early in October.

The president gave an account of the CWL convention in Kingston in June, which she attended.

The Rev. J. A. O'Neill, parish priest for the past four years, who was recently appointed to St. Francis Xavier Church, Brockville, was the recipient of a Gladstone bag, accompanied by an address, read by Mrs. Charles Brady.

Fr. O'Neill thanked the ladies for their many accomplishments and the cooperation which he had always received. He expressed regret at leaving the Marmora parish.

Mrs. Donald Shannon presented the program. Mrs. A. Vanvolkenberg gave a reading and a musical contest was won by Mrs. H. Brady. Refreshments were served by the executive.

Miss Veronica Lee was presented with a mother-of-pearl crucifix, in appreciation of her kindness to the ladies and her interest in church activities. Miss Lee accompanies Fr. O'Neill to Brockville.

Ross Dependency Is Without Citizens

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (CP)—Captain H. Ruegg of Wellington has been appointed administrator of a territory covering 175,000 miles. But its population is precisely nil.

He will be officer in charge of the Ross dependency, a vast segment of the Antarctic to the south of New Zealand. Single-handed he is charged with taking "all steps necessary or expedient to safeguard, preserve and cause to be observed within the dependency Her Majesty's rights and sovereignty."

The Ross dependency, administered by New Zealand, lies between 160 degrees east longitude and 150 degrees west longitude and extends from 60 degrees south latitude to the pole.

But Captain Ruegg's duties are not as onerous as they sound. Though he has the powers of stipendiary magistrate and justice of the peace as well as his other duties in the territory, he will administer it from an office here. Seldom visited and uninhabited, the Ross dependency is not yet considered ripe for development and its administrators have seldom seen the land over which they rule.

In the last 20 years officers in charge of the dependency have visited it only six times in "flag showing" missions in whaling ships.

Wolfe's Portrait Soon On Display

TORONTO (CP)—One of the few portraits of General James Wolfe painted from life will soon be on display at the Canadiana Gallery here.

The hero of Quebec was 32 when he died at the battle of the Plains of Abraham in 1759. Most of the paintings of him were done after his death, in many cases by artists who had never seen him.

Joseph Highmore of the Royal Academy painted two portraits from life. One is in the national archives at Ottawa and the other, after remaining unknown for almost 200 years, was found in England two years ago and was bought by Dr. Sigmund Samuel of Toronto as a gift for the gallery which he founded.

Because of the historical value of the picture, the British board of trade refused, at the instigation of the National Portrait Gallery, to grant an export licence for the painting. The picture was left in England while a board of review considered the matter. Dr. Samuel's appeal was finally granted, largely because the portrait is coming to Canada.

At the Canadiana Gallery, the painting will augment a fine collection of pictures of Canadian history.

DELEGATES FROM THE LARGER CENTRES of Ontario registered in Peterborough on Friday for the 4th annual conference of the Ontario Division, Canadian Cancer Society. The business session—dealing mainly with ways to educate the public on the subject of cancer, and means of raising funds—is being held this weekend at Club Whitesands on Lake Catchacoma. Looking at a road map to find the way to the Club Whitesands are (left to right): Maurice Grimes; James Fraser, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce; Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of the Peterborough Cancer Society Unit; Maurice Holt, and E. Africa Needs Organizations Like Cancer Society, Wharry

James G. Wharry, vice president and general manager of the Quaker Oats Company of Peterborough, spoke at the Friday evening dinner to delegates from all over Ontario to the fourth annual Campaign Conference of Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society.

He contrasted the mutual problems in health between America and what he called "the old world" from observations on a recent trip to Africa.

He said sanitation and health conditions in that part of the world were worse than he had imagined and the death rate appalling. Shortage of doctors and nurses was acute.

He pointed out that in Africa there are only the missionaries trying to solve these problems and cut down the death rate, with many people assisting in this work.

Luncheon at the Kawartha Golf and Country Club followed the registration of the 60 delegates Friday morning.

Mrs. Maurice Holt, president of Peterborough unit, explained the reason for the campaign conference.

"Our world is going ahead so we have to forge ahead with new ideas for our campaign." She further explained that the funds are used exclusively in the three-fold program of lay education, welfare and research.

James Fraser, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke words of welcome to the delegates, advising that he himself is a former Cancer Society campaign organizer. He said "Peterborough is proud of the local group who have been aggressive and have succeeded in spite of overwhelming odds."

E. S. Welch of Toronto, president of Ontario Division, replied, and expressed thanks to Peterborough unit and the citizens for their example by the last campaign. Peterborough was more than $2,000 over its goal and had a final total of $10,480 in the spring campaign.

Good Dollar Earner Given Smarter Name

By ASTLEY HAWKINS

CAPETOWN (Reuters) — South Africa's tasty rock lobsters, by virtue of their ability to earn dollars, have officially earned the right not to be called crayfish.

As part of a drive to step up exports of the rock lobsters, the South African Parliament has passed legislation entitling them to be called rock lobsters. They had been erroneously dubbed crayfish by the early settlers of the country.

In another phase of the building up of the lobster industry, work is being completed on a $280,000 construction program to turn Hout bay, a scenic inlet 15 miles from Capetown around the rugged Cape peninsula, into one of the finest and largest fishing harbors in South Africa, mainly for the lobster fleet.

Rock lobsters, a gourmet's dish in the Cape peninsula from the days of the early settlers, have been exported to France and Britain by South Africa since the turn of the century.

BUSINESS UNCERTAIN

But business was uncertain until a market was found and developed in the United States, which now provides most of the industry's $5,600,000 export return.

Hout bay producers alone have been packing up to 5,000,000 lobster tails in the nine-month lobster season which runs from August to early April.

The South African minister for economic affairs, Eric Louw, introducing a special act of Parliament to change the name formally to rock lobster, pointed out that crayfish in the United States are a fresh water fish, while in France the term means only a shrimp-sized fresh water crustacean. In Britain, crayfish are unknown.

Rock lobsters have abounded for centuries around the Cape peninsula where early adventurers found them off all the inshore rocks. Heavy fishing in the last 60 years has threatened supplies and diesel - powered boats from South African harbors have to sail 200 miles to get them.

SMALL FLEET

Each vessel carries a small satellite fleet of dinghies used by the crew to set their traps—a wide ring with a net beneath it—anywhere between shallow coastal waters and 100 to 150 feet down.

Bait is stretched across the mouth of the nets and hauls are made almost as fast as the fishermen can tend them. Some vessels land up to 24,000 lobsters on a single trip.

South Africa's rock lobster industry traces its history back to 1874 when the first cannery was started by John X. Merriman. Fifteen years later, there were three canneries in Capetown mainly to supply "langouste de cap" in France which remained the best buyer until the 1930s when the American market started to develop.

One of the earliest canneries was established in a wrecked sailing ship, the hulk of the Nova Scotia schooner Robert Morrow which drove on the rocks in a gale near Capetown in 1900.

Unless Buyer Found Soon Tourist Resort Will Vanish

NEW GLASGOW (CP)—One of Nova Scotia's best-known tourist resorts will pass out of existence this autumn unless a buyer turns up.

Clifford Ross, proprietor of Green Hill Lookoff and Pioneer Museum, says 22 years is long enough. His establishment at Green Hill, a 400-foot mound six miles west of here, has drawn thousands of visitors every summer.

They climb the tower for a panoramic view of northern Nova Scotia, Northumberland strait and Prince Edward Island across the strait. Then they call at the museum to see Ross's collection of pioneer relics.

Now Cliff has notified donors of museum exhibits to come and claim them. He says he has a couple of prospective buyers for the property, but nothing definite. He's been willing to sell for two years.

"I would like to keep it going," he says. "But my health has forced me to make the decision that I can no longer carry on."

FAMOUS MUSEUM

The Pioneer Museum at Green Hill has been considered by many citizens as a permanent institution. Some citizens, alarmed at the prospective loss, have suggested a public subscription campaign to buy the hill and make it a memorial to Pictou county's Scottish pioneers.

The museum's most famous exhibit however has been gone for more than two years. It was an old stagecoach, once in regular service between Truro and Pictou. Royalty travelled in it on more than one occasion. It went as far as Calgary once, and Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh rode in the ancient vehicle during their tour of Canada.

Cliff doesn't know how many donors are represented in his collection of pioneer articles, beyond "a lot."

MAKE AN EFFORT

"Trouble is," he said, "some of them are dead. But we'll make an effort to get the items to the real owners before we close down."

Many thought Cliff and his wife received some government support for the lookoff and museum as a tourist attraction, but he says that isn't so.

"They put in a telephone line for us in return for our doing fire spotting from the tower, but that's all the government help we ever got."

Blind Since Birth But Enjoys Life

KAMSACK, Sask. (CP)—Thirty-one-year-old Tony Caruk has been blind since birth but he enjoys life.

Tony, who lives in this town 140 miles northeast of Regina, is a graduate of the Ontario school for the blind and spent some time in Toronto working in a radio repair shop.

After returning to his home town, Tony started his own amateur radio station. Today he talks to fellow "hams" all over North America and in Northern Ireland and Hawaii.

Although the hobby is fairly expensive, Tony feels it gives one "a pretty broad outlook" and is an excellent one for sightless persons.

Tony, who is also a drummer, is constantly remodelling his radio to get more distant places.

He supplements his sightless allowance by playing the drums three or four nights a week in a dance band. His fellow musicians say he keeps perfect time.

He also taught himself to play the piano accordion.

The regular fall tea of the University Women's Club will be held at the YWCA Sept. 26 from 3:30 p.m. to 5:30. Prospective members who are university graduates are cordially invited.

Lautrec Drawings On Display Soon At Toronto

By JEAN THOMPSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP) — The unique Toulouse-Lautrec drawings of many phases of Parisian life of the gay nineties are expected to attract large numbers of art lovers to the Toronto Art Gallery in the next month.

The 363 lithographs and paintings, personal collection of Ludwig Charnell of France were the inspiration of many of the scenes in "Moulin Rouge," a recent movie of Lautrec's life and work.

The famous French painter, dwarfed in youth by accidents to both his legs, became famous first for posters of his favorite cabarets. Cafes, race tracks and circuses come alive in his drawings, especially those facets in which he himself could never actively participate.

COVERS 10 YEARS

Of aristocratic birth, he found his inspiration in the lower strata of Parisian society. The exhibition is of his work for the last 10 years of his life. He died in 1901 at the age of 36.

There is a seemingly endless variety of scene and incident in his drawings alive with the well-known dancers and cabaret figures of the time. Posters, menus, programs, illustrations, series and single prints are all drawn with an economy of line that at times is almost caricature. But in spite of the personal bitterness that his handicap engendered, his attitude toward his subjects is friendly and sympathetic.

Once drawn, Lautrec supervised scrupulously the production of proofs and prints, destroying those which did not satisfy him.

Included in the show are photographs of the artist, his family and friends. Special feature of the Toronto showing is the inclusion of four paintings of Lautrec and one by his contemporary Seurat.

THESE MODELS by Christian Dior of Paris illustrate the new silhouettes that are of such great interest this fall. The evening gown of maroon silk faille, left, is a glorious example of Dior's new silhouette for evening introducing swan-back fullness. The tailored dress, centre, in greige tweed, is a perfect example of Dior's "Eiffel Tower" silhouette. The late-day dress of black taffeta with the perfectly plain bodice has a "Cupola" skirt with drapery and sash ends at the side.

THE SHORT EVENING DRESS of pink and gold has gored skirt that shows Dior's new "Cupole" line. The evening gown of mauve-tone grey slipper satin, brocaded with delicate black feathers by Victor Stiebel of London, centre, has skirt fullness bursting from its apron front. The cocktail dress of cognac Aleutian gauze and black Chantilly lace, by Madelaine de Rauche, right, has skirt of pleated panels over Chantilly flouncing below hem. The black Chantilly bodice with long sleeves is over a cognac bodice, the lace being transparent over the neck and shoulders.

Miss Julia DeVries, who accompanied them, is spending holidays here.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Airhart have returned to Deloro after spending holidays with their son Harold and Mrs. Airhart in Tillsonburg, and with relatives in Saranac, Mich.

New Dressy Touch In Contour Belts

Contour belts, favorites this season, are shown in an abundance of supple leathers, glossy fabrics and dressed-up styles. Cowhides are polished to a sheen and prettified with open-work, metal trims and contrasting inserts.

Silky suedes and glove-tanned leathers are newly decorated with all-over flower arrangements, embroidery and brilliants. They appear in pale tones, as well as tawny to deep browns. Black belts remain important with the addition of an ornamental buckle.

Contour waistlet belts are hand made of gleaming copper, distinctively styled and pliable to lend a waist-minimizing effect.

Big Money Battles To Secure English Codfish Market

By DONOVAN BESS

GRIMSBY, England (Reuters)—A hard-headed London used-car dealer who made $100,000,000 in war surplus deals after the war is busy today attempting to do the same thing with codfish.

A major price war has broken out on the fish market in Britain—where fish is a staple food—as existing operators prepare a bleak welcome for the country's best-known get - rich - quick expert, George Dawson.

But there is no indication Dawson will be scared off, despite price cuts of as much as 52 cents a stone (14 pounds).

Dawson early this year spotted what looked like a quick profit in the fish business.

The government of Iceland had moved its legal fences to bar British boats from traditional cod grounds. A string of government protests back and forth failed to bring results so British fish dealers rang down a retaliatory ban on handling Icelandic boats in British ports.

Dawson stepped in and made a deal with the Icelanders. Business men reckon he has spent $1,500,000 on the project so far.

Standing firmly against him are the powerful Ross group, one of Britain's chief fish-selling firms whose motto is "British fish for the British."

The Ross group have gathered all their forces against Dawson. When the trawler owners blocked all land transport facilities, Dawson set up his own facilities.

The Grimsby ice plant refused to deliver ice if he brought in any codfish from Iceland. Dawson bought his own ice plant.

Late last month he bought his own fish-curing business.

CLEVER CO-EDS who know their classic are majoring in wool jersey this year. The permanently pleated skirt and pullover at left are in smart clerical grey. Of Interest to Women

DOROTHY DIX

To Tell, Or Not To Tell The Divorcees' Problem

DEAR MISS DIX: During the past few months I have become friendly (in the office, only) with a man at my place of employment. I think he may ask me out sometime. I am a divorcee, having separated from my husband seven years ago, and wonder how I should tell the man if he asks me to go out. Most people think I'm a widow.

T. L.

A REVELATION

ANSWER: If he asks you out, accept the invitation; then, during the evening, steer the conversation around to a point where your disclosure will fit into the general topic. There's no necessity for telling him unless he's sufficiently interested in you to ask for a date, but it would be unfair to leave him in ignorance once he has taken you out.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a high school senior, and for two years have gone out with a man 15 years older than myself. My family knows and likes him. We see each other almost every night, and he is at all times a considerate gentleman. Would marriage be successful in our case?

FRANCIE K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Age differences are unpredictable factors in matrimony—as what isn't? Disparity of years, even quite a great one, is only one of the many things that can make or break a marriage. Where every other qualification is good, a difference in age alone is not sufficient to preclude future happiness. Your case, for instance, seems to have been well thought out, since you and the young man are congenial. And with both families being agreeable, you certainly have as much chance of a good marriage as anyone.

DEAR MISS DIX: Can you give me the name of a Lonely Hearts Cub? I am a widow, 47, and very lonely. I have a good job, but no friends or relatives.

C. T.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There is an element of risk in any club that purports to be able to make friends for you, and the risk is especially great if matrimony is involved. Sometimes these arranged friendships, or marriages, work out quite well, but more often they are dismal, if not tragic, failures. Do try to find your own friends. Your job, church, or a civic organization would do better than an unrecommended club.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a girl of 18, dating a boy of 20 for the past year. Recently, he went into service because he got a girl inio trouble and didn't want to marry her. He asked me to wait for him, and I said I would, but he's never mentioned marriage to me. His letters are nice, but just friendly. Am I foolish in waiting?

JOANNE R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: And how! How can you have any esteem for a boy who would treat another girl so shabbily? Don't you realize that the word "marriage" isn't in his vocabulary? "Opportunism" is his byword. Do you envy the role of the girl he abandoned?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Nine years ago my husband left me for another woman. Our three children were left for me to bring up. The older two are fine young people, but my 19-year-old daughter is a source of deep heartache. She is going with a man of 21, and I know he goes with other girls, though he has proposed to my daughter. Also, he has a police record, and a general reputation of being 'no good." My girl is sure he'll change after they are married, and no one can sway her determination to marry him.

Mr. I. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your daughter is apparently determined to learn life the hard way and nothing you or anyone else can say will change her. Since others, as well as yourself, have done everything to point out her mistake, there seems nothing left for you but to stand by to pick up the pieces. Have you appealed to whatever sense of decency the young man may have, in an endeavor to have him give her up? That might work if the right approach is used.

Readers' Saturday Column By Mary Moore

QUESTION: I shall try to keep my letter reasonably polite—but when I consider all the work I did last night and the $2.00 worth (or more) of good food that is wasted I find it difficult. Do you test your recipes before you print them? If so how did you enjoy the recipe for canned sandwich spread printed in August 22nd paper? Mine is so salty no one could eat it, otherwise it would have been delicious. I followed your instructions exactly even when after soaking the chopped vegetables for the required 2 hours, I had an urge to wash them in clear water. How I wish I had! Yes, I discarded the weak vinegar solution but apparently it is not enough to take out that 2½ cups salt. Is there an error in the paper? I have made your recipe for "Sally's Chili Sause" for a number of years and we like it very much, but last year I tried your recipe for long brine process for curing cucumbers for sweet pickles and they had to be thrown out . . . a reply would be appreciated. I'm convinced there is something wrong with either my ability to make pickles or your recipes . . . Mary K. D.

ANSWER: You did nobly on your first try Mary in keeping your letter polite for I don't blame you for being upset. I went over my copy sent to the newspaper and the amount of salt is one-half cup—not two and one-half cups. There must have been a typographical error in your paper. The linotypers are wonderfully conscientious and skilled men, but they are human. I am sending you my master copy so you can see it for yourself. Yes, I test all of my recipes. Since I made that release for long-brine cucumber pickles last year I have received over one thousand requests for it. If I had the too-salty sandwich spread to use up I would use it as the moistener for ground meat or flaked fish sandwiches, and of course omit salt, mayonnaise and butter.

QUESTION: Please send recipe for pickled red cabbage . . . M. M.

ANSWER: The only red cabbage pickle I have is canned without cooking. Will that be satisfactory?

PICKLED RED CABBAGE

Twelve cups chopped red cabbage, 4 cups chopped white onions, 12 green peppers salt, 1 cup white mustard seed. 2 cups brown sugar, 2 dozen cloves, 6 cups white vinegar. Chop and measure cabbage and onions. Chop peppers. Sprinkle lightly with salt—about 1 cup, sprinkling it on vegetables in layers. Let stand overnight and in morning drain very well, pressing out excess liquid. Add remaining ingredients and seal in sterile pint jars.

QUESTION: . . . I was hoping you could help me by sending me recipes for all kinds of stuffed green peppers . . . also prune or apricot whip . . . Helen W.

ANSWER: Thank you Mam. Your letter was very kind. I have sent you two recipes for stuffed peppers and herewith is another.

STUFFED PEPPERS

Six sweet green peppers, 2 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons butter, 1 cup rich milk, 1½ cups cooked veal, chicken or ham, minced, ¼ teaspoon grated onion, ½ cup buttered crumbs. Select peppers that will stand up OR cut them in halves lengthwise and when they are filled lay them on their sides. Remove seeds and ribs. Make white sauce by melting butter stirring in flour, then the milk and salt until thick. Add meat and onion to sauce and fill peppers with it and cover with crumbs. Place in baking dish, add a little water and bake about 40 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr.

APRICOT OR PRUNE SPONGE

One-quarter lb. apricots, 1 cup cold water, ½ cup sugar, 1 tablespoon gelatin, ¼ cup cold water, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon orange juice, 1 egg white, ½ cup cream for whipping. Wash apricots and soak over-night in the cold water. Cook in the water in which they were soaked until soft. Add sugar and stir until it is dissolved. Press apricots through sieve. Soak the gelatin in the ¼ cup cold water 5 minutes while apricots are cooking, and when they are strained and still hot stir the gelatin into them well. Add orange and lemon juice, then chill. When partially set, fold into them the stiffly beaten egg white and whipped cream and chill until set. Serve well garnished with perfect apricot halves and cherries.

6—In Memoriam

CLARK—In fond and loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Helen Clark, who passed away Sept. 19th, 1950.
Today recalls sad memories
Of a dear mother gone to rest,
And the ones who think of her today,
Are the ones who loved her best.
—Ever remembered by Isabel and Carman.

DUNFORD—In loving memory of Verna Dunford, who passed away Sept. 21, 1952.
No one knows how much we miss you,
No one knows the bitter pain
We have suffered, since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true,
There is not a day dear mother
That we do not think of you.
—Ever remembered by husband and family.

ELMHIRST—(Mrs. Grant) — Lovingly remembering with deepest affection and happiest recollections "Mother" who left us for higher service three years ago, Sept. 19.
—The family.

FOSTER—In loving memory of a dear wife, Mabel Jane Foster.
All her toils and conflicts o'er,
Though she dwells with Christ above
O, what glory she's discovered
In a Saviour whom she loved.
—Always remembered by husband and son Ross.

ROWLAND—Sacred to the memory of our beloved Phyllis, who left us so suddenly (1939), aged eleven years.
Another year passes still great is our loss,
To lose you dear Phyllis, how heavy the cross
But only God knows and in His vast love
He will give us the answer in heaven above.
—Lovingly remembered, mother and family.

WILLIAMSON—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Arthur L. Williamson, who passed away on September 19, 1951.
Her smiling way and pleasant face
Are a pleasure to recall,
She had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all.
Some day we hope to meet her,
Some day we know not when,
To clasp her hand in the better land,
Never to part again.
—Ever remembered by her three daughters, Verna Osborne, Gertrude Hazelwood and Mildred Carnochan.

Going To England To Visit Mother

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Mrs. Arthur Footitt who has not seen her mother, Mrs. Annie Palmer of Hull, Yorkshire, England, for 25 years, is leaving to visit her and her sister and brother on September 29th.

Fellow-workers from her department of the Seal-Rite, Peterborough, gave her a surprise party at the home fo Miss Irene Stone on Wednesday evening. As a going-away gift they presented a weekend case to match the rest of her luggage. They also gave a cup and saucer as a gift for Mrs. Foottit's mother.

The evening was spent in playing bingo, and in sing-song with Miss Marion McCaskey at the piano.

Mrs. Foottit plans to be gone for 6 weeks.

For Parents Only

Protect Your Child's Sight

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Love is Not Blind" is the autobiography of a man who was partially blinded when a boy, by a dirty snowball. This is a book which will fascinate any parent. The writer tells of going to Al Jolson's "Sonny Boy" (one of the first talking pictures he had attended) with his mother just after their visit to the doctor's office. They had received no hope from the physician for improved vision.

It was a poignant story and Russell Criddle had to wipe quite a few tears away. Beside him, his mother sobbed as if her heart would break. He didn't know then that she was not weeping for the boy in the movie but for her own handicapped son. He made this fine comment on this memory, "She needn't have wept. When kids have parents who react to anguish with love, things usually turn out all right. Even if a kid is blind, he can be happy if he has parents who sense that love is not just a condition, that it is active kindness that must be done even when it is painful."

✧ ✧ ✧

A sudden tragic accident can injure a child's eyes in a moment. Not only a snowball, but a hard ball, a pencil, a pen, a stick, a penknife or scissors may strike the eye. Blunt scissors and no toys with sharp points are essential safety first rules in a home with little children. Each year a few children have their eye hurt in fireworks accidents. This kind of carelessness on the part of adults in charge of minors is almost inexcusable.

DURING ILLNESS

Most parents know that during certain contagious diseases such as measles, whooping cough, or diphtheria, a child's bed should be placed in the room to avoid direct glare from the sunlight. The eyes should be used as little as possible for close work. At all times, parents should see to it that there is proper lighting in the room in which a child is reading or playing or working. The light should come from behind the child. If the light is in front, the child's eyes receive both direct and indirect glare. If from the side, some glare may still be present. During periods of rapid growth, a child's eyes need protection from strain or being overtaxed.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind, (186 Beverley St., Toronto 2B) has issued several excellent pamphlets on Protecting the Eyes of School Children, Sight Saving Classes, Children's Eye Accidents, the Cross-Eyed Child, Unnecessary Blindness and the Home Training of the Blind Child. These are available on request and the C.N.I.B. performs a national service of a very high standard in educating the public.

The danger symptoms of eye trouble with which all parents should be familiar are—holding a book nearer than fourteen inches to the face, difficulty with simple reading, slowness at school, scowling or screwing up the face, sensitiveness to light, nervousness, watery or inflamed eyes, one-eye squint, or recurring headaches. Only a doctor can tell whether eye trouble is the cause of any of these symptoms and he should be consulted without delay.

BAD HABITS

But during ordinary health, investigation has shown that a child's sight is often being slowly but surely harmed by bad habits such as bending or stooping, or lying in a prone position, with the eyes much too close to the book object attracting attention. Concentrating for longer than half an hour without resting the eyes and working or playing in a poor light are also disastrous to good eyesight. Recent school surveys in one Canadian province have shown that almost twenty per cent of the elementary school students suffered from some sort of visual defect.

Parents who realize that their child suffers discomfort, headaches, slow learning, unhappiness and possible a permanent handicap if eyes are not properly protected from strain will do all they can to save their children's eyesight. Insist on proper posture and correct lighting.

— Even little tots should not form the habit of keeping their eyes fixed on something at a distance closer than a foot. A longer distance, about 17 inches, between the eyes and the book should be observed by older children. The book should be held at a 45 degree angle, just below the level of the chin. Because of faulty posture, shortsightedness (myopia) increases from a small percent of children who enter kindergarten at five years to about 30 per cent of boys and girls starting high school. A child should form the habit in early years of sitting upright in a small properly designed chair, when he wants to read. A child's eyesight is beyond price! No trouble should be too great to safeguard and preserve it for adult use!

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—Members of the Women's Missionary Society of Coldsprings United Church were guests of Mrs. Arthur Jamieson for their September meeting, Thursday.

Mrs. P. Davidson presided.

There were fifteen members and one visitor present. Miss E. Hoskin was pianist for the hymn singing. It was decided to send for two packets of books for Mission Band work.

Societies to be invited as guests are Plainville, Camborne, Gore's Landing United Church and St. George's, Bethel Grove, Bethesda North, and Bethesda South. Coldsprings WMS group leaders are to be in charge of lunch.

An invitation was received and accepted to attend the Gore's Landing Thankoffering meeting on October 2, when Mrs. Fisher of Brooklin, a former minister's wife will be the guest speaker.

The president read a letter from the Dominion board, reporting on the literature bookshop. It stated that Coldsprings Women's Missionary Society had won the Bookshop award for scoring the highest points in reading in the presbyterial. They will receive the gift of a complete book set.

Mrs. L. McIntosh was convener for the program, the subject being "The Church, the Household of Faith." Mrs. D. Buttars read the scripture and Mrs. J. Ritchie led in prayer. Mrs. McIntosh read a short story, "Courage." Mrs. H. Davidson gave a paper on "Christian Stewardship."

A vote of thanks was given to the hostess by Mrs. P. Davidson. Mrs. M. Linton's group served lunch.

OTTAWA (CP)—Solon Low, Social Credit leader, today said no patriot worked harder or more consistently for the good of his country than Gordon Graydon who died early today in Toronto.

"Gordon Graydon was one of the finest fellows I ever met. As a man, as a parliamentarian, as a public servant, as a lawyer, as a friend he was outstanding," said Mr. Low.

Plan Special Stamps

NEW DELHI (Reuters)—India's post and telegraphs department will issue on Oct. 2, the late Mahatma Gandhi's birthday, stamps commemorating the conquest of Mount Everest. The stamps, in two denominations, will carry a picture of the world's highest peak, taken by the Indian air force last June.

HAMILTON (CP)—Several air raid sirens have been installed at strategic spots throughout this city, the civil defence co-ordinator said Friday. The sirens will be tested at an early date when members of the Junior Chamber of Commerce will conduct a survey to determine results.

New Mass Arrests

Sees Helicopters Used On Short Airline Hauls

TORONTO (CP)—The helicopter eventually will take over airline duties on short hauls of 200 to 300 miles, [illegible] predicted Friday night.

Addressing a National Air Show banquet, Igor Sikorsky said the helicopter of the future may accommodate 100 passengers on its short hops. But he doubted that its present top speed of 146 miles an hour will ever stretch beyond the 150-200 m.p.h. range.

Frank Piasecki, chairman of the Piasecki Helicopter Corporation of Morton, Pa., and of the newly-formed Piasecki Helicopter Company of Canada at Arnprior, Ont., predicted that large freight helicopters will bring a new era of development to northern Canada by making remote areas easily accessible.

At the banquet, held on the eve of the opening of the show today, Mayor Allan Lamport said next year's show will be affiliated with the Canadian International Trade Fair and that the flying demonstrations will be held on the fair's final day next June.

Cameron Driver Fined $57.50

LINDSAY (ENS)—A 58-year-old Cameron man, Stanley McNevin, was convicted of driving while his ability was impaired, Friday, and fined $50 and $17.50 costs.

The original charge, laid by Constable Ross Bailey, of the Lindsay police department, had been one of drunk-driving but was reduced by Magistrate Gee after the evidence of the officer had been heard.

McNevin was driving on Kent St. W. on September 1 when he collided with a United States tourist's car, which was backing out of a parking spot at the south curb. The tourist's evidence was taken at an earlier court before he returned home.

Constable Bailey told the court McNevin was unsteady on his feet and smelled of alcohol when he was at the scene. A part bottle of gin was found in McNevin's car.

McNevin was defended by J. A. McQuarrie, of Lindsay.

It was decided to be responsible for the laying of a new cement floor in the church hall, to instal two washrooms, and a hot water tank. It was decided also to dispose of the stove in the old kitchen. It is expected that these projects will cost more than $3,000; Mrs. John McKnight, president, was in the chair.

More Leisurely Pace Noted In U.S. Business

By WALTER BREEDE Jr.

NEW YORK (AP) — Slowdown signals flashed on the U.S. business scene this week—new evidence that the Korea boom was adjusting to a more leisurely peacetime tempo.

On balance the week showed a gain in activity in most major lines, but this reflected curtailed holiday operations in the previous week. Auto output zoomed ahead 17 per cent; bank clearings rose 40 per cent.

But scheduled steel production was a mere percentage point above last week's rate which had been held down by an industry-wide holiday on Labor Day and a strike at Bethlehem Steel.

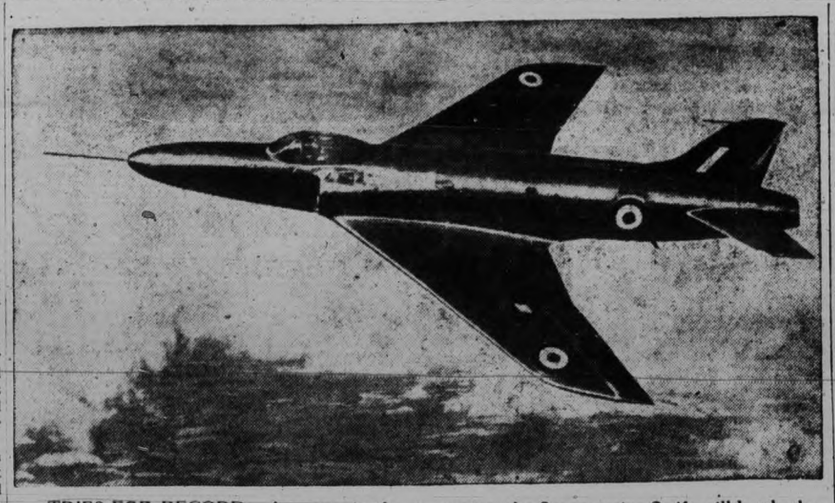
Retail trade continued to lag behind year-ago levels although some merchants reported exceptionally good business, particularly in back-to-school togs.

ON MINUS SIDE

On the minus side—an attempted Wall St. rally fizzled out; prices of steel, lead, wheat and cotton declined; the U.S. Air Force announced a half-billion-dollar cutback in jet engine procurement. Republic Steel announced that its Truscon Steel division is putting 65 per cent of its 1,400 production workers on a four-day week because of a "drop in home construction." The division makes windows, lath and other building materials.

The jet engine cutback was the second air force curtailment in two weeks. In the earlier action, 965 military planes were shaved from procurement plans, representing cancellation of $750,000,000 worth of orders. This time 6,000 jet engines may be involved. The blow was expected to strike hard at segments of the auto industry which had been making engine parts.

The navy announced plans for stretching out its jet procurement, but there was plenty of life left in the defence production program as a whole. Several fat tank and vehicle contracts were awarded: $285,000,000 worth to General Motors and $61,000,000 to Reo. There were reports Chrysler was being signed up for a $50,000,000 contract for tank retrievers.



TRIES FOR RECORD—An entry in the "air race of the century" is Vickers Supermarine Swift, supersonic descendant of Britain's famed Spitfire of the Second World War. Powered by a Rolls-Royce turbojet engine, the Supermarine Swift will battle the Hawker Hunter, another British jet fighter, for the world's speed title over the African desert in Libya. The Hunter now holds the record of 727.6 miles an hour.

Canada Intends To Hold Policy

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada intends to maintain a flexible attitude toward the Communist Chinese proposal for reconsidering the question of what countries shall be represented at the forthcoming Korean peace conference.

Canada, like the 15 other countries which fought under the UN command in Korea, strongly opposes reopening debate in the UN General Assembly on the conference makeup.

But, informants say, this does not preclude the possibility of a change in the Canadian attitude if it should appear that there would be no hope otherwise that the peace conference ever will be held.

At the special session of the assembly last month it was decided that only the 16 countries which fought for the UN in Korea would be invited as the UN side of the peace conference, supposed to be held before the end of October. The attitude was that the Chinese communists and the North Koreans could invite anyone they wanted to sit on their side of the table. This meant that if Russia was to attend, she would be sitting as one of the aggressor nations.

The Chinese and North Koreans offered a counter-proposal that the conference should be a round-table affair instead of a two-sided one. They also suggested a conference attended by any or all of the belligerents plus the following so-called neutral nations: the Soviet Union, India, Indonesia, Pakistan and Burma.

QUEBEC (CP)—J. H. Downs of Lethbridge, Alta., Friday was elected president of the Amalgamated Civil Servants of Canada at the close of their 14th biennial national convention here. He succeeds H. A. Helm of Kitchener, who is retiring after holding the president's post for nine years.

Antoine Simard of Quebec was elected first national vice-president and vice-president for Quebec.

Treyor Gough of Ottawa was elected national secretary, succeeding Fred Knowles, retiring after holding the post since 1928.

Colette Marchand Weds

LONDON (AP)—Colette (Legs) Marchand, the tall, blonde French ballerina who won screen fame as the streetwalker in "Moulin Rouge" was married to orchestra conductor Jacques Bazire in a hush-hush civil ceremony Friday. Both are appearing here with Roland Petit's Ballets de Paris. She is 28; he is 25.

Heads Police Body

FORT WILLIAM (CP)—William Croft of Hamilton Friday was elected president of the Police Association of Ontario to succeed Trevor Matthews of Fort Erie. Elected as first vice-president was James Bryan of St. Catharines. Richard Lewis of Toronto was re-elected secretary. Elected as treasurer was Edward Cook of Toronto.

3 Newsmen Win Acquittal

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuters)—Three officials of the newspaper Communist Review were acquitted Friday of sedition charges against the crown.

The charges arose from an article in the newspaper assailing the Coronation last June. The prosecution claimed the article brought the monarchy into "hatred and contempt."

Acquitted by the special federal court here were Herbert Novyll Chandler, owner of the company which prints the Communist Review, James Norman Bone, manager of the printing firm, and Adam Ogston, publisher of the newspaper. They were allowed court costs against the crown.

The presiding judge said he felt the article was radical political criticism, but the "worst that could be said of it was that it was in bad taste."

Air Speed Record Set By CPA Plane

TORONTO (CP)—A commercial air speed record for the 1,700-mile Edmonton to Toronto route was set Friday by one of Canadian Pacific Airlines' new DC-6A cargo planes which made the trip in four hours, 47 minutes.

Average speed for the 53-ton airliner was 355 miles an hour. Top speed was set at 398.

The big aircraft is to take part in today's national air show here.

atomic energy to industry, medicine and agriculture which have already been made possible by the Chalk River project. More difficult to explain to the layman are the important discoveries related to the structure of the atom and nuclear processes which have been made by AECL scientists. But the importance of these discoveries will eventually be emphasized as they are applied to industry and medicine.

The fact that the NRX reactor has the highest known "neutron flux" of any natural uranium reactor in the world has made it possible not only to produce radioactive isotopes which are difficult or impossible to produce in other reactors; but also to obtain certain information needed for the development of power-producing reactors which could not be obtained elsewhere.

Wide-Open Vice Feared By Priests

HULL, Que. (CP)—Priests of Hull's eight Roman Catholic parishes have protested to city council against a step which they said might bring "an era of wide-open vice," it was reported Friday.

A spokesman for the priests said the protest concerned city council's recent decision depriving the police commission of power to grant or refuse licences and permits for various activities.

In a letter signed by the priests, restoration of the police commission powers was asked.

The spokesman said the priests fear the new ruling may lead to 'abuses which we had in the past" including all-night card games, bookmaking and "major vices."

Readers Get What They Ask

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—"If newspapers are not what you want, don't blame us, blame the reader," Michael Barkway, Ottawa correspondent for the Financial Post, told a Press Day luncheon at Western Fair Friday.

"Freedom of the press," he reminded his listeners, "means freedom to be wrong. Freedom involves the possibility of error."

In a witty talk, he mentioned "speechmakers, politicians, knaves and rogues" and added: "If you find the press cynical consider the classes of people we deal with."

J. D. Innes of Woodstock showed the grand champion female at the western Ontario Holstein championship show held at the fair. David R. Stevens of St. Mary's was both premier breeder and exhibitor with Innes as runner-up for premier exhibitor and Lorne B. Reid of Ripley runner-up for premier breeder.

Crashes Through Rail Driver Badly Hurt

CHATEAUGUAY, Que. (CP)—A truck-trailer driver was severely injured Friday night when his vehicle, carrying three new cars, crashed through a steel guard rail on a bridge here and plunged 50 feet to a pile of rocks.

Laurier Fournier, 31, of Kingston, was taken to hospital in serious condition with back and internal injuries.

Fournier told police he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming bus. Chateauguay is about 15 miles southwest of Montreal.

The three cars were heavily damaged and the truck-trailer, owned by an Oshawa firm (Charlton Transport Co.) was wrecked.

3-Way Collision 2 Men Killed

TORONTO (CP)—Two tobacco workers were killed and two others severely injured Friday night in a collision involving two trucks and an automobile just west of nearby Cooksville.

Police said the dead and injured were riding in the car, bound for their homes in Toronto from the tobacco fields at Tillsonburg.

Killed were Julius Vaitkevicious and Siegmund Butkas, about 25. Injured were Vytaudas Sadreika, about 25, and Vladys Sleinys. Stan Praapas, who police say was the driver of the car, was unhurt.

Police said the eastbound car carrying the tobacco workers swerved on Highway No. 5 to avoid colliding with the rear of a three-ton dump truck. They said the car sideswiped a panel truck driven by N. E. McDonald of Amherst, Ont., and then shot beneath the box of the dump truck.

Jaw Badly Fractured By Three Attackers

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Julius Kulchar, Niagara Falls, Ont., is in Tillsonburg District Memorial Hospital with a badly fractured jaw and other facial injuries while police seek two men and a woman who Kulchar claimed beat him up and robbed him of $200 earnings he had saved from working in the tobacco harvest.

Kulchar told police he believes he was thrown out of a car by the trio on the Norfolk-Oxford town line. Police investigation revealed he had been drinking with the trio before the attack.

Child's Fall Fatal

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Injured in an accident Thursday night, five-year-old Tommy Koebel died of an internal haemorrhage, an autopsy showed Friday. Indications were the child was fatally hurt when he toppled from his tricycle near his home. It was thought earlier that the child might have been struck by an automobile.

Footpads To Blame

MONTREAL (CP) — Ladies, if you're coming to Montreal hang on to your shoes.

Suzanne Lefebvre of nearby Verdun reported Thursday a young man raced up behind her as she was entering a downtown office building, grabbed her by the ankles, and ran off with her $8 red shoes.

Wednesday Rita Racine of Montreal told police a man snatched her blue-colored shoes from her feet as she was entering her home.

U.S.-Canadian Mayors Plan Joint Convention

By BOB JOYCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP) — Canadian and United States mayors will get together for the first time in history next week to thresh out their problems at the International Municipal Congress Sept. 20-24.

The congress, sponsored jointly by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities and the U.S. Conference of Mayors, will bring together the top executives of some 800 towns and cities on both sides of the border.

During the five-day convention the mayors will hear experts in municipal problems discuss basic problems of modern city government.

Also attending the conference will be a group of British and Commonwealth mayors, including W. J. Tristram, Lord Mayor of Liverpool.

GUESTS AT RECEPTION

Delegates will be guests of the Canadian federation at a reception Sunday evening, first of a long round of official receptions, luncheons and dinners, fitted between working sessions of the congress.

The Canadian mayors will hold two separate meetings, one to discuss tax and finance problems of Canadian cities, and the other to hear the annual reports of federation officers.

Highlight of the international sessions will be discussion of a joint international survey on "finance and taxation problems of municipal governments." One part of the report deals with the United States, the other with Canada.

But the mayors will also exchange ideas on other thorny issues, notably the ever-present traffic and parking problem.

SEPARATE CONVENTIONS

Previously the U.S. and Canadian mayors have met in separate conventions. President of the Canadian federation is J. O. Asselin, chairman of Montreal's executive committee and president of the Montreal metropolitan commission.

City most likely to be remembered at the convention is Hilo, Hawaii. Mayor James Kealoha of Hilo has arranged to have orchids flown from Hawaii for presentation to each delegate.

Big Machine Tool Is Worth $500,000

MANCHESTER (CP)—The largest machine tool ever made in Britain is awaiting shipment to its Canadian destination at Toronto.

The 650-ton machine, manufactured in 2½ years for John Inglis Company, is worth nearly $500,000. It will be split into several parts shortly for shipment to Canada. Largest shipping portion will weigh 57 tons.

The machine covers as much space as 1½ tennis courts, is 40 feet high and equals the weight of 60 of London's double-decker buses. Its 41-foot turntable can handle objects as big as Britain's centurion tank, the country's largest.

Division of the Territory of Carolina into the Colonies of North and South Carolina took place in 1729.

CIVIL DEFENCE DISPLAY—A travelling show to make Canadians more civil-defence conscious will be shown at 10 centres across Canada from Halifax to Vancouver. At each stop civil defence exercises will be held. This display at Ottawa shows the five methods of warfare to be expected if a third world war breaks out. They are chemical, incendiary, sabotage, biological and psychological.

Stock Prices Continue Drop On Toronto Stock Exchange

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Stock market prices this week continued a decline that started in mid-August on the Toronto stock exchange—and talks in Edmonton provided tentative answers to the question: "Why?"

Business men and economists attending the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce there expressed the opinion that business activity may decline next year.

Toronto market observers said this belief is fairly general and investors are taking into account the possibility of reduced dividends in 1954.

In the five weeks since Aug. 17 prices—as measured by the Toronto exchange's indexes—have dropped an average of 13.04 points. This week's average drop was 3.99 index points.

HAD BEST YEAR

J. Douglas Gibson, supervisor of the Bank of Nova Scotia's economics department, said in Edmonton: "At the end of this year, we shall probably find it to have been the best year in the Canadian record. Next year should be a pretty good one but probably not as good as this."

He said some decline in United States business activity is quite likely in 1954, but he did not foresee a 1929-type bust.

On the Toronto bond market this week, the anticipated increase in trading failed to materialize, but prices held steady. Corporation issues were steady and government of Canada bonds held to last week's higher levels. Convertible bonds slipped with the declining stock market.

LOW FOR YEAR

The New York market hit a low for the year Monday when the Associated Press average of 60 stocks declined to $99.50. By the end of the week, small recoveries boosted the average to $101.30—a loss of 50 cents on the week.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto exchange indexes showed industrials down 4.45 at 300.88, golds down 3.10 at 69.77, base metals down 4.83 at 139.66 and western oils down 3.60 at 86.01.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .07 at 34.31, utilities down 1.0 at 93.3, industrials down 3.8 at 176.9, combined down 2.8 at 149.1, papers down 8.15 at 700.65 and golds down 3.15 at 51.69.

Town Halts Credit Buying

GILBERT PLAINS, Man. (CP)—No more purchasing with promises in this Manitoba community. Credit's kaput.

The bill collector may have to leave town for lack of work, or so business men hope.

For in these days of "nothing down, easy payments" they have banded together and substituted cash on the line for credit buying. And no exceptions.

They announced Friday they will stop extending credit to their customers starting Oct. 1. By cutting down on bookkeeping and other costs, they hope to sell at lower prices.

Once accounts owing have been paid off, all transaction will be made in cash in this farming town of approximately 800 persons.

The manager of a local department store said "we haven't had any complaints but some of the other stores have had a customer or two blow up in their clerks' faces."

Malan Making New Attempt Control Courts

CAPETOWN (CP)—Prime Minister Daniel Malan's government Friday night introduced a bill for the creation of a separate High Court to rule with supreme powers on all constitutional issues.

This was the latest manoeuvre in attempts by the Malan forces to pass legislation thrown out by the courts in past as unconstitutional.

The government would be in charge of appointing judges to the proposed court and would thus be in a position, if it chose, to appoint judges more sympathetic to its legislation.

FRUSTRATED TO DATE

Malan has been frustrated so far in efforts to oust voters of mixed blood from the common electoral roll and place them on a separate register—one of the planks in his government's racial segregation policy.

The new bill calls for separation of the present Court of Appeal—highest judicial body in South Africa—into two sections. One would deal with criminal and civil cases and the other with the validity of government acts and ordinances. The present court has invariably ruled key apartheid (racial segregation) measures sponsored by Malan as unconstitutional.

Ammunition Blast Fatal

OTTAWA (CP)—Death of Cpl. William James Lambert Topping in an ammunition explosion last Wednesday night at an army training area in Japan was reported Friday by army headquarters. Cpl. Topping, whose wife, Lillian, liven at Petawawa, had been assigned with other soldiers to clean up and demolish live ammunition at the Haramura training area near Kure an army spokesman said.

Tweed Men Visit Marmora, Deloro Industries

MARMORA (ENS) — About 60 members of Tweed Chamber of Commerce, under arrangements made by Marmora District Chamber of Commerce, visited the plant of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Co. at Deloro and the mine of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. near Marmora on Wednesday afternoon.

Following their tour they attended the dinner meeting of the Marmora chamber at the Royal Hotel. The attendance was more than 100. Presiding was Ralph E. Neal, president of the local chamber, who extended a welcome to the guests.

James L. Shannon referred to the impetus the Tweed chamber had given to the formation of the Marmora chamber at a preliminary meeting in the town hall in 1948. He remarked that if as much good luck came to Marmora in the next five years as since 1948, its population might reach the 4,000 mark. It has meant prosperity to the village, whose spirit has been big enough to share it with its neighbors.

Edgar Jones, president of the Tweed chamber, thanked the two local industries and the Marmora chamber for their hopitality and superintended the distribution of a small gift from his chamber to each of the Marmora men.

The presentation of a smoking stand was made to Ken Burkell, past president of Tweed Chamber of Commerce, who recently moved from Tweed to Belleville. Reeve F. Graham, of Tweed, made the presentation.

OPERATIONS OUTLINED

R. G. Walsh, general manager of the Deloro company, gave a summary of the operation of the plant since formation of the company in 1907. Harold Olsen, general manager of the Bethlehem Steel Corp. mine, spoke next.

He briefly sketched the short connection of his company with the district, reminding his hearers that diamond drilling started in 1950 and extended to August, 1951. It was in June, 1952, that they put the first shovel into the pit.

About 10 million tons of limestone had been removed in one year. About another 10 million tons remained to be taken out, indicating another year of limestone removal. He also gave other figures on the prospective mining and concentration of ore, which later on will be sent to Picton for shipment and storage.

H. W. Sabine, of the local chamber, thanked the two companies for their courtesies.

Sam Curry said he was pleased to think Tweed had been associated with the work of the Marmora chamber and that prosperity had visited the village so soon after. Tweed would now also like to expand and so Marmora chamber should be invited to Tweed. He hoped a visit on a similar scale could be arranged to have Marmora visit Tweed next year.

Doug Coleman showed a film, after which Charles Leach, new manager of the hotel, was introduced.

Past President Feted By St. Aidan's WA

SELWYN—(ENS) —About 18 members of the Women's Auxiliary of St. Aidan's Church, Young's Point, gathered at the rectory for a farewell party in honor of Mrs. Jack Townsend, who, with her husband, is leaving this week to reside in Florida.

Mrs. Townsend was a past president of the WA.

Mrs. Ron Nicholson thanked Mrs. Townsend for her help in the past years and Mrs. D. Darling presented her with an amethyst brooch.

Mrs. William Bland was also presented with bed room slippers as a token of appreciation.

Mr. Arthur Morris, the people's warden, paid tribute to Mrs. Bland.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Monks and her assistants with Mrs. Hilda Woods pouring tea and Mrs. Nicholson pouring coffee.

Contract Awarded For Church Basement

NORWOOD (ENS)—The contract for the basement of the Norwood United Church has been let to W. H. Mortlock, general contractor of Peterborough.

The terms are that the company is to do the excavating, laying of concrete footings, foundation walls and is also to supply and build the steel construction that will support the main body of the church. Construction will be on the former site of the church, which was completely destroyed by fire last March. The cost of the basement is as yet undetrmined. The basement will take care of the Sunday school as well as the committee rooms and the kitchen.

The plan calls for a building 95 feet long and 49 feet wide. It will not be as large as the previous one. The designer is Mr. R. Roberts of Westport.

Hold Cooking School

MARMORA (ENS) — Sponsored by the IODE, a two days cooking school began at the Plaza Theatre on Thursday afternoon with a fine attendance of ladies from the district.

Local merchants and some of the firms supplying goods to the retail trade furnished prizes for the draw each day.

THEIR MASTER CALLS — The concubines of Sidi Mohammed, former Sultan of Morocco, board a plane at Rabat, Morocco, to join the Sultan at Ajaccio, Corsica, where he is in exile. The strange move came after diplomatic advisers recommended that Sidi Mohammed, the ex-ruler, be permitted to enjoy in banishment all the honors due his lofty Moorish rank.

Douks Say Reds Not Backing Antics In West

NELSON, B.C. (CP)—Authorities here denied Friday that Communists have been responsible for the antics of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors in this area.

They were commenting on a statement by Stefan S. Sorokin, spiritual leader of the B.C. Freedomites, from Uruguay that recent demonstrations were "instigated by Communists."

The sources here said that Mr. Sorokin's feelings about the affect of commgunism on Doukhobors, although not entirely without foundation, were somewhat colored by his own experiences before coming to Canada.

The bearded Sorokin, in Uruguay for 10 months in an attempt to find a new home for the unhappy Freedomites, arrived in Canada several years ago as a displaced person after suffering persecution and became a figure of veneration among the radical sect.

The fact that the splinter religion opposes authority in any form, except the self-imposed form of religious leadership it develops, discounted the Red influence.

It was noted, however, that some sect members can speak only the Russian language. For that reason, their reading may have included Soviet propaganda, tinging their thinking.

At least one authority says that some of the recent home burnings totalling 13, can be blamed on differences between the Sorokin followers and those who followed the leadership of John Lebedoff, who is still in this area.

However, Sorokin is credited with being an influence for peace. He has repeatedly warned the Freedomites that their nude parades, dynamitings and home-burnings would bring drastic reprisals in any other country than Canada.

FRESHMAN AT 80 — Happy as any teenager getting ready for college, is 80-year-old Mrs. Della Frier, shown here as she enrolled as a freshman at Arizona State College in Tempe. She last attended school in 1890. She and her late husband, T. C. Frier, built up a cattle empire of 20,000 acres. "But I've always wanted to go to college," she says.

Mystery Man Visits Farms, Steals German Laborers

WOODSTOCK (CP)—A mysterious elderly stranger, apparently German, has been reported visiting West Zorra township farms and spiriting away recently arrived German laborers who appear frightened of the man, yet go with him, sometimes so quickly they don't have time to get their clothes.

Farmers appeared mystified as to what has happened to several immigrants who have disappeared in recent weeks.

Bert Conway, RR 3, Embro, brought up the mystery at the fall meeting of the executives of Oxford farm forums here Thursday night.

He named four West Zorra farmers whose help had been taken away by the "sinister" stranger with the mysterious control over the men.

When he finished, two other forum executive members immediately told of "queer experiences" with German help leaving the farms and an elderly stranger apparently seeking Germans.

"It seems there's some undercurrent group working here right under our noses," Mr. Conway said. He reported a laborer on the farm of Osborn Murray, RR 3, Embro, was whisked away opening day of Woodstock fair while Mr. Murray was away from the farm.

"The fellow was definitely afraid of the man, and Mrs. Murray was afraid of him," Mr. Conway said. Mrs. Murray wanted to pack the boy's good clothes but the stranger said, 'Where you're going to bunk you won't need any nice clothes like that.' They left before she could pack them."

He also reported that a man working for La Verne McCorquodale, Embro, "was taken away right from the threshing machine, when they needed him most." Others named who apparently lost their help were George Hewitt, Embro and George Gates, Lakeside.

A woman, who wished not to be quoted, told of "a queer experience one Sunday morning not so long ago.

"An elderly stranger and a young man, smartly dressed and carrying field glasses were standing by their milk shed early in the morning when the hired man walked by and saw them. "Do you speak German?" the elderly fellow asked the hired man. When he answered no, the two left in their car.

Jack Dennis, Burgessville, another forum executive member, told of a young German man and wife, who hurriedly left the farm of Murray Allison, Verschoyle, and went to Hamilton.

"There's something sinister about the whole thing," Mr. Conway said. He said he didn't think the RCMP had been notified but understood one farmer was going to take some action.

EATON'S

This fall....

the importance of ELEGANCE

Autumn heralds a new age of elegance, a new liveliness in fashion. Blended with skill and restraint, superbly blended into co-ordinated clothes and accessories, these fashions are the most beautiful in years. The foremost silhouette in coats, dresses, suits and separates seen throughout daytime and evening, is a flower-like slender shaft of skirt flowing upward into softened lines above a taut midriff. The inspiration for late day and formal gowns comes from the great salons and ballrooms of an earlier age... breathtaking in their magnificence, often billowing in a manner to steal Marie Antoinette. Elegance in casuals is introduced in distinguished co-ordinated coats, suits and separates with a custom-made appearance; glowing polished shoes used everywhere, on everything; fabrics, especially tweeds, of a new softness and richness; the clean-cut "Little Brother" look of sportswear.

Autumn presents this new elegance to you to adapt to your way of life throughout the important fashion season ahead.

Red Pilot Lands MiG For Allies

North Korean Said Eligible Still For $100,000 Prize

SEOUL —(AP)— A daring North Korean pilot today handed the Allies a sleek MiG-15 jet fighter—the deadly Red warplane for which the United States offered $100,000 last February.

The MiG's guns were still armed when it raced unheralded from North Korea and made a perfect landing at sprawling Kimpo air base near Seoul.

It was the first MiG to fall into Allied hands in Korea. The Russian-built, swept-wing fighters never left their own air over Red territory during the war.

The UN command said the $100,000 reward offered for the first MiG to bolt to the Allies is still in effect.

There was no quick reaction from the Communists.

FLYER N. KOREAN

In Tokyo, Gen. O. P. Weyland, Far East Air Forces commander, said the flier was a North Korean.

Weyland announced the jet was from a North Korean air unit." It is being studied by U.S. Air Force officers.

The pilot's name will not be revealed unless her personally consents.

The pilot disappeared behind a tight wall of secrecy and Kimpo air base was closed to everyone but authorized military personnel.

A psychological warfare colonel near Seoul said American Sabre jets met the MiG over the southern boundary of the demilitarized strip across the Korean peninsula and escorted the Red fighter to Seoul.

An American pilot who met him said the flier pulled a picture of a girl from his blue flying suit and tore it up. The American pieced together the shreds of the picture, which he said "looked like a North Korean."

PILOT HAPPY

Col. Don P. Hall of Kingsville, Tex., commander of the 4th Fighter-Interceptor Wing, said the pilot was "smiling and very happy it was over with."

Hall said the MiG pilot got out of his plane and immediately saluted U.S. Capt. Cipriano F. Guerra.

"The captain was quite surprised," Hall said. "He got out of his Sabre jet and walked over to the MiG-15. A crewman threw sandbags under the wheels.

"The MiG pilot shook hands with all the men.

"The captain pointed toward the gun on the MiG and the MiG pilot turned off the switch. Air police immediately surrounded the plane."

Hint Beria Escapes Russia

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senator Joseph McCarthy's investigations sub-committee hopes to know within a few days, an informed source said today, whether a mysterious figure who claims to be Lavrenty Beria really is the deposed Kremlin police boss. The Wisconsin Republican has refused to be quoted on the matter at all. A person familiar with the Senate group's operations said, however, that investigators are convinced Beria has escaped from Russia and is hiding, in terror of his life, in a neutral European country. Other government sources, also asking not to be quoted by name, were skeptical, saying the chances of Beria's having escaped from behind the Iron Curtain were "one in a million."

The Senate source said today that "a new man has gone over who will know him if it is Beria," and that a report from this person can be expected within a few days.

This source said the man who calls himself Beria had been contacted by agents of McCarthy's subcommittee and had sought political asylum in the United States in exchange for disclosure of Russian secrets.

KNOW NOTHING

Officials in the executive branch of the government said they knew nothing which would lead them to believe that Beria, former head of the Russian secret police, has managed to get out of Russia. At the same time, it was made clear the U.S. government would be glad to receive any man who knows as many of the Kremlin's secrets as Beria does.

So far as is known in the West, Beria was last seen in public in Moscow on May 1. Soviet Premier Malenkov denounced him as a traitor on July 9 and ousted him from his posts as home minister and first deputy chairman of the council of ministers.

His name as not been mentioned in the Russian press or radio in recent weeks, and there has been no recent mention of any trial. This has led to some speculation here that he may already have been executed.

SECOND AGENT SENT

The Senate source said an agent of McCarthy's sub-committee had flown to a "neutral, non-Communist country" in Europe and, after talking with the purported Beria, reported he is convinced the man is who he says he is. It was then, he said, that another agent who could identify Beria was sent.

This source predicted that the state department would issue a statement about the whole matter shortly. But a department spokesman said he did not know anything about the Beria case.

Top RCAF Jet Pilot Killed Before Thousands At Show

TORONTO (CP)—Canada's air force lost its top jet pilot Saturday when Sqdn. Ldr. Raymond Greene of Ottawa could not pull his F-86E Sabre jet out of a dive during a display of aerobatics at the National Air Show and crashed into Lake Ontario. More than 60,000 persons crowding the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront area watched as the fatal accident occurred midway through the program. However, the show continued.

Sqdn. Ldr. Greene had screeched his aircraft across the front of the crowd at an estimated 650 miles an hour, less than 100 feet off the water, and swept up into a climbing turn when the crash took place. Diving for a second run along the waterfront, he failed to pull out in time.

The plane hit almost flatly, then bounced and exploded in a brilliant flash of orange flame. The heavy jet engine hurtled on while a spreading pall of black smoke marked the scattered wreckage of the $350,000 aircraft.

RACE TO SPOT

An RCAF crash boat, navy launches and harbor patrol boats raced to the spot while an RCN helicopter hovered overhead. All that was found was an oil slick and a few pieces of floating debris. Among them were the pilot's notebook and helmet.

Late Sunday, men on dragging operations had recovered only a fragment of bone, identified by chief coroner Smirle Lawson as part of a skull of a person who had died during the previous 24 hours.

Sqdn. Ldr. Greene joined the RCAF in 1942 and had flown jets since they became standard equipment. In 1950 and 1951 he served as an exchange officer with the United States Air Force. He is survived by his widow and two children, a five-year-old daughter and a six-week-old son.

BLAME LOW CEILING

Some observers blamed the crash on the low ceiling Saturday, coupled with a light rain which made visibility hazardous. The Toronto Fly-

Ex-Premier Under Arrest

CAIRO (AP)—President Mohammed Naguib's government arrested former premier Mustafa Nahas, his wife and 13 other onetime Egyptian bigwigs today. All 14 face trial before a special court created to deal with "traitors" to the revolutionary regime and corruption during the time of former king Farouk.

The trial will open Saturday in a small room of the revolutionary council headquarters at Gezira, the island in the Nile that is a part of Cairo. Specific charges against the 14 have not been disclosed.

The roundup came as the three-man special tribunal prepared to begin trials of alleged plotters. The court hearings were scheduled to open later today and to remain in session throughout the three-year "transition period" — proclaimed last January—in which Egypt is operating under a provisional constitution. Political parties have been banned during that period.

Those arrested today included leaders of two once powerful political parties, several close advisers of Farouk and other persons previously accused of corruption under the monarchy.

Nahas, premier of the Wafdist government that governed Egypt from 1949 to 1952, his wife, and Hafez Affifi, former chief of Farouk's royal cabinet, were put under house arrest.

Establishment of the special court was announced shortly after Naguib and his top aides told a Cairo rally last Tuesday that a conspiracy had been uncovered to restore Farouk to the throne. The former monarch was kicked out July 26, 1952, in an army revolt led by Naguib. The regime declared Egypt a republic last January.

Liners Collide In St. Lawrence

QUEBEC (CP) — The Cunard liner Samaria and the Italian liner Castel Bianco collided in the St Lawrence river early Saturday, about 145 miles down-river from here. The two vessels continued on their way, suffering but slight damage.

The 20,000-ton Samaria, Quebec-bound from Southampton with more than 800 passengers, will make the return trip on schedule Wednesday after undergoing minor repairs. Her passengers have all been landed here.

An official said the damage, a few dented plates in the bow, is "so superficial that it is practically negligible."

Find Boat Overturned, Water Rough

Tackle, One Oar Still In Boat When Discovered

Provincial Police are searching the shoreline of Emily township and the islands in the north part of Pigeon Lake for two Toronto people who are missing and are believed drowned. Their overturned boat was discovered at 6:30 p.m. Sunday about four miles south of Bobcaygeon.

Two people identified as Glenn South, about 40, of Hallam St., and Lillian Watson, about 30, of 1574 Bathurst St., Toronto, went to Lakeview Inn to rent an outboard motor and boat for an afternoon's fishing. They left the summer resort at 1:30 p.m. Sunday and have not been seen since then.

Five hours later their boat was found, floating upside down in the choppy waters of Pigeon Lake, four miles south of Bobcaygeon and about four miles north of Lakeview Inn where they set out.

FISHING TACKLE FOUND

Bob Swartman of Bobcaygeon saw the boat which was floating at a 45-degree angle out of the water because of the weight of the outboard on the stern. A couple of pieces of fishing tackle and one oar were in the boat.

Provincial Police began a search Sunday night of the shoreline and adjacent island in the hope that the couple hung onto the missing oar and perhaps floated to safety. They searched until 3 a.m., discontinued for a few hours, and then once again began their hunt at dawn today.

TOO MANY WEEDS

Attempts at dragging had too be abandoned because of the thick growth of weeds in the lake. They are continuing to look along the shorelines for the two Toronto people, and for a sign of the missing car which may be a clue to

They were staying at a cottage owned by a Mr. Nichols of Bobcaygeon and were not known at Lakeview Inn where they rented the boat and motor for "a couple of hours fishing."

A number of nearby residents are assisting OPP Cpl. Ken Denniss and Constable James Plumtree of Lindsay who are heading the search.

Catch Pickpocket At Cathedral

NEW YORK (AP)—As hundreds of church-goers milled about, a woman detective captured a frantically-struggling woman pickpocket suspect after a hair-pulling contest on the steps of St. Patrick's cathedral Sunday.

Before the prisoner was subdued, detective Mary A. Shanley fired two warning shots into the air and then resorted to fisticuffs as the woman flailed at her, pulling at clothing and hair and beating her about the head.

Miss Shanley, veteran of 22 years of police work, had been assigned to the cathedral after six thefts totalling more than $1,000 were reported by parishioners last week.

Massey Mourns Flier

QUEBEC (CP) — Governor-General Massey placed a wreath at the foot of the Cross of Sacrifice Sunday to mark the 11th anniversary of the Battle of Britain. Two B-25 Mitchell bombers flew overhead during the ceremony held just outside the Citadel, the governor-general's summer residence.

To Hold Show Again

TORONTO —(CP)— The RCAF said today the National Air Show will be held here again in 1954, despite the death of a pilot in a jet plane crash at the event Saturday. A spokesman said the crash does not warrant cancellation of the show.

Seamen Reach Agreement, Strike Averted

MONTREAL (CP)—The dispute between the Seafarers International Union (AFL-TLC) and four Canadian shipping companies has been settled and a threatened strike averted, it was announced today.

Announcement of the settlement was made early this morning by Arthur MacNamara, former deputy minister of labor, appointed federal mediator in the dispute last week.

His announcement came as seamen of Colonial Steamship Lines were about to strike. Following a recent strike vote the union had set today as the date for a walk-out on Colonial ships.

The vote was taken among 4,000 union members on ships of the Colonial lines, Canada Steamship Lines, N. M. Paterson and Sons, and Upper Lakes and St. Lawrence Transportation, Ltd., but only the result of the vote among Colonial seamen had been announced and a strike-date set.

Details of the settlement were not immediately disclosed but Mr. MacNamara said the principle of a 40-hour week had been adopted and a new welfare fund established.

The union rejected a federal conciliation board majority report which recommended gradual reduction of the work week to 40 hours from 54 by next August with payment at regular rates for week end work. The seafarers had asked that Saturday and Sunday work be paid at overtime rates.

Mr. MacNamara met with representatives of the SIU and the shipping companies in Hamilton last week and in Montreal during the weekend. Agreement was reached at 5.30 a.m. Monday.

Farm Income Shows Decrease

OTTAWA (CP)—Cash income received by Canadian farmers during the first half of 1953 showed a drop of $8,200,000 compared with the same period in 1952, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The bureau said cash income during the six months totalled $1,173,700,000 as against $1,181,900,000 last year. This year's figure also was $64,100,000 below the comparable total for 1951.

The cash income figure includes earnings from the sale of all farm products and from grain adjustment and participation payments on previous years' crops. The figure does not include income received by farmers in Newfoundland.

Russia Gives N. Korea Reconstruction Aid

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has announced that it is giving North Korea financial and material help to speed reconstruction of that war-torn Communist country.

The aid was disclosed in a communique issued Sunday following nine days of negotiations between Soviet leaders and a North Korean delegation headed by Premier Kim Il Sung.

At a dinner for the North Koreans the night before, Russian Premier Georgi Malenkov compared the struggle of Asian peoples for independence to the American revolution but accused "powerful American circles" of gross interference in internal affairs of Eastern nations.

The communique said Russia would grant North Korea 1,000,000,000 rubles for reconstruction. This would be equivalent to $250,000,000.

Freighter In Distress Liner Goes To Aid

LONDON (Reuters)—The 6,323-ton Liberian freighter Greenville reported herself in distress in the North Atlantic today and was heard signalling: "We are about to abandon ship."

The French liner Ile de France radioed she was picking up the crew.

The Greenville, en route from Montreal to Britain, reported that her bridge and steering gear had been smashed by heavy seas. Her position was given as near the Azores.

Russia Asks UN Order Immediate Atom Weapon Ban

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Russia called upon the UN today to impose without delay an unconditional ban on the production of atomic and hydrogen weapons. The Soviet proposal was laid before the 60-nation general assembly during a major-policy declaration by Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky. The Soviet delegate also served notice that Russia was ready to make a vigorous fight to get the assembly to revise its earlier decision barring neutral countries as representatives at the Korean peace conference. The Communist demands on this, he said, are justified and must be met.

The Soviet proposals on atomic control included hydrogen weapons by name, but otherwise followed closely Soviet disarmament resolutions of previous sessions.

BLAMES U.S.

Vishinsky assailed the United States as the real cause of world tension, charged Western policy in Germany threatened to touch off a new war and declared the North Atlantic Treaty Organization was aimed at weakening the UN.

The Soviet disarmament resolution—first Soviet move on this subject since the death of Stalin and the accession of Georgi Malenkov as premier—had four points:

1. Immediate and unconditional prohibition of the atomic and hydrogen bombs with the security council—where Russia has the veto—to supervise compliance.

2. Immediate one-third reduction by the big five—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China—in their armed forces with a conference shortly afterwards to discuss reduction of the armed forces of other countries.

3. Dismantling of military bases maintained in foreign countries. This was an obvious reference to the United States for Vishinsky had denounced U. S. bases overseas earlier in his speech.

4. Condemnation of propaganda tending to stimulate warlike psychosis.

TALKS MORE THAN HOUR

The disarmament proposal was made as Vishinsky concluded a speech which lasted one hour and 43 minutes.

The Soviet delegate told the 60-member General Assembly the decision taken by the assembly last month ran counter to the armistice agreement in recommending that only countries representing the two belligerents should take part in the parley.

"The recommendation of this assembly must be brought into conformity with the armistice agreement," he said.

The U.S. has insisted that the armistice restricted the represen-

Ask Oshawa Juniors Inactive This Season

OSHAWA (CP) — The Oshawa hockey club, which holds a junior A franchise in the Ontario Hockey Association, said today it will ask the association to allow the junior team to remain inactive during the 1953-54 season.

The decision came after a $300,000 fire destroyed the Oshawa arena, home of the junior A Generals last week. Club officials said they had received several offers to play their games in other centres but decided to turn them down.

The OHA executive will meet in Toronto Tuesday night to discuss the situation.

Oshawa's senior B club will play its home games in Bowmanville.

Six-Dimension Theory May Solve Atom

KYOTO, Japan (AP)—A theory envisioning as many as six dimensions in an attempt to unravel the secret of the atom was the chief topic of discussion among the world's top physicists in session here Sunday.

The theory by a brilliant young Dutch-American, Prof. Abraham Pais, goes beyond the four dimensions used by his friend and colleague, Dr. Albert Einstein.

Other scientists here cautiously praised the theory after first hearing it explained Saturday.

Prof. Pais said:

"The shortest possible description of the theory is to call it an attempt to explain the large number of particles in the nucleus not as different forms in themselves but as different states of one form.

GREAT SIMPLICITY

"If it is correct, it would bring a great simplicity to our theories of the nucleus. . . .

"It seems necessary in my theory to extend the usual space-time description and, in a very abstract sense, one may say that a higher dimensional frame of description is necessary.

"In my theory, this means six dimensions."

Einstein's theory employed four dimensions, usually thought of as the three common ones of length, breadth and thickness plus time as the fourth dimension.

Bush Pilot Finds Canoeists

BLIND RIVER, Ont. (CP) — A bush pilot spotted and rescued two United States canoeists Saturday after they were marooned for 11 days in rugged bush country north of Lake Huron.

Carl Mattaini of Blind River rescued John Rhodes, 19, and Richard Bauer, 21, both of Detroit. They said their canoe was smashed in rapids on the Mississagi river and they had lived on fish ever since. Both were in good condition.

Mattaini was making an aerial search for the two when he spotted smoke from their campfire. He landed on a nearby lake and walked a mile to where they were stranded.

Passengers Shaken Up

BOSTON (AP) — Thirty-seven passengers and crewmen were shaken up Sunday night when a four-engine Trans - World Airline plane from Madrid crashed into a tractor at a Logan airport landing strip.

No one reported injuries.

Make Thorough Search

Hold Little Hope For 5 After Boat Overturns

MONTREAL (CP)—Little hope was held today that five persons, including a five-year-old girl, survived when their outboard-powered vessel capsized in nearby Lake St. Louis late Saturday night.

Search so far by RCMP, police from adjacent Dorval, sea scouts and private citizens has failed to turn up any trace of those missing. The search started Sunday when the overturned boat was found drifting upside down near Strathmore, 15 miles west of here.

Caught beneath one of the seats of the overturned boat were a man's suit coat and a tarpaulin, identified as belonging to one of the members of the group.

Missing were Norman Middleton, 44 of Dorval, his daughter, Linda, Kenneth Dixon, 30, Ronald Alldis, 25, and Lawrence Wilkinson, 24, all of Montreal.

They went out on Lake St. Louis for a short run Saturday night. When they failed to return in a reasonable time, police were called. A police boat found the capsized vessel early Sunday.

Dorval police said the boat must have overturned "quite far out" as it took five to six hours to float back to shore, a scant two blocks away from the point of departure.

The shore is heavily populated and police said if any survivors had reached land they would have learned of it within a short time.

Few boats were on the lake Saturday night. Heavy rains and high winds whipped up the water several times Saturday night.

Mrs. Middleton said her husband could swim "about 50 yards" but the three other men were excellent swimmers.

Take 11 PoWs Off Troopship For Protection

SINGAPORE (Reuters)—British guards hauled 11 former prisoners of the Korean War off a troopship Sunday to protect them from being taunted and beaten up by army shipmates who are convinced their brains were "washed" by Communist captors.

The 11 Britons, whom fellow ex-prisoners labelled "progressives," were removed from the transport Empire Orwell and taken to a military barracks. This is the second time in a week that they requested "protective custody" from angry fellow soldiers.

Last week at Hong Kong they were taken off the troopship Dunera after days of brawls and fighting during the voyage from Korea.

CAN'T FORGET

The "unwashed" prisoners cannot forget the days in prison camps when some of their mates went "pinko," joined "peace committees" and got special privileges such as extra cigarets.

As the 11 sullen men were led under close guard down the gangway Sunday one soldier on the Empire Orwell said bitterly: "We told these blokes at the camp that they were on the wrong side.

"We're going to make sure they do find out now they were on the wrong side—and a good kick in the stomach is one way."

Call Red Reply Unsatisfactory

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists said today they "never captured" most of the 3,404 Allied troops, including three Canadians, for whom the UN command has demanded an accounting. The Allies angrily called the reply "totally unsatisfactory and unacceptable."

At the same time, the Communists demanded an accounting for 98,742 North Koreans and Chinese they said were captured by the Allies and are missing.

The long-awaited Red answer was to the Sept. 9 Allied demand that the Communists produce the 3,404 men or disclose what happened to them.

U.S. Maj.-Gen. Blackshear M. Bryan, senior Allied delegate, declared.

"Your statement . . . is totally unsatisfactory and unacceptable. None of the people listed have been repatriated. None have been reported by you as having died or escaped. Based on statements emanating from your side, all were in custody at some time. . . ."

First Train On Subway

TORONTO (CP)—The first train ran on Toronto's new subway Sunday, four years and 12 days from the time construction on the underground system was begun.

However, the two cars of the experimental special took two hours and 17 minutes to make the two-mile trip from the Davisville yards to Bloor street station. Every yard was an engineering adventure.

Officials estimated it will take only 18 minutes to make the five-mile run from Union station to Eglinton avenue when the subway opens next March 30.

Planes Beat Schedules With Help Of Gales

LONDON (Reuters)—Air services from New York were arriving at London airport well ahead of schedule today, helped by 130-mile-an-hour gales over the Atlantic.

A British Overseas Airways Constellation touched down four hours 44 minutes ahead of time. Other air services ran up to two hours ahead of schedule.

Weather forecasters said Britain would be swept by gales and squally showers during the next 48 hours. Ships along the southwest coast were running for shelter.

(In Montreal, officials of Trans-Canada Air Lines said the gale winds had helped their aircraft to slip about one hour off the regular schedule flight time Sunday.)

Red Pilot

Asked why the pilot brought the MiG, Hall quoted him:

"I'm happy to leave communism."

"It is believed he knew of the reward," Hall said.

The pilot's first words were reported to be "O. K." His only other word in English was "no."

TURNS OVER GUN

The pilot was armed, but he turned over his loaded pistol to Guerra.

Hall said the Red pilot is about 25 years old and an officer.

Hall said the plane may be taken to the United States for testing, but indicated this had not been decided.

The MiG is not the first to fall into Western hands—two others were landed in Denmark by bolting Polish pilots—but it is the first ever taken in Korea and the first the West can keep for a thorough testing.

The two MiGs flown to Denmark were damaged in landing. They also had to be given back to Poland.

Apparently the MiG surrendered in Korea will be considered a war prize.

Spring Start For Parking Lot

Indications are that work will be started on the city's proposed King St. parking lot in the spring.

The city recently purchased two properties opposite the Colonial Coach Lines terminal for use as a metered parking lot. One of the properties contains houses which will have to be demolished.

The property committee of the council decided Friday to give tenants occupying the houses notice to evacuate by April 30. Although an apartment in one of the houses is unoccupied, it will not be re-rented.

The committee also instructed the clerk to make arrangements with the market employees to clean up the market refuse on Saturday afternoons. The work was previously done by employees of the sanitation department, but they are now on a five-day week.

Sanitary superintendent J. E Pierce advised council that calling out an employee of his department on Saturday afternoon would entail payment for half a day's work at overtime rates.

The committee also approved a charge of $1,000 to the Public Library for heating this winter. It is the same charge as was made last winter.

Lower Prices Start Week On Exchange

TORONTO (CP) — Light early afternoon trading and lowering prices started Toronto stock exchange's week on a gloomy note today.

Golds hit a new low since 1942 and all groups registered slightly lower on the exchange's 1 p.m. index. Industrials and western oils led the downward trend with losses of a half index point each.

In the industrials, liquors were the only class to remain firm. Steels were the hardest hit with all four traded issues losing. Although losses were general, all were fractional. Liquors' gain was led by Sicks', a western brewery.

Western oils losses numbered almost three for every gain although most losses were in pennies. Uraniums and Bathurst-area base metals had a few relatively heavy traders. Calder-Bousquet gained a penny.

Golds had losses in all groups. Prospectors Airways, a holding company, led the losses with a 10-cent drop. Base metals were weak in both the seniors and juniors. The heaviest loss, was United Keno's 25-cent drop. Both Quebec Metallurgical and Pend Oreille, recently weak, showed small gains.

The exchange's 1 p.m. indexes showed industrials down .51 at 300.37, golds down .38 at 69.39, base metals down .40 at 139.36, and western oils down .52 at 89.49.

Arrest 1st Officer On Swedish Ship

STOCKHOLM (AP)—The Swedish foreign office said today the first officer aboard the Swedish ship Gunnel had been arrested at Gdansk (formerly Danzig), Poland, on charges of helping Poles flee their Communist-led homeland.

The announcement said Enar de Joung, the officer, was arrested Saturday after two Polish citizens had been found hiding aboard the 3,015-ton vessel.

Sweden has been the refuge for a considerable number of Poles who have fled from the Communist regime.

Suffering Food Poisoning

Lacrosse Team Shaky Postpone Game

TORONTO (CP)—New Westminster Salmonacs, stricken with food poisoning Friday night, have been given another day to recover before they continue their best-of-five-game Canadian junior lacrosse final with Long Branch Monarchs.

Originally scheduled for Saturday night, the fourth game was postponed twice when the Salmonacs did not get over their illness in time for today's contest. Date for the fourth game has now been set for Tuesday night.

Salmonacs lead the series 2-1 and suffered their first defeat of the season Friday when they lost 16-6 to Long Branch. Many New Westminster players complained of "not feeling well during the game."

Truck Mac Donald, Salmonac coach, said it was definitely established that the poisoning was not contracted from any of the restaurants in the vicinity of the motel at which the Salmonacs are staying. It was definitely an out-of-town location, MacDonald said.

CAUSED BY INFECTION

From health department reports, it seems likely the illness was caused by a virus infection rather than ordinary food poisoning.

Last of the team, taken to hospital in ambulances and police cruisers early Saturday morning, were released from hospital Sunday. But most of them were still shaky and Cliff Sepka, at present the leading scorer of the series with six goals and 10 assists, and Stan Cowie remained in bed Sunday. All affected with the illness were on liquid diets.

MacDonald was also stricken by the poisoning, but didn't take ill until Saturday afternoon. Don Sepka was hit at the same time.

MacDonald wanted to call practice for Sunday afternoon, but it was impossible, he said. "I'm anxious to have a practice today, but it depends on the team's condition. I know now how the illness feels and I wouldn't appreciate being forced to run around in practice that way," he said.

MacDonald said he thought it was considerate of Long Branch coach Jack Dorney to visit the team and say that he wouldn't want to play a team when its members were not well.

"I sure admire the boys for Friday's work," the New Westminster coach said. "They kept going on guts alone, trying to snap out of a condition they couldn't do anything about."

"But the boys will have to get well soon because they must get back to their jobs. I don't think the folks back home are worried too much because the reports reaching them should put them at ease."

Postmasters Meet Here

Mayor Hugh Waddell welcomed a group of about 70 postal authorities from various districts of Ontario at the Empress Hotel today to open the Ontario branch of the Canadian Postmasters' Association annual conference.

Presiding over the convention is J. M. Ferris, postmaster at Campbellford, president of the Ontario branch and secretary of the Dominion branch of the Postmasters' Association.

The conference, a three-day affair, will include the making of resolutions, election of officers and an address by acting president Argyle McFarlane, Ottawa.

The delegates will take a motor trip around the city later today. Various industries and landmarks will be included on the scenic drive which will cover a 15-mile area and last more than an hour.

Dinner and entertainment will be provided each evening by local business firms.

Sure Macleans In Red Area

LONDON (AP)—The foreign office made it officially plain today for the first time that Mrs. Melinda Maclean—wife of Donald Maclean, long-missing British diplomat—and her three children have headed behind the Iron Curtain.

Britain has called off its search in Switzerland and two British security officers who flew there last Monday have returned to London.

A spokesman told reporters:

"It is thought generally that Mrs. Maclean travelled in an easterly direction after leaving Switzerland for Austria."

He did not elaborate.

British officials believe Maclean may soon broadcast to the world from behind the Iron Curtain.

Hint Beria Escapes

The Senate source said the man representing himself as Beria said he had escaped with three aides in an airplane and that, if given refuge in the United States, will talk only with McCarthy or Vice-President Nixon. The source said McCarthy's agents have been in touch with him for about a month.

The source added that, unless the story proves to be a hoax, there is a good chance the man will be brought to this country.

In Baltimore, Col. Ulius L. Amoss, head of the International Services of Information, a private espionage outfit, said he had been contacted in Europe this summer by persons who said Beria had escaped from Russia.

Amoss voiced belief Beria had escaped even before his arrest was announced.

"He saw it coming, apparently, at least he should have as head of the world's biggest intelligence service," Amoss said. "I don't think he was arrested."

Tenders Sought For Addition

Tenders have been called for by the Board of Education so an eight-room addition to Queen Elizabeth School can be built. Earlier this week the Department of Education approved the board's plans for this addition, and as soon as approval was received the board advertised for tenders.

Queen Elizabeth School was in the 1,200 acres annexed by the city on Jan. 1 from Smith Township. The addition was necessary to accommodate the growing number of school children in the extended northern part of the city.

The architect is H. H. Roberts of Westport. Tenders for the contract will be received until Oct. 12.

Still to be approved by the department is a four-room addition to Grove School where children go from the Crawford's Grove district. The school population is also rapidly increasing in the southwest corner of the city.

Fire Damages Bridge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The $1,100,000 Rosecrans avenue bridge over the Los Angeles river, dedicated only last Aug. 15, was partially destroyed by fire Sunday. Sections of the 1,000-foot span buckled and collapsed in the intense heat as a column of black, oily smoke rose more than 2,000 feet into the air. The flames burned out heavy timber understructure and twisted the steel framework.

Paving Finished On Monaghan

The surfacing of Monaghan Rd., north from Frank St. to the vicinity of Sherbrooke St., was completed by Warren Bituminous Paving Co. on Saturday.

The company is also finishing a surface job south from Sherbrooke St. that was not included in their contract. Work will be begun Tuesday on the Parkhill Rd. block between George St. and Benson Ave. The company expects to wind up its season's operations here within two weeks.

The paving of Monaghan Rd. extends virtually from Sherbrooke St. to Crawford's Grove, with a gap of a block or so south from Lansdowne St. to Braidwood Ave. It is now one of the primary improved roads in the city, outclassing Park St. south from Lansdowne St. in road and sidewalk details.

One effect which was not anticipated when the season program was drafted by the board of works is the top quality of surface to the area at Lansdowne St. and Monaghan Rd., where Simpson-Sears have purchased a large block of land for their announced Peterborough building project.

Four Polio Cases Swell Total To 19

Dr. J. P. Wells, Medical Officer of Health, reported four more cases of polio over the weekend, bringing the total of polio cases in the city and district for the year to 19.

The victims were a 32-year-old woman, who was later transferred to the Riverdale Isolation Hospital in Toronto, a 13-month-old baby girl, who was transferred to the Hospital for Sick Children, a 12-year-old girl, who was also transferred to the Riverdale Isolation Hospital, and a two-year-old boy, who is in the isolation wing of the Civic Hospital, is reported to be in good condition.

Most of the victims so far, reported Dr. Wells, have been fairly mild cases, with a few exceptions.

Becket's Finger Bone Returned To Church

CANTERBURY, England (Reuters)—In solemn ceremony Sunday, a piece of finger bone from Archbishop Thomas Becket was returned to a Roman Catholic church here. He was murdered in 1170 by over-zealous supporters of King Henry II in Canterbury Cathedral.

The bone was presented to St. Thomas' church by a descendant of a branch of the saint's family, Very Rev. Thomas Becquet, prior of Chevetogne abbey, Belgium.

The presentation took place during a pilgrimage of 10,000 Roman Catholics to Canterbury, who moved along the "penitential mile" that was followed by King Henry when he walked in penance after the murder of Becket.

A SHEEP-KILLING WOLF is shown held by Gerald Cochrane who shot it on the farm of his father, Lloyd Cochrane (left) near Baltimore on Saturday. Only four feet four inches from the tip of its snout to the end of its tail, the 75-pound wolf had killed about $1,000 worth of sheep in the Baltimore district since last spring.

Sheep-Killing Wolf Shot On Farm Near Baltimore

killing sheep that was estimated to have destroyed $1,000 worth of sheep from Baltimore district flocks was slain by Gerald Cochrane Saturday morning.

It was a real wolf— not half police dog —but it weighed only 75 pounds and from the tip of its snout to the end of its tail was only four feet four inches.

Early Saturday morning the wolf killed a lamb on the farm of Gerald's father, Lloyd Cochrance, near Baltimore, a few miles north-east of Cobourg.

FOUND LAMB

The dead lamb was found in a creek. Wolf fangs had slashed the jugular vein and drained it of blood.

It was the ninth lamb that Lloyd Cochrane had lost to the marauder since last spring. It was destined to be the last.

When he found the lamb, Gerald Cochrane loaded his shotgun, took his pair of hounds and headed into the bush. The dogs picked up the trail in less than five minutes and flushed the wolf out of the woods.

As it flashed by, Gerald let the wolf have both barrels. The animal rolled off its feet, its chest peppered with pellets.

The wolf was somewhat on the small side. It had a bushy tail and was light brown in color. It had been hunting close to the village of Baltimore when it killed its last sheep.

Man Convicted Of Drunk Driving

Philip Nichols, 22, of 552 Rose Ave., was sentenced to seven days in jail today when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drunk driving.

Constable W. G. Scott testified that he was driving north on George St. at 12:30 a.m. Saturday when he saw Nichols' southbound car being driven in an erratic manner at Edinburgh St. The accused man narrowly missed a parked car on his own side of the road, then nearly struck Constable Scott's car, and continued zigzagging down George St.

When Nichols got out of his car he staggered and his speech was thick. "He was in a drunken condition," said Constable Scott.

Business Bright

Last week we reprinted an editorial from the New York Times commenting on the results of a survey its correspondents across the country made of business conditions following the Korean truce. Its conclusion was that "The American economy is taking the Korean cease-fire order in stride." Since the condition of business and industry in the United States has a profound effect on Canada's economy and commerce, this is reassuring.

* * *

Canadian men of affairs have been trying to assess the prospects themselves. In Edmonton last week the Canadian Chamber of Commerce looked at the business barometer and found it high and steady. President Simms said: "Business conditions are better than ever." The vice-president of an oil company said: "I see no signs of lessening activity. I am a great optimist." The general manager of a large insurance company was cheerful about the long-range prospects, but prepared to face a small recession next year from the peaks of this. In Montreal the Canadian Congress of Labour heard Labour Minister Milton F. Gregg give an optimistic forecast, although President A. R. Mosher was a little less buoyant.

* * *

Guessing the future, particularly the future of stock markets and consumer demand and readiness or ability to pay, is a risky business. Yet so much optimism cannot be entirely misplaced. Certainly this year at least will prove to have been, generally across the country, the biggest and busiest in Canada's economic history. Production, income and employment are all at new peaks.

A Losing Venture For Canadians

For many years there has been a popular misconception that the meat packing industry makes vast profits. Actually, the portion of the meat packers' dollar representing profits is very small; one year, we recall, about one cent in the dollar was paid out as profit to shareholders. However, it was still profit, making things reasonably pleasant for the shareholders if enough dollars were taken in, and attesting to the fact that the industry could be operated profitably.

When governments go into the industry, however, it is a different story, since these bodies operate on a different basis. They enter it and related fields to maintain prices through the purchase of surpluses, and this can be a very costly basis of operation. The Canadian Government already has incurred a loss of $50 millions in meat, and it still has some 60 million pounds of meat left to sell. The Canadian taxpayer may have a still higher bill to meet before the transaction is completed.

The United States Government has had a similar experience, with staggering losses. Its price support program is more comprenhensive, and it has accumulated vast supplies of storable products while burning or giving away more perishable stuff. This program has cost the taxpayers of that country billions of dollars; it will cost them billions more before it ends, and the end is not in sight.

In the United States there are approximately 130 million taxpayers who are not farmers to meet this enormous bill. In Canada, taxes are gathered in one way or another from a non-farm population of some twelve million. Yet agriculture is one of the country's biggest industries, and if the Federal Government persists in its program of purchasing surplus products, it could mean a very heavy additional burden for Canadian taxpayers.

Awe In The Classroom

The Board of Education has been told by its property committee that the breaking of school windows has become a summer sport and deliberate vandalism. Costly repair work is entailed. Whether the vandals are pupils of the school or former pupils, this "summer sport" shows a lack of respect for public property and particularly for schools which is an indictment of the upbringing of the pupils.

Parents are legally responsible for their children's misdemeanours, even if they have refused to accept moral or social responsibility for them to such an extent that their offspring (children or young adults) are vandals. If the parents of the offenders were brought to court and ordered to pay for the damages they might be less feckless about their children's whereabouts and actions, and air rifles.

The schools themselves must accept some responsibility. They have obviously not succeeded in inculcating respect for school in their pupils. We suggest that if respect cannot be won that awe can be impressed. Kindness and tolerance can go too far, beyond some pupils' capacity to understand and profit from them. But pupils can understand fear. Let them fear the consequences of not behaving properly in and about school. Let them venerate the school, if they cannot love it.

This may be an Old Testament sentiment, akin to the commandment to fear God. Well, if the wrath of the lords of the classroom were to descend on pupils who transgress, the aura of their authority might hover over the youngsters even during the summer and restrain them from stoning and shooting school windows. It seems to us—although this may be merely a rose-tinted memory—that fewer school windows were broken in summer holidays in the days when the schools were more severely disciplined, when classes lined up to enter or leave the school, when pupils were not allowed to use the front door, and when they had to keep off the front lawn. The eye of the teacher had a longer and more penetrating reach then than it has now. Its glint remained all summer long; one did not act the hoodlum even around an empty school. The teachers were gone, their authority remained. Do our schools need more dominie, less camaraderie?

Fish And Garbage

A Cornell University scientist has explained that the good fishing in the Atlantic waters off northern New Jersey is attributable to the hundreds of tons of garbage dumped into the sea by nearby New York City. The Ottawa Citizen remarks that this new light on the subject may turn fishermen into violent opponents of sewage disposal plants.

The Citizen is probably just chewing its cud in making such a remark. It is not news that garbage attracts and fattens fish. Why, right here in Peterborough our Little Lake, in the very centre of the town and bounded by the cemetery, the packing house, the main street and an open sewer, used to provide more big lunge and pickerel than the whole of Chemong Lake. Those good days when you could shop with one arm and catch a fish with the other are ending. The open sewer has been closed and other measures taken to end the pollution of Little Lake. And we wish to inform the Citizen that in this town in which nearly all taxpayers are fishermen, not one objected to the expensive project to send the sewage into the disposal plant rather than the fishing waters. Only one man might have winced—a certain Joe Micolucci—who always fished in Little Lake and nowhere else and always had notable catches. But Joe died just before the pollution became a bigger civic scandal than his catch was a municipal byword.

Crucial Southeast Asia

Most of the people of the world live outside the Western bloc or the Red Russian bloc. They are "the uncommitted"—Mr. Adlai Stevenson's way of describing the millions of Asians who are illiterate or concerned with their own domestic and national problems rather than with a hot-house war between East and West. Their problems are severe, a result of the wave of nationalism and independence which was an undertow in the Second World War.

It is likely that Asia, and particularly the areas of Asia which look to the Pacific rather than to Europe, will become as critical to Western foreign policy as eastern Europe is. Already the importance is recognized by American money and anxiety for Indo-China. Even in a year when the U.S. is curtailing its foreign aid, it is proposed to double the money available for Indo-China. Only by greatly increased aid can the French be induced to continue the terribly exhausting war in Indo-China, or native leaders and troops, the Vietnamese, be saved from communism by themselves fighting with good heart for the cause of independence and well-being within the orbit of Western democratic influence.

We The Undersigned

During the last week we have received half a dozen unsigned letters whose writers expect them to be published, yet they bear only pen-names. One of the letters solemnly began: "We the undersigned are greatly disappointed . . ." and the undersigning amounted only to this: the type-written subscription "A group of citizens who are concerned for a better and prosperous city." Nothing more. No names, no addresses, no signatures. We remind our readers that we do not publish letters unless they bear the proper name and correct address of the writer. If a person desires to use a pen-name, we shall consider printing his letter anonymously provided we have the evidence that it is genuine—that is, bears the signature and address of the writer. We remind letter-writers, however, that a letter which is signed by the real name is bound to have a stronger effect and more influence than if only a pen-name appears.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

THE EDINBURGH FESTIVAL goes from strength to strength. When it closed on September 12th about a quarter of a million people from all parts of the world had visited it. This festival has become such a household name that it is with something of a shock that one realizes that it is of quite recent origin, and dates back only as far as 1947. As a matter of fact all of these famous international festivals are of fairly recent date, the oldest, Salzburg, being founded in 1920 at the instigation of three very gifted men, the poet and librettist Hugo von Hoffmansthal, the producer Max Reinhard and the composer Richard Strauss.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE Edinburgh Festival was a venture of faith indeed. In spite of her rich and varied folk arts Scotland has never produced anything worth considering in the realm of opera, symphonic or choral music, which are the mainstays of international festivals. It was obvious that the bulk of the attractions would have to be imported. Local colour would be supplied by displays of Scottish dancing, song recitals and of course the ubiquitous bagpipes. A propos of bagpipes, I came across a quaint description of their sound from Samuel Butler's satirical epic poem "Hudibras". Butler was an Englishman, which may go some way towards explaining his detestation of the instrument. He says:

"And bagpipes of the loudest drones,
With snuffling broken-winded tones,
Whose blasts of air in pockets shut,
Sound filthier than from the gut,
And make a viler noise than swine
In windy weather when they whine."

✧ ✧ ✧

BUT to get back to the subject (a loathsome but occasionally necessary habit) the Edinburgh Festival started with many drawbacks, not the least of these being the scarcity of native talent. Who ever heard of going to Scotland for a music festival, especially with the grouse season in full swing? Just as at Stratford, Ontario, there were legions of cynics on the sidelines waiting to say at the end of the first season, "I told you so". Yet by a combination of good management and solid worth of performances the venture was a resounding success. Rudolf Bing, who did so much to start it on the right footing, left for the Metropolitan in New York, but the show goes on.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT MAKES one think that a similar venture on the largest possible scale might be possible in Canada—a musical Stratford. It is an undertaking that requires vision and faith and a high degree of skill in organization; but it could be done, and the first Canadian city to attempt such a thing would do so with the great advantage of being without competitors. It is a wonderful opportunity for a group of public-spirited citizens. Who is going to be the first?

✧ ✧ ✧

ONE of the chief dangers of this sort of writing is that of developing a "God-complex". Snap judgments are made with a show of authority. There is little time for mature consideration and reconsideration. If I err in this respect I welcome letters from my readers. They help to bring me back to earth. This is a salutary experience, though it is better to be let down gently. Naturally there are some subjects on which I hold strong views, which is as it should be: an open mind is too often an empty mind. But I am willing to see the other man's point of view, and if the evidence is sufficient, to change my own opinion.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are some excellent bargains going now in the 78 r.p.m. record field. Albums that cost a considerable sum when they first appeared are going for a fraction of their original cost. Admittedly the new long-playing records are vastly more convenient, especially for extended work, but the low prices of some of the older type of records is very attractive for those of small means, and a glance through the shelves of the gramophone stores is really worth while. Concerning the relative merits of the sound reproduction of the two speeds it is hard to judge, as so much depends on the individual record. There is, of course, slightly more needle scratch on the 78's, but then one sometimes gets static on the LP's, so the honours are about even.

✧ ✧ ✧

ADDISON'S well-known views on opera ("an irrational and exotick entertainment") are echoed by his colleague Steele in a little-known play of his, "The Conscious Lovers". In it the heroine remarks, ". . . in the main, all the Pleasure the best Opera gives us, is but meer Sensation—Methinks it's Pity the Mind can't have a little more Share in the Entertainment.—The Musick's certainly fine; but, in my Thoughts, there's none of your Composers come up to Old Shakespeare and Otway".

But the real counterblast to the Italian opera came in the Beggars' Opera, which first delighted London in 1728. I have previously devoted some space to this racy production which ruined Handel's fortunes and was the indirect cause of his write oratorio.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE CROWNING insult to poor Handel was the fact that some of his own music was used in the Beggars' Opera; the March from his opera "Rinaldo" was lifted bodily by Dr. Pepusch and sung while the gang of thieves load their pistols, stick them in their belts and go off to stage a highway robbery. Handel must have felt that the robbery had already been committed on him, but there was nothing that he could do. The laws of copyright were virtually non-existent in those days. In any case his righteous indignation might be somewhat quenched by the recollection that he himself had on occasion made use of works by Telemann, Hasse, Porpora and others; though in justice to him it must be admitted that whenever he borrowed he remodelled considerably, so that it might almost be regarded as a new-work. After all, did not Shakespeare borrow the plots of nearly all his plays from Boccaccio, Holinshed and other sources? Perhaps this may sound special pleading, and the analogy with Shakespeare is a little misleading, for Shakespeare's borrowing might be more aptly compared with the practice of the composer who uses somebody else's tune to write variations. But we should avoid condemning Handel, who lived and worked under widely different circumstances from our own. One might as well censure him for not paying income tax or the butchers of his day for failing to comply with our present health regulations.

Trades Congress on Holiday Island

By KENNETH HARRIS

An uninitiated visitor arriving on the scene of Britain's eighty-fifth annual Trades Union Congress might form a wrong impression of its tone and objectives. For this year, the thousand or so delegates, representing nearly two hundred unions and a membership of about eight million, have selected the Isle of Man as the place in which they will listen to their General Council's report on last year's work, and prepare their program for next.

The Isle of Man, a charming island set in the Irish Sea, about three and a half hours' sailing time from Liverpool, is a glorified holiday resort; and as the delegates stroll around in the brilliant sunshine, sandals on feet, shirt-collars open and sweat pouring down their rapidly blistering foreheads, they look very much on holiday.

The personality of their president, Mr. Tom O'Brien, Member of Parliament, adds to the festive, relaxing holiday atmosphere of the conference. He is half Welsh, half Irish, and looks like an Italian impresario: and, as befits a secretary of the Theatrical and Mine Workers' Union, he is and looks a somewhat theatrical character. He cracks jokes, raises his shoulders in expressive Celtic shrugs, and gesticulates with a most entertaining panache. What with the idyllic remoteness of the island, the magnificent sunshine, the gay personality of the president — to say nothing of the distant roaring of the motor-cycles which are tearing around in competition for the famous Manx Grand Prix—the Trades Union Congress seems to be a holiday occasion.

Nothing, however, could be further from the truth. This meeting of the TUC is a serious, if not a critical, one. The bulk of its most active members, and certainly all its leaders, are tensed in a way they have not been tensed for several years.

This Congress has assembled to be given a blunt warning by the president—who, for all his jokes and gestures, hammered home his message—that unless the workers of Britain can increase their production, and make that production available for exports, everything that the British trades union movement has achieved may be lost. With American aid coming to an end, said Mr. O'Brien, with increased competition for world markets and with alteration in the terms of trade both putting the country at an increasing disadvantage, Britain's workers — and managers — must raise their output.

Mr. O'Brien spoke bluntly of tendencies among trade union delegates and members to oppose measures likely to lead to greater productivity in case these led to over-production and, later, to unemployment. That attitude, he said, was criminal. He also spoke of a tendency to refrain from full effort, and from full co-operation with owners and managers, because workers felt that ours was a capitalistic society, or was still not sufficiently socialised. That, he said, was madness.

Altogether, Mr. O'Brien made it clear that he and the General Council are now solemnly warning the British working-man that everything must now be subordinated to the urgent task of making British industry PAY.

The second big issue whose existence has given this conference, behind its glistening bronze sun-tan, a pale pallor of anger, has been the struggle with the Left Wing of Congress. Recently, the General Council published its interim report on nationalization, a report which it had been asked to prepare by last year's Congress. The report said that with the exception of water supply, no other industry was ripe for nationalization, and that in any case, with Britain's general economic situation so delicate, more care than ever should be exercised when making investigations as to whether or not an industry should be taken over by the State. This veiled reflection of the view that the days of nationalization for the sake of Socialist principle are gone—at least for the time being—has drawn howls from several of the Left Wing and Communist-led unions. But the outcome of this week's conference is that Congress has stood solidly behind the Council.

The third issue, which has braced the atmosphere to such a point that even as the sun pours through the windows one feels bitter gales sweeping down the aisles, is that of Communist influence. For some years the trades union leaders of the old school, radicals and Socialists and Christian co-operators alike, have been getting more and more impatient with the Communist union leaders. A number of votes and debates which have taken place here have rapidly developed an interest out of all proportion to their importance simply because the bulk of the Congress has seen a Communist interesting himself in the business, and has immediately racked down on him, as if to say: "We've had enough of you, and we won't miss a chance of showing it."

I have been surprised by the outspoken contemptuous impatience with which the older and simpler workers who dominate the Council—several of them men of international reputation—are bludgeoning the Communists and their Left Wing sympathisers all over the floor. But there are two good reasons for it.

Firstly, one well-known miners' leader told me: "We know these chaps want to wreck us. They don't say what they want; they say what the Russians want, and we know the Russians want to see us ruined. Even when we agree with what they say, we're going to be against them because we haven't trust them."

Secondly, these Right Wing leaders of the TUC are well aware that in a few weeks the Labour Party Conference will meet at Margate. At this there will be another running fight between the bulk of the Labour Party and the Left Wing, led by Mr. Aneurin Bevan. The latter will probably press for more nationalization and more socialization, and the TUC, as we have seen from President O'Brien's speech, does not want it. By stamping on the "more-socialization" schemes which the Communists have put up this week, and by clubbing any Left Wing unions which supported them, the TUC has given the Labour Party—which relies heavily on it for money and votes—a clear indication of its present conservative and retrenching mood.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And when he had ended all his sayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum . . . And it came to pass the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his disciples went with him, and much people.

Now when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow: and much people of the city was with her. And when the Lord saw her, he had compassion on her, and said unto her, Weep not. And he came and touched the bier; and they that bare him stood still. And he said, Young man, I say unto thee, Arise.

And he that was dead sat up, and began to speak. And he delivered him to his mother. And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, saying, That a great prophet is risen up among us; and, That God hath visited his people. And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judaea, and throughout all the region round about.

And the disciples of John shewed him of all these things. And John calling unto him two of his disciples sent them to Jesus, saying, Art thou he that should come, or look we for another? . . .

And in that same hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil spirits; and unto them that were blind he gave sight. Then Jesus answering said unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have seen and heard; how that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead are raised, to the poor the gospel is preached. Mr. Howe And His Duty

(Ottawa Journal)

Mr. Bruce Hutchison has turned out a sympathetic article on Mr. C. D. Howe, "one of the most remarkable Canadians on record". He recalls that the war had been underway only a few months when Mr. Howe found himself tugging on an oar in a lifeboat on the North Atlantic after his ship had been torpedoed.

Mr. Howe has told of his conviction that everyone in the lifeboat would be dead of exposure by morning and of the blessed surprise of a slow freighter, lagging behind the convoy, finding them. Mr. Hutchison, having reported this adventure, goes on to speak of other events in Mr. Howe's career.

The writer should have finished the sea-rescue story, as told during the war by Mr. Howe to an Ottawa gathering of his old friends in the Western wheat pools.

When the unexpected rescue came, said Mr. Howe, he felt that he for one had been fortunate beyond his deserving. As the freighter plugged on towards England he concluded that he had been given an extension of life he was duty bound to put to good purpose. Speaking in a mood of rare revelation, he said that whenever cares of his wartime office weighed heavily upon him he remembered that duty and was refreshed.

"If we had men for husbands they'd make their Mr. Deakin fit them up with little Eskimo suits to go with his wage-freeze policy."

Former Referees On Deck In Fourth Cup Final

suspension and Gill's skull fracture. He dealt at length in his column about O'Hearn's attack which he described as "cut down by Peterborough's Nip O'Hearn like a steer in a slaughterhouse".

The Vancouver Sun which covered the first two games didn't cover the third game directly. They thought the Trailermen were away to a four-game series championship.

The Peterborough Trailermen's most valuable player during the 1953 season is living up to those standards in the Mann Cup series. Husky Ross Powless has taken only eight shots at the Victoria Shamrocks' goal but has scored six goals. He has assisted on four others for a total of 10 points to lead the series' scoring for the first three games.

WELL UP, TOO

Two other members of Powless' line, Curly Mason and Rusty Slater, are not far behind. In fact Slater who has also played a strong defensive games especially during Peterborough penalties is in second place with six goals and two assists for eight points. He shares that position with the Rocks' top scorer, Archie Browing, also having six goals and two assists.

Mason is alone in third place with seven points while Jack Northup of the Rocks has six, tied with Don O'Hearn.

So far in the series the Slater, Mason, Powless, Smith, O'Hearn line has been the most effective. Among them they have racked up 29 points on 20 goals and nine assists. Young Roger has collected four goals to date.

That same line has also proved the best defensively having fewer goals scored while they were playing. This has been mainly due to the stiff checking of O'Hearn, the quick back-checking of Powless, and the ball-ragging by Slater.

O'Hearn has developed as the Trailermen's big, bad boy as far as the Rocks' fans are concerned. They're right, for he leads the parade to the penalty box with 15 minutes. His closest competition comes from Curly Mason and Tom Druce, each with 12 minutes.

The Rocks' fans have recorded O'Hearn's crime list begining back two years ago when he broke Gogie Stewart's jaw in the Mann Cup finals. They also have charges of cutting Lew Landess for six stitches on Wednesday and Alan Gill that same game. Their most serious charge is that of a deliberate attack by O'Hearn Friday on Gill in which the Rock suffered a fractured skull. Basing their greetings on the various players' records the fans certainly greet O'Hearn with a round of boos.

MOON SHINES

Incidentally Lloyd (Moon) Wootton who has astounded the Rock fans with his goaltending has turned aside 85 of 112 shots in the three games for a 75 per cent average. Rock's goalie Jim Hetherington has stopped 70 out of 100 for an even 70 per cent average.

Peterborough Trailermen's coach Bob Thorpe will be handling his team from the bench in the fourth game of the 1953 Mann Cup series tonight against Victoria Shamrocks. The Canadian Lacrosse Association late Saturday morning voted to suspend Thorpe, as a player only, for his conduct while receiving a penalty Friday from referee Sid Greenwood in the dying minutes of the thrid period.

The first Thorpe knew of his suspension was minutes before he left to visit his wife's parents, in Seattle Saturday noon. Then he received a brief telegram from the CLA executive, standing at the Empress Hotel two blocks away, saying that he had been suspended as a player and the automatic suspension of Bob (Pup) Curtin lifted. There was no reason stated for his suspension.

Later CLA president, James MacLeod said that the Thorpe suspension was for "conduct unbecoming to a player." He explained that this referred to the last minute of the game Friday when Thorpe did not go to the penalty box "after being told twice" by Greenwood.

What actually happened was Thorpe was given a slashing penalty by Greenwood but the referee instead of stopping the play bounced around the playing section, attempting to prevent Thorpe from playing. In the process of chasing Thorpe, Greenwood was lifted through the air when he collided with Derry Davies who was following his check.

HAD POSSESSION

Afterwards Greenwood said that he wouldn't blow the whistle to stop play because the Shamrocks had possession of the ball and by stopping the play he would only be penalizing the Shamrocks. The Rocks were then trying to preserve a one-goal lead.

Apparently immediately after game Gene Dopp and Les Gilmore, two members of the CLA series committee, held a tete-a tee without the committee chairman, Dr. Frank Kenny. The two decided to recommend that Thorpe be suspended and Curtain's suspension be lifted at a special meeting of the CLA Saturday morning.

Meanwhile the series chairman, Dr. Kenny, was in the referees' room talking with Gord Folka and Greenwood. He received a verbal report on the game from them and was told that a written report would probably be received by the CLA today.

Leaving there Dr. Kenny went to the Memorial Arena lobby where Thorpe's suspension was known generally by the hangers-on there. This news came as a complete surprise to him since he was chairman of the committee which would decide such important matters.

Dr. Kenny then met Mr. Gilmore who confirmed the series committee's decision ot make the recommendations at a special meeting of the CLA Saturday. The recommendations were made then and passed.

Just the same Dr. Kenny was greatly peeved and charged that the "whole matter was greatly manhandled," referring to the committee's action without his presence and the leakage of Thorpe's suspension by one of the CLA executive to the newspapers without his knowing it first.

Thorpe's suspension tonight is not expected to cause any great moaning and groaning in the Trailermen camp. He will stay on the bench, directing each move. His playing position will likely be taken by Derry Davies and Ken Croft, the two replacements who have'nt seen too much action so far.

FRACTURED SKULL

Victoria Shamrock's star rookie, Allan Gill, suffered a fractured skull during Friday's third Man Cup game. The Hospital made the announcement after x-rays had been taken and revealed the facture behind Gill's ear. The fracture was said not to be serious.

Gill also suffered from shock and concussion. He will be confined to hospital for at least a week and will not see any more action in the 1953 Mann Cup series.

The rookie was hit behind the ear by Nip O'Hearn's stick in the first quarter as the Trailermen attempted to knock the ball from Gill's stick which was being carried high near his head. Gill slumped to the concere floor and had to be carried off on a stretcher.

At first his condition was believed serious and then later it was believed he suffered only concussion. But taking all precautions the Shamrocks had the boy removed to the hospital for further treatment and x-rays.

Victoria newsapers, and the 5,000 rabid fans, claimed O'Hearn's attack appeared deliberate. They failed to give only the merest mention of two slashing attacks on Trailerman's star, Ross Powless.

Both times Powless was slashed by defenceman Tom Druce. Druce connected across Powless' face in the first period and then followed with a rear attack, clubbing Powless in the second quarter on the head, the force of the blow carrying on down to his shoulder.

But charges of deliberate attack by both teams were both passed up by the CLA who said both incidents were only accidental.

Judge Pleased With Show Of Road Horses

Though intermittent rain held up judging and resulted in the cancelling of some events, Peterborough Exhibition's horse classes concluded Saturday afternoon in front of the grandstand.

In completing the judging, Earl Foster said he was very pleased with the road horses entered by district contestants. He called them comparable with many entries in large open horse exhibitions.

Rosewall Defeats Seixas In Battle

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Australia's leading Davis Cup stars swept through final matches with their American rivals in the Pacific Southwest tennis tournament Sunday with Ken Rosewall defeating Vic Seixas in the featured singles battle.

Rosewall knocked off the Wimbledon champion 6-4, 1-6, 3-6, 6-1, 6-4.

Rosewall then teamed with his 18-year-old partner, Lewis Hoad, to defeat Seixas and United States singles champion Tony Trabert in a long doubles match, 17-15, 6-3, 6-2. The same combinations may face each other in the cup matches in Australia in December.

King Maple Wins Coronation Stakes

TORONTO (CP)—King Maple, a two-year-old colt, won the 50th renewal of the Coronation Stakes at Woodbine Saturday. In scampering to an eight-length win, King Maple ran the fastest Coronation in history.

The colt, owned by Mrs. Gordon McMacken, travelled the mile and 70 yards in 1:43, one second behind the track record set by Free As Air when he was a mature five-year-old.

King Maple was backed into favoritism by a crowd of 14,000 as 14 colts and fillies went to the post. He paid $4.80 as he was followed home by Hi Laude, owned by Dr. L. H. Appleby of Vancouver and Weyburn, owned by R. James Speers of Winnipeg.

The winner's share of the purse was $13,305.

Detroit Red Wings Show Firing Power

SAULT STE. MARIE, Mich. (CP) Detroit Red Wings, champions of the National Hockey League, showed real firing power in their first outing Saturday, trimming Edmonton Flyers 7-0 in an exhibition game.

John Wilson, Ted Lindsay, Gordie Howe, Mart Pavelich, Alex Delveccio, Earl Reibel and Bill Dineen all scored.

Marciano Out To Avenge Disputed Ruling

GROSSINGER, N. Y. (AP)—Marciano, at the peak of his career, expects to erase the only disputed fight in his record Thursday night at the Polo Grounds against determined Roland LaStarza.

"I'd like to clear that up," said the heavyweight champion after Sunday's sizzling workout. "It's the only fight there ever was any argument about. I always figured I'd fight him again.

"He's a strong guy, one of the strongest I ever fought—at least as strong as Joe Walcott. But he doesn't hit like Walcott.

"I think I've improved an awful lot since the first fight with LaStarza. After all, that was 3½ years ago."

(Marciano won a split decision from LaStarza March 24, 1950).

MUCH IMPROVED

The big crowd that jammed the quonset-hut hangar at the airport for his last heavy drill agreed that the rock from Brockton, Mass. was much improved over the crude, awkward slugger of even a year ago.

The champ looked sharp as he went four rounds.

"That was the best I ever saw him in training," said manager Al Weill.

Marciano talked freely of his last fight with LaStarza.

"It was very close," he said. "But I thought I won it. I don't think I threw even one combination that night. When I knocked him down, I didn't hit him a full shot. It was a long right that caught him against the ropes.

"I guess he's the best boxer I ever fought. But I don't remember that he ever hurt me."

Marciano passed a preliminary physical exam in fine style.

Dr. Vincent Nardiello of the New York State Athletic Commission said he was in "terrific shape."

The doc said Rocky weighed about 186. Charley Goldman and Allie Colombo, his handlers, figure he'll come in close to 184 for the 15-round fight, his second defence.

There will be no work for Marciano today with a brief three-round final session scheduled Tuesday with Willie Wilson, a LaStarza-type boxer. He'll go into New York Tuesday to stay at the home of a friend.

The only definite plans for the rock after the fight call for watching the world series.

"I've got to go with the Dodgers" said the champ, an old National Leaguer who once had a trial as a catcher with the Chicago Cubs farm system.

And the fight?

'I hope it doesn't go more than seven."

Varsity May Have Answer To T-Formation Problem

This is the first of a Canadian Press series on pre-season prospects of the Intercollegiate senior football clubs. Today's story is about University of Toronto. Tuesday: Western Mustangs.

By PETE REILLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—Varsity Blues may have the answer this year to a problem that has bothered football coach Bob Masterson since he started using the T-formation in 1949; namely, a passer.

The Blues usually come up with good lines, good broken field runners and good kickers. But they have been plagued by the lack of a good passer.

That was a large factor in their final game showing against the University of Western Ontario Mustangs for the Intercollegiate title last November when they lost 8-1.

The answer to Masterson's long-standing quarterback prayer has emerged from intermediate ranks. He is Eddie Skrzypek, described by his coaches as an all-ound T-man. And he has a good understudy in Bill Stevenson, whom Masterson calls "the only Canadian kid I've seen who knows how to pass a ball properly."

Also in the race for the pivot spot are Ollie Mandaruk, the most experienced of the candidates, and Doug Geekie.

ONESCHUK BACK

One of last year's best ball carriers, Steve Oneschuk, has recovered from his ailing knee, judging from his performance at the team's Lake Couchiching training camp. Other stars back of scrimmage are Bobby Dale, Al Haig, Bob Leeming and Al Riva.

Masterson is confident his current squad stacks up well with last year's.

"But we will be quite a different team," he said.

"Instead of concentrating on the ground attack and defence, we'll get the ball in the air more. We have a good nucleus from last year to build around, and several good prospects. We'll be at least as good as last year, and possibly a little better."

The aerial attack will work from behind a good line. First-string guards Don Mattason and Earl Mackie form the heart of a strong front wall. Flanking them are tackles Roy McMurtry, a 200 pounder who was one of the toughest linemen in the league last year and Alex MacKlin, rated a top contender for all-star honors.

SIX ENDS

Any two of six ends, all of whom have good height and reach, could fill first-string requirements. Three of them—Gene Chorostecki, Fred Smale and Bill Horton, are better than-average receivers. The others are Don Smith, Bruce Johnson and Ted Kennedy.

At centre, Masterson has the rough job of replacing both 1952 men, Gerry Sutherland and Ray Yakasovich, who have graduated. Candidates for the job are Neal Gamble, John Wismer, John Chisholm and John Prendergast.

The Blues launch their 1953 season at the 27,000-seat Varsity Stadium Saturday, Oct. 3, against Queen's University.

Tiger-Cats Clip Argonauts With 12-9 Win

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Billy Vessels of Edmonton's split-T formation Eskimos and Chuck Hunsinger from Montreal's suddenly-hot Alouettes today stand out as the glamor kings of football.

The 21-year-old Vessels, tabbed as the find of the season in the Western Interprovincial Football Union, powered the Eskimos to a 12-6 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders Saturday with a two-touchdown performance and Hunsinger went over for four majors as the Alouettes wiped out a 9-5 half-time deficit to crush Ottawa Rough Riders 37-21 at Montreal on Sunday.

The Edmonton victory, coupled with Winnipeg Blue Bombers' squeaky 16-15 win over Calgary Stampeders at Winnipeg on Saturday, left the Eskimos with a clear four-point lead over the Bombers in the WIFU. And the Alouettes, accustomed to the cellar position in the Big Four in recent years, now share the topprung with Riders and Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

CRUNCHING OFFENSIVE

The Tiger-Cats, combining pass interceptions with heads-up play and a crunching ground offensive, defeated the Argonauts at Toronto 12-9 on Saturday to post a 3-2 won-lost record for six points, even with Riders and Als. Argonauts are in the unaccustomed last-place position with four points.

Vessels, former Oklahoma University star, has put the sting into the Eskimo offensive since he joined the club and he can take a large chunk of credit for Eskimos' siz-straight victories.

Hunsinger, 28-year-old native of Harrisburg, Ill., who played with Chicago Bears of the U. S. National Football League the last three seasons, almost single-handedly whipped the Riders. He scored the Als' first touchdown in the first quarter, went over for their second to give Montreal the lead in the third and capped his one-man gallop with another pair in the last 15 minutes.

BREAKS JINX

The victory not only sent Als into the lead tie, but it also broke a three-year jinx Ottawa has held over them in league play. Hunsinger went over three times on ground plays—two from the 27-yard line, and one from five yards out. On his other he took a pass from quarter Sam Etcheverry on the Ottawa 25 and scampered over.

The Stampeders probably have had nightmares about the single point after their performance against Winnipeg. The Stamps went over for three touchdowns, one more than the Bombers, but two of their attempted converts were blocked by tackle Buddy Tinsley, and the other was no good. Bud Korchak, a product of Manitoba football, made both Bomber converts and added a single and field goal for a six-point total.

Tiger-Cats made the pass-interception one of their most dangerous weapons. They intercepted one shortly after the start of the game to set them up for a touchdown by Lou Kusserow, former Columbia University star, and another interception stopped an Argonaut driver in the fourth quarter and paved the way for a field goal by Tip Logan.

Argonauts started another downfield march with two minutes remaining of the game and it was nullified when Kusserow plucked a pass from Argo quarter Don Panciera at the one-yard line. Tiger-Cats conceded a safety touch, giving them first down on their own 25-yard line, and they ran out the clock.

Panciera attempted 43 passes and completed 25 for a gain of 268 yards against eight attempts and five completions for 51 yards by Hamilton quarter Auburn Lambeth. Tiger-Cats picked up 187 yards on the ground against Toronto's 68.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

A lot of people believe thoroughbred horse-racing to be a completely commercial undertaking, the accent on dollars, with no sports overtones. With such folk, the much-abused term "improvement of the breed" is strictly for laughs.

But admitting racing to be the most completely-commercialized of sports, it possesses, paradoxically, cross-sections that are rich in generosity and sentiment. The Quebec King's Plate, oldest race in America, founded in 1836, when, according to tradition, British soldiers raced through the fields at Three Rivers for the guineas donated by King William IV., furnishes instances of lavish outlay made merely to preserve a sentimental sequence.

Breeding of thoroughbred race-horses in Quebec province does not and never has achieved the proportions of that industry in the sister-province of Ontario. Quebec is not so well suited, climatically, for rearing thoroughbred stock. And so the Quebec Plate race, as such, dwindled for lack of equine support, until its scope was broadened and it was opened to all 3-year-olds of Canadian breeding.

Even that has not proven successful. In the last two years, despite the $5,000, added purse offering each year, the race has been run as a betless undertaking, the sponsoring club thus getting no return whatever for its purse outlay by the ordinary avenue of wagering through the mutuels.

In fact, since 1927, when only one horse faced the starter to race for purse and royal guineas, there have been nine betless runnings, meaning that the sponsoring club got no returns via the mutuels. Instead, the sum of $14,500 was paid out to the winning horse in these years and half as much again to the placed horses.

In 1927, there was a walk-over for Saguenay. Naturally, with one horse, there was no betting. In 1928, and for three years in a row starting in 1933, again in 1945, 1949, 1952 and 1953 the race was run as a betless affair. The highest purse given a winner in this list was $3,910, which went to Ontario-owned Chain Reaction this year. The least was $250, to Torbruk in 1945. Jim Fair got $2,465, when Last Mark won a betless race in 1949. So, it's a "minus" proposition.

There is no compulsion on the club to stage the Plate renewals. The advertising value of the race, in Quebec, is negligible as compared with the tremendous interest generated in Ontario each year. But the annual running goes on, so that America's oldest race should not fall into disuse, and the sponsoring club cheerfully pay the freight. And over $20,000, we think, is a generous price to pay for the maintenance of those qualities which the cynical insist do not exist in racing—sentiment and tradition.

Former Referees On Deck In Fourth Cup Final As Petes Seek Third Win

By DON GRANT, Examiner Staff Reporter

VICTORIA, B.C. — Despite their loss in the rough and tumble Mann Cup third game, the Peterborough Trailermen are still heavy favorites to take the cup and the Canadian senior lacrosse championship. Even some Victoria Shamrock fans, impressed by the Trailermen in the first two games, say the Mann Cup will go east again this year with the Trailermen. The Trailermen, at any rate, have the opportunity to take a strangle-hold on the best-of-seven series tonight by winning the fourth game in the Memorial Arena.

Losing defencemen Bob Anderson and forward Al Gill this week, the Rocks are endeavoring to receive permission to pick up two more replacements to strengthen their team. Anderson left Tuesday, after playing the first game, for a new position at Prince Rupert while Gill was seriously hurt in Friday's game.

The Rocks will likely get permission to pick up at least one to replace Gill. Pretty soon the Rocks will be an all-star team playing the Trailermen since they picked up Lew Landess of Vancouver Indians and Jack Byford of Vancouver Pilseners before the series started.

The two players likely to be considered are Mario Crema, a forward with Vancouver Indians this season, and Dave Redline, a Vancouver Pilsener forward.

Whoever gets the nod will likely fill Gill's place in the line with Jack Northup and Arn Ferguson. No other changes are contemplated by Rocks' coach John (Red) McMillan.

FORMER REFEREES

The other important announcement for tonight's game is the return of referees Bill Dickinson and Bill Wilkes, the two who refereed the first two games. Their return to duty has nothing to do with the Trailermen's protests about the work of Gord Folka and Sid Greenwood Friday night. Wilkes and Dickinson were apparently appointed for tonight's game before the Friday brawl.

James McLeod, CLA president, went out of his way to emphasize that "The change was made and that it was not influenced in any way by the reported threat of Peterborough not to take the floor if Folka was named as one of the referees".

Thorpe who returned from Seattle late Sunday night after visiting his parents, plans to stick to his line-up of the three previous games. Because he isn't playing this one, he'll likely be using Derry Davies and Ken Croft, the two Trailermen replacements who haven't seen much action this series.

In most cases the Trailermen spent a very quiet day on Sunday. A few attended church. Others went fishing. Still others went visiting, mostly across the Strait to Vancouver. The remaining group stayed around the hotel reading, talking and sleeping.

When the Victoria newspapers arrived at the hotel, the players glanced across the sports pages and threw the papers down in disgust. The newspapers charged rough tactics by the Trailermen and gave extra room to detailed accounts of O'Hearn's attack on Al Gill and Thorpe's suspension.

WRITERS RAVE

Jim Tang, Colonist sports editor, told his readers that "Lacrosse is called Canada's national game, but what was on display at the Memorial Arena last night could hardly be called sport. It was a vicious, unsportsmanlike display of something which, for savagery, must have approached at times the spectacles Roman emperors put on for the edification of their blood-thirsty subjects."

The blame for the "wild, tumultous affair" was placed by Tang on the Trailermen whose antics, he claimed, would not let the referees control the game.

The Times' Denny Boyd was more impartial in his game's views, pointing out the Trailermen are human and can be beaten. But in the process of being defeated he claimed they can be as "mean, bad-tempered and down-right ornery as any club that has ever come close to the Mann Cup."

Boyd's boss, Bill Walker, carried front page stories of Thorpe's

Rain Spoils Attempt At Track Record

An attempt to break the track record at the Peterborough Exhibition on Saturday met with the disapproval of the elements.

Before the second heat in any of the three classes could get under way, torrents of rain splashed down on the track, turning it into an oval pond. The rail position of the track was soon covered with eight inches of water.

Evening attendance at the final show of the "Ex" was shaping into a sell-out. Turf lovers had partially filled the grandstand and more grandstanders were moving in by the minute. It looked as though the final night of the Exhibition was going to end in grand style. Slowly a trickle of rain began sprinkling the grounds and within a few minutes Morrow Park, like the rest of the city, was being drenched with a deluge unprecedented this summer.

The downpour didn't cease nor did its intensity. It was soon apparent that not only the horse races, but the entire grandstand show, were through for the night and the season.

After a period of half an hour or so, members of the audience became impatient with their imprisonment under the grandstand and began striking home, down the muddy track, with their shoes in hand. In doing so they didn't escape the rain, but they probably saved some valuable shoe leather.

Vaudeville artists, many of them used to such damp circumstances, were seen sloshing about in rubber boots, retrieving their gear and lumbering into their mobile shelter units.

Quips between the racing judges concerning the calling of horses for the second heat were met with wry faces and dripping noses.

Results for the first heat were:

By HERB MARTIN

FALL

The last warm hint of sunlight on the hills.
The naked harvest-field where Autumn spills
All the rich colors of her glowing stores,
Like Persian carpets laid on temple floors.

The earth is seamed with cracks and jagged scars,
The cattle stand beside the milking bars.
Waiting their quiet stable, dim and warm,
Sensing the hidden coming of the storm.

Even the dog whines now with lifted face
To come inside to his accustomed place
Behind the stove . . . (he'll snore, and maybe bark
At some imagined person in the dark).

For our good land has meat and grace and health,
The marrow of her bones her hidden wealth.
A nation builds her walls on shifting sands
Unless her roots are nurtured in the land.

Officially today is the last day of summer and the first day of autumn. Be that as it may, we lawn bowlers would like a little more fine weather so we can gather in the "loose" ends of the 1953 lawn bowling season.

Tonight the men expect to play their last schedule games, but there are still a few games to play in the men's novice single competition.

In the ladies' section they have many games in both the singles and doubles competitions to play yet.

However, we'll just have to go along with the weatherman and hope for the best.

McGill Crushes UBC By 22-4

MONTREAL (CP)—The 1953 edition of McGill Redmen ran roughshod over University of British Columbia Thunderbirds Saturday, downing the Evergreen conference club 22-4 in the initial "paraplegic bowl" game.

The triumph gave Vic Obeck's senior intercollegiate entry the Sir Winston Churchill Trophy which will be presented annually to the bowl winner. All proceeds of the benefit affair go to the Canadian Paraplegic Association.

Len Shaw and Herb English were standouts for the Redmen, as both clubs concentrated on ground attacks. Shaw ran his club most of the time, his punts averaging about 45 yards. English, who scored a major, was McGill's key ground gainer.

Finney, Conacher Star In Game

PEMBROKE (CP)—Sid Finney and Pete Conacher starred in an intra-squad game of Chicago Black Hawks at their training camp here Saturday night. The Whites defeated the Blacks 9-6.

Finney scored four goals and Conacher added three more. Lou Jankowski counted twice for the Blacks with a pair and Wally Blaisdell, Larry Wilson, Fred Hucul and Gus Bodnar counted singles.

The Hawks continue training this week under coach Sid Abel in preparation for two games against their National Hockey League rivals, Detroit Red Wings. The clubs meet in Sudbury Friday night and in Pembroke Saturday.

Cobourg Ghosts Win

OSHAWA (CP)—Cobourg Galloping Ghosts walloped Oshawa Red Raiders 30-6 Saturday for their second straight intermediate Ontario Rugby Football Union win.

The Ghosts jumped into a 15-0 lead in the first quarter on touchdowns by A. McGee and Sillers, and converts and a field goal by Art Jones.

After a scoreless second quarter, Cobourg added another major on a pass from Reeves to Taylor. Jones converted. Late in the third quarter, Spragge intercepted an Oshawa pass and ran for a touchdown. Jones again converted.

A field goal by Jones in the fourth quarter completed Cobourg scoring.

Oshawa's touchdown came in the fourth quarter when Jim Loreno plunged over centre. Tom Krawec converted.

Sarnia Scores 14-12 Win Over Mustangs

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A wobbly field goal by Dutch Davey in the last minute of play, which just cleared the crossbar, gave Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union a 14-12 win over University of Western Ontario Mustangs in an exhibition football game here Saturday.

Close to 5,000 fans sat through the struggle, played for the most part in driving rain.

Two long drives, the first for 83 yards and the second for 71, gave Mustangs an early lead. Gino Fracas scored the first and Murray Henders the second. Fracas converted both.

28-YARD GALLOP

Sparked by a 28-yard gallop by Eric McKeever, Sarnia scored early in the second, Jack McKelvie crashing over from the three-yard line. He also converted. The Imperials marched all the way from their own 42 to score their second major. A long McKelvie-to-McKeever pass set them up and Corky Duchene drove over from the two-yard line to score.

Western coach Johnny Metras used most of the 40-man squad he had dressed. Using quick openers from a split-T formation, his starting squad looked impressive in the early stages. He uncovered one new star in the exhibition, Jocko Thompson, a pint-sized booter from St. Catharines. Thompson consistently outkicked his Sarnia rivals.

Oshawa writer says the Truckmen will operate again in the OHA senior "B" grouping up this way. They've ordered new equipment since losing their stuff in the arena fire, and are negotiating now with the Bowmanville arena for "home" games there. Also, they may play some games after the first of the year in the new Whitby rink, which should be ready then. Port Perry offered to put in artificial ice for 'em, as well, if they cared to use that spot. We're glad the Truckers (who will have additional sponsorship are returning to action in our senior setup. Some of the better junior prospects—including a few from this district— will be contacted later by Boston Bruins, and others will just have to wait another year because of that Oshawa fire.

With Cobourg Ghosts whipping the Raiders in Oshawa o'er the weekend, and our Orfuns smearing Toronto Marauders here 28-0, the ORFU intermediate "A" grid picture in this group appears to be clearing up. Yes, it looks like those old rivals, Orfuns and Ghosts, are again the pick of the race in Central Ontario, though Red Raiders may pull a few upsets yet. Let's hope they don't do it here Wednesday at Morrow Park. The Kotowski crew will be gunning for their fifth straight victory, having beaten Oshawa and Cobourg once each so far and Toronto twice. That's a pretty fine football record to date.

They Weren't Fooling

Saturday's scrap at Riverside was scrappy enough, despite the score. The boys were throwing fists and elbows, especially in the first half, and those tackles usually could be heard right across the field. They hurt the next of kin. A fairish crowd braved the rain and saw a lot of good action. The quiet coach of the local gridders did a reverse on the first Petes-Toronto tilt, using his mainstays the first half this time to build up a comfy lead and then working in some of the younger chaps. He has a lot of promising material as well as the proven type. However, the squad shouldn't regard the race as a romp yet by any means, as Cobourg and Oshawa —if not Toronto— will jar 'em out of their complacency if given half a chance.

* * * * * *

Blair Thomson had two touchdowns (once aided by perfect blocking ere he limped off with a sore leg at half-time. Bev Groves again did his stuff on a reverse for a nice try. And Hank Russelle topped off a good all-round effort by flopping on a Toronto fumble for a big score. Bill Huntley (always a great plunger) and dependable kicking Don Bark booted converts to make up the total. But there were others on the line offensively and defensively, as well as in the backfield, who were responsible for this fourth win in a row. A neat team effort. Toronto tried hard and moved the sticks frequently enough— almost scoring in the fourth—but they were outplayed by a better football team.

Joining Battle Again

Tonight in Victoria, the Petes' Trailermen tackle the Shamrocks in the fourth fray of the best-of-seven Mann Cup finals. The eastern lacrossers have a 2-1 edge in the set so far, and hope to resume their winning ways this e'en under the refs who handled the first two games. CLA officials emphasize the fact these refs were appointed for the Monday melee before Coach Bob Thorpe threatened to pull his team out of the series if Referee Gord Folka handled the fourth game. No doubt Folka will be back ere the series ends. Personally, we're against defaults, regardless of the cause, and trust the Trailermen play it all out. Though we agree that Folka is a poor excuse of a referee.

* * * * * *

While manager Bob Curtin's suspension has been lifted, Thorpe must sit out tonight's tilt, having been handed a one-game suspension for disobeying a ref's order late in the third game. Don Ashbee has pulled out for his pro puck camp, also. So, the local club's two series replacements, Derry Davies and Kenny Croft, will likely see more action this p.m. They've been in the local lineup right along, as have the ex-juniors, but only the Petes' regulars have been used so far in the finals. After tonight, we expect they'll play again Wednesday and if the Pgies are sharp it could be all over that night— and the club taking the big TCA plane back east a day later. Let's hope.

Orfuns Rack Up A 28-0 Win Over Toronto Marauders To Keep Atop ORFU Group

Coach Tony Kotowski's local Orfuns swept to their fourth straight ORFU intermediate "A" triumph in as many starts when they downed Toronto Marauders 28-0 here Saturday. A few hundred fans braved the drizzle of rain throughout to see the Peterborough pack hammer through to an impressive victory at Riverside Park. They led 16-0 in the first quarter and 22-0 at the half, the coach then experimenting in the last part with some of his younger players. Orfuns rolled to another major in the third but Toronto opened it up with passes in the fourth to have a territorial edge, though they couldn't score.

ROUGH ENOUGH

It was a rather chippy game, with both sides drawing a lot of penalties for roughing. Tom Hickey was ejected from the Toronto lineup early for kicking at a rival player. Blair Thomson—who starred with two touchdowns —left the contest at halftime, nursing a sore leg after one of his jolting tackles. Fred Bartley was a limping bystander at the game. Marauders got a fair share of first downs, having some fine, tricky runners and plungers, but they were outplayed by a good margin over most of the route.

Orfuns turned in a solid effort, the line holding well and opening up sizable gaps in the Marauders' front wall to let the knee-pumping Petes' ball-carriers through. They tackled well, also. Bark's kicking was consistently good, and Milligan tossed a few long passes completed to Naismith, Don McGillis and Huntley. McIntyre and Bethelot grabbed important Toronto fumbles, and Ouellette blocked a kick once. Beatty was solid in the line the first half. Jerry McGillis and Hodson had runbacks, and Russelle was good on tackles, plunges and once snatched a touchdown fumble.

LED THE ATTACK

Main ground-gainers in the departments of bucking, end runs and reverses were Thomson, Huntley, Jensen, Groves and Russelle. Holman pounced on a Toronto fumble in the third after a good thrust by Fowler and a kick by Bark. Brioux was bucking nicely in the fourth, too. The Toronto kicking was generally good, but the passing as a rule was for short gains. Both sides fumbled the slippery pigskin frequently, the Toronto butter-fingered bobbles proving more costly.

Bev Groves opeded scoring on a nice reverse for a try, with Bill Huntley converting. After Berthelot got a Marauder fumble close in, Thomson took it over, the convert missing. Ouelette then blocked a kick and Jensen skirted end for an uncoverted major. Penalites kept Orfuns from probably making another try. Thomson added a touchdown in the second and Huntley kicked the convert.

SCORED ANOTHER

They worked up again in the third and Bark finally kicked. Russelle was in fast when a Toronto backfielder fumbled and Hank fell on the ball back of their line for the last major of the game, Bark converting. Brioux and Russelle had good gains in the fourth, but Marauders staged their biggest drive of the game on bucks, end sweeps and passes, to force their way right up to the local three-yard line. On third down, Russelle got through to tackle the ball-carrier for a loss, and the Toronto team lost possession. It was just a case then of playing out the string as time ran out. Teams:

Toronto: Richardson, Donnelly, Ford, Christy, Boskasky, Garry, Morrison, Cowell, Hickey, Grizzelle, Barnes, Yeo, Childerhouse, Morgan, Macci, Owens, Harrison, Stevens, Anco, Goodall, Obal, Patterson, Orr, Brown.

Orfuns: Thomson, Jensen, Hodson, Beatty, Huntley, Jim Conlin, Berry, Bark, Naismith, Russelle, Holman, Kirkwood, Beavis, Ouellette, Fowler, Brioux, McIntyre, Howe, Newark, Milligan, Giardino, Trimm, Forrester, Langhorne, J. McGillis, Groves, O'Reilly, D. McGillis, Bethelot.

Such Crust Takes Much Glory From Boat Win

WASHINGTON (AP) —Slo-Mo-Shun V, Seattle's prize speedboat, won the President's Cup regatta Sunday, but Detroit's Such Crust III stole a lot of glory from her by winning the last of three heats, turning in a record-breaking performance along the way.

Chuck Thompson, piloting Jack Schafer's Such Crust III, proved to the 37,000 fans who lined the banks of the Potomac that the Seattle streak is not an invincible boat.

Thompson swept into the lead right at the start of the final heat and Lou Fageol, Slo-Mo's driver, challenged time and again, but couldn't make it.

WON FIRST HEAT

Slo-Mo won the first heat of the regatta Saturday when Miss Great Lakes II, who was duelling with her through the first 12 miles of the 15-mile event, developed mechanical trouble.

Fageol proved there was no fluke in that as he piloted Slo-Mo to a quarter-mile victory in the second heat, marked by the upset of a Detroit boat, My Sweetie, and the dunking of driver Walter Kade.

But Thompson and Crust III went after Slo-Mo for fair in the last heat.

All-Star Game At Kitchener

STRATFORD (CP) — Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen, Ontario Hockey Association senior A champions last year, will play an all-star team drawn up from the rest of the league in Kitchener Memorial Auditorium, it was announced Sunday. Date of the all-star game has not been fixed, but a meeting of the executives of the senior clubs decided it will be before Oct. 23, opener of this year's OHA senior A schedule.

The executive officially accepted a one-year withdrawal of Brantford Redmen. Gilbert Higgins, representative of the Redmen, said financial difficulties caused the withdrawal.

The meeting also authorized purchase of a trophy to be awarded each year to the most gentlemanly player displaying the highest standard of play. The trophy will be known as the Dave Pinkney Cup.

The schedule drafted for this season was not favorable to all concerned and the convener was asked to rearrange it so that each team will play 56 instead of the previous 52 games.

Braves Split Bill With Cincinnati; Set Crowd Record

By JOE REICHLER, Associated Press Sports Writer

Attention, American League club owners! When you convene next Sunday to discuss the St. Louis Browns' proposed transfer, it might be well to adopt the following slogan: "Remember the Braves!" The Braves newly shifted from Boston to Milwaukee, in their first major league baseball season in half a century established a National League attendance record when 1,826,397 cash customers came out to root their beloved darkhorse club into second place.

Although Sunday's games had no bearing on the final standing, a capacity crowd of 36,011—one person for every seat in the stadium—watched the Braves split a doubleheader with cincinnati's Redlegs. Rookie Joey Jay, making his first major league start, shut out the Redlegs 3-0 in an abbreviated seven-inning nightcap after Cincinnati had won the opener 5-3.

SHATTER RECORD

The doubleheader, which concluded the club's home games for the year, enabled the Braves to shatter the old league attendance mark of 1,807,526 set by the pennant winning Brooklyn Dodgers of 1947. The only second place club ever to draw more than the current Braves were the 1950 Detroit Tigers of the American League who drew 1,951,474. Briggs Stadium seats 52,954 to 36,011 for Milwaukee.

It might be well for the American League club owners to remember that practically this same Braves team drew 281,278 in Boston last year, an attendance just about duplicated by the '53 Browns in St. Louis.

With the pennant races decided days ago, attention was focussed on individual performance Sunday. Chicago's Virgil Trucks became the fourth American League pitcher to win 20 games this year when he pitched the Sox to a 5-2 win over St. Louis Browns.

Bob Keegan, 32-year-old righthander, pitched his second successive three-hit shutout 4-0 in the opener.

WALLOPS HOMERS

Gus Zernial walloped homers Nos. 40 and 41 to help the Philadelphia Athletics win two games from Washington 13-9 and 4-3, and wrest the American League lead from Cleveland's Al Rosen.

Billy Martin's three-run homer highlighted a five-run sixth inning that gave Eddie Ford his 18th victory and New York Yankees a 10-8 slugfest victory over the Boston Red Sox.

Mike Garcia also won his 18th game, pitching Cleveland Indians to a 6-3 triumph over Detroit after the Tigers had taken the opener 8-6. Steve Souchock slammed a pair of homers for Detroit in the opener.

Stan Musial, battling against long odds to retain his batting championship, cracked out a single, triple and his 28th home run in four times at bat to lead St. Louis Cardinals to an 11-6 victory over Chicago Cubs. Musial, who was batting .244 in early June, is now hitting .330, 14 points below National League leader Carl Furillo of Brooklyn.

DIVIDE TWIN BILL

The pennant-winning Dodgers divided a twin bill with Philadelphia, winning the opener 5-4 and losing the second 2-1. The second game was cut to five innings by darkness. Junior Gilliam was the hero and goat for Brooklyn. His triple scored the winning run in the opener. His two-out error kept a Philly rally alive long enough for Del Ennis to single home Richie Ashburn with the winning run in the nightcap.

Cal Abrams hit a grand-slam home run that gave Pittsburgh an 8-4 triumph over New York Giants.

Philadelphia beat Washington 6-5 and Boston trimmed New York 3-0 in the only two American League games played Saturday.

In the National Saturday Pittsburgh split a doubleheader with New York, losing the first 4-1 but taking the second 6-5. Other National games Saturday saw Brooklyn beat Philadelphia 5-4, Milwaukee overcome Cincinnati 5-2 and Chicago take St. Louis 5-2.

Montreal Takes Lead Over Bisons

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The chips are on the line today for Buffalo Bisons and Rochester Red Wings in the International League playoffs for the Governors' Cup. A defeat means elimination from the first-round best-of-seven series.

Montreal Royals took a 3-1 lead over the Bisons Sunday, winning 2-1 as Hamp Coleman edged Paul Foytack in a pitching duel.

Baltimore Orioles hold a 3-2 lead over the Red Wings as both clubs were idle. Rochester had taken a 9-2 victory in Saturday's game.

Rochester will use Ellis (Cot) Deal (16-9) against Baltimore's ace, Jocko Thompson (10-4), as their series is resumed in Rochester.

Montreal's probable pitcher is Glenn Mickens (2-0) while the Bisons expect to counter with Earl Harrist (9-5).

Hour For the Young Tories Has Struck In Britain

LONDON — The hour of the young Tories has struck.

The Cabinet which Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill assembled after the British voters returned his Conservative party to power in 1951 is scheduled to be reshuffle dthis autumn. It has been officially announced that the object is rejuvenation, writes Edward Crankshaw in the Montreal Star.

No one knows whether Sir Winston will accept a status of greater leisure. But one of the occupants of the 17 seats around the conference table at No. 10 Downing Street has said that other members of this select company well advanced in years are to retire when the word is given.

The impending turnover means recompense for a hard-worked scrub team of junior members of the Conservative government. Their intense devotion to duty in the two years since the electorate established Sir Winston as their taskmaster has been matched only by the gleam of ambition in their eyes.

MANY ADMINISTRATORS

In this category of impatient apprentice statesmen, there is a long list of proven administrators of several government departments who are in their 30s and 40s. Three of them, according to their peers, are outstanding candidates for promotion to ministerial portfolios with Cabinet rank.

They are Minister of Supply Duncan Sandys, 45, whose son-in-law relationship to the Prime Minister is said to have been more of a handicap than an advantage to his career; Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd, 49, a lawyer whose brilliant war service as a staff officer has carried him into the Foreign Office and to the United Nations headquarters in New York; and Sir David Eccles, 48, who as Minister of Works was the architect of the Coronation's pageantry last June.

Apart from the prospect of advancement in line for this trio, there is a host of other Tory striplings, according to the political definition of youth, who are waiting confidently for the approaching moment of decision.

As the elderly pilots are dropped, the positions of the younger men inevitably will gain in authority, even though their titles and salaries may remain much the same.

A vital aspect of this abundant assortment of talent is that most of them think that the Conservative party has a future only if it follows the ideological graph drawn by another youngish Tory. He is Richard Austen Butler, whom destiny thrust forward this summer to preside temporarily over the British Cabinet, while both Churchill and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden were on sick leave.

The progressive blush now brightening the Tory complexion for the first time in a half-century is the result of a prescription written by Butler, an intellectual doctor of literature and civil law from Cambridge.

It is significant that the British people, dazzled by his manipulation of the Treasury, discuss his career with the zeal they apply to picking a Derby winner.

As the first master of British Government finances since 1929 whose budget proposed no new taxes and reduced others, including those on income, the Chancellor merits a public following. But since he is an aloof, almost impersonal figure, his hold on the British people seems sleight-of-handish, like his budget.

Steady performance without gestures to the crowd is the only explanation for his climb through the Tory ranks. Those who search for personality and popular characteristic equipment like Stanley Baldwin's pipe, Neville Chamberlain's umbrella or Sir Winston's cigar come away baffled.

From within the usually well-mannered ranks of the Conservatives, Butler has been denounced as a crypto-Socialist, a thinly disguised Liberal and a Trojan horse potentially full of the undoing of his ancient party. These charges by hot-headed Tory reactionaries reject cooler judgment of the Chancellor as a trail-blazer, weighed and found worthy.

With Sir Winston and his direct political heir, Foreign Secretary Eden, both on the government's invalid list, Butler's temporary position as provisional chairman of the Cabinet must be credited more to medical bulletins than to straightforward political developments.

Butler stands just after Eden in the line of Tory succession. He has never broken under the pressures of 24 years of full-time politics. But he is by six years the junior of Eden. Moreover, the Chancellor's office is right next door to No. 10 Downing Street and British politics are studded with instances of Treasury bosses moving directly into the Prime Minister's residence.

More than any other Tory, Butler is respected as the navigator who plotted the party's course out of the political wilderness in the 1951 elections.

Under his guidance, the old party was given a new look. The road on which the Tories marched back to power was paved with pamphlets pumped out by a brain trust of bright, young men of Butler's own choosing. Adroitly capitalizing on Labor's economic difficulties, the "Butler line" booklets had invited Britons down the middle way with such appealing titles as "The Industrial Charter" and "Britain Strong and Free," and such slogans as "humanizing but not nationalizing industry," "Property-owning democracy."

What is more important for the Chancellor's future than his generalship of this winning strategy is the fact that the political warfare team which gave him both allegiance and devotion is still intact and loyal today. According to the unchangeable laws of politics, it has filtered into government posts of responsibility and influence. Inevitably, it has increased in stature.

It is represented in the House of Commons by such personalities as Minister of Health Iain Macleod, whose factual flow of oratory has quenched much of the celebrated fire of Laborite Aneurin Beven, who once held the Health post.

As the man under whose direction the plans of the "Welfare State" were enacted, Bevan is entitled to think of social security questions as his special province. But the fiery Laborite has thus far failed to make any opposition capital out of Mr. Macleod's policies guiding the vast enterprise of cradle-to-the-grave health for every Briton.

Two other Butler boys are Reginald Maulding, 36, Economic Secretary to the Treasury, and Enoch Powell, 41, who enlisted in the British army as a private in the last war and emerged as a General Staff officer with the rank of Brigadier.

Defense in depth is a precaution with which an old soldier like Sir Winston could be expected to fortify his party against any contingency.

With plenty of potential leadership waiting in the wings, the the greatest Conservative need is said to be a domestic policy that can raise an army of voters that it can enlist at the polls. Until then the sliver of authority separating the Tories from the minority in Commons cannot be expected to change.

The 1951 elections showed that the public had made no long-term commitment. On this account, the question of new elections is discussed gingerly and unofficially. There has been much talk of the government going to the country this autumn. But those who profess to know the Prime Minister's thoughts put more emphasis on an appeal to the voters in 1954 or 1955 — after three of four years of stewardship. The assumption is that, favored with peace and slow but continuing economic recovery, the government could stand on this combination of fundamentals and promise greater rewards for the future.

NO MINOR ROLE

In any case, elections are never very far from the thoughts of politicians. Whether they are held sooner or later, Butler's part in dressing up the Tory battle standard will be anything but a minor role.

Clearly, the Chancellor is a rival of Eden, but not in the ordinary political sense of the term. The Conservative party has a reputation for tolerating personal rivalries and always expects to benefit by them. But there is always a Tory reputation for avoiding rifts which sets it apart from the Labor party.

If Eden's health permits, he may be expected to maintain his position as Churchill's crown prince.

Either way, however, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, is well on his way to the top, and he may be expected to exercise his special talents in a position of authority.

As things stand now, his party position should be greatly strengthened if the Tories inch forward with recovery. On the other hand, failure would be more than personal misfortune. It would carry the party and all the young hopefuls with the maker of its new policies.

Exhibition Ends In Deluge

14 Fairs Washed Out In Ontario; Attendance 31,306

What everybody knows is the dismal fact that Peterborough's Exhibition closed Saturday in the worst rain on any local fair day within the memory of the oldest director.

If misery likes company, a dubious mitigation of misfortune, Peterborough was one of 14 fairs in the province that were washed out Saturday. The Western Ontario Fair in London was said to be one of the numerous group forced to throw up their hands and duck under cover instead of trying to operate in the heavy rain. That is the story from one of the Peterborough directors.

From the office on Lansdowne St. this morning it was reported that the total attendance for the week, since Tuesday was 31,306, adults and children, and the total for the grandstand was 7,834. An unofficial estimate of the gate receipts indicate a decrease of some $6,000 from the total of 1953.

$18,000 IN PRIZES

The prize list carried the information that the total amount of the prize money, based on all the classes for which premiums were offered, was approximately $18,000.

Recently prepared and published as a matter of pride in the scope of the Exhibition, when hopes were high, the prize list may turn out to be an embarrassment when the financial statement is drafted, even in its preliminary form.

An example of the inducement held out in prizes to district exhibitors was the money offered in one section: registered Clydesdale stallions, three years old or over: 1st $25; 2nd $20; 3rd $15; 4th $10; 5th ribbon. Yeld mare was $15 down to $4 as the sixth prize. The same scale applied to Belgians.

The open class for heavy drafts: One pair of Clydes in harness hitched to wagon: 1st $25; 2nd $20; 3rd $15 and so on down to $6 for sixth place.

The traditional object of the fair, to promote the agricultural industry, was maintained in the planning for this year's show.

The schedule of prizes was arranged to attract top quality entries. In that respect, the Exhibition was an outstanding success. The number and quality of livestock shown last week received many compliments from agricultural department officials, farmers and others.

CAUGHT IN STANDS

Then the rains came, here and there during the week, and ending on a downpour climax which will always be remembered by the people who were caught on the grounds and grandstand.

Around 7 to 7.15 p.m. the stand was about three-quarters occupied. To that crowd is was a deluge. Quite a number of the people in the seats were from the district. Two or three groups from the vicinity of Stirling were recognized as the scrambling retreat began from the exposed seats down front to the rows under the roof. That was the end of entertainment for which the directors had engaged acts from George A. Hamid, booking agency, New York City.

3 In Family Injured In Accident

Two Cars Collide On Highway 7 One Driver Charged

Three members of a Toronto family were taken to Civic hospital on Saturday afternoon after their car and another driven by a Peterborough man crashed almost headon on Highway 7, seven miles east of Peterborough.

Injured are Mrs. Dorothy May, 45, of 56 Braeside Rd., Toronto, cuts on her left elbow and left knee, and a bruised chest; and her two sons—Stuart, 14, a lacerated scalp and bruises, and Donald, 8, a long cut on his face and concussion, but no fracture.

All three hospitalized members of the May family are reported today to be in satisfactory condition.

Today in magistrate's court John M. Hayes, 44, of 136 Fradette Ave., driver of the other car in the accident, pleaded not guilty to a charge of drunken driving. He also faces charges of careless driving and illegal possession of liquor.

He was remanded to Sept. 28.

Claude May, 43, father of the family, was sleeping in the back seat when the crash occurred and he received only a skinned nose and a shaking up.

"We were coming home from our cottage on Belmont Lake," said May, a Toronto salesman, "At Havelock I stopped driving and turned the wheel over to my wife. My two boys, Stuart and Donny were in the front seat and so was our dog Copper.

He pointed to two bullseye-shaped breaks in the windshield. "That's where their two heads struck. Young Donny had a cut down his face that laid the flesh wide open."

OPP Constable Don Lacombe is still investigating the cause of the accident which occurred on the westerly slope of a long hill. It is believed that the eastbound car, driven by Hayes, went out of control and was in almost headon collison with the westbound May car.

Hayes was not injured but the front of his car was badly crumpled. The front end of the 1953-model car driven by Mrs. May was wrecked. The steering-wheel and dashboard were bent where the front-seat occupants were thrown forward by the impact.

Make Pilgrimage To Martyrs' Shrine

More than 3,000 pilgrims took part in an annual pilgrimage made the Sunday before the Roman Catholic Feast of the Marytrs to the Martyrs' Shrine near Midland on Sunday.

Worshippers from Peterborough diocese, from Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N.Y., from Dundas and Toronto attended solemn high mass near the shrine.

A special train brought pilgrims from the Peterborough diocese. Two masses were conducted by Most Rev. Gerald Berry, bishop of Peterborough, assisted by Very Rev. V. J. Corkery, chancellor, and several other priests.

Must Educate Young In Schools About Cancer

A simple program of cancer education in the schools to avoid the present national scale ignorance of the disease was advocated by Dr. Edwin M. Robertson of Kingston, speaking at the fourth annual campaign conference of the Canadian Cancer Society, Ontario division, held in this district over the weekend.

"Can we not inspire children to go into cancer research, instead of the applied sciences, while in their school years?" asked Dr. Robertson, who is head of the department of obstetrics and gynaecology of the Kingston General Hospital and also a consulting gynaecologist for the Ontario Cancer Foundation. "There must be more research workers, until the cause and the cure of cancer are found," he said.

"Knowledge of the cancer disease should not be less important than safety," the speaker maintained. "Undoubtedly the child would not neglect cancer symptoms when he got older if he had grown up with knowledge of them."

Education of the adult should be kept up with simple explanation of the disease and the danger signals, the doctor urged. And, they should be kept informed of the nature of proven treatment and the results.

"You know something of the fabulous research of cancer that may some day bring us something," said Dr. Robertson. "Upon this depends the betterment of health and standards of living, and the defence of the country."

The great educational program of the Canadian Cancer Society is very important the doctor feels.

"Antagonism to things unpleasant must be broken down by weight of repitition and familiarity," he explained.

"It took years to overcome antipathy to vaccination, anaesthesia, chloroform and the pain killing drugs for childbirth, and this same waveringness accounts for the frightful states of advanced cancer today. It is thorough-going ignorance on a national scale, but a program of education in the schools could avoid this in future."

Chances For Cure Of Cancer Measurably Improved Catchacoma Meeting Told

A report on cancer research to date by Dr. O. H. Warwick, executive director of the Canadian Cancer Society and executive director of the National Cancer Institute, was a highlight of the business sessions of the Campaign Conference held by Ontario Division of the Canadian Cancer Society over the weekend. Sixty delegates, representing 25 of the 34 units of the Society now in Ontario were meeting at the Club Whitesands, Lake Catchacoma, by arrangement of the Peterborough Unit.

"Certainly the chance for cure of cancer is measurably improved today," said Dr. Warwick. "We are striving to learn more of the fundamental aspects of cellular life and to find some method whereby their development and growth can be controlled."

He said one of the worst characteristics of cancer is its dissemination to other parts of the body, and that once this has happened very little can be done for the patient. Scientists are working on the biology of cancer growth and are exploring impartially every avenue of attack. After 50 years of research, they feel they are now approaching the end of the beginning, he said.

About half the funds being devoted to cancer research are being used at Ontario Universities and Dr. Warwick explained it is because this province is more mature in respect to its research facilities. He said that for some years money has been given to certain people to do research but it is hoped to institute a full time group of cancer research workers at Canadian Universities.

He estimated that 30,000 new cases of cancer develop each year in Canada.

"The public has given us more than half a million dollars to do this research and to promote their welfare and education" Ontario Division president E. S. Welch of Toronto reminded the delegates, who were officially campaign chairmen of the units. The first campaign for funds was in 1950 and Mr. Welch pointed out that the public givings had increased over the three years by $227,000., or 87 per cent.

Division treasurer F. W. Fredenburgh, Toronto, announced that $507,000. is the expected total of the 1953 campaign. He stated that campaign expenses have been cut from around nine per cent the first year to 7.7 per cent and that they were this year about the same as last year but with a measurably greater take.

"We exercise extreme care in the use of the funds received so that they are the most benefit to the cancer sufferer of today, through our welfare and education program, and the cancer sufferer of tomorrow, by supporting research. Our accounting records are open to the favor of everyone" the treasurer said.

President Welch remarked that the splendid results of this year's campaign had been possible to achieve through holding campaign conferences, of which this was the fourth. Uniform accounting had made the expenses easier to compute and they had been kept to a minimum through greater use of volunteer employees and by a new scheme of having each unit handle its own advertising, dealing directly with the local newspapers and radio stations.

It was strongly emphasized that an adequate cancer control program demands an independent fund raising and educational campaign. Chairman of the National campaign committee, James Cowan of Toronto, discussed a uniform campaign manual, which was adopted.

Recommendations to the Ontario Board of Directors for action were made by the delegates.

Discussions on campaign procedure during the Saturday and Sunday sessions were as follows: campaign office procedure by executive secretary Maurice Grimes, Toronto; advertising on the unit level by Brad C. Heintzman, Toronto; industry and personal canvas by Frank Foster, Peterborough; rural canvas by Thomas Naylor, Woodstock; economic conditions as they may affect the campaign by A. B. Hood, Toronto; education as related to the campaign by John Pallet, Toronto.

Girl Gets Polio School Closed

KEENE—(ENS)—Lang school was ordered closed Friday night for several days due to a case of poliomyelitis, contacted by 12-year-old Beryl Kemp, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp.

Beryl first showed signs of high fever and drowsiness Thursday afternoon. She was sent home from school at recess and Dr. Wilson Ford was called.

Friday morning Dr. Ford had Beryl removed to hospital where her condition was diagnosed as polio. She was rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, and placed in an iron lung.

Anxiety was felt for the health of a younger brother, who was kept under observation in hospital for a while, but it was later decided his condition was not serious.

Lang school is attended by 51 pupils. Mrs. Eugene Rabbie is teacher.

50 Businessmen From Montreal See City Plants

A group of more than fifty French-speaking businessmen from Montreal are visiting the city as guests of the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce.

Included in the program arranged for them are tours of Peterborough Canoe Co., Outboard Marine, Canadian General Electric and the Western Clock. All of these factories produce goods sold by these men and their primary interest is in seeing the various articles in the making.

The first stop today was at the Peterborough Canoe Co. where they were conducted through the production rooms of the plant. Canoes, rowboats and power launches in various phases of manufacture were inspected by the merchants and their approval was apparent from their comments to each other.

WINTER SPORTS

Of even more interest to the Montrealers was the vast stock of winter sports gear. Toboggans ranging in length from three feet to fifteen feet were piled high and surrounded by stacks of ski poles and the famous Peterborough ski, itself.

The visiting businessmen are staying at South Beach Hotel and make their visits to the city by means of a bus. Tomorrow they will relax and enjoy a fishing party complete with guides and a lake shore dinner. Others who prefer golfing to fishing will spend the day on the greens at Kawartha and will have luncheon in the club rooms.

On Tuesday evening the golfers and fishermen will assemble at the South Beach Hotel for a final dinner and the presentation of fishing awards.

They are scheduled to depart Wednesday for home and there are claims among them, even now, that their stay—"in this wonderful city"— is too short.

Radio Actress Champions School Teachers

By WAYNE OLIVER

NEW YORK (AP)—Actress Eve Arden is just a funny schoolmarm to most television viewers and radio listeners, but to teachers she's a champion for their professions.

Statuesque Miss Arden, Connie Brooks of "Our Miss Brooks," explains it this way: The cracks on the show about low teachers' salaries and equipment shortages are regarded by teachers as a big help in making the public aware of their plight.

"The constant pin-pricking we do—with humor—draws interest." The actress is en route back to Hollywood from a European vacation with her husband, actor Brooks West.

Although the prime purpose of the show is humor, Miss Arden said she believes it also serves another serious purpose.

"It helps children to realize that teachers have their own problems outside the schools."

Meanwhile, she said, there have been no objections from teachers because of the comic and often ridiculous situations in which Miss Brooks becomes involved.

On the other hand, she continued, many teachers write, "how true to life Osgood Conklin (Gale Gordon) is—just like our principal."

NEVER TAUGHT SCHOOL

Although she's perhaps the best known schoolteacher in America, Miss Arden never taught school professionally.

"But when I was in grammar school at Mill Valley, Calif., by the time I was in the seventh grade I had substituted for the teacher in every grade, including the seventh," she related.

Besides, Miss Arden gets plenty of professional advice form her school teacher fans who bombard her with mail, so if she begins to act un-schoolteacherish, she'll hear about it and fast.

Report Internal Quarrels Prodding Douk Trouble

By JOE MacSWEEN

KRESTOVA (CP)—Quarrels between factions in the Sons of Freedom Doukhobor sect were seen today as an added reason for unrest in the turbulent Kootenays.

The Freedomites, 144 of their number now facing trial at Vancouver, have long acknowledged Stefan S. Sorokin as their spiritual leader. Recent home burnings and nude parades were taken as a protest against a government edict that they send their children to school. It was a demonstration against this edict that landed the 144 in prison.

But Doukhobor sources also stated Sunday that a faction led by John Lebedoff, who in the past has served a jail term for arson, still challenges the leadership right of the bearded Sorokin. This could lead to violent repercussions among the Freedomites.

HAS CONSIDERABLE WEIGHT

Lebedoff, whose whereabouts in the Kootenays are not divulged here, swings considerable weight in the ranks of the radical sect, but has never won title of leadership in the sense of Sorokin. Sorokin is in Uruguay, where he said in an interview Thursday that his efforts to find a new home for the discontented sect have been ruined by the recent acts of arson, dynamiting and attempted blastings.

The new reports of action differences came after the Doukhobors, some in the nude, conducted a service of religious mourning Sunday for their imprisoned comrades. Some 200 persons, including sightseers, attended the outdoor service and heard the fate of the imprisoned bewailed in Russian chants that left many in tears.

More moderate Freedomites express a hope for the return of Sorokin, whose influence was mostly for peace and reconciliation. But others hotly reiterated the sect's determination to have nothing to do with man-made laws, holding themselves responsible to God alone.

Cornwall Woman Learns Missing Son Held In Ohio Slaying

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP)—A woman who hasn't seen her son for 14 years has found him in jail here, charged with second-degree murder.

Mrs. Gladys St. John of Cornwall, Ont., read in a newspaper of the arrest of 25-year-old Harold St. John in the hitch-hike slaying of Joseph Harding near Zanesville last month.

Convinced he was her son she last saw in Boston 14 years ago, she wrote him:

"Please write me, dear, if you are my son, and I feel in my heart you are, and tell me what happened. . . If I possibly can do anything within my power I'll do it so gladly. For I love you and always will love you, son, and I hope you are glad to get this letter from me and please excuse my writing and mistakes for I AM PRETTY SHAKY. . . ."

After reading the letter in his jail cell, St. John said quietly: "That's my mother."

TAKEN TO PITTSBURGH

Mrs. St. John said her son had been taken to Pittsburgh by her husband when they separated. She said the son told her he would run away and follow her to Canada, where she planned to go to live with her mother.

But he never came. She tried to locate him through the missing persons bureau in Boston, but they told her they couldn't locate him. After his 24th birthday, she assumed he was dead.

St. John will go on trial here Oct. 7. He has pleaded innocent to the slaying of Harding, assistant director of Ohio's industrial relations department, on the highway outside Zanesville last month. He was arrested less than two miles from the scene of the shooting.

ESCAPED GUARDHOUSE

St. John had escaped from a Camp Atterbury, Ind., guardhouse, taking a gun from one of the guards. Authorities charge he hitched a ride in Harding's car on the outskirts of Columbus, Ohio, and shot the state official in a scuffle when Harding resisted robbery.

St. John's father lives in Dorchester, Mass. At the time of the youth's arrest, officers asked if he wanted his father notified.

"No, let him read it in the paper," he answered.

CARRIED INTO COURT—Weak from a hunger strike, one of the women members of the Sons of Freedom of Krestova, B.C., was carried into court at Vancouver by RCMP constables. The Doukhobor extremists were found guilty on charges of parading nude in public in protest against sending their children to school.

25,000 Britons Watch RCAF Do Its Stuff

NORTH LUFFENHAM, England (CP)—More than 25,000 Britons Saturday watched Canadian pilots stand their supersonic Sabre jet fighters on end at an "open house" air show marking Battle of Britain Week activities.

The crowd flocked from miles around this base of No. 1 fighter wing to eye aerobatics and a comprehensive static display, plus American actor Gary Cooper. The film star spent the week-end at this base on his first visit with Canadian military personnel.

Between sights the crowd munched Canadian-style hot dogs and hamburgers, most for the first time, and guzzled pop. RCAF planes fanned out to appear at other Battle of Britain shows as far north as Scotland and in the south of England.

The plane bringing Cooper to North Luffenham ran into a gust of wind while landing and appeared momentarily to be in danger of flipping over. Cooper later said it was nothing, however.

Says 5 Utilities Companies Trying To Ruin Niagara Plan

MASSENA, N. Y. (AP)—The chairman of the New York state power authority said Saturday night that five private utilities companies are trying "to put the snatch" on Niagara river power.

John E. Burton said also that if the companies are permitted to develop the Niagara river power potential they might ruin the plan for St. Lawrence power development by New York state.

Burton stoutly defended the program, backed by Governor Thomas Dewey, that would grant the state the right to develop power from the Niagara and sell it to private companies for transmission along their own lines.

But of opponents of the plan, Burton said in a speech:

"What they cannot get in Albany, they are trying to saddle upon New York from Washington. They are biting off their nose to spite their face, and should they win their drive, they will have destroyed a plan that can bring soundness, stability and sense to a field torn with private - public strife."

REPORT ON STATUS

Burton's talk was billed as a report on the status of the St. Lawrence power project.

He submitted that the "principal obstructionists seem now to be the coal-mine owners."

"They openly boast that every day they can delay us is worth $10,000 to them. . . . We expect them now to turn to the courts for their $10,000-per-day delay."

His heaviest blast was levelled against what he called the "nation-wide utility combine and its Big Five junior edition in New York state." And he accused the utilities companies of "pressuring the federal Congress to trample down the law and will of the people of New York state."

This was apparently a reference to backers of the Miller-Capehart bill, passed by the House of Representatives and now in Senate committee, which would give private companies the right to develop Niagara river power.

WOULD BE RESTRICTED

"If the Big Five company drive to put the snatch on Niagara were to be successful, the state plan for the broad benefits of cheap electricity from St. Lawrence would be materially restricted, if not completely wrecked," Burton asserted.

He also assailed the bill sponsored by Senator Herbert Lehman (Dem.-Lin. N. Y.) and Representative F. D. Roosevelt (Dem.-Lib. N.Y.) that would permit development of Niagara power by the federal government.

He said the Roosevelt-Lehman measure would defeat the establishment of a northeast power pool and block the maximum benefits of the state's power development projects.

Master Mechanic Devised 1st Elevator 100 Years Ago

By EDWARD S. KITCH

CHICAGO (AP)—Step into an elevator and press a button. This casual act takes you on a vertical ride that had it's start 100 years ago. A master mechanic devised it.

Elisha Graves Otis wasn't thinking about 20th-century skyscrapers when he started making elevators in his Yonkers, N. Y., machine shop Sept. 20, 1853. More likely he was thinking about the California gold rush. But modern skyscrapers would have been impossible without his invention.

His principal assets were a company account book, two oil cans and a second-hand lathe.

This year the Otis Elevator Co., which he founded is marking its centennial with the biggest cash order in its century-old history—a $3,000,000 job calling for installation of 27 automatic elevators in Chicago's new 41-storey Prudential building. Movement of the cars will be controlled by an electronic brain. They'll speed up and down at 1,400 feet a minute.

This is a far cry from the first elevator Otis installed at 275 Hudson street, New York. A wonder of the times, it had an automatic safety device to keep it from falling if the hoisting ropes broke, which often happened.

Because folks didn't trust elevators, Otis decided to promote his product himself. At the Crystal Palace Exposition in New York in 1854, he had himself hoisted high up in one of his elevators and then ordered the rope cut. Startled onlookers were impressed when the elevator held fast to cleats on the side of the shaft. Otis got $3,000 worth of orders.

Hotels were among the most enthusiastic users of the first steam-driven Otis elevators.

In Chicago's new Prudential building, an electric clock will tell the autotronic "brain" when to assemble cars on the first floor, with doors open, for arriving office workers. During rush hours, accumulated button-pushings will be totalled by the electronic brain and when they reach a certain critical number the cars will go into action. Full cars will skip further stops; empty or half-filled cars will go where they are most needed.

If a passenger blocks the elevator door beyond a reasonable time, a loud buzzer sounds in the car, then the doors close slowly and nudge him out.

Union Officials Hold Conference

MONTREAL (CP)—Representatives of two Canadian shipbuilding unions, representing a majority of shipyard workers in Canada, met here in a closed conference during the week-end in an effort to avoid what was termed a "major depression in our Canadian shipyards."

Representatives of the Federation Nationale de la Metallurgie (CCCL) and the British Columbia Shipyard General Workers Federation (CCL) mapped out resolutions dealing with trade and the government's handling of the shipbuilding industry.

One of the main subjects discussed was the inroads made in Canadian shipping, particularly in the Great Lakes trade, by foreign vessels built especially for the St. Lawrence river trade route.

A resolution asked that if the St. Lawrence seaway is built, authorities "take steps to insure complete protection of Canadian shipping utilizing the waterway."

French Police Deny Churchill Died

CAP D'AIL, France (Reuters)—French police Sunday night denied rumors said to be circulating abroad that Sir Winston Churchill, Britain's prime minister, is dead.

The prefecture of the Alpes Maritimes department at Nice issued a statement that Churchill's health is causing no anxiety.

Churchill had a quiet Sunday lunch in Lord Beaverbrook's villa, where he is staying here. His guests were author Somerset Maugham, Sir Gerald Kelly, president of the Royal Academy, and Lady Kelly.

Ontario Traffic Deaths Set Record In August

It was the fourth time this year the monthly toll has been a record high.

Deaths in August, 1952, numbered 97. The previous record was 98 in 1941.

So far this year, 632 persons have been killed in traffic mishaps, compared with 584 last year.

RCAF Air Shows Give Public Thrill

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The RCAF gave the public a glimpse of its might and prowess at air shows held across the land Saturday in connection with the seventh annual Air Force Day.

The display at Toronto cost the life of Sqdn. Ldr. Raymond Greene of Ottawa, whose $350,000 F-86 Sabre jet plunged into Lake Ontario during low-level aerobatics and disintegrated before the eyes of 60,000 horrified spectators.

A giant B-36 10-engined intercontinental bomber flew 500 miles from Limestone, Me., for the Toronto show and hovered over the waterfront for several minutes.

A supply container dropped in an RCAF parachute demonstration fell into a crowded parking lot in Montreal but injured no one among the 10,000 persons on hand for the performance. The container ripped through the roof of an unoccupied automobile.

During the two-hour Montreal program, spectators craned their necks and shaded their eyes against the sun as the fastest and newest planes of the RCAF went through their paces. Many persons waited in line to look into the cockpits of Mustangs, Sabres, Vampires and T-3s and to explore a North Star, Dakota or C-119.

Shows also were staged at various air force bases both east and west.

Official observers from three Communist countries—Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia — were among the 30,000 spectators who saw jet fighters and propeller-driven planes stunt through overcast and rain squalls at Ottawa's Rockcliffe airport. It was the first time in four years the Communists had been formally invited.

Two T-33 jet trainers had the appearance of playing tag at 580 miles an hour during the show held amid high winds and squalls of driving rain at Trenton. Forty-five planes took part in the afternoon's flying display.

GET EXTRA THRILL

The several thousand spectators at the show at Aylmer had an extra thrill when they watched two parachutists do some fast manoeuvring to avoid colliding in mid-air after jumping from a Dakota at 1,000 feet.

Mrs. Dorothy Rungeling of Fenwick, near Welland, led a 10-plane field in winning the Governor-General's Cup air race in connection with the Toronto show. Her average speed in a Piper Pacer around the 26-mile rectangular course was 130 miles an hour.

David Reid of Brantford was second in the event.

Urge Standardization Set Up For Apprenticeship Training

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Standardization of apprenticeship training across Canada to remove provincial barriers to skilled tradesmen is urged by the president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, J. D. Ferguson.

He says it is "inconceivable" that a skill acquired through long training in one province should not be equally acceptable elsewhere.

Mr. Ferguson's speech, recorded for broadcast this week over 70 Canadian stations, is the last of a series of five addresses on apprenticeship which have been sponsored by the federal labor department.

The five radio talks have described problems of trades training in Canada and suggested methods of improvement.

Mr. Ferguson, president of a company at Rock Island, Que., pointed to one problem—the lack of uniformity in apprenticeship training, which comes under provincial jurisdiction.

HAVE OWN STANDARDS

Each province has its own standards for various trades, and only in a few cases is there a reciprocal arrangement between provinces for recognition of each other's licensed skilled workers.

Industry should develop the outlines of standard training courses, he said, because it is the best judge of what it wants and is in close touch with technical progress.

On-the-job training in basic trades should be co-ordinated with necessary academic training, which would be the responsibility of education authorities.

National training standards, with provincial certificates recognized by employers across the country, was also urged by another of the five speakers, L. J. Sparrow, who heads apprentice training for the Canadian General Electric Company.

He said the present shortage of skilled tradesmen could not be met by immigration and might lower Canada's standard of living and even endanger her security.

The extent of the apprentice shortage was indicated by W. H. Clark, a vice-president of Ford Motor Company of Canda, who said industrial expansion is expected to create 30,000 new jobs each year in manufacturing industries alone.

NEED 20,000 MORE

Canada needed at least 20,000 more apprentices at present, he said, and yet had 900 fewer apprentices than in 1948.

Unless industry paid more attention to training workers, Canada might not realize the full advantage of her economic expansion.

Joseph M. Pigott of Hamilton, head of a construction firm, said some employers are apahtetic to training skilled workers. Of 709 plants surveyed in three industry groups, only 8 had organized training programs.

Labor's interest in producing more skilled workers was emphasized by Percy Bengough, president of the Trades And Labor Congress of Canada and chairman of the National Apprenticeship Advisory Committee.

He said apprenticeship training is the best way to get the skilled artisans needed for Canada's industrial development.

Mayors Tackle Problem Of Traffic

By BOB JOYCE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

MONTREAL (CP)—The mayors of Canada and the United States today roll up their sleeves to tackle one of the modern city's biggest bugbears—how to keep traffic moving.

Some 800 mayors from cities and towns across Canada and the United States discuss traffic and transit problems after four American experts have outlined what they think about the problem.

The mayors, attending the first international Municipal Congress, opened their five-day convention Sunday with attendance at a march past by some 45 units of Canada's armed forces and a reception by the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities.

Today, they attend the convention's first plenary session, to be addressed by Defence Minister Claxton, and Alben Barkley, former vice-president of the United States.

TO RENEW DEMANDS

During the congress, Canadian delegates are expected to renew demands made at previous conventions that purchases by municipalities be exempt from the 10 per cent federal sales tax and that the present exemption of crown property from city property taxes be ended.

This special report, published some time ago by the Canadian Federation, points out that the revenue of most Canadian towns and cities has not been increasing fast enough and that the federal and provincial governments today take a bigger share of the tax dollar than in the 1930s.

The report also notes that there have been 'insistent demands from municipal authorities that a federal-provincial conference be called" to examine the problem of providing cities with "revenue resources adequate to the responsibilities they are called upon to discharge."

The Canadian organization's last convention was in Calgary. The U. S. Conference of Mayors, headed by president Martin H. Kennelly, mayor of Chicago, held its 1952 convention in New York City.

This year's congress is being sponsored jointly by the Canadian and American organizations.

Workers Reject New Contract

MONTREAL (CP)—Workers at the Canadian Car and Foundry plant here decided Saturday night to turn down a proposed contract with the company.

The 3,000 employees, members of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen of America, have asked for three weeks vacation with pay after 15 years service, a 40-hour work week instead of 42½ hours with no reduction in take-home pay, a 20-cent-an-hour increase, compulsory check-off of union dues and an increase in piece-work wage rates.

Union officials said the company agreed to a 40-hour work week if present output is maintained and proposed compulsory check-off of new employees, but not those already hired.

Present wage scales were not available.

Bus Men May Strike

KITCHENER (CP)—Bus drivers and maintenance men of the city-owned transportation services may go on strike early in October, C.H. Weir, president of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Employees (CCL) here, made the statement Sunday. He said a draft contract with the commission was satisfactory except for a request for statutory holidays with pay.

Bird Watchers Foiled

PORT STANLEY (CP) — Bird-watchers expecting to witness a large hawk migration over Lake Erie Sunday were disappointed when heavy clouds made visibility poor. The watchers gathered at nearby Hawk Cliff after large bands of the birds were seen drifting over St. Thomas, 25 miles to the north, Saturday. Some 50,000 birds were counted heading south over the lake during the 1952 migration.

Plane Hits Wires

TORONTO (CP)—A light plane knifed through hydro wires and crashed in a field in suburban Lansing Sunday night, plunging the neighboring municipalities of Agincourt, Wilmer Heights and Markham into darkness. The pilot, Robert Leavens of Toronto, who was returning from Belleville, crawled from the aircraft uninjured. The plane made a complete somersault and landed upside down after the landing gear caught in the wires.

Award Presented

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Presentation of the Calvert Trophy to London Little Theatre, winner of the 1953 western Ontario regional drama festival, was made at Sunday's session of the Western Ontario Drama League, in the LLT green room.

To Mary Ashwell, director of the winning play "Dark of the Moon" which took first honors at Sarnia last spring, Tracy Shaw, Ontario manager of Calvert Distillers, Ltd. present the figure in wood, one of the 13 presented to regional winners.

New George White "Scandals" On Way

NEW YORK (AP)—Silver-haired showman George White is planning big things again. And what's more, he can afford them.

"Nothing is more interesting than the truth," he said with characteristic aggressiveness, sitting at a ringside table in a Manhattan night club.

Six months ago, White made it clear, he was on the skids. He had no money — certainly not the amount needed to produce a New York musical. Nobody seemed to have faith in his talents.

But now, half a year later, things are different. At 63, White's turbulent career has caught fire again. His bank balance is healthy and his services are in demand.

Broadway, which hasn't seen a George White "Scandals" since 1939, may get another of those merry revues loaded with lovely girls in 1954.

"I'm going to do another 'Scandals,'" White said cockily. "And I have a couple of other musical shows I'd like to produce."

What brought about this turn of fortune?

Only a few minutes earlier, the night club — the Versailles — had rocked with applause for a production put together by the former vaudeville hoofer who appeared at the Globe theatre in New York in 1910 as Don Ferris in "The Echo," and who was a principal in "The Ziegfeld Follies of 1915" before he made his mark as an impresario of girl-shows with the "Scandals of 1919."

For White, it was one of those fantastic breaks, so typical of show business. Nick and Arnold, proprietors of the Versailles, were desperate for some kind of floor show when White happened along and asked for a chance.

Nick and Arnold gave it to him. They consider it one of their happiest gambles.

With a dozen unknown—but highly gifted — young performers, without any scenery or props to speak of, White staged what the program calls a "musicalette." The title is "Nice To See You."

It amounts to a buoyant little musical package, tied together with a slight thread of plot, but bursting at the seams with youthful high spirits, melody, humor and delightful dancing.

"'Nice To See You' is going to be my financial backer," said White. "It'll probably run at the Versailles through New Year's eve. Then I'll tour it in theatres around the country and maybe a few clubs."

This is George White's little bonanza — a small cast, no star salaries to pay, simple costumes and no sets or stagehands required.

Dewart of Peterborough, became the bride of Mr. Garth Bernard Parnell, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Parnell, also of Peterborough, in the ceremony performed by the rector, Canon Walter J. Gilling.

DOROTHY DIX

Finds Hubbie Uninteresting Now Has Eyes For Brother

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a married woman of 30, my husband is 33 and we have four children. We've been married eight years, were separated the first two—when my husband was in service—then for two more because we just didn't get along. I'm very unhappy because of my husband's ways. He won't sit down and talk things over, nor is he ever very companionable. He's a hard worker, a good provider, loves the children, doesn't drink, gamble and certainly has no thought of another woman. But we just aren't compatible. Consequently, I am very lonely. We've spoken of separation, but nothing has been done about it.

I've been writing my brother-in-law for the past year. He's in service, and I liked him a lot even before I married his brother. Since we've been corresponding, I realize I'm in love with him. I know I could be happy with him. Should I break up with my husband and marry his brother or try to stick it out?

Lorna N.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: To be perfectly honest, which came first? Your attraction to your brother-in-law, or your dissatisfactions with your husband? You are fortunate enough to have a man with all the qualities most women desire in a husband. Your only serious complaint with him is that YOU no longer love HIM, because you happen to have developed an infatuation for someone else. Are you being quite fair? With a good husband, a fine family, and a comfortable home, your job is to weld the ingredients into a happy unit. Instead, you are trying to be the disruptive influence. Perhaps your husband isn't as companionable as you'd like him to be, but that's not a major fault—as many woman with a drinking, philandering, or abusive mate will tell you. You have four lively youngsters to take up the slack of companionship. Turn your energies to maintaining a home for them instead of evasively seeking ways to break up their lives.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 19, and have been married for two years. My husband is 22. He works for his parents in a restaurant. He is very attentive to the customers, but when I go into the place he scarcely notices me. I don't want to break up my home because of our baby, but I am getting very discouraged.

N. H.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If you expect your husband to make a living for you and your son, you must realize that business comes first. Apparently you expect him to drop everything else when you enter the restaurant and devote himself to you. You must begin to face the fact that by marrying at 17, you sacrificed a good deal of the romantic attention of teen-age life. Your husband, too, is very young, and you shouldn't expect too much of him. He's doing a fine job of supporting his little family and you should give him better co-operation.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm a high-school sophomore, and live next door to a senior, one of the most popular boys in school. How can I get to know him? I know his younger brother and sister, but Ty never notices me.

S. D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: After the thorough job you've done trying to attract the young man's attention, with notable lack of success, why not quit and let the next move be his? Remember that almost every girl in school is attracted to this handsome man-of-the-year and I'm afraid your chances of dating him are rather slim. Perhaps you may glean some encouragement from Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen," in which the plain little girl-next-door began as a pest to the young hero, but eventually married him.

Burnt Orange New Color For Fall And Winter Season

By MURIEL PENN

LONDON (Reuters)—"Burnt orange" is designer Michael Sherard's new color for the fall and winter season and a very attractive color it is, too—combined with grey or black.

One of the most striking models in his fall collection is a ball gown with full outstanding skirt in which the burnt orange shade is used with black.

The fitted strapless bodice and two wide loose panels partially covering the skirt are in black velvet. The billowing skirt is in burnt orange poult shot with black. With the dress goes a long wide black velvet stole lined with the same shot poult.

Another luxurious-looking ball dress is made entirely of black velvet, with a simple, fitted, strapless bodice and billowing floor-sweeping skirt. A black chiffon sash ties at the back in a huge bustle-like bow.

One highly-practical and very chic "three in one" outfit consists of a short, full, burnt orange coat with wide sleeves and the newest dipping-at-the-back hemline, which has the advantage of being designed to fit any figure, worn over a suit in fancy grey shot orange worsted. The suit has a sleeveless, square-necked camisole top in the same material and looks exactly like a dress when worn with a wide sash of burnt orange satin.

Only two evening models depart from the burnt orange and black or grey theme. One is a lovely rich purple velvet evening gown with a full skirt and a cape collar high at the back and low in the front, on a fitted bodice. The other is a youthful-looking printed cotton ball dress with two shades of green ivy leaves in trails on a white background.

One daytime model also omits the burnt orange theme. It is a rose red velour top coat trimmed with black Persian lamb, worn over a matching wool georgette day dress.

JACQMAR COLLECTION

Suits cosy enough to be worn on the coldest winter day without a topcoat are featured in a collection by Jacqmar, well known also for fabrics.

One smart yet warm model is in a rough, hard-wearing tweed in several shades of green woven with black and white. Another has a red and black knobbly barrel-shaped jacket and a straight all-black skirt.

Characteristic of this practical collection, confined to suits and coats, are its three-piece ensembles consisting of a warm topcoat worn over a suit in matching but lighter-weight fabric. One delightful ensemble consists of a milk chocolate brown topcoat in a fine diamond weave velour worn over a darker brown tailored suit.

In another, the full topcoat in black tweed flecked with yellow matches a suit in yellow flecked with black.

A smart town ensemble consists of a black barathea princess coat with velvet collar and pockets worn over a matching black suit.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Leftover Cheese Transformations

There were so many odds and ends of things in our refrigerator that a drastic decision had to be made.

Garny and her family left on Friday so I was free to declare no groceries were being bought until I had the contents of that refrigerator under control.

Pete groaned and said "There are six different kinds of hard cheese in there. I suppose we'll be eating Cheese Royale or Beaucoup for a week."

I disdained to answer this impertinence and he had to eat humble pie that evening for I strained and brought forth an idea.

Did you ever eat cheese soup? No. Neither had I—but it was good. My sisters tasted a little I had left over and even cold it was good. That's a severe test. It was ideal to serve with a vegetable plate for it gave body protein to the whole business. The other things I did with those bits of leftover cheese were run-of-the-mill to some of you: stuffed baked potatoes with cheese, broiled tomatoes with cheese and crumbs, tomato rarebit. Naturally I did not serve two cheese dishes at the same meal. I do not mention macaroni and cheese because every mother makes it for her brood and it does not need a boost from me.

CHEESE SOUP

In 2 or 3 tablespoons butter gently saute 1 tablespoon grated onion and 2 tablespoons flour and ¾ to 1 teaspoon salt and when this is mixed stir in 3 cups milk —I used skim milk—until thick. Add shake of pepper and ½ or ¾ cup grated old hard cheese. Stand over double boiler and stir or beat until cheese is melted and all is heated through. When this soup is served sprinkle top with finely chopped parsley. If you are a fiend for rich flavor ⅛ to ¼ teaspoon dry mustard or curry may be added to this.

STUFFED BAKED POTATOES WITH CHEESE

Select rather large potatoes of uniform size, scrub them well and bake until tender at 450 deg. Fahr. Cut a thin slice from the top and scoop out inside. Mash it with a fork and add ¾ teaspoon salt, shake of pepper, 2 tablespoons butter, ¼ cup hot milk and 1/3 cup grated or chopped old cheese. (If desired, to make these fluffy, add 1 white of egg beaten stiff.) Refill shells and heat through and brown in hot oven.

BROILED TOMATOES WITH CRUMBS AND CHEESE

Choose tomatoes that are firm and medium large. Wash but do not peel. Cut in halves crosswise and sprinkle with salt. Mix together ½ cup breadcrumbs and ¼ cup grated old cheese and spread this on the tomatoes. Broil until tomatoes are heated through and cheese is melted and top is browned. Variation: Before crumbs are added tomatoes may be spread thinly with ground ham or chicken made into a paste as you would use it for sandwich spread OR after crumbs are added a little square of bacon may be placed on top.

HOLLYWOOD RAREBIT

(tomato, cheese and crabmeat)

Two tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons chopped onion, 2 tablespoons chopped green pepper, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon cayenne, 1 teaspoon mustard, 1 cup tomato juice or chopped peeled tomatoes, 1¼ cups grated cheese, 1 well-beaten egg, ½ cup cream, 1 cup cooked, flaked crabmeat (or lobster). Melt butter and add onion and green pepper and saute until limp and lightly browned. Mix flour, salt, cayenne and mustard and stir in, then stir in tomato juice or tomatoes until thick. Add cheese and stir until melted. Stir in egg until it is slightly thicker. Remove from heat and add hot cream and crabmeat. Mix well, carefully reheat and serve on buttered toast.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.

Ask No Force Used With PoWs

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Allies today called on the Korean neutral repatriation commission to prevent the Communists from using force or threats in attempting to persuade some 23,000 Allied-held prisoners who refused repatriation to change their minds.

Interviews by teams from both sides are to start Friday at the demilitarized zone.

On Thursday, the Communists plan to hand over more than 300 Allied captives they say don't want to go home.

In a letter to Indian Lt.-Gen. K. S. Thimayya, chairman of the repatriation commission, U. S. Brig. A. L. Hamblen, head of the UN repatriation group, said the Allies feel prisoners shouldn't be forced to decide all over again whether to be repatriated, but do have the right to change their minds.

He called "unfair to the prisoner" a proposal under study by the commission which would require PoWs leaving the explanation area "to make their exit one way or the other in a manner that would indicate they have made a decision regarding repatriation. . . ."

Youth Admits Stealing Car

Robert Stewart, 17-year-old ward of the Bowmanville Training School For Boys, today pleaded guilty to theft of a car on Friday noon which was owned by Norman Nisbett of the Nisbett funeral home.

Questioned by Magistrate R. I. Moore of Lindsay, the slight, dark-haired youth admitted that he had earlier stolen a truck from Lindsay and driven it to Peterborough. He abandoned the truck and then stole the 1950-model convertible standing in front of the Nisbett funeral home.

Stewart said the thefts occurred on his 17th birthday.

"You were celebrating your birthday, were you?" queried the magistrate.

Stewart's reply was inaudible.

The case was adjourned until Monday so more could be found out about the Lindsay theft before sentence is passed.

The accused youth was on probation and had been living on a farm in the Dunsford area. After a wild ride down Reid St. he was arrested by Constable W. G. Scott at Park and Albert Sts.

John Nisbett 21, son of the owner of the stolen car, had been informed of the theft minutes after it happened. He passed Stewart by driving down Reid and Park Sts. with the ambulance siren going. Then, with Constable Scott, he apprehended Stewart who was boxed in the heavy motor traffic at the intersection.

Three Accidents Three Reasons No One Injured

Three accidents Saturday evening had three separate causes, according to participants and police. One was blamed on a driver getting a speck of dirt in his eye; another on slippery roads and a third on drink.

Police said drinking had to do with an accident on the Warsaw road two miles west of Warsaw in which two cars collided almost head-on.

As a result of the accident, Clayton Eason, 25, of 687 Donegal St., was today charged in magistrate's court with dangerous driving and failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

He pleaded guilty to both charges and was fined $50 and costs on the dangerous driving count and $25 and costs for failing to remain at the scene of the accident. The alternative is 50 days in jail.

A third charge, reckless driving, was dismissed when it was withdrawn by Crown Attorney John Bradshaw.

Driver of the other car was Donald Jory, 301 Mason Ave. About $300 damage was done to the left front fender, light and part of the door of his 1953 model car.

DOWN SIDE ROAD

Police said Eason left the scene, but Jory supplied them with a licence number and pointed to a side road down which the offending car vanished. Police went in search and found Eason sleeping in his small English car parked beside the road behind a bush about a mile and a quarter down the road. A passenger had vanished.

About $300 damage had been done to the left front fender and door of Eason's car.

No one, including Jory's wife and child, was hurt in the collision. OPP Constable Bruce Tilson investigated this and an accident on the Millbrook road.

In the second accident, about 8.10 p.m., Charles Sanderson, Millbrook, lost control of his light truck on pavement made slippery by a torrential rain shortly before. The car skidded into the north ditch and turned over on its side about two miles east of Millbrook.

Sanderson, driving alone, was not hurt. Constable Tilson described the highway as extremely slippery.

A Toronto driver, Thibor Denes, 600 Davenport Rd., driving on Highway 7 four miles west of Norwood, said a bit of dirt lodged in his eye. He pulled up sharply.

DRIVING BEHIND

Allan Brunt, 121 Adelaide St. W., also of Toronto, driving closely behind, could not stop in time. And he could not turn out to go around Denes because of oncoming traffic. He struck the rear of the car ahead.

About $75 damage was done to the Denes car and about $100 to the front of the Brant car. No one was injured. OPP Constable Gordon Gray investigated.

Exhibition

By the time men and women ventured from the protection of the stand to cross the track and field to cars lined in a circle out on the football grid, water was ankle deep in places. Men walked on their heels hoping to escape the goo. Some women took off shoes and nylons.

HAVEN

The flower show building was a haven for hundreds. It was packed to the door. Water flowed into the main exhibits building where manufacturers and merchants had erected attractive displays. Its floor is several inches lower than the ground outside. The sluicing can be imagined, an inch or two on the indoor pavement, according to report.

The weather was relentless, and the men who had put time and effort into all the planning throughout the winter, were utterly downcast. Their thoughts were probably on the financial reckoning. The midway was drenched, and the Hamid entertainers, stalked by adverse circumstances that set in Tuesday night and repeated by the varying vacancy of empty seats, afternoons and evenings, — to them their Peterborough engagement was a big disappointment. It was one case of circumstance Saturday night where the show could their whereabouts.

The public who appreciate the planning and efforts of the directors should have sympathy for the committees who after such adversity have still to count up the income and outgo, and determine their position of credit.

Hold Conference To Settle Broadcasts

MONTREAL (CP) — Officials of teams in the Big Four football circuit met here Sunday to let radio and television stations and sponsors of broadcast games know where they stand with regard to territorial rights.

A Big Four spokesman said the meeting was called after a radio station allegedly violated Big Four rules by broadcasting a game in Montreal to Toronto without permission of either the Alouettes club here or the Toronto Argonauts.

The meeting reminded representatives of television and radio stations that the Big Four constitution does not allow games in one city to be transmitted to the other three league cities — even if no games are being played there — without permission of the teams located in the receiving cities.

Reds Declare PoWs On List Not Captured

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists said today most of the 3,404 Allied troops—including three Canadians—for whom the UN command demanded an accounting "have never been captured at all."

At the same time, the Communists demanded an accounting for 98,742 North Koreans and Chinese they said were captured by the Allies and are missing.

The Reds gave their long-awaited answer to the Sept. 9 Allied demand that the Communists produce the men or disclose what happened to them at a meeting of the joint military armistice commission.

The missing troops—more than 900 Americans, 2,400 South Koreans and nearly 50 from Commonwealth and other Allied nations—were once believed captured, but neither released in the prisoner exchange nor reported dead.

Th Reds called the Allied list "crudely m a n ufactured without having been carefully checked," but reserved the right "to make further concrete comment."

The Reds said 519 of the 3,404 Allies listed as missing already have been returned. They said 380 others were "released at the front" during the war, had escaped, or are dead.

They said part of the remainder refused repatriation but "most of (the total) have never been captured at all."

The Reds are expected to deliver to the demilitarized zone Thursday more than 300 South Korean and about 20 non-Korean prisoners not otherwise identified who they say refused repatriation. The following day, UN command interview teams are expected to start trying to persuade them to return home, in accordance with the armistice terms.

About 23,000 North Korean and Chinese PoWs have refused repatriation.

The Allies by night expected to have transferred all but about 2,300 anti-Red North Koreans and a handful of Chinese into custody of Indian troops in the demilitarized zone. The deliveries were to end Wednesday.

Communist teams will try to persuade the 23,000 to return home, starting at the same time as the Allied teams.

There was a noticeable break in the tension surrounding Allied deliveries to the Indians Sunday when a group of North Koreans surprised their new guards with invitations to a special reception.

Other anti - Communists had hurled rocks at Red observers outside the wire barricades at Indian village and refused to tell the Indian guards their names, prompting a hurried call to New Delhi for 600 more troops.

Sunday's shipment staged a volleyball game for the entertainment of the Indians, who responded by handing out candy and cigarets.

The guards used a new tactic to avert disorder on the part of 1,640 anti-Red Chinese prisoners who arrived this m o r n i n g — they marched them into the compounds with their backs to UN and ed observers.

Meanwhile, the five-nation repatriation commission Sunday released to the Communists two Chinese and one North Korean reported to have changed their original decision to refuse repatriation. That brought to 19 the number returned in that way.

Plan Lagging Fire Ministers

HONG KONG (AP)—Red China ousted its finance minister and the secretary-general of the central government's administration council in a week-end shakeup which observers here feel was ordered because the nation is lagging in the first year of its five-year plan.

The official Red NEW China NEWS Agency reported that radio Peiping made the announcement during the 28th meeting of the central People's Government council.

In the reshuffle affecting 13 government bureaus, Li Wei-han, secretary-general of the administrative council, was replaced by Hsi Chung-hsun, a vice-chairman of the cultural and education committee.

Po Yi-po, minister of finance, was replaced by Teng Hsiao-ping, a vice-premier. Po had been minister three years. Chen Ko-tun, vice-minister of finance also was replaced.

Other shifts were made in the ministries of post offices, foods, light industry, forests, labor, culture, banks and state planning council.

Fire Damage Heavy At Weston Plant

WINNIPEG (CP)—The big Weston Bakeries Ltd. plant was hit by a fire Sunday night which caused damage unofficially estimated in the hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Valuable equipment just recently installed was destroyed and more damage was caused by the automatic sprinkler system in the four-storey building.

The 18 employees working when the fire was discovered were evacuated to safety.

The two-alarm blaze broke out around an oven on the second floor.

There's no mystery about it . . .

Buying a bond is something like buying a hat, a pound of nails, a can of peas or a motor car. There's no mystery about it . . . it is really just a simple business transaction.

When you come to any of our offices to buy a particular bond we usually sell it "from stock" . . . if we haven't got it, we do our best to get it from some one who is willing to sell. There is no fee or commission on this type of business . . . the difference between the price we have paid for the bond and the price you pay us is our profit . . . just like most other merchants.

As investment dealers we have a department that specializes in buying and selling bonds . . . we call it the bond trading department. Our traders maintain direct telephone and teletype contact with our own offices as well as with other investment dealers across the country. In varying degree other dealers maintain similar departments. It is this close and constant "keeping in touch" with those who want to buy and those who want to sell that makes for fair and effective bond trading.

Apart from the mechanics of buying and selling, many people are interested in what determines the level of bond prices. Basically, it is just a matter of supply and demand . . . but there are elements of value which have a bearing. For instance . . . quality, coupon rate, term of investment and the general level of interest rates. The elements of value become translated into price through the activities of the investment industry's bond traders.

Our bond trading department is pretty active. Its activities reach into all the principal markets in which Canadian securities are dealt. If you want to buy or sell, the chances are we can do business with you immediately. If what you have or what you want is out of the "active" class, our traders will do the very best they can to help you. Whether you are buying or selling . . . or just want to know what your bonds are worth, the services of our bond trading department are available to you . . . either personally or by mail, through any of our offices.

Can't Make Jean Peters Sexy Siren

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—No matter how hard her press agents try, they can't make a sexy siren out of Jean Peters.

The former Ohio State co-ed just won't go for it, despite the fact that she recently scored her biggest screen success as pocket-picking siren in "Pickup on South Street."

"Okay, so the picture was fun to do," she admitted. "It also was fine for my career. But that does not mean I'm going to put on a tight sweater and skirt and slither around. I'm just not the type. On Marilyn Monroe it looks good. On me it would just look silly."

Of all her tributes, Jean is proudest of words from director Jean Negulesco: "Jean is the kind of girl you would want on a desert island—but not for the reason you think. You'd want her because you know she could make the best hut—rustle up some food and carry on a fine conversation."

REFUSES TO POSE

Jean backs up her notions by refusing to pose for the usual run of studio cheesecake pictures. She will do fashion layouts and occasional bathing suit shots, but she puts her foot down on the traditional leg art.

While Jean doesn't think herself the physical type, her studio has other ideas. She thought that thinking had changed when she was cast in "We Believe in Love."

"When I heard Dorothy Mcguire, Clifton Webb and Maggie McNamara were going to be in the picture," she observed, "I thought that I would finally have the kind of role that suited me. They sounded like smart, sophisticated company.

"But when I got to Italy and read the script, I discovered I was going to be an earthy kind of girl again."

POINTED OBSERVATIONS

Jean had some pointed observations on the Italian men. She didn't really date any of them, but she observed them closely.

"They view a girl entirely differently from the way American men do," she remarked. "The American men might pick out one factor of a girl's appearance and comment on it. The Italians are more thorough. They take in everything.

"When they talk about a woman's charms, they overlook nothing. They even rave over her feet.

"One day I saw a group of men looking at me and talking very animatedly. I asked Rossan Brazzi who appears in the picture, what they were talking about. He said they were discussing what lovely feet I had."

"After that, I could never walk comfortably. I was too conscious of my feet."

She added that when it came to romance, the Italian men seemed to be "talkers instead of doers." At least that was her impression.

Mob Fires Stores

DURBAN (Reuters) — Mobs of South African natives set fire to eight Indian-owned stores and damaged and looted at least six others in a wave of rioting in a native shanty area near here Sunday night, after an Indian bus killed a native boy. Police fired on looters and one native was shot dead in the act of setting fire to a shop.

Holy Man Attacked

NEW DELHI (AP)—A group of orthodox Brahmin priests attacked a frail and saintly holy man of Bihar Sunday as he tried to lead a party of untouchables into the forbidden ancient Baidyanath temple at Deoghar, Bihar state. The holy man, Viboba, and three others were injured, and six of the priests were arrested on charges of rioting and causing injury.

Trotsky Slayer Soon Eligible For Parole From Prison

By LAURANCE STUNTZ

EDITOR'S NOTE: "It's been 13 years since Leon Trotsky was slugged with a mountain climber's ax. Who killed him? The slayer has been in jail ever since, but no one is sure of his name. Soon he's eligible for parole. Will he take it, and chance death? Will he stay inside, a comfortable, pampered, arrogant prisoner? Here is the story of a political assassination—a story to which the ending still must be written.

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The murderer of Leon Trotsky, whoever he is, may walk out of jail some day soon a free man.

It has been 13 years since he killed Trotsky with an alpenstock. Today the slaying is as mysterious as it was then. So is the slayer.

He is eligible for parole this year, but he may not ask it. He lives in relative luxury, with an income that may total $350 a month. He can buy whatever he needs. His cell is an apartment. His girl friends visit him often.

More important, there have been many changes on the outside. Will he be welcomed into the web of political intrigue? Stalin—the man who expelled Trotsky and hounded him across two continents — is dead. Beria, who headed his dread secret police, is out of power. The slayer claims he bludgeoned Trotsky for personal reasons, but his statements never quieted the talk that this was a political killing.

Trotsky's widow said recently he is sure to be murdered if he leaves prison, to keep him from talking—something he has shown no inclination to do in confinement.

CAN HAVE IT

If he asks for parole—as he can after Dec. 20—he probably will get it. His record had been one of perfect behavior. Is the present Russian government interested in the man who settled Stalin's quarrel with Trotsky? How much help could his mother — once a close friend of Beria — give him now?

On the answers may hang another life. On the other hand, the mystery may never be solved.

The killer swore he was not acting for the Soviet secret police.

He has been identified as five different men. He may be Frank Jacson of Canada, Jacques Mornard of Belgium, Salvador Torkoff of Russia or Jacques Vandendreschd of Iran. Many Spaniards here know him as Ramon del Rio Mercader of Catalonia, Spain.

Mornard is his name in the penitentiary.

If Mornard is Mercader, the fall of Beria should have interested him. Caridad Mercader, mother of Ramon and a Communist stalwart, was a protege of Beria. At the time of the Trotsky killing, she was in Moscow, which may or may not be significant. Since the war she has left Russia and now is in Paris, living with a daughter married to a leading French Communist.

Trotsky was, with Lenin, the leading spirit in the Russian revolution.

WAS EXPELLED

When Lenin died, and Stalin began to grab for power, Trotsky resisted and was expelled. From exile he spotlighted every crack in the Soviet armor, put his caustic pen to work blasting at Stalin's departures from Marx's classical communism.

He so irritated the Russian ruler that Stalin prevailed on the Norwegian government to ask him to leave that country. Mexico offered asylum. He came here early in 1937 and continued his attack.

In 1940, Mornard appeared on the scene. Shortly after Mornard arrived, there was an armed attack on the Trotsky house by about 20 men. Trotsky and his wife escaped death by hiding under a bed as machine-guns raked the room.

On a rainy, Aug.), 1940, Mornard went to Trotsky's barricaded house. He found Trotsky feeding his pet rabbits in the courtyard. The two men talked briefly.

After five minutes, the guards heard Trotsky cry out. They found Trotsky, bleeding from a head wound, lying on the floor. Mornard stood over him. The alpenstock, a mountaineer's ice ax, was in his hand. One guard started to slug Mornard with the barrel of his pistol but Trotsky said:

"Don't kill him boys; tie him up and make him talk."

Trotsky was taken to a hospital where he died the next day.

Mornard's trial ground on for three years. Finally, in 1943, he was sentenced to 19½ years for the killing and six months more for carrying concealed weapons.

Mornard is free to move around the prison. He steadfastly has refused to talk to reporters, Mexican or foreign. He was 36 at the time of his arrest.

Transit Fares In U.S. Said Doubled In 10 Years

NEW YORK (AP)—The worker in the United States who goes to and from his job by bus, trolley, or subway pays twice as much fare on the average as he did 10 years ago, an Associated Press survey shows.

In some places his fare is treble what it was in 1943.

Just as the average worker who rides the transit system earns more than he did in 1943, so do the transit employees. And that, say the transportation officials, is the biggest factor behind the fare increases — higher wages and salaries for transit employees.

The survey, covering all sections of the United States, disclosed no instances of prospective fare reductions but several of probable further increases.

In 18 of the largest cities, the average transit fare was 7¾ cents in 1943, a fraction over 10 cents in 1948 and 15½ cents in 1953.

WELL ON DOWNGRADE

The nickel fare was well on the downgrade in 1943 and had all but disappeared in 1948 when a dime was the usual rate. Now the 10-cent fare is a rarity, the 15-cent charge is most common, the 20-cent fare is moving up and a 25-cent charge is in prospect in some places.

In most cases, fare increases have been followed by declines in passenger volume.

An example is San Francisco, where fares have been increased from five and seven cents to 15 cents and passenger volume has been declining by six per cent a year despite a steady population increase.

Another is New York City which raised bus and subway fares from a nickel to a dime in 1948 and to 15 cents this year. Since the 15-cent rate went into effect a few weeks ago, passenger volume has dropped by 12 per cent as compared with the volume for the corresponding period last year—or nearly 4,500,000 riders a week.

In most cases the missing riders are driving their own cars or sharing in car pools.

LOUD SQUAWKS

There have been loud squawks from riders but mostly on an individual basis. In a hearing at Los Angeles the other day on a fare increase proposal, about 75 persons showed up wearing badges reading: "Stop the Fare Increase."

Explaining the need for higher fares, a spokesman for the Chicago transit authority says: "We sell service, and major factors are labor and materials and supplies. It is inevitable that the cost of our product snould increase as our cost factors go up."

In 1943 the base pay for a Chicago street-car operator was $1.02 an hour. It's now $1.92 and the authority is committed by union contract to raise this to $2 by Jan. 1, 1955.

Chicago fares, meanwhile, have gone to a straight 20 cents from the 1943 level of 10 cents for elevated-subway and buses and eight cents for street-cars.

The New York transit authority reports $185,000,000 budgeted for transit wages and salaries this fiscal year compared with $75,000,000 10 years ago.

Polio Has Taken 151 Lives In 4 Provinces

WINNIPEG (CP) — Polio has taken 151 lives in the four western provinces this year and the daily number of cases reported in two epidemic areas last week still continued at a high level, a Canadian Press week-end survey showed.

Total number of cases was 3,416 with Winnipeg and Calgary hard-Manitoba's 1,696 cases, while Calgary and district has accounted for 242 of Alberta's 644 cases. Fifty-Alberta.

Saskatchewan has had 678 cases and 37 deaths. British Columbia has reported 398 cases and 12 deaths.

However, medical authorities in Winnipeg said there is "a definite downward trend" in the city's epidemic area, and the last bans on attendance of Alberta children at schools, theatres and swimming pools have been lifted.

Alberta had the widest range of bans. Early in August, children under 16 were ordered kept away from swimming pools and theatres. On Aug. 26, Alberta ordered school openings delayed two weeks, then followed up the next day with a ban on children under 16 attending Sunday schools. All bans, however, were lifted when schools reopened Sept. 14.

Manitoba was less drastic, but on the recommendation of the deputy medical health officer, all competitive inter-school sports in Greater Winnipeg were cancelled until Oct. 15.

Rough Family

SHEFFIELD, England (CP)—A city police officer was called to a house on complaint about a 14-year-old boy's bad language. He told the magistrate later that the boy's mother knocked off his helmet, her daughter jumped on his back and he was belabored with a stick.

Attlee Criticizes U.S. For Blocking India

LONDON (AP)—Clement Attlee Saturday night criticized the United States for working to block India from the Korean peace conference and Red China from a United Nations seat.

The Labor party leader said in a broadcast that Americans are guilty of "tendencies toward intolerance which are disturbing the minds of many people."

He said a UN seat belongs to China "by right," as "we have always held that, regardless of the color of a government, it is only common sense to recognize an effective government."

Believe Donald Maclean Will Make Broadcast Soon

By ARTHUR GAVSHON

LONDON (AP)—British officials believe that long-missing diplomat Donald Maclean may soon broadcast to the world from behind the Iron Curtain.

This theory emerged eight days after Chicago-born Melinda Maclean and her three children vanished in Switzerland—in order, these British officials think, to rejoin her husband somewhere in Europe's Red belt.

Maclean, debonair and brilliant, skipped his foreign office desk more than two years ago with a colleague, Guy Burgess. The greatest international manhunt since the collaring of the Nazi war criminals followed, but it ended against a blank wall in France.

Maclean's wife and children, too, escaped a hunt by thousands of police and secret agents but has girdled the continent to the gateways of Red Europe.

NOTHING OFFICIAL

The British foreign office won't put its name to any theory—officially. But it is clear officials believe Mrs. Maclean and her children have rejoined Maclean somewhere in East Europe through a Red pipeline.

This conclusion in turn has led the British authorities to assume the reunion is a reward to Maclean for past services and that the Reds will use it as an inducement to him to do even more in the future.

Until last week the foreign office wondered why Maclean and Burgess had not been used publicly by the Communists. In fact they even had some slight reservations that the pair had joined the Communists.

But the cloak-and-dagger disappearance of Mrs. Maclean and her children—almost certainly of her own free will—seems to have dispelled even these vague doubts.

British authorities now feel Maclean probably was not prepared to broadcast or write for the Reds—and so burn all his Western ties—until his family had rejoined him.

Gold Production Slumps As Strike Closes Big Mine

May Pay Big Price For Policy In Germany–Bevan

BIRMINGHAM (Reuters)—Aneurin Bevan warned Monday that the free world may have to pay a "bitter price" for not quarrelling earlier with United States policy in Germany. In an address to 2,000 women members of the Labor party, the left-wing leader predicted that the present situation in Germany might reproduce the "hideous story" there between the two world wars. He said the same elements which produced Hitler have been let loose again "and we may still have to pay the price".

He claimed Ruhr industrialists who lifted Hitler to power have done the same with Chancellor Konrad Adenauer.

FAILED TO LEARN

"At the end of the war, we were the masters of Europe," Bevan said. "If we had . . . learned by what had happened in the past and applied what we had learned courageously, we would have insisted that the great industries of Western Germany should not go back once more into private hands.

"But we . . . listened to the United States. I have been criticized by many people for speaking frankly about many aspects of United States policy, but I am not criticized so much today.

"Other people are doing it too. We may have to pay a bitter price indeed for not being able to quarrel earlier. We have now let loose inside Germany of the same elements which led to the rise of Hitler, financed by the same people, and we may still have to pay the price."

U.S. Proposes Conference Decide Issue

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) The United States today proposed that the United Nations and Communist representatives at the Korean peace conference decide whether they want any neutral countries to take part.

The proposal was made by U.S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., who offered to send a representative to Geneva, Honolulu or San Francisco to discuss arrangements with the Chinese Communists and North Koreans.

Lodge spoke in the 15-member steering committee of the UN General Assembly in opposing a move by Russia's Andrei Vishinsky to have the assembly reopen debate on the composition of the peace conference.

Lodge told the committee the UN has already selected its representatives and that the Communist side was established in the armistice agreement.

CAN MAKE MOVE LATER

"If developments at the conference warrant it," he said, "and the other side wants to include others they can make such a move.

"We are most anxious to facilitate a conference. We are prepared at once to dispatch a representative to meet a representative of Communist China and North Korea at any of the places we designated."

This was a reference to the recommendation of the 16 UN allies that the conference be held in Geneva, Honolulu or San Francisco.

Lodge said the United States had already transmitted to the Communists, through the Swedish government, its proposal to permit the conference itself to determine whether its membership should be broadened to include non-belligerent countries.

LINE UP WITH LODGE

Selwyn Lloyd, British minister of state, and French delegate Henri Hoppenot quickly lined up behind Lodge's proposal. Both agreed that the conference itself would be competent to consider any suggestions to widen its own composition.

Lloyd said no useful purpose could be served by another public debate on the question now.

The offer to send a representative to discuss arrangements with the Communists was the first time the U.S. had indicated willingness to deal directly with Communist China on political and diplomatic matters.

Except for the military discussions at Panmunjom, the U. S. had handled such matters through neutral Sweden.

Vishinsky's move to have the assembly reopen debate on the parley had seemed to face certain defeat even before Lodge made his new proposals.

U.S. PROPOSES

Partial List Given By Reds

PANMUNJOM (AP)—The Communists said today that at least 20 Americans, one Briton and more than 300 Koreans refused repatriation in the big Korean prisoner exchange. They are scheduled to be turned over Thursday to Indian custodial troops.

A Red correspondent, Wilfred Burchett of the Paris l'Humanite, unofficially put the number at 23 Americans, one Briton and 335 South Koreans. Burchett said they are being held in an unguarded camp at Kaesong.

By terms of the armistice, reluctant PoWs will be held 90 days in the demilitarized zone while interviewers try to persuade them to change their minds about going home.

Answering a United Nations command request for a breakdown by nationality of captives they claim refused repatriation, the Reds reported to a joint secretariat session of the military armistice commission that "more than 300 are Koreans. Over 20 are non-Koreans, of which all are American except one British."

RCAF Cancels Search For Two Fishermen

TRENTON (CP)—A search for two fishermen in a small craft has been called off because it is believed the men are safe, the RCAF said today. A Dakota plane which went out this morning was called back.

The search started after Carl Bovard, a tourist resort owner near Chalk River, Ont., set off in a Seabee plane from Point Alexander to fly to Marion lake in the Chalk River district. He was carrying a passenger, John Rabishaud.

He didn't arrive at Marion lake but later the air force learned the plane put down at Bryson lake Sunday night where the two men spent the night.

Hit By Police Car Toronto Woman Dies

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Beatrice Seville, 73, died of injuries today after she was hit by a police car while getting down from a bus.

Lindsay Flier's Body Has Been Recovered

VANCOUVER (CP)—The bodies of five airmen who lost their lives in the crash of a Mitchell bomber last January were recovered Monday from the 5,500-foot level of a snow-covered, unnamed mountain.

A helicopter was used to fly the bodies out to Port Coquitlam, B. C., about 25 miles east of here and only a few miles south of the mountain in which the City of Saskatoon squadron Mitchell crashed last Jan. 28. The bodies all reported in a state of good preservation, were brought here Monday night.

The Mitchell's crew included PO. M. D. Hill, 24, Lindsay, Ont., navigator.

More Strikes Threat By Millard

Says Wage Talks Must Show Results Or New Action Taken

TORONTO — (CP)—C. H. Millard, national director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), said today that wage strikes in northern Ontario's gold mines "will spread" unless more ground is made in contract talks with the companies.

His statement came shortly after the large McIntyre gold mines in Timmins was hit by a walkout of nearly 1,200 miners. He said he has received assurances that Quebec's Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor will support his union.

Mr. Millard said:

"More strikes are inevitable unless wage talks are productive. Municipal authorities have done all they can to settle these disputes but have made no headway."

NO COMMENT

The union chief declined to comment on the threat of a walkout at the big Hollinger gold mine at Timmins.

However, he said that Jean Marchand, general secretary of the CCL, has promised support to the miners on strike in northern Ontario and Quebec.

The CCCL represents unions with a membership of more than 100,000 men. The steelworkers union has 55,000 members.

Try To Verify Beria Story

WASHINGTON (AP) — Several U. S. government investigative agencies were described as trying to run down today the truth or falsity of a story that Lavrenty Beria, former police boss of the USSR, has escaped from Russia and is seeking asylum in the U. S. said in New York Monday that such a report had come to his attention about 30 days ago "and is in the hands of the proper investigative organizations." He added he does not know whether the story is true.

There was no comment from the state department or the other groups Nixon named—the FBI and the central intelligence agency. Officials in the executive branch of the government indicated great skepticism.

The seemingly far-fetched story that Beria, who was denounced as a traitor in July, had escaped first leaked out during the week-end from a Senate source who declined to be named.

European Federation Conference Opens

ROME (AP) — Deputy foreign ministers of the six Schuman plan countries opened sessions here to iron out disputed details of a constitution for a proposed European federation.

Italy's Premier Giuseppe Pella, who also heads his country's foreign office, greeted the deputies with a plea for European unity as the "only method by which our continent, our civilization, may still give a new and ever more substantial contribution to the peace and prosperity of the world."

Foreign ministers of Italy, France, West Germany, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg already have initialled a draft draft treaty which would unite the countries in a political federation.

Won't Resign Unless Given 3 Months Pay

KITCHENER (CP)—Police committee chairman Clayton Rickert told Waterloo township council Monday night that Chief H. J. Schedewitz "won't resign unless he gets three months' severance pay."

The police chief and two constables have been asked to resign but council has given no reason publicly for the requests. All discussions on the subject have been held at secret meetings from which press and public have been barred.

In his conditional resignation, received at a special meeting a week ago, the chief demanded three months' severance pay. Council accepted his resignation but authorized only one month's severance pay.

Council also went ahead with hiring a new chief and will open applications at a police committee meeting Sept. 30.

If the chief doesn't resign on schedule, council must resort to provisions of the police act if it wishes to oust him. That means that a hearing will have to be held and specific charges laid against him. Last year, following this course of action, council was unsuccessful in making any charges stick against Chief Schedewitz.

The only alternative council has now is to give the chief two months' extra salary, about $550, which he demands.

Resignations were received from the two constables, as demanded.

See Startling Strategy Change

TORONTO (CP) — The coming ability of the United States to use the oceans as bomber bases "promises one of the most startling changes in military strategy since the invention of the atomic bomb," a report to the American Association of Port Authorities says.

The report, drawn up by a committee on harbors and shipping, also predicted "a near-revolution" in transport operation because of the development of a jet hydro-ski delta-wing seaplane.

"Currently on the drawing board," said the report, "is a sketch of what may be the ultimate in air transportation: A gigantic delta-wing airliner with hydro skiis, fast as sound or faster. Seated in a water-tight hull, high above storms, its passengers will ride in a sound-free cabin, able to fly to the ends of the earth with the comforting thought that boundless runways are accompanying them down below."

The hydro ski, a development of the water ski, can be let down and retracted and is designed to enable the plane "to land and take off in seas far rougher than anything an old-time flying boat could handle."

'Captured Russian Flier' Part Of Defence Exercise

CHAMPAIGN, Ill.—(AP)—A civil defence exercise involving the U.S. Air Force and Illinois state police gave rise to false reports today that a Russian flier had landed in central Illinois in a MiG. The report, carried over a television network and broadcast over a Champaign radio station, brought a flood of inquiries from newspapers.

The flier actually was a member of the air force intelligence service squadron at O'Hare field near Chicago who was flown to Chanute field at Rantoul, Ill., Monday night. It was an exercise to test co-ordination between the air force and state police.

PRE-ARRANGED SURRENDER

Chanute personnel transported him by car to near the state police headquarters at Urbana, Ill., where as pre-arranged, he "surrendered."

The flier wore an insignia bearing a hammer and sickle and carried a typewritten card reading: "I am a participant in an air defence exercise."

Someone pressed the panic button and the flier ended up in the Champaign county jail. Reporters and photographers got wind of the unusual prisoner, but officials refused at first to talk freely because of "security reasons."

Charge Council Wastes Time

WINDSOR (CP)—Charges that members of Essex county council meet four times a year and play cards rather than attend to business, were made by Judge J. A. Legris in the county courthouse today.

Judge Legris was forced to take several division court cases in his chambers this morning because of shortage of accommodation in the courthouse. Other court rooms in the building were occupied with the Supreme Court and naturalization court.

Judge Legris' chambers, which are equipped only for the hearing of legal argument and motions by lawyers, has not witness boxes or facilities for the hearing of actions.

"Essex county is one of the wealthiest in Ontario," he said. "The county council is just holding back and doing nothing except probably meeting four times a year, when the majority of members of the council play cards, cribbage and the like."

On several occasions judges have called upon county council to have a new courthouse built because the century-old building is too small and has no law library.

Resume Series

TORONTO (CP)—Members of New Westminster Salmonacs, stricken by food poisoning last Friday, have recovered from their illness and will meet Long Branch Monarchs in the fourth game of the best-of-five Canadian junior lacrosse final tonight. The western champions lead the series for the Minto Cup 2-1.

Villagers Care For 44 Graves

MONTREAL (CP) — A mass grave in which the bodies of 44 unidentified Canadian sailors are buried is carefully tended by the villagers of Plouescat in France, R. Berrurier, secretary-general of the Council of European Municipalities, said today.

He spoke at the International Municipal Congress, a convention here of some 1,500 mayors and top civic officials from the United States and Canada.

Mr. Berrurier said he had been asked by the mayor of Plouescat to assure Canadians the sailors—washed up on the shores of Britanny in the spring of 1944—had received a Christian burial.

Old Cost Index Dropped In October

OTTAWA (CP)—The bureau of statistics announced Monday that the old cost-of-living index will be discontinued early in October.

The index, based on the cost of consumer goods in the 1935-39 period equalling 100, will not be published after cost-of-living figures for September are issued about Oct. 5.

The old cost-of-living index has been replaced by the consumer price index which has been in effect for a year. This index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, gives a more-accurate picture of living costs.

The bureau said, however, that a statement has been prepared to assist those who have the problem of converting escalator clauses of wage contracts to the consumer price index. Escalator clauses in many contracts are based on the old cost-of-living index.

Only Few Remain In Operation; Charge Conspiracy

TIMMINS—(CP)—The giant McIntyre gold mines, one of the country's largest producers which turns out more than $7,000,000 in gold every year, was shut down this morning when miners struck for a new wages-hours contract. The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) ordered the walkout, expected in the strife-ridden Porcupine camp for weeks, at 5 a.m. and said it was protesting a "conspiratory among mine operators to destroy the union".

About 1,200 miners are affected. The strike brings to at least 2,500 the number of men who have struck in the area to back up demands for higher wages and shorter working hours.

2 HOURS BEFORE SHIFT

The McIntyre strike order went out two hours before the day shift was due to start. The mine is the fifth in the district to be hit by a wage walkout and is the second largest in Canada to be closed. The big Noranda copper and gold mine at Noranda, Que., was shut down two weeks ago.

Only a few mines, including the big Hollinger mine here, are still in operation. Even they are threatened with walkouts.

MINE CLOSED

Shortly after the walkout at McIntyre, company officials said: "The mine is closed. Pickets are not required."

Leo Behie, the steelworkers' regional supervisor, said the men struck because there was "conspiracy among the mine operators to destroy the union" by not accepting the majority recommendations of a conciliation board's report handed down June 4.

"The union has tried to reach settlement with a minimum displacement of employees in this area while all avenues of settlement have been pursued."

About 200 day-shift miners turned up at the company gates, about five miles west of here in the community of Porcupine, shortly after dawn this morning. However, they turned back when they saw pickets milling around the entrances. There was no trouble.

AGREED ON ISSUES

Although the conciliation board divided three ways in its findings, the union representative and the chairman were agreed on three issues:

1. Both recommended a seven-cent hourly wage increase, establishing the basic wage for laborers at $1.10 an hour.
2. Both agreed on voluntary revocable checkoff of union dues if half the miners were agreeable.
3. Both accepted two weeks paid vacation for employees with three years service with McIntyre.

Company officials lost no time stopping operations. They were told by shareholders two months ago to put the property under lock and key if a strike was called.

The walkout came as no surprise, either. It was forecast last week at the Canadian Congress of Labor

Gales Batter Ships On Atlantic

LONDON (AP). — Gales up to 80 miles an hour kept the eastern Atlantic boiling today and spread a trail of damage across the British Isles.

Home-bound North American tourists aboard the liner Ile de France saw a thrill-packed rescue of 24 seamen from the stricken 6,323-ton Liberian freighter Greenville. One man was lost and the body of another was left aboard the sinking ship.

In British waters, a lifeboat plucked seven men to safety from a sinking lightship. And a one-legged yachtsman swam four miles to safety, pushing his artificial leg before him on a mattress.

The Ile de France, bound for New York, reported she had to issue an "abandon ship or we leave you" ultimatum to the skipper of the Liberian freighter 700 miles off the west coast of England.

ALSO SINKING

Also sinking was the waterlogged lightship off St. Gowans head, in southern Wales at the entrance to the Bristol channel. Her light, warning against a sandbank, still glared into the night as a lifeboat rescued her seven exhausted crew members.

The oddest survivor story came from 31-year-old Douglas Presland, whose 18-foot sloop Sweet Witch capsized in the Thames estuary.

Presland lost a leg as a wartime bomber pilot. This was his tale:

"I take the leg off when I'm sailing because it gets in the way. When the boat went over, I got an air mattress from the locker and tied the leg to it. Then I started to swim for shore.

"It took three hours. Next I had to drag the mattress over a mile of mud flats. After the mud was another mile of saltings (tide-flooded lands). I tried putting the leg on but it kept coming off. So I just kept crawling."

OTHER TROUBLES

The big blow troubled big and little ships alike.

The giant liner United States, due in Le Havre today, reported one seaman with a broken leg and many bruise cases among her 1,500 passengers.

Rule Farmer To Stand Trial

BOWMANVILLE (CP) — Stanley Cowling, 37, a district farmer today was committed for trial on a charge of attempted murder in connection with poisoned chocolates received by his 19-year-old stepdaughter last January.

Testimony was the girl, Yvonne Saunders of Oshawa got the chocolates by mail and passed them around among passengers on a bus. None got a poisoned one.

The girl's mother later thought the candy had been tampered with and had one of them analyzed. It contained arsenic.

Captain Describes Rescue Of 24 Men In Wild Storm

PARIS (Reuters) — Skipper Franck Garrigue of the French liner Ile de France told Monday night how he piloted his ship through raging Atlantic storms to rescue 24 of the 26 crew members aboard the sinking Liberian freighter Greenville.

He watched the two other Liberians die. "We were none too soon on the spot," he said.

In a radio interview with Reuters, Garrigue told of the last hours of the 6,323-ton Greenville, on its way from Montreal to Liverpool with wheat for Britain.

"She hadn't sunk when I last looked, but she is certain to have gone down by now," he said.

"We picked up the S O S yesterday (Sunday) afternoon and spent the rest of the day and most of the night searching. We signalled a number of boats in the vicinity and we constantly picked up fresh distress signals from the Greenville. The signals grew clearer and the wreck hove in sight at dawn.

"It was noon before we could get a boat alongside and the crew, all Liberians, began to come off. There were 26 of them. The first mate was crushed to death by falling machinery a few minutes before the rescue. He was trying to get the rudder to work.

"The other 25 piled into our boat and manoeuvred into the swell of the liner. As they were scrambling off the lifeboat, which was tossing like a cockle shell, one of the crew slipped and drowned under the eyes of hundreds of our passengers."

Searchers Recover Jet Pilot's Body

TORONTO (CP) — Searchers Monday night recovered the body of Sqdn. Ldr. Raymond Greene, 36, killed Saturday while trying to loop an F-86 Sabre jet fighter at low altitude over the Toronto waterfront during the National Air Show.

An air force spokesman said the pilot's body was intact when lifesavers found it in a large section of wreckage they had pulled up by grappling hooks.

A formal investigation is being carried on to determine the cause of the spectacular crash of the $250,000 plane before more than 60,000 persons crowding the Canadian National Exhibition waterfront area.

New Soviet Purge Starts

Georgian Premier Fired By Bosses

LONDON (AP)—The premier of the Georgian Soviet Republic—homeland of Joseph Stalin and ousted Red police boss Lavrenty P. Beria—was added today to the growing list of Soviet purge victims. The first secretary of the republic's Communist party also was fired.

The government radio in the republic's capital, Tiflis, announced that Premier B. M. Bakhradze had been replace by "comrade G. D. Javakhishvili" and that "Comrade Mirtshkulava" was dismissed as party secretary.

been replaced by "Comrade Galatishvili" and that "Comrade Merkulava" was dismissed as party secretary.

It was the second shakeup in the strategic Georgian republic in three months and part of a continuing Kremlin purge of the subordinate republic governments begun after Beria's arrest was announced last June.

The radio said Bakhradze was ousted by a decree of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet (legislature) of the republic.

That the Kremlin apparently considered the change of great importance was indicated by the broadcast's note that "Comrade Shatalin, secretary of the central committee of the USSR Communist party took part in the work of the Georgian plenary session" at which the premier was kicked out.

Today's broadcast said the work of the council of ministers, which Bakhradze headed, and of the party bureau headed by Merkulava had been "unsatisfactory." It also quoted criticism by a Georgian newspaper which charged they failed to carry out orders from superiors.

Vladimir G. Dekanozov, minister of internal affairs in Georgia, was thrown out of the communist party late in July on charges of being a henchman of Beria.

The principal accuser at the meeting which ousted Dekanozov was Bakhradze.

Pilot Didn't Know Reward

SEOUL—(AP)—A young North Korean jet pilot who flew to freedom in a Russian-made MiG said today the Communists have flown jet fighters and propeller-driven bombers into Korea since the armistice in violation of truce terms. The 22-year-old pilot, a senior lieutenant in the Red Air Force, told a press conference he did not know the Allies had offered $100,000 for a MiG when he landed his swept-wing fighter at a base near Seoul Monday. He voiced hope that he could study in the United States. The pilot also told reporters: He knew Russian pilots flew MiGs in combat against pilots of the 5th U.S. Air Force in Korea. Russians also were his advanced instructors, he said, but made no combat missions with Korean fliers.

The plane he flew to Kimpo airfield, near Seoul, was definitely a MiG-15 and not some other type as had been rumored in some quarters.

WON'T GIVE NAME

For personal protection the pilot declined use of his name. A South Korean newspaper earlier identified him as Noh Kuem Suk.

A senior lieutenant in the North Korean Air Force, he flew from an unnamed base near the North Korean capital at Pyongyang to Kimpo, waggled his wings as a signal, and landed. He had no Allied escort. He said he made the flight to get away from communism and had been wanting to escape since 1945.

The pilot said he did not know how many MiGs the Reds had moved into North Korea since the armistice, but added that some arrived about 40 days ago, about two weeks after the truce was signed.

The 5th Air Force said on July 30 that a big Allied radar station had tracked Communist planes flying southward from Manchuria into Korea after the 10 p. m. July 27 deadline for building up either air or ground forces.

The air force said the planes presumably were MiGs.

DIDN'T PROTEST

Although the armistice permits only the movement of replacements under strict supervision, the UN command did not protest the plane flights as a truce violation.

The pilot, whose only two words of English are "o. k." and "no" spoke through an interpreter.

He apparently had been coached by air force intelligence officers to shy away from certain questions such as whether the MiGs had radar gunsights.

However, he said the MiGs flown by Russians had radar equipment while those flown by the North Koreans did not.

He said he had planned his escape for a long time—ever since the day he joined the North Korean Air Force in 1950.

He said he did not make the sensational escape for the $100,000 reward as he did not know about the reward although he was "glad" when he heard about the prize.

ROUTINE FLIGHT

The pilot said he left his base about 9 a. m. on what was supposed to be a routine training flight.

As soon as he got out of view of the base, he changed his direction and bolted south, he said.

"I decided not to miss the opportunity," he said through the interpreter.

Following his carefully made plan, the pilot headed for Kimpo air field. He said the location of Kimpo was common knowledge among North Korean pilots. When the flier was over the Sabre jet base he dipped his wings and came in for a landing.

Immediately after the press conference, the pilot was escorted to an undisclosed location in Seoul.

An air force spokesman said it would be "up to him" whether he would leave South Korea.

AFRAID OF SABRES

The pilot described an action in which he flew against American Sabre jets last March 22, over North Korea, but said he never shot down a Sabre.

The North Korean officer said MiG pilots were "very much" afraid of the Sabres because of the manoeuvrability of the Sabres and their better gunsights.

He said flatly the Sabres were "superior" to the MiGs.

He described the living conditions in North Korea as "very, very bad," and added he could see the difference by observing the people in Seoul since he arrived.

Cobden Bandit Gets $8,300 Loot From Village Bank

COBDEN (CP)—A lanky, black-masked gunman, dressed in khaki coveralls, slipped into the village branch of the Bank of Nova Scotia during a lull Monday, forced the cashier and manager against a wall and escaped with about $8,300 in cash. The thief, apparently working alone, sped out of Cobden in a blue late-model Dodge, bearing Ontario licence plates 5092 L, bank manager Fred A. McCallum reported. The plates were stolen from a Carleton Place used-car lot last week, police said.

Police blocked all district roads, believing the gunman may have headed across the Ottawa river to Quebec, but so far have no trace of the man. Cobden is about 65 miles west of Ottawa.

Mr. McCallum, 57, and Mrs. Graham Waite, 22-year-old cashier, were alone in the bank when the gunman entered.

LOOKS INTO GUN

"You wanna do some business," Mrs. Waite reported him as saying. She looked up from her work to stare at the barrel of a .45 revolver. Mr. McCallum turned from his work.

"Get over there against the back wall and keep your hands up," they quoted the bandit as saying.

The gunman cleaned out the cash from the teller's cage. Just as he was about to leave, chief clerk K. E. Nickle, 26, came in, returning from lunch. He was ordered to join the others against the wall.

"Just stay where you are," they heard him say. "Don't try to follow me. I can shoot pretty good. I can shoot the eyes out of a snake."

Mr. McCallum glanced out the window as the thief left and jotted down the licence number.

British Paper Urges No Quarrel With U.S.

LONDON (Reuters)—Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express today condemns Socialist leaders in Britain "who are trying to pick a quarrel with the United States" over Washington's approach to the Korean peace talks.

The newspaper urges Britain to support the U.S. in taking the lead in settling the Korean question.

"The American baiting season is in full swing," the Express says in an editorial. Labor party leader Clement Attlee led the hunt, and "in the line beside him he has Socialists of all denominations. . . .

"In fact, the American baiting season is about the only time when all the Socialists shoot at the same target and not at each other."

Board Suggests Wage Increase

TORONTO (CP)—Wage increases and union security have been recommended in a majority conciliation board report concerning a contract dispute at Upper Canada mines, Kirkland Lake, the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) said today.

Some 200 employees are affected at the gold mine.

A majority recommendation by board chairman W. H. Curtis and union nominee Miller Stewart, proposing introduction of a voluntary revocable checkoff, providing such an arrangement was approved by a vote of the employees, was opposed in a minority report by W. H. Hotchkin, company representative.

On wages, the majority report proposed reduction of the work week from 48 to 44 hours with a corresponding increase in wages, or an alternative eight-cent hourly increase over the present base rate of $1.01.

The majority report, stating that further assistance to the mine will be forthcoming under the Emergency Gold Marketing Assistance Act, rejected a company submission which opposed the increase on the ground that the company was facing heavy exploration and development costs.

Archbishop Condemns Sexual Licence

SELBY, Eng. (Reuters) — A "new gospel of sexual licence" preached by some modern writers was condemned today by the bachelor Archbishop of York, Dr. Cyril Garbett.

He said in an address here the Christian teaching of chastity was becoming for many "a target of scorn."

"One of the foundations of national character is the building of the Christian home on the permanency of marriage," he said. "But now it is attacked and undermined as it never has been since Europe was converted to Christianity.

BLAMES NOVELISTS

"Some of our present-day novelists are almost fanatical in preaching a new gospel of sexual licence and their autobiographies too often show that they practise what they preach.

"Today sexual licence is widely assumed as necessary for self-realization or as praiseworthy because it gives pleasure."

He said that theft was no longer regarded as a serious crime, "provided it is not on too large a scale and is undetected."

"It is excused as 'scrounging' or admired as an exhibition of cunning and daring."

Stock Market Trading Continues Light

TORONTO (CP) — Early afternoon stock market trading continued light as prices remained almost unchanged.

The exchange's 1 p.m. index showed golds still down at their lowest point since 1942 and the other groups each about a half point higher than Monday's closing figure.

In industrials, utilities showed strength in comparatively heavy trading. Only one traded issue, Canada Steamship, was down. Most other groups were mixed or slightly down with only fractional price changes.

In golds, trading was light with most of the activity centred in the juniors, which showed two losses for each gain. All drops were in pennies. McLeod, gained slightly.

Uraniums and Bathurst - area base metals were light traders with Gunnar leading, up 25 cents. New Larder U gained pennies in relatively heavy trading.

Base metals were slightly higher. Sherritt and Steep Rock were strong. Juniors were mixed.

The exchange's 1 p.m. index showed industrials up .44 at 299.90, golds down .28 at 69.11, base metals up .64 at 139.59, and western oils up .50 at 85.73.

Lindsay Committee Decides Recommend New Hospital

LINDSAY (ENS)—The Hospital Expansion Committee of the Ross Memorial Hospital Monday night approved a proposal of the building committee that a completely new hospital building with 115 bed capacity be built, and that the present structure be used as a hospital for chronic and convalescent patients.

The proposal was the result of a meeting of the building committee. onsideration had been given to two plans of expansion presented early this year by Dr. Harvey Agnew, hospital consultant.

The committee's chairman Dr. C. S. M. Service, said the cost to the municipalities and the public of the addition to the present hospital, under the Agnew plan would be about $1,140,000. The 115 bed new hospital would cost, after grants had been deducted, some $1,300,000. This would include the price of the land. The chairman also said provision could be made in the hospital for 130 beds, in case of future expansion in coming years.

Dr. Service said the difference in cost between the addition and the new hospital would be about $200,000. "For this money, we felt we would be getting a tremendous lot more in building and services."

The building committee proposed that the present board of governors of the Ross Memorial Hospital be asked to take action to implement the recommendations of the expansion committee, regarding changes in the administration and operation of the new hospital. This includes setting up the new board of governors, a 15-man group with increased representation from the municipalities of Lindsay and Victoria County, and representation from a new hospital association.

A committee of five was appointed to aid the board in effecting these changes.

The committee then turned to financing a building campaign. Various fund-raising organizations were mentioned, and the committee approved the principle of hiring an adviser for the campaign. Three members of the committee, Kenneth MacDuffee, H. H. McFadden, and T. H. Stinson QC, were appointed members of the financial committee, to investigate the setting up of fund-raising machinery, and to begin investigation as to the source of the money to be raised.

The committee discussed another public meeting to be held in the near future to inform the public of its decision to ask for a new hospital, and to explain the finances and organization of the new building, when such details are ready for release.

Israel's Minister To Canada Born In South Africa

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

OTTAWA (CP) — Michael Saul Comay, 45, is Israel's first minister to Canada. He was born in South Africa and practised there as a lawyer until the Second World War.

After five years' war service with the South Africans, Mr. Comay went to Palestine and, like thousands of Jews from other countries, was stirred by the vision of a Jewish homeland. He chose Israel as his country.

Now he is in Canada to make Canadians better acquainted with the fascinating story of Israel. One of his first steps in that direction will be a ceremony in Toronto launching a bond drive to raise money for Israel.

TWO BIG PROBLEMS

This problem of financing is one of the biggest facing his country, Mr. Comay said in an interview. The demands of one of the greatest immigration movements in history is another.

Israel needs about $350,000,000 a year to meet capital expansion and pay for consumer goods. But her exports earn only about $60,000,000. To bridge the gap Israel has turned to several methods of financing.

One is the sale of bonds in Canada and the United States where more than 5,000,000 Jews constitute the largest community of Jews in the word. About $120,000,000 has been raised in the United States from sale of these bonds and the Canadian drive is expected to bring in another $10,000,000.

Israel's economic position, said Mr. Comay, is made more difficult by her geographical position in the Middle East, ringed by hostile Arab countries. Her frontiers with her four Arab neighbors have been closed.

Egypt objects to oil tankers moving through the Suez canal to Israel. As a result, Israel must buy the $50,000,000 worth of oil she needs at higher prices from countries farther away.

DEFENCE NEEDS

Another difficulty is that Israel must devote more than half her budget to defence, a serious drain on resources which might be employed in establishing and settling the 700,000 immigrants which have come to Israel in the last five years.

This immigration program is one of the greatest mass movements of people in history, Mr. Comay said. Before it started, the Jewish population of Palestine was about 650,000 and the Arab population 150,000. Now there are more than 1,500,000 Jews and Arabs living in Israel.

"It wasn't a normal kind of immigration," Mr. Comay said. "For instance, virtually the whole Jewish population of Yugoslavia came to Israel after the war.

"Between 40,000 and 45,000 came, not because they were badly treated in Yugoslavia for they were quite fairly treated. Rather they came because of a strong urge to settle in a Jewish homeland."

Mr. Comay said only a few thousand Jews are left in Germany. Those who survived Nazi mass slayings emigrated to Palestine. Another 110,000 were flown to Israel from Iraq because land travel was cut off by Israel's neighbors.

MASS MIGRATIONS

There was another mass migration from the Yemen in Arabia and similar movements from the satellite countries of Russia. However, the 2,500,000 Jews in Russia now constitute the second-largest Jewish community outside the United States.

Mr. Comay said the Russian Jewish people are completely cut off from the rest of world Jewry. It is hard to gauge whether they are anxious to follow the example of the thousands of others who have emigrated.

Russia has a complete ban on Jewish emigration but Israel was able to persuade the governments of satellite countries like Poland and Czechoslovakia to permit Jews to leave for their homeland.

From this diversity of peoples of the Jewish faith, Israel's leaders are moulding a country which Mr. Comay said is strongly western in outlook. Her parliamentary institutions are western.

TIES WITH WEST

"It is inconceivable that we should find ourselves, in the event of another war, in any camp other than that of the West. We have close and firm ties with western Jewry and the western nations."

He said Israel is intensely interested in international affairs. Her viewpoint is similar to that of Canada on many questions and she feels Canada plays a vital role as the leading middle power.

Mr. Comay said there is a strongly nationalist and anti-western feeling among most of the countries in the Middle East. This is a factor in the lack of interest taken there in the formation of a Middle East defence community similar to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization among the western powers.

Mr. Comay said he hopes Israel and Canada will become better customers as well as better friends. Israel now buys about $15,000,000 in goods from Canada yearly but sells only about $1,000,000 here.

Her purchases are largely wheat, flour, lumber and foods. She hopes to find a bigger market here for luxury goods such as diamonds and for chemicals when present efforts to expand her chemical industry bear fruit.

FRUITS AND TEXTILES

Israel sells large quantities of citrus fruits to Britain and some European countries and is also a big producer of textiles.

Generally, Israel's industry is still in the early stages of development, Mr. Comay said. Until Israel can be self-supporting—possibly in another 10 to 12 years—she will have to face the problems that led to the current fund-raising efforts.

Mr. Comay said that on the personal side he is looking forward to his first winter here. His two children, Yael, 15, and Yochanan, 13, have never seen snow or skis and already are talking about taking up the winter sport.

Mr. Comay married in 1935. His wife, a former feature writer for the fortnightly publication "Israel Speaks" which is published in New York, is an architect and an accomplished public speaker.

Fewer Whistles

MONTREAL (CP)—Town council of Cote St. Luc was advised that a municipal by-law prohibiting the sounding of engine whistles within the town has been approved by the federal board of transport commissioners. A councillor said railway officials will be asked to ensure that the by-law is observed as soon as possible.

Government Help Needed For Highways

MONTREAL (CP)—Mayor Martin H. Kennelly of Chicago said today a proposal to end federal participation in the United States highway program "cannot be justified on a realistic evaluation of the facts."

In his presidential report to the U. S. Conference of Mayors, Mayor Kennelly said highway proposals advanced at a recent conference of U. S. governors "should receive the serious and earnest consideration of every municipal executive."

It was proposed at the governor's conference in early August at Seattle, Wash., that the federal government repeal its tax on gasoline and step out of the field of highway construction. At present states and municipalities receive a large proportion of their construction funds in federal grants.

"Our streets and highways are presently wearing out faster than they are being replaced," Mayor Kennelly said. Even if federal expenditure on highways continued at its present rate and was matched by an equal amount from states and cities it would take 30 years to "catch up with present needs, to say nothing of the needs of the future."

But no one expected the Communists to give up.

The 15-nation steering committee was slated to give almost automatic refusal to list the item on the assembly's agenda. Then fiery chief Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky was expected to take the assembly floor at his first opportunity and ask the 60-nation body to over-rule the committee.

Only a two-thirds majority could do that, and few diplomats here think Vishinsky can round up so many votes. They said, however, he may get enough Asian and neutralist support to score a propaganda victory.

India's Prime Minister Nehru let it be known in no uncertain terms last week that he resented U. S. and Latin-American strength which blocked a proposed UN invitation to the conference for his country. His feelings are shared to a considerable extent by other Asian countries.

POLICE POSTED

Ontario Provincial Police have been temporarily posted to the area since violence broke out at the other struck mines, Broulan Reef, Hallnor, Preston East Dome and Delnite.

Those disputes erupted into pitched battles between miners and police, shooting and dynamiting, in a series of strikes that threaten to spread across the entire rich Porcupine camp and sap the prosperity of Timmins itself.

Scores of men have been charged with obstructing police, carrying offensive weapons and other offences. Two are under arrest and accused of attempted murder.

The gale kept the Queen Elizabeth at anchor off the Isle of Wight all night. During the morning the winds lessened and the 83,000-tonner docked at Southampton with 973 passengers.

To the south, on the Channel island of Guernsey, a sudden gust of wind blew a two-engine airliner into a hedge as it was landing. The wheels and part of the undercarriage were smashed and the plane dug its nose into the ground, but the 14 passengers and crew walked out unhurt.

The 99-ton French trawler Anne Gaston was reported aground off the Irish coast. She reported one man washed overboard.

Inland, the winds tore away hundreds of roofs and blew a five-ton truck off a south Wales mountainside, killing the driver.

Weather men said the storms had started out as hurricane Edna, which hit Bermuda late last week.

Close to 200 including delegates and wives, sat down for steaks courtesy of Time, Incorporated. The publishers were represented by William A. Evans, traffic manager, of Chicago.

Prior to the dinner, members of the association attended business sessions in the morning and afternoon, and embarked on a motor tour of Peterborough during the late afternoon.

Chairman of the evening meeting was Jay Ferris, dominion secretary of the Canadian Postmasters' Association.

Introduced to the large group following dinner, was Miss Jennie Kearney of Young's Point, veteran postmistress there, who has a record of 60 years in the postal department.

Entertainment and a dance concluded the night's activities.

90 YEARS AGO the parishioners of St. George's Anglican Church in Hastings looked like this as they went to church. The congregation celebrated the church's 90th anniversary Monday night with a dinner and pageant. Taking part in the pageant (top photo) are Clifford Baker, Mrs. Clifford Baker, Ted Walker, Mrs. R. Johnston and Mrs. A. J. Patstone. In the lower left photo, the minister, the Rev. A. J. Patstone, speaks to Canon Walter Gilling, of Peterborough, who visited the celebration. Hastings Anglican Church Observes 90th Anniversary

HASTING (ENS)—St. George's Anglican Church celebrated its 90th anniversary this weekend with special services on Sunday and a pageant depicting the church's history Monday night.

The village's first Anglican church—St. George's — was built in 1863 and opened September 27 with the Rev. Mark Burnham as rector. The property it was built on was at one time part of the extensive Fowlds estate.

Exactly at the halfway mark in its life—in 1908 the second St. George's was built, mostly with money given by a wealthy cattle drover, Henry Johnston. This is the present St. George's. Incidentally, Mr. Johnston, on his death left $40,000 to the missions board of the church.

Sunday morning the Ven. Archdeacon C. W. Balfour of All Saints' Anglican Church, Peterborough, celebrated holy communion. Speaker at the evening service was the Rev. A. J. Patstone, present rector of the church, who succeeded the Rev. C. R. Spencer little more than a year ago.

Present at the morning service was Miss Margaret Battersby of Peterborough, daughter of the late Canon Battersby, a former rector of St. George's.

Orangist for both services was Miss Della Plante, whose family has been for many years connected with the church. Her brother, C. B. Plante, is people's warden. Soloist at the evening service was Miss Margaret Baker of Hastings.

'Red' Mitchell Resigns Recreation Post

LINDSAY —(ENE)— Secretary Bert Hick, of the recreation commission, said Monday the resignation of William "Red" Mitchell, recreation director of the town for four years, has been received.

A former NHL star and before that golf pro at Toronto, Mitchell had been recreation director at Aurora before coming to Lindsay four years ago. He said he had been made an offer he could not turn down from another town, but did not release its name. He did admit the position would be the same as he now holds. Rumours indicate a coacking job may be added.

One of the town's most popular sports figures, Mitchell coached here for some time, handling two good Junior B teams. From the ranks of those squads, he sent several players into the Eddie Shore organization, in Springfield, St. Catharines and Syracuse.

He was also influential in having Shore come to Lindsay three years ago for fall training sessions. Shore did not return this year when the prices asked for rental of the local arena apparently did not find favor with him.

Mitchell said his term ends here October 1 but he will not leave until his place is filled or the committee lets him go.

Income Tax Cut Scheduled For U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary Humphrey said today the 10-per-cent U. S. income-tax cut will take place at the end of the year as scheduled, and also there will be no request for renewing the excess profits tax. He made the announcement in a speech to the convention of the American Bankers Association.

There had been speculation that reductions might not take place because of the international situation.

Strong Winds Drive Churchill Indoors

CAP D'Ail, France (Reuters)—Strong winds drove Sir Winston Churchill indoors today after only 15 minutes at his easel in the garden of Lord Beaverbrook's Riviera villa here.

No guests visited the prime minister for lunch and none were expected to dinner. He plans to return to London about the middle of next week.

Hold Public Hearing On Cemeteries Act

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Ontario legislative select committee, studying revision of the Cemeteries Act, opened a public hearing at city hall today under the chairmanship of James N. Allan, MLA, Haldimand-Norfolk.

The hearing, for a large portion of western Ontario, opened with submission of a brief by R. H. Wilson, Windsor lawyer, of the Victoria Memorial Association Ltd., which operates Victoria Memorial Cemetery, seven miles south of Windsor.

E. S. Scheck, lawyer from Akron, Ohio, who is an association shareholder and likewise holds cemetery interests in both Ohio and New Jersey said that a committee recommendation of 35 per cent of the purchase price of a cemetery plot might be required for perpetual care in a tombstone cemetery, but that less than half this amount should provide perpetual care in a memorial type cemetery where grave markers are flush with the ground.

The hearing is continuing.

Knowles To Introduce Tax Resolution

OTTAWA (CP) — Stanley Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre, will ask Parliament at its forthcoming session to eliminate the limitation on the amount of medical expenses a taxpayer may deduct for income tax purposes.

Mr. Knowles released the text of a resolution he has submitted for the order paper of the first session of the new Parliament which gets under way Nov. 12.

The limit was reduced to three per cent from four at the last session of Parliament. Maximum amounts deductible are $1,500 for single taxpayers, $2,000 for married taxpayers and $500 for each dependent up to a $2,000 maximum.

Missing Man Found In Railroad Station

COBOURG (ENS)— Policemen and firemen searched for several hours Monday night for Hugh Kearns, 80, who wandered away from home. They later reported him safe in the CNR station and radioed the police cruiser to call off the search. Mr. Kearns lives with his son James near the CNR tracks. He disappeared early in the evening and as it was feared that he might have been struck by a train as he walked along the tracks. The roadbed was throughly searched.

Mandarins For Canada?

Reform of the Senate has been a topic of discussion for the past sixty years, and of late the press—which is principally Conservative in sympathy—has been urging the Prime Minister to appoint men to vacant Senate seats without regard for their political allegiance. Two or three papers have said the a representative Jew should have a place in the Upper Chamber; others have urged that an Indian be made a Senator. We consider such reforms insufficient in scope and feel that the proper way to reform our Senate is to model it on the Mandarin caste which existed in Imperial China.

* * *

A Mandarin was one of the Emperor's counsellors; the name is derived from a Sanskrit word which means "to think". Thinkers are what we want in our Senate. Mandarins were appointed for eight reasons; two of these—that the appointee was of Imperial or aristocratic birth—would not apply here, but the other six reasons are as valid for us as for the Chinese. Long service to the state might gain the Mandarin's cap for a man; long service to the state—or at least to a political party, is the chief reason for a Senate appointment now. Illustrious deeds was a reason for being a Mandarin, and we think that a man who has served Canada well as a soldier, or sailor, might be a great addition to the Senate. Knowledge was yet another reason for naming a man a Mandarin; admirable; we should like to see some scholars and artists in the Senate. Sheer ability in affairs could make a man a Mandarin; we do not see any reason why a man who has been distinguished in business or public affairs apart from party government should not have a place in the Red Chamber. Zeal was enough to win the Mandarin's button; we should like to see caution used in appointing any man to the Senate for zeal alone, because zeal without wisdom is a very dangerous thing; but zeal combined with wisdom should not be impossible to find. And finally a Mandarin might be appointed for nobility of character; candidates for a Senatorship even on these grounds might appear once or twice in a generation.

* * *

In short, we disagree with the suggestion that Mr. St. Laurent should appoint some Conservative Senators simply because they are Conservatives, and the Conservatives have not had a chance to make any appointments for a long time. That sort of argument carries little weight. After all, when Laurier came to power there were even fewer Liberals in the Senate than there are Conservatives at present. But we should like to see the Senate made up of men eminent in all walks of life, and distinguished for every kind of character and quality of public service. Let it be a chamber of thinkers.

* * *

We do not carry our suggestion of a Mandarin caste so far as to desire that our Senators wear Mandarin caps, decorated with buttons ranging in beauty and authority from the plain silver through the plain gold, the wrought gold, the white shell, the crystal, the turquoise, the sapphire, the coral and the gorgeous ruby. But we think that they might fittingly represent the best Canadian thinking in many realms; we think that soldiers, scientists, savants, and creators have as much right to a voice in affairs of state as politicians. Election to the Commons is, in some respects, a popularity contest; appointment to the Senate could be a considered choice of the ablest and wisest men in the country, regardless of their power to give pleasure on the hustings.

* * *

Such a Senate would not make government easier. On the contrary, it would make it harder. But we think that the advantage to the country would be very great, and that the adoption of such a plan would be an important step forward in parliamentary government.

Cheaper Cars?

The most irritating fault of cars in Canada is that they are too dear. The average low-priced sedan costs $455 more here than across the border, for exactly the same car. There are three reasons for this: high tariffs against importing foreign cars, high taxes on the manufactured product, and a high cost of manufacture.

The automobile industry is already campaigning in Ottawa to have sales and excise taxes on cars reduced. That would be a good thing provided at the same time tariffs were lowered and manufacturers reduced their production costs. The industry should not be given special concessions—reduced sales and excise taxes—if it does not do something itself to lower the price of the product.

For years car manufacturers in Canada have had high protection from foreign competition, through tariffs. In the early stages of the industry this protection could be justified on the grounds that otherwise there would be none made in Canada at all; with the American mass market and mass production, American cars could undersell cars made in Canada, unless a tariff kept American-made cars out. This sort of protection has cost Canadians dear for forty years.

The industry is now firmly established. The domestic market is now large. Canadian factories should be able to turn out cars as cheaply or almost as cheaply as American factories do, for Cnadian wage rates are lower and Canadian steel can be used. If the industry is ever to stand on its own feet, it should now do so, and be forced to attempt to do it. Therefore, reduce the tariff on American cars, so that, in order to meet competition, the Canadian manufacturers will have to bring their prices down.

At the same time, in order to put the Canadian industry on a realistic basis as compared with the American, excise and sales taxes should be lowered to prevailing American levels, at least. The difference in prices between American and Canadian cars range from $455 upwards. Extra Canadian taxes account for only $288 of this. If taxes on car production and sales are reduced, the companies themselves should see where they can pare their costs. It is not our business to tell them how, but we remark that during the war military vehicles were made more cheaply in Canada than in the U.S. It can be done, it seems, if the industry determines to do it.

Please—Don't Move

Some time ago it was decided to move the National Film Board from Ottawa to Montreal. There are probably good artistic and technical reasons behind the decision but we suspect that there is also another kind of reason, social and subtle. The Film Board, like any other movie-making company, has some unusual employees doing unusual jobs at unusual hours. Often they do not exactly fit into civil service uniforms or suit the sedate appearance of bureaucratic corridors and dignified capital streets. Official and conservative civic Ottawa may have had goose pimples from its contiguity with the Film Board. At any rate, it was decided to move the Board, its actors, managers and cameramen, away from cloistered Ottawa where its presence was sometimes an embarrassment.

Strange to relate, civic Ottawa is now pleading that the Film Board should remain in Ottawa. Both its newspapers are tut-tutting, bewailing the move. Its Mayor Charlotte Whitton is loquacious on the need, even the desirability, of retaining the Board in Ottawa. What an odd spectacle it is that solid Ottawa which formerly turned up its nose at the outlandish Board should now be cajolling it!

The hullabaloo leads us to think that the Film Board should get out of Ottawa for its own health. It has become so respectable that civic Ottawa claims it as friend and bureaucratic bedcompanion. The Film Board thus seems to stand gravely in need of the racy and slightly scandalous air of Montreal to restore its character, perhaps already hardened into decorum by Ottawa's moral frost.

Loss To Parliament And Party

The reputation of the late Gordon Graydon, Member of Parliament for Peel (Ontario) was so high that even people who never heard or saw him esteemed him. Mr. Graydon was a well-liked, greatly respected parliamentarian, an able Opposition critic, a student of Canada's external affairs and policy. In his own party he was at the right hand of the Conservative leader for more than a decade and for a period was Opposition House Leader. His death at the age of 56 not only removes from the Commons one of its able members, but from the high council of the Conservative Party one of its most valuable chiefs. His advice and qualities will be missed by all parties.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The moving picture industry develops slowly in some ways. It took a quarter-century to learn that a six-shooter cannot be fired any more than six times without reloading.

Referring to Churchill's death, a contemporary writes "if and when Sir Winston passes . . ." We are interested in that "if". Is it suggested that the great wartime leader might be carried off in a fiery chariot?

The election of Mme Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, sister of Prime Minister Nehru, to the presidency of the U.N. General Assembly was a remarkably unanimous tribute to her qualities as a diplomat as well as to her nationhood. The United States, the Soviet Union, Great Britain and Canada all voted for her.

SOVIET SURVEY:

Trouble On The Farm

By EDWARD CRANKSHAW

THE LIFE of the commentator on Russian affairs becomes almost daily more joyful. If Stalin's successors are going to make a habit of delivering speeches on the lines of Prime Minister Malenkov's policy statement to the Supreme Soviet and N. S. Khruschev's agricultural report to the Communist Party Central Committee, the Soviet specialist will find that half his work is done for him.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOR THE MOST interesting feature of the report by Khruschev— who has just been appointed to the post of First Secretary of the Central Committee— is that it concerns everything about the state of Soviet agriculture which the foreign specialist has been able to piece together, laboriously, tentatively, and at the cost of monumental reading. It is a rotten state, through and through. In some respects, in spite of the greatly increased population, Soviet food production is lower than it was in 1928, on the eve of the collectivisation. For example, Khruschev himself now tells us that the number of cattle in the Soviet Union is just nine million less than in 1928—and this in spite of the fact that not only the population but also the actual area of the Soviet Union has largely increased since then.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS such a shocking record that without cast-iron proof, nobody at all sympathetic towards the Soviet regime could allow himself to believe it. It was possible to arrive at figures like this by elaborate processes; but denial was all too easy. And where the fellow-travellers were concerned, the Soviet propagandists had no difficulty at all in taking in the credulous by simple little tricks.

For example, it was said in 1951 that the number of cattle on the collective farms had increased by several million. This was true, but it did not reflect, as the enthusiasts imagined, a corresponding increase in the number of cattle throughout the Soviet Union. All it reflected was the success of a ruthless drive to take cattle from the individual peasant and include them in the herds of the collectives. The total number of cattle in the Soviet Union was not mentioned, and, in fact, it had hardly increased at all.

✧ ✧ ✧

SIMILARLY, the grain production figures falsified for years, and the disaster of the collectivisation largely concealed by the simple process of changing the basis of the statistical reckoning. Until 1930, grain production figures were based on the weight of the grain in the barn. After 1930 they were based on arbitrary estimates of the yield in the field. And it has been carefully calculated by one of the greatest authorities on Soviet agriculture that this new method of assessment added something like twenty per cent to the real production figure, and thus concealed the catastrophic drop at the time of the collectivisation.

In his speech to the Supreme Soviet in August Malenkov announced that this practice would henceforth cease, and that there would be a return to the straightforward and natural method of counting only the threshed grain in the barn.

✧ ✧ ✧

AND NOW Comrade Khruschev tells us what the specialist always knew, but found it difficult to prove (because the calculations were so involved and tortuous) — that the general level of agricultural production is a disgrace to the Soviet system, "and does not fully satisfy the population's increasing need for food, or light industry's need for raw materials."

Bread is all right; the Soviet Union seems to have conquered the spectre of absolute famine, and that is something. But very little else is right. "Yields of grains, cereal crops, flax, sugar beet, and oil-bearing and other crops remain low in many collective farms and districts. Cattle last year not only did not increase in number but actually diminished by two million. Another grave shortcoming is the serious lag in potatoes and vegetables, which hampers the supply of these products to towns and industrial centres." And so on.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS is more than an elaboration of Malenkov's August speech. It confirms a state of affairs not merely unsatisfactory, as Malenkov indicated, but potentially castastrophic. It is an admission that the Soviet Union cannot maintain its great industrialisation programme unless agricultural production is radically increased. It is also an admission that the policy of coercing peasants into fuller production has completely failed.

Collectivisation is here to stay. But within the framework of collectivisation every kind of incentive to make the peasant produce more is to be applied; from tax exemptions to better housing, from the active encouragement of workers on the collective to develop their private holdings to the reduction of compulsory State deliveries.

It is a victory for the peasants in their long campaign of passive resistence. It is a major defeat for the regime.

✧ ✧ ✧

HOW DEEP the defeat goes is emphasised by the fact that the man who had to admit it is that same man, Nikita Khruschev, who three years ago, under Stalin, sponsored the last brutal and desperate attempt to force the peasants into fuller production by driving them off their private plots and regimenting them in the manner of State serfs. The complete failure of the 1952 cattle breeding programme indicates how the peasants reacted, and it is Khruschev himself who has to admit the failure and take to bribery.

✧ ✧ ✧

IT IS A NEW ROLE for him. He was one of Stalin's most valued human robots. He made his reputation as the tyrant of the Ukraine, his own native land and his whole career indicates that he is more at home with the apparatus of repression than in an atmosphere of easy cooperation.

But repression, when it comes to agriculture, has clearly shot its bolt. The Soviet Union must have more and more varied food at all costs —even at the cost of yielding to the peasants. It remains to be seen how far the Government can go in the way of bribery without finally rupturing the whole machinery of collectivisation.

CHEAP

Bewildered, the guest was staring at the young son of the house, who was driving nails into the dining-room table.

Turning to his host, he said, "It's none of my business, but don't you find it expensive letting him play like that?"

The host smiled proudly. "Not at all," he said. "I get the nails wholesale."

Building A New Korea

By O. M. GREEN

A POIGNANT picture of the immense needs of war-torn Korea, and of what UNKRA (the United Nations Korean Reconstructions Agency) plans to do was painted in London recently by Sir Arthur Rucker, K.C.M.G., Deputy Agent General of the Agency, who has recently returned from Korea.

Sir Arthur believes there is no widespread starvation in Korea. Agriculture is hard to destroy, even by modern war, and Korean farmers are indefatigable whenever work is possible. But undoubtedly, numbers of Koreans do not get enough food. To make a living many hold two or three jobs simultaneously.

Inflation is serious. The Korean Wan is officially exchanged at sixty to the dollar, but as far as internal purchasing power is concerned this rate is quite unreal.

There are great numbers of what we know in Europe as displaced persons. From North Korea at least two million people have fled to the south, and large refugee camps must be maintained at Pusan. The town itself is terribly overcrowded.

The lack of good houses, says Sir Arthur, is emphasized by a short journey up the railway from Pusan; on both sides of the line are rows of makeshift shacks, perhaps three or four crowded into a space barely twenty feet square.

Epidemics have been kept down by giving the people constant injections. But tuberculosis is alarmingly prevalent.

How much it will ultimately cost to set the country on its feet, no one can say. America's Secretary of State, Mr. John Foster Dulles, forecast a figure of one thousand million dollars. But this, says Sir Arthur, is mere guesswork. For the moment, UNKRA does not look beyond next year.

At its meeting in New York, the five- nations Advisory Committee of UNKRA (composed of representatives of Canada, India, Britain and Uruguay) agreed on a programme to cost one hundred and thirty million dollars for work up to the end of next June, this being in addition to the seventy million dollar programme undertaken last year. To this sum, America promised eighty million dollars (she had already given two hundred million dollars for emergency relief) Britain promised eight million pounds, of which five million pounds will be paid out immediately at the rate of five hundred thousand pounds a month.

Canada has already paid seven million dollars, and Australia and New Zealand have promised, respectively, four million pounds and five million pounds. A striking act of generosity comes from Austria, which has given one hundred and fifty thousand pounds worth of fertilizer. In all, promises of support have come from twenty-eight Governments which are members of the United Nations and from five which are not.

The allocation of the next year's money gives a graphic idea of Korea's destitution. The biggest item is thirty-six million dollars for importing equipment needed for capital investment projects. Health, sanitation and welfare will absorb nine million dollars; reconstruction of mining eight million dollars; housing materials five million dollars; education three million, three hundred thousand dollars.

On the manufacturing side there are textile mills to be rehabilitated; while many other industries—like cement, fertilizers, paper making, ceramics and chemicals, printing and publishing—must be geared up and made to pay their way. Then there is agriculture, forestry, fisheries, land reclamation, river control, rice and wheat milling, veterinary services, all urgently needing money; and the development and distribution of electrical power, about which the Agency is particularly concerned.

Sir Arthur said it would be impossible for the Agency directly to control all the work done, both because of the immense staff needed and because of the language difficulty. Such direction must be left to the Koreans; but the Agency would satisfy itself that each undertaking for which money was paid out is properly managed.

Twice since it was founded two years ago, UNKRA's efforts have been checked by the misfortunes of war. Now, with the signing of the armistice, it expects to get to work in earnest.

The Gypsy Congress of Gonzaga

(WATERTOWN TIMES)

PROBABLY the most sought out town in Italy during these last few days was Gonzaga, in the valley of the River Po, and southeast of Milan, Italy. To it were headed gypsies from all over Europe. They even managed to push their way from the Russian Caucasus in their effort to attend the world gypsy congress.

But, alas, the Romany people were not the only ones who wished to be present at this great gathering which has taken place in Gonzaga for the past five centuries. And with the curiosity which is generated by any mass assemblies, and which might be particularly strong in the case of a great meeting of a people as romantically-appealing as gypsies, there also moved into Gonzaga hundreds of outsiders.

In this age of wide-spread publicity there were naturally newsmen, reporters, photographers who came there to see, hear and scatter abroad what took place at this spectacular gathering of these nomadic people. If the thought of being so publicized so disturbed the gypsies, so, too, did the presence of so many policemen. The latter brought back memories of the concentration camps where so large a number of Romany folks were held during the late war. The farmers who had come to trade horses or cattle were less objectionable for they were there to do definite business with the gypsies.

In fact, this array of outsiders seemed to destroy the very thing which the gypsies prize, freedom. Children of the open spaces, the winding road, the friendly heath, this breaking in on their traditional affairs was repelling. They picked up their belongings, loaded their red wagons and their automobiles, turned their backs on Gonzaga and the throngs, took the long road home. The disappointed crowds left behind could find their diversion elsewhere, but for their customary meeting where would the gypsies turn?

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Jehoshaphat dwelt at Jerusalem: and he went out again through the people from Beersheba to mount Ephraim, and brought them back unto the Lord God of their fathers. And he set judges in the land throughout all the fenced cities of Judah, city by city, and said to the judges, Take heed what ye do: for ye judge not for man, but for the Lord, who is with you in the judgement. Wherefore now let the fear of the Lord be upon you; take heed and do it: for there is no iniquity with the Lord our God, nor respect of persons, nor taking of gifts. (II Chron. 19: 4-7.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For when we were in the flesh, the motions of sins, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death. But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; that we should serve in newness of spirit and not in the oldness of the letter. (Rom. 7: 5, 6.)

✧ ✧ ✧

For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek: for the same Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him. (Rom. 10: 12.)

How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him that bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace, that bringeth good tidings of good, that publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, Thy God reigneth! (Isa. 52: 7.)

Letter To The Editor

NEW OLD QUARTERS FOR KEENE SCHOOL?

Sir: A thousand thanks for your editorial in our behalf. The accompanying ditty is occasioned by the fact the Keene senior classes having outgrown the outhouse you mention, plans are going forward with all speed to house them, again temporarily, in the Mason's Hall. There is literally no playground, but the streets which bound the building on two sides, and the remainder of the lot not occupied by the building, which adjoins the doctor's lawn and has been tended by him, as part of his own grounds. There is no fence.

From Pillar to Post in Keene

For thirty years Keene children
Staunch Foresters have been
It's true the building's sagging
They're burst out at every seam.

But now, if one heeds rumours
A new home they'll be gracin'.
They're moving down the street apace
Each one will be a Mason!

Now all this would be splendid,
Except for just one thing,
Where is the children's playground?
Where can they run and swing?"

Playground? Playground?
Do children need to play?
Well—let me see— Why now, I swan!
Of course— There's all the street,
And half the doctor's lawn!

EFFIE OF OTONABEE.

No Ascetic, He

(Cleveland Plain Dealer)

We had always thought of Iran's former Premier Mohammed Mossadegh as an ascetic gentleman, living on a higher astral plane.

How shocking to read that Mossadegh staged and won an overnight strike for richer food, declaring: "I have only been able to preserve my physical powers with strong food. I must eat three roast chickens every day. I must eat a robust soup, a cutlet and a good dessert."

It is quite obvious why they got rid of poor Mossadegh. The national budget wouldn't stand it!

Toy-Testing Committee Now Set Up

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Association of Consumers is coming to the rescue of parents having a hard time finding suitable sturdy toys for their children.

It has set up a toy-testing committee in co-operation with the Citizen's Committee on Children in Ottawa. At present, the committee is studying methods of testing toys available on the Canadian market from the standpoint of durability and suitability for the age group for which they are intended.

The committee's aims will be to help educate the consumer to buy well-made toys suited to the child for whom they are bought; to give national recognition to manufacturers already presenting well-made toys and to stimulate others to improve their products; and to find methods of working with retailers to improve their selling techniques so as to help consumers and prevent unsuitable toy purchases.

Word of the toy program was given today by Mrs. H. B. Kemp in her national executive committee report prepared for delivery to the association's sixth national annual meeting.

PROBLEM STUDIED

What to do about rubber-soled shoes that make black marks on hardwood floors is under consideration by the association's consumer research department. Mrs. W. G. Weir said in a report from a special committee:

"There are two suggestions as to the cause of the marks—namely, the quality of the rubber heels and the possibility of certain floor cleaners or polishes causing the trouble. With the co-operation of the shoe manufacturers and the national research council, who are working on the problem, we are hopeful of finding a solution."

Mrs. Weir said other complaints on which the committee is trying to get action have to do with cellophane packaging of fruit and vegetables, requests for standard marking on all packaged and wrapped foods and for marking of weight on packages in even figures, and the fit of women's shoes where a narrow width is required.

Few Cities Able To Pay Way

MONTREAL (CP)—Experts in municipal finance from three countries told some 800 Canadian and American mayors that cities on both sides of the Atlantic face much the same problem—they can't pay their own way.

But they advocated no major changes in the tax setup.

In speeches prepared for delivery at the morning session of the International Municipal Congress, Prof. Simeon Leland of Chicago's Northwestern University, Prof. A. C. Curtis of Queen's University, Kingston, and Dr. A. H. Marshall of Coventry, Eng., president of Britain's Institute of Municipal Treasurers and Accountants, all agreed that cities would have to go on depending on grants from state, provincial, or central governments to make ends meet.

The mayors had before them two reports on municipal and intergovernmental finance, one dealing with the United States, the other with Canadian cities.

SHARE LOWER

Both reports found cities were taking in more money in taxes, but their share of the tax pie was lower than before the war. Federal and provincial, or state, governments were getting a larger percentage. Dependence on property taxes made municipal tax revenues inflexible.

But the first speaker warned the mayors they shouldn't jump to the conclusion that they are "definitely worse off" than they have been.

"It is only that their own revenue collecting abilities have deteriorated," Prof. Leland said.

The professor, author of several texts on municipal finances, said cities had a claim to greater help. Their expenses were constantly increasing and they had to provide roads and highways to take care of persons living in fringe communities that did not come onto their tax rolls.

BEST SOLUTION

The best solution was for the state to raise whatever extra money was needed through its own system of taxes and then pass on the funds to the municipalities.

Many grants to municipalities at present were "little more than bribes." They were made available on a uniform basis throughout a territory without regard to needs in order to get the votes necessary to pass the legislation. Grants should be unconditional and be made on a per capita basis, so larger cities with bigger financial headaches get more money.

Prof. Leland said local government organization needed to be overhauled. Municipal governments were needed to group together related communities.

Prof. Curtis said the real criticism of the property tax was not that it wasn't productive, but that it didn't bring in more money automatically when prices generally went up.

The Canadian too opposed giving cities their head to raise new taxes. "If all taxes came out of income then all three levels of government are dipping from one pool . . . and the problem is not completely solved by giving each one a separate dipper."

TOTAL OUTLAY

The taxpayer was interested not in who taxes him but in what his total tax outlay was.

Prof. Curtis said he preferred grants "with no strings attached," since they caused least damage to local autonomy.

Dr. Marshall, outlining Britain's system of municipal and local government finance, said grants from the central government had long been "a cornerstone on English public finance."

But he aid he thought "the present situation is out of balance." Grants were "an inescapable" feature of modern public finance for many reasons. Central governments would always have more productive, buoyant and flexible taxes, and the attempt to make local authorities pay their way completely would only result in "unwarranted rigidity."

AID WEAK AREAS

Grants could also be used by central governments to help financially weak areas, to cajole local authorities into action, to ensure that certain general standards were met in such things as housing, and to exercise economic control in the country.

Grant policy could be used to stimulate or dampen down economic activity, to restrain inflation or to encourage expansion.

The danger was that "no government can resist taking control too far." In England, "the scale has been tipped too far in favor of central control," and it was necessary to find ways to give local authorities more financial independence.

The aim should be to increase the proportion of general unconditional grants which had fallen during recent years. In addition, the existing tax base of local authorities should be broadened, and they should be permitted to share to a greater extent in the revenue from central government taxes.

Omemee Ladies Aid

OMEMEE (ENS)—The September meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Ladies' Aid was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Wilbert Thom.

Following the opening hymn, Mrs. William Callingham read the twenty-fifth psalm.

Idle Peace River Acres Beckoning Land-Hungry

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

The superintendent said:

"Two-million acres are under cultivation and 14,000,000 more acres are waiting to be made into farms."

The superintendent was E. C. Stacey, head of the Dominion experimental farm at Grande Prairie, Alta., and he was referring to the Peace river country of northwestern Alberta and a hunk of British Columbia.

He was speaking to delegates of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, on tour after last week's annual meeting in Edmonton.

We were beholding a frontier being pushed back, a giant breadbasket being created for Canada and the world.

Not many miles from us bulldozers, with huge cutting blades, were lopping off small willows and poplars which cover much of the fertile land, and great disks and plows were chopping up and throwing out the roots to open up another 80,000 acres.

LUMBER MAJOR INDUSTRY

It is not only farm land; lumber is a major industry. Glass sands—an estimated 1,000,000 tons—are waiting to displace the sands now being imported from the United States for the Canadian glass industry.

This winter, seismic and drilling crews of oil companies will tramp over more than 40,000 miles of bulldozed roads. Discoveries to date leave no doubt in the minds of oil men that the Peace is a great oil and gas country. Already enough gas has been discovered to justify a pipeline to the Pacific coast.

Forty years ago this country virtually did not exist as a settled land, and you can still meet many of the pioneers who opened it up.

It is the major remaining part of Canada where a man with a hunger for land can, with small capital and hard work, build himself a valuable property from scratch and be a present-day pioneer.

COSTS $25 AN ACRE

Clearing of the land will cost him about $25 an acre. After that, of course, he must bring the land under control, put some machinery on it, and have enough money to carry him over the early years.

There is the farm of J. B. Early, who owns some 700 acres along the banks of the Peace river, near the town of Peace River.

Early, an alert, almost jauntily-dressed man of 86, who has combined hard work with gracious living, went there 30 years ago, at an age when few men would want to start a new career on a frontier.

He went, however, with dairy-farming and vegetable-growing savvy from the Yakima district of the state of Washington and picked his land carefully.

Today, in addition to the wheatlands which he and his son care for, he grows 10,000 gladioli of 175 varieties, delphiniums eight feet and more tall, vegetables which would be show pieces in any display window.

"Last year," he said, "the gladioli paid for a trip to California."

But, looking at his corn and cucumbers: "These pay the bills."

We had gone to the Peace expecting to see wheat, and we saw plenty of it, for the Peace river is famous as the home of world wheat championships and raises about 30,000,000 bushels of it. But we saw so many other things that we almost forgot about the major crop.

TRAILERMEN TROUNCE VICTORIA IN 4th GAME

Dominate Play Throughout To Take 3-1 Game Lead In Mann Cup Lacrosse Series

(By DON GRANT, Examiner Staff Reporter)

VICTORIA, B.C.—The moon shone over the mountains and the Trailermen ran away with the game. That's mixing two old popular tunes badly but it tells the tale of the fourth game of the Canadian Senior Lacrosse Championship for the Mann Cup. Stellar goal-tending by rotund Lloyd (Moon) Wootton and precision plays by the Trailermen gave the defending champions a 13-4 victory over the Victoria Shamrocks. Now the Trailermen have a strangle-hold on the series which they should finish Wednesday night for their third straight title and cup. Wootton, he has amazed the Victoria fans with his agile movements in goal during the first three games, really lived up to his reputation as one of the greatest lacrosse goalies in history. He broke the Rocks' hearts on long shots, from close in and on breakaways. He topped off his excellent goal-tending by helping out in the scoring, looping a long pass to Harry Wipper for a goal in the fourth quarter.

In a previous game Wootton was hit on the thumb by a shot from Archie Browning's stick. His injury was aggravated Monday when the thumb was hit by another shot, this time by Bobbie Monaghan. Even with this sore thumb on his stick hand, Wootton continued his outstanding play.

Only one of four goals that did get past the jovial netminder could be classed as earned. That one was a quick passing play featuring Jack Northup and Spud Morelli, picked up by the Rocks from Nanaimo to replace the injured Al Gill. Morelli easily beat the Moon on that one.

REAL CHAMPIONS

The whole play by the Petes made the Rocks' fans recall that the Peterborough lads have been champions and will likely be champions for three years. Using only 11 players the Trailermen handcuffed the Rocks' offence and blitzed their defence.

Don Ashbee left Saturday to report to the Cleveland Barons and coach Bob Thorpe was sitting out his one-game suspension as a player. That accounted for the shortage of manpower.

Actually Thorpe's suspension, believe it or not, seemed to help the Trailermen. With all his attention on coaching, Thorpe had more time to concentrate on their play. He switched the lines more evenly, giving the players lots of action, yet lots of time for breathers. He also could see the Rocks' weaknesses and was quick to capitalize on them.

The most noticeable weakness was the Rocks' first line's (Archie Browning, Whitey Severson and Lew Landess) poor defensive play. Thorpe sent his high-scoring line of Curly Mason, Ross Powless, Rusty Slater and Roger Smith against that line and it worked to perfection as they rapped in goal after goal.

Thorpe's suspension also gave Derry Davies and Ken Croft a chance to show. These replacements worked with Dootch Vitarelli and Harry Wipper. The result was a goal-producing combination.

Nip O'Hearn, who has earned the role of the bad man in the series, greeted the round of boos from the Rocks' fans with a starry performance both on the defence and on the forward attack. Amid catcalls he produced the Trailermen's first two goals and started them off with a lead which the Rocks never threatened.

The Shamrocks, when compared with the Trailermen's great show of strength, looked like a good intermediate club. They had only a fair attack which was either stopped dead by the Trailermen's tight defence or out-guessed by Wootton.

WEAK DEFENCE

The Rocks' defence, which hasn't shown too much strength in the series so far, was weaker than in previous games. This didn't help goalie Jim Hetherington who is far from Wootton's class.

Actually, the only Rock to show any drive was the newly adopted forward, Morelli, from the Native Sons. The stocky gent played a game similar to the Trailermen's eastern hard-checking and quick-breaking brand and was always on the move.

As if the loss wasn't bad enough for the Rocks, they probably lost their star forward, Archie Browning. The former Brampton player was playing with a broken finger in a cast. Late in the fourth he was crashed into the boards by Wipper and the finger was broken for a second time.

On the whole it was a very disappointing showing by the Rocks for their fans who jammed the Memorial Rink. By mid-afternoon every seat and every bit of standing room was sold out. A large crowd gathered before game-time outside the arena, hoping for last-minute cancellations. But there just weren't any.

They were soundly behind their team from the opening minutes but they soon became quiet. They just didn't have anything to cheer about unless they switched to a few cheers for the Trailermen who went ahead 3-0 in the first, 5-1 at the half, 7-1 in the third and then broke away in the final quarter for six goals.

GOOD REFEREEING

There was a noticeable improvement in the refereeing. Bill Dickinson and Bill Wilkes, who refereed the first two games without too many complaints from both teams, were back and called the game with ease. It was a far cry from the work of Gord Folka and Sid Greenwood who turned the Friday night game into one of the worst fiascos in the history of the Mann Cup games.

Unfortunately, Folka and Greenwood will quite likely be working the fifth game Wednesday. This could not be confirmed by the CLA executive but they are believed to be the choice. It is not known just what action will be taken by the Trailermen if Folka is the referee. After Friday's game they threatened to walk out of the series if Folka refereed another game.

If the Trailermen play lacrosse Wednesday like they did for their 13-4 victory, they won't have to worry about Folka's calls. They'll quite likely be back in Peterborough Friday with the championship and the cup. But then anything can happen in a Mann Cup series.

Morelli crunched Croft into the boards to start the game off with a penalty. Just as he came back, O'Hearn rolled off his check, Norm Coates, and went in to score. Powless was gated for a crease infraction and Wipper followed within seconds for high sticking Severson. Even though the Trailermen played with two men short, O'Hearn broke through the Rocks for his second goal on a short bounce shot.

A GIFT GOAL

Mason scored the third goal and didn't even shoot, push or shovel the ball into the net. Severson scooped a loose ball towards the Rocks' goal. Hetherington missed it and the ball rolled into the net. Since Mason was the last Trailerman to handle the ball, he was credited with the goal.

Mason earned his second goal in the second quarter, neatly beating Severson and going straight in for his shot. Davies was penalized for highsticking but the Rocks didn't score. Croft made the score 5-1 when he shifted across the Rocks' goal-front, taking a pass from Davies. Bob Monaghan received a gift goal when left unchecked to end the half.

The Trailermen controlled the third quarter. Monaghan lost the ball in front of the Rocks' goal and the ball rolled to Mason at the crease. He sank it. Then Dootch Vitarelli scored his first series goal when set up in the open for a pass from Wipper.

Going into the fourth ahead 7-1, the Trailermen applied the pressure. Powless from the opening faceoff rushed in to score. Fifty-one seconds later Slater beat three Rocks to loop in a long shot. Twenty-two seconds later Vitarelli scored again on a rebound. Wipper dragged down Coates for a penalty. During his time off, Wootton was hit on the thumb but continued to play. He even made one short rush to prevent a stalling whistle. Then the stick was thrown out of his hand an dstickless he tried to stop a shot by Coates unsuccessfully.

Duff McCaghey whipped in a long shot for the Rocks' third goal before Powless added another taking his own rebound after a free ball. Wipper scored on a breakaway after a pass from Wootton. Morelli then scored on the neat break with Northup. Smith ended the scoring when he dangled through the Rocks on a solo effort.

In the last minute of the game Wipper crashed Browning into the boards, breaking the finger.

O'Hearn, Druce Warned On Rough Play

(BY DON GRANT)

VICTORIA, B.C.—Don (Nip) O'Hearn of the Peterborough Trailermen and Tom Druce of the Victoria Shamrocks received strong warnings Monday by the Canadian Lacrosse Association to stop their rough play in the Mann Cup series. At the same time coaches Bob Thorpe and John (Red) McMillan were told to tell their teams to watch the rough play.

O'Hearn and Druce were told that the LA will not permit unnecessary rough hitting and checking and warned the players that drastic action would be taken if it continues in the remainder of the series.

The CLA executive was referring to the rough game on Friday night when O'Hearn slashed Al Gill, the star Shamrock rookie, and caused a minor skull fracture, and when Druce twice cut down Trailermen forward Ross Powless.

Trailermen manager Bob (Pup) Curtin told the executive that O'Hearn's check was not deliberate and that the "same thing is done 100 times in a game."

Les Gilmore, chairman of the intercity league in British Columbia, said the executive should "take a serious view" of the Gill matter. He pointed out that it was "close to a fatality" and one of the worst injuries in modern lacrosse.

"We have to make sure these things don't happen again," he said. He then pressed for stronger action but was refused by the CLA executive.

The words flew hotter and hotter between the team representatives and then the eastern and western members. Art Brown of St. Catharines, the CLA vice-president, cooled the heated discussion off.

WANTS IT CLEAN

James McLeod, CLA president, told both groups that "I'm hoping that nothing will happen that will need special attention. I expect a clean series from here in."

Trailermen coach Bob Thorpe argued against his suspension as a player for Monday's game. He pointed out that earlier in the game referee Gord Folka had grabbed Don Ashbee for a warning and that he believed Sid Greenwood was doing the same thing to him during the last minute of the game.

"Why Severson was in the clear and if I had stopped to get the warning, I wouldn't have had a chance of stopping him from scoring. When Greenwood did stop me, I went off." said Thorpe. He added "I didn't know whether I was getting a warning or penalty."

But the CLA stuck by its Saturday ruling that Thorpe be suspended for the one game.

Thorpe also argued about the rulings on Mason's crease penalty, a minute penalty handed out for too many men on the floor during the same argument and the draws by Peterborough ruled illegal by Folka. Again the CLA refused to act.

The meeting ended with only the warning to the two players especially and to the teams recommended and passed.

Lindsay's fine young junior hockey goalie, Reg Truax, seems destined to go places in the pro puck world. St. Kitts' columnist says: "Goalie Marv Edwards will have to be right on his job every minute if he hopes to beat out youngster Reg Truax for junior Teepees' top goaltender this season. The Lindsay boy, only 16 years old, is insurance for Manager Rudy Pilous for some four seasons — if Teeps' manager can stall off all efforts of Eddie Shore to snaggle him out of Garden City togs." We hear other clubs have been after the Lindsay lad, also. From the same source comes word that Coach Pat Wilson of the senior Falls' team is high on Bibber O'Hearn, who is Nip O'Hearn's brother.

A lot of local guys and gals will be keenly interested comes Thursday night in the heavyweight championship fight between Rocky Marciano and Roland LaStarza. So, we'll stick our neck out now and call for the champ to kayo LaStarza in six heats. While Rocky can't be compared with former great titleholders like Dempsey and Louis— just to name a few— he does pack a knockout punch, having won 44 pro fights, losing none, and taking 39 of 'em by the KO route. Rollie won 53, lost three, and took 24 by knockouts. They met three years ago and Marciano took a close 10-round decision, but we think he'll have little trouble this time. Odds favor him about three to one.

Those Merry Matadors

No word at the moment on when or if the pro matmen will open their season of weekly matches in Peterborough. However, we expect they'll be back sometime next month, as Oshawa's arena burned down recently and the Quinte arena will be making ice in a few more weeks. With not too many large places available in Central Ontario during the winter months, the grapplers like this centre as a stopgap betwixt their Ottawa and Toronto cards, using the Brock Arena. Quite a few folks here enjoy these colorful showmen of the sports world, and a surprisingly large number of district fans are regular attendants.

Local grid Orfuns have a couple of rather tough tussles this week. Oshawa Raiders gave 'em a stiff scrap in the opening game of the season two weeks ago, and they are coming here Wednesday eve for an ORFU fixture in Morrow Park under the arcs. Then the Kotowaki crew travel to Cobourg for a real sizzler Saturday aft, as the Galloping Ghosts are breathing hotly on the back on the necks of the group leaders. However, Orfuns have won four in a row, and have no intentions of easing up in the race. It's a short, stiff schedule, winding up the middle of October, just three weeks away, with playoffs for the top two teams following. Looks now like Orfuns and Ghosts in group finals.

Champs Up To Form

Playing up to their true championship form in Victoria last night—though dressing just 11 players— the Petes' Trailermen romped to a 13-4 win o'er the Shamrocks. That gives them a 3-1 lead in games, and they could wrap up the Mann Cup series on Wednesday night, and be home by Friday. However, they'll probably get Ref Gord Folka for the nex tilt, and that means they'll have to keep in top form if they hope to shorten the series to five frays. If they roll as they did last eve there'll be nothing to it. Goalie Moon Wootton was at his best— which is mighty, mighty good — and he had a tight defence in front of him and sharp forwards racking up the count. All this mind you without the services of such aces as Jerry Fitzgerald, Ike Hildebrand, Don Ashbee and Bob Thorpe.

* * * * * *

Curly Mason got three goals, one a gift, to lead the attack. Nip O'Hearn, Dootch Vitarelli and Ross Powless tallied two each. The others were sniped by Ken Croft, Russ Slater, Roger Smith, and Harry Wipper, the latter also getting an assist, as did Wootton. Both teams were warned against rough play as injuries keep mounting in the series, so 'twas a fairly clean contest. No nonsense about illegal faceoff draws by Curly Mason, but then Folka wasn't refereeing. CLA should read him the rule on draws and see that he abides by it as refs can make mistakes, too. Anyway, it looks like the Trailermen can hardly miss out now in annexing the big trophy for the third straight year. Orillia of the middle 30s is the only boxla team to date taking the cup thrice in a row.

Bell Telephone Beats IOF To Open Series

Men's Civic League softball finals commenced at East City Bowl, Monday night amid stormy scenes as the fiery league-leading Foresters coached by Ralph Parnell faced the big green and white Bell Telephone squad handled by Chum Gillespie in the first of a best-of-five set. Bell's triumphed 17-10, in a fierce slugfest wherein the Phonemen took a strong early lead only to see the Parnell pack fight to reduce the winner's margin with rallies the seventh and ninth frames for a total of eight runs; which fell short of victory.

League manager Fred Maybee announced the indifinite suspension of Manager Art Reynolds of Foresters as a result of the latter's part in a heated dispute with umpire-in-chief Arnold Olmstead in which the latter was subjected to excessive abuse during the course of the game deemed unethical in Civic League games, by the commissioner. Repeated objections to Olmstead's decisions led to Reynold's ejection from the player's bench early; but the manager refused to leave the park as directed and heckled the arbitrator from the stands behind the plate.

Rule 4 of Softball rules for the Civic Loop, reads as follows:

"Profanity or unseemly conduct on field subject to indefinite suspension on report of umpire-in-chielf."

VETERAN HURLERS

Veteran Bert Harrison, toed the rubber for the defending champs and went the disance in a fine, if not brilliant, display of cagey twirling. He scattered four hits for two runs in the first six frames; then later weakened slightly as the determined offensive of Forester's finally broke loose in unbridled rein, to challenge the Gillespie men. But the big righthander weathered the storm, aided by steady defensive teamwork, and saw the finish.

Ken Hall, Forester's mainstay, meanwhile toiled manfully, but less effectively than usual, on the opposing hill; and the Bell boys began their offensive in the third, when the big bats of popular coach, Gillespie, the Harrison brothers, Ray James, Ackford and Bullied smote the melon for five runs. This attack was followed by three-run rallies in the next two frames; and a pair in the sixth as Bell's rolled up a commanding margin meanwhile playing fine defensive ball.

A pair in each of the final two wound up the winners punch in a game that saw some neat fielding as well, in an almost strictly offensive duel.

The teams resume their set, on Wednesday night at eight p.m. when a record crowd may be on hand as the colorful perennial rivals fight it out.

Bell Telephone: Gillespie 1b; B. Harrison, p; James, c; K. Harrison, ss; Ackford, lf; Tushingham rf; Wade, 3b; Gordon, cf; Bullied, 2b.

Ti-Cats Likely Keep Songin

HAMILTON (CP)—Ed Songin, the quarterback Frank Clair tried to snare for Toronto Argonauts of the Big Four football league three years ago, will likely get the call to steer Hamilton Tiger-Cats' attack against Montreal Alouettes next Saturday.

Coach Carl Voyles said he'll let Auburn Lambeth and Songin work out for the rest of the week before making a decision, but that Oct. 1 deadline is creeping close and Saturday will be Voyles' last chance to see what the import from Boston can do before cutting his Americans to eight.

Voyles won't go along with any deal that would bring Don Panciera here in exchange for linebacker Quincy Armstrong. "Either Lambeth or Songin is as good as Panciera," the Ti-Cat mentor said.

Meanwhile, quarterback Stan Heath has been cut. His bad arm did not respond after several treatments.

Meeker Looks Good Despite Bad Back

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Despite the fact that he is plagued by a bad back and is forced to sleep on a board to ease the pain, right-winger Howie Meeker is one of the brightest prospects at the Toronto Maple Leaf training camp here.

The veteran of seven years in the National Hockey League was moving fast both ways Monday and came up with a brilliant goal while just missing another.

Meeker was boarded during a game last October. He played only 5 games last season.

Meeker was told he would be called upon only in emergencies when the Leafs' right-wing strength was depleted through injuries. He will take over coaching chores for Stratford Indians of the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series.

TURPIN ARRIVES

NEW YORK (AP)—Randy Turpin, British middleweight champion, arrived Monday for his Oct. 21 middleweight title bout with Carl (Bobo) Olson. Turpin was in confident mood although he expressed no prediction of the outcome.

Stone Leading Big Four Scoring Race

TORONTO (CP)—American Imports, paced by Avatus Stone, 22-year-old Ottawa Rough Rider halfback from Syracuse University, hold top positions in the Big Four Football Union scoring race, Canadian Press statistics show.

In third place a week ago with only 14 points, Stone picked up 22 points on four touchdowns and two singles in games Wednesday and Sunday to take over leadership with 36 from Ray Poole of Montreal Alouettes.

Poole, the Als' veteran kicking star from New York Giants, trails by two points. Six behind are Gene (Choo Choo) Roberts of the Riders and Chuck Hunsinger of the Als. Hunsinger scored four touchdowns in Sunday's 37-21 Montreal triumph over the Riders. Poole picked up 12 points in the two games on a touchdown and seven converts.

IN FIFTH POSITION

Tied for fifth position are Joe Scudero, Toronto Argonauts, and Canadian-born Bob Simpson of Riders and Tip Logan, Hamilton Tiger-Cat kicking star. Each has 15 points.

The Ontario Rugby Football Union scoring race is unchanged with import John Mancos of Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in the lead with 21 points.

No ORFU league games were played last week.

Cards Whip Cubs In 4-0 Tilt, Only Game Played

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

With just six days to play the standings of the National and American Leagues could still undergo considerable change before being entered in the final record books. Five places in each league remain undecided. So far the only teams guaranteed of finishing on Sunday right where they are today are pennant - winning Brooklyn, runner - up Milwaukee and last-place Pittsburgh in the National League and the champion New York Yankees, fourth-place Boston and fifth-place Washington in the American.

The Cleveland Indians get a chance tonight and Wednesday to nail down second place in the American League. They invade Chicago for two games with the White Sox who trail them by two. A sweep would give manager Al Lopez his third straight runner-up finish with the Indians.

MUST WIN THREE

Near the bottom of the American League, Detroit Tigers need to win three of their four remaining games to assure their present sixth place standing. At the moment they lead Philadelphia Athletics by a game and a half. The Athletics have five games left. If they can capture even one of the five they'll avoid any share of last place.

The Browns appear almost certain to wind up their days in St. Louis at the bottom of the heap.

Third place in the National League is still between St. Louis Cardinals and Philadelphia Phillies. The Cards whipped Chicago Cubs 4-0 Monday night in the only action in either league and moved 1½ games ahead of the Phillies. St. Louis has six games to play, Philadelphia five.

DRIVES IN TWO RUNS

Enos Slaughter drove in the first two runs for the Cards.

New York Giants, in fifth place, might get caught by Cincinnati.

Harvey Haddix won his 19th game for the Cardinals and his sixth shutout.

Haddix allowed the Cubs three singles plus a double by Hank Sauer. He struck out eight.

Rain Monday washed out the Yankees' final appearance in Boston. The game was re-scheduled as part of a doubleheader in New York Sunday. Boston is idle today as is Washington. The rest of the clubs in both leagues return to action.

Graduation Blues Dog Mustang Coach This Year; Telford Gets Tackle Spot

By JACK PARK

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Coach Johnny Metras will be shooting for his seventh senior intercollegiate football title this year but he has the graduation blues.

Metras, who guided University of Western Ontario Mustangs to seven intercollegiate championships in nine years, says he isn't too happy about his chances this season. Like all college clubs, the Mustangs have been hit by graduations.

After weeks of drills, Metras figures he still has a few breaches to fill before the Mustangs meet with Hamilton's McMaster University in their season opener at Hamilton Oct. 3.

Although the Mustangs lost 12-9 in an exhibition game with Sarnia Imperials of the Ontario Rugby Football Union Saturday, Metras won't hazard a guess on how his boys will stack up against intercollegiate competition.

LOSES STRING OF STARS

Metras lost a string of last year's stars through graduation. Three, Doug McNichol, Ray Truant and Miller Gallow, now are playing professional football. Seven, Bud Obal, Jerry Fewster, Jimmy Varroll, Cam Church, Bob McMurdo, Blair Thompson and Bob Smith are working in various business fields.

Most of Western's hopes will rest on the shoulders of a rugged line, which has lost only three men from last season and which has been plugged by several good-looking prospects from an intermediate team. But the backfield lacks depth. Metras can send only five veterans into action.

Don Getty, the young quarter who didn't come into his own until late last season, will be the top signal-caller. He will get opposition for the starting spot and help in relief from John Girvan. Holdovers Jacques Belec and Don Prowse, Ken Edwards from Toronto and Jack Thompson from St. Catharines are the best-looking fullbacks. Thompson will do the punting.

PROMISING HALVES

Metras has promising halves in holdovers Murray Henderson and Gino Fracas. Helping them are two of the brightest prospects to show here in years, Ralph Simmons of Toronto and Tony Andrejicka, who played with the AKO junior team from Windsor last year.

Veterans along the line are team captain Jack Thompson and Jack Wyatt, with Mike Newediuk and Jack Fowler at guard. Doug Drew is gunning for the centre spot against newcomers John Coutanche, a 218-pounder, and Don McGee.

The tackle spots are well taken care of with Ted Roman, Ted Collins, Dennis Higgins and Dick Martin, all holdovers. Newcomers are Dick Howe of Toronto and Jim Telford from Peterborough.

Bob Turner, a medical student, who was a standout last year, heads the ends. Back with him from last year are Don Killinger and Orest Tokarsky. Chuck Wildman from Toronto Humberside is the likely fourth end.

30 Young Hopefuls Workout With Hawks

GALT (CP)—Thirty young hopefuls took to the ice here Monday in the first workout of the season for Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series. The team will continue to drill twice daily.

Coach Bob Dawes, former Toronto Maple Leaf and Montreal Canadiens forward, was in charge of the practice. Bob Wilson, Chicago Black Hawks chief scout, assisted.

Wilson reported that Murray Costello, recently purchased from St. Michael's College Majors, would not show up here until the parent Chicago team broke camp. He is training with the National Hockey League club.

Argos Will Release Passer Don Panciera

TORONTO (CP)—Don Panciera, who tried 43 passes for Toronto Argonauts and completed 25 of them when Argos lost 1-9 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats Saturday, will be released by the Argos.

Frank Clair, coach of the Big Four club, said that injured Nobby Wirkowski is still the quarterback and that he will release Panciera, former pro with Chicago Cardinals. Panciera was filling in for Wirkowski.

Bisons Edge Montreal 6-5

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The International League playoff race tightened up still further Monday night as extra-inning contests in both semi-finals failed to decide a winner.

Buffalo Bisons scored without getting the ball out of the infield to take a 6-5 12-inning victory from Montreal Royals. That sends the teams back to Montreal with the Royals leading 3-2 in the best-of-seven series.

The winning run came on a wild throw by second - baseman Roy Hartsfield of the Royals. Ken Chapman came home from second on the error.

First - baseman Charley Kress' single scored the winner in the 10th inning at Rochester to give the Red Wings a 2-1 decision and tie their best-of-seven playoff with Baltimore Orioles 3-3. The seventh and deciding game will be played tonight.

Irish, Marlies Hold First Workout

TORONTO (CP)—First workouts of Toronto Marlboros and St. Michael's College Majors of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A series, drew about 68 performers Monday.

Marlboros had about 38 working out with them. Both clubs are sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League. Marlboros are coached by Reg Hamilton, former Leaf player; Charlie Cerre handles the bench for St. Michael's.

Allister MacNeill of Sydney, N.S., was a standout on defence with Marlboros in the first session. But MacNeill is not the property of Marlboros. He was one of three players traded outright to Guelph for the loan of Guelph's flashy forward Bill McCreary in mid-season last year.

Staff Smythe, Marlboro manager, said MacNeill has to report to Biltmores by Nov. 15 or Guelph can claim $5,000 from the Toronto team, under an agreement made at the time of the trade. Biltmores have an option of taking any other player from Weston Dukes, Marlboro farm club, if they don't want the $5,000 and MacNeill doesn't report.

Picture Made In Canada Carries Jinx

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—There was a time when the movie workers on the "River of No Return" location in Canada thought the picture had a prophetic title.

"I thought we'd never get back," moans Robert Mitchum, one of the ailing stars.

Oh, the troubles they had. Weather? Lousy. The company lost 3½ days in the first week because of rain and fog. Before the movie makers came home, it started to snow.

"Most unusual," announced the natives of Banff and Jasper parks.

Accidents? Lots. Marilyn Monroe, doing a scene in which she was supposed to run down to the river, tripped, fell and uttered one of the less quotable Monroe quotes. She bravely finished out the day's shooting, but examination proved she had torn ligaments in her left ankle.

$10,000 DAY LOSS

She was confined for 10 days, during which scarcely a camera ground. The loss was estimated conservatively at $10,000 a day.

Another day, Monroe and Mitchum were floating down the Bow river on a raft. It struck a rock and jolted Mitchum into the drink. "The water was approximately 34 degrees," he estimates.

"And whenever it rained, I had no place to go," he added. "I had to stand under the downpour."

He kept working despite a 102 temperature. But when he returned to Hollywood, he folded up with a virus, causing another day's loss of production.

THAT ISN'T ALL

That isn't all. Rory Calhoun was laid up for two days on the location. Another actor, Douglas Spencer, nearly had a finger severed when his reins were jerked by a bolting horse. The company cracked up three boats, including one with an airplane motor. The loss: $10,000.

I asked Mitchum if he had a lot of smooching in the picture with Monroe. "Just one kiss," he replied. "You know how she undulates. It's hard to get aim."

Incidentally, workers on the location reported evidence of the new Monroe. She has a rep of being chronically late, but she made the 6:30 train to the location every morning without fail.

Two Newsmen Receive Awards

NEW YORK (AP)—Two Associated Press newspapermen Monday night received the Overseas Press Club honors they won while prisoners of the Communists on opposite sides of the world.

The AP men, William Oatis and Frank Noel, were on the club's list of award winners in April, 1952.

Oatis won the $500 George Polk Memorial Award "for courage, integrity and enterprise above and beyond the call of duty." Noel was given the award for the best picture reporting from abroad, judged from its interpretative quality.

But at that time Oatis was in a Czechoslovakian prison, serving a 10-year sentence for what the Czech government called spying. Noel captured while photographing the Korean War, was in a Chinese Communist prison camp.

Nickel Cup Of Coffee Now Thing Of Past

PORT ARTHUR (CP)—C. H. Millbourn of Toronto, president of the Canadian Restaurant Association, told the group's annual convention here Monday that the day of the nickel cup of coffee is gone.

He said that despite the fact that a restaurateur can get about 30 cups of coffee from a pound costing $1, he sometimes makes less than two cents profit on a cup. High overhead and food costs eat up the rest.

He said that high costs are also sounding the death knell of waiters in Canadian restaurants. Men just refuse to work the long hours for the low pay.

In an interview at Fort William, Mr. Millbourn said, however, that the restaurant business is flourishing in Canada and the quality of the food is better than ever.

Oldest Twin Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — One of Canada's oldest twins, Mrs. Mary Ann Foote, 88, died at her home here Saturday. Mrs. Foote and her sister, Mrs. L. A. Mackenzie were born in Stratford, Ont. When they were seven years old they travelled by ox cart and canoe to Winnipeg.

Attend Health Meeting

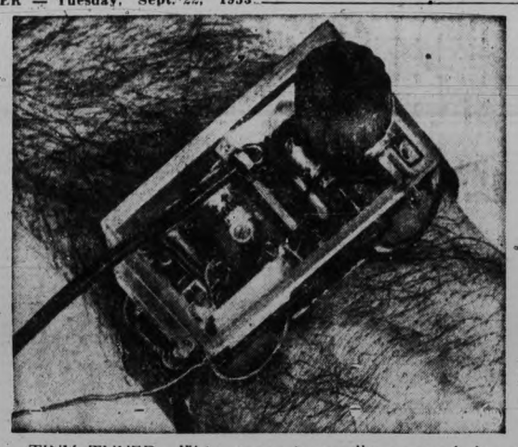
WINDSOR (CP)—Some 300 delegates from many parts of Ontario are expected to attend the sixth annual conference of the Ontario Federation for the Cerebral Palsied here Sept. 27. Health Minister Martin will attend the meeting.

Joins Cellulose

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, retiring president of Atomic Energy of Canada, Ltd., and past president of the national research council, will join Canadian Chemical and Cellulose Company, Ltd., Nov. 1, it was announced Monday.

First Polio Death

OSHAWA (CP)—The first Oshawa polio death of 1953 was reported Monday when 12-year-old Edward Fletcher died at Toronto isolation hospital.



TINY TUNER—Wrist space is usually reserved for a watch, but the Army Signal Corps thinks its a good place to wear a radio. This is a close-up of the Lilliputian receiver which has transitor-type units replacing the standard vacuum tubes. The knob on the outside of the case is used for tuning in signals. While the unit is unable to transmit, it can pick up signals in a 40-mile radius.

Last-Minute Offer Accepted

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal's police, firemen and white collar workers Monday night accepted a last-minute offer by the city to negotiate settlement of a contract dispute.

At a mass meeting, a capacity attendance agreed to accept the city's offer, communicated only a few hours earlier by Lucien Hetu, director of municipal services, to the presidents of the three unions involved.

Negotiations will start Oct. 5 and end "on or about" Oct. 24, with the union leaders to report jointly to members Oct. 27.

Acceptance eased, at least temporarily, a strike threat by the city's more than 2,000 police officers. The strike threat followed rejection by the unions of an arbitration board report that turned down most of their requests for wage increases and other benefits.

Tourist Association Presents Blanket

KEENE (ENS) Many from the district attended the annual turkey dinner sponsored by the Rice Lake Tourist Association, of which Mr. Fred Austin is president, at the Kawartha Country Club last week. Max Humphreys of the Sunnymede Camp, Hastings, was master of ceremonies. The program consisted of two readings by Mrs. R. McIntyre, entitled "The Raw Recruit", and "The White Socks Ball Game"; Bob McDougall entertained with several slight-of-hand tricks; Mr. Newman from the Cleveland Sportsman's Show gave a short address and Jim Fraser from the Chamber of Commerce spoke. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Braithwaite were presented with a Hudson Bay blanket in appreciation of their past services as secretary-treasurer of the association for two years. Parents Mould Drinking Habits

NEW YORK (AP)—A survey report said Monday that most high school students of a populous New York City suburban area use alcoholic beverages to some extent.

The drinking habits of these 'teen-agers are closely associated with their home, the report said. It termed the students a "temperate group."

The survey represented a sampling from among 29,000 students, mostly in the 10th, 11th and 12th grades.

"Children start drinking chiefly with their parents," the report said.

"One of the clearest relations found is between abstinence on the part of parents and abstinence of their children. There is no doubt, as shown by the study, that parental attitude is a large factor in the drinking habits of the child."

Demonstration Of Meters Given By Mayor

TORONTO (CP)—Mayor Allan Lamport demonstrated Monday how to beat a parking meter.

At the first fall meeting of city council, he poked slugs and paper clips into various types of meters from which the council is to select one to be bought.

He slipped a nail file into one meter to show that the meter could be run down and thus earn a court conviction for an overtime parker.

The mayor showed that the Red Ball meter, which he favors, could become stuck if the handle was not pushed all the way down after a second coin was inserted. But, he said, the "violation" sign showed, so that a policeman could see it and push the handle the rest of the way down so that the clock would be set in motion again.

Toronto newspapers have criticized the mayor over his endorsement of the Red Ball meter, and the mayor lashed back at them.

"Things have come to a pretty pass when newspapers are trying to run city council," he said. "Some newspapers wouldn't pay 10 cents to protect their grandmothers but they'll go to any length to get someone in trouble. I've never seen such a despicable performance."

Carl Burtt Elected President

NORWOOD (ENS)—St. Andrew's Presbyterian Young People's Society met at the manse.

After an opening prayer, the election of officers was held. Results were as follows: President, Carl Burrt; vice-president, Pat Atkinson (past president); secretary, Bob Duncanson; treasurer, Gordon Lindsay; convener for Evangelism and Stewardship, Leona Gordon; convener for fellowship, Shirley Davey; convener for programs, Janet Burtt; convener for missions, Les Gordon; convener for publicity, Beverley Rothwell.

It was decided not to undertake a lunch booth at the Norwood Fair on Thanksgiving weekend. It was thought too many were already do so.

It was also decided to sponsor the public showing of educational films in the town hall each month.

The society unanimously agreed to undertake the sale of UNESCO gift coupon stamps under the direction of the Rev. R. D. Duncanson, the United Nations Association representative in this district. Mr. Duncanson explained how proceeds of the plan are used for purchasing tools for learning by whatever needy people may be selected by the sponsor group.

The Young People agreed to seek permission from the Norwood Fair Board to erect a stall on the fair grounds for the sale of these stamps, and, if arrangements can be made, to show UN movies at the booth.

The meeting was informed that St. Andrew's Young People were to be hosts on Wednesday to the societies of the Peterborough Presbytery.

Several films were shown including one of United Nations work in various countries.

Mrs. R. D. Duncanson served lunch.

No Decision On Gas Export Made Till After October 17

CALGARY (CP)—No decision on export of natural gas from Alberta will be made until after Oct. 17.

The provincial petroleum and natural gas conservation board, which has been hearing applications for gas export licences since June 8, ended its lengthy sessions Monday.

Board chairman I. N. McKinnon, who also is deputy mines minister, and Premier E. C. Manning, asked counsel for the pipeline companies to submit written argument to the board by Oct. 17.

The board will study these arguments before recommending to the government which firm should be granted an export licence. Premier Manning has stated repeatedly in recent weeks that Alberta has a gas surplus beyond her own needs for the next 30 years and intends to export it.

Withdrawal of the Mid-Continent Pipe Lines Ltd. application last Thursday left only two companies vying for export rights to eastern Canada.

They are Trans Canada Pipe Lines Ltd., which proposes to deliver Alberta gas to the Toronto-Montreal markets via an all-Canadian pipeline route; and Western Pipe Lines Ltd., which plans export to the United States, continuing a line on to eastern Canada at a later date.

Last witness to testify at the hearing, Frank A. Schultz, vice-president of Trans Canada, said today his company could begin construction of a pipeline to the east next spring if a permit were granted this fall. It would take approximately two years to complete the line to Montreal.

Meanwhile, he said, an arrangement has been proposed to Union Gas Co. and to the Ontario government to permit use of southern Ontario gas reserves to supply and build up the market in the Toronto and Hamilton areas.

It would take only three or four months to build the southern Ontario line, Mr. Schultz said.

Gets Egg Reward

NIAGARA FALLS (CP) — John Mooney, who recently recovered a barrel containing eight eggs from the upper rapids of the Niagara river, collected a $100 reward from owner Frank Candler of Thorold. The barrel failed to go over the falls and Candler intends on making another attempt in the near future. He said he would wire the eggs in place inside the barrel and see whether it is strong enough for a human being.

Will Delay Demolishing Turner House

Committee Advises Tear Down Building Make Parking Lot

City council Monday night decided to give further consideration to a proposal to demolish the old Turner house on the north-east corner of the city hall property.

The property committee had recommened that the house be advertised for demolition and the property graded and landscaped for use as parking space. But a suggestion that the house might be needed for office space in the event of a county health unit being established here led the council to delay any decision to demolish it.

The property committee made its recommendation on the basis of a report by Ronald Winter, consultant architect, who outlined the cost of repairing the house and converting it for office accommodation.

COST $14,662

In his report, Mr. Winter said the whole job would cost $14,662.50, including repairing outside windows, woodwork, bricks and ironwork, redecorating the interior, covering the floors with linoleum, removing and replacing existing wiring and lighting fixtures and installing new lavatories, radiators, boiler and oil burner.

This did not include cost of new partitions or changing of existing partitions to suit potential tenants.

The building originally cost the city $16,000. If the necessary repairs and improvements were carried out, the total cost would be over $30,600, exclusive of the cost of alterations and partitions to suit potential tenants.

Mr. Winter estimated that the net usable office area in the building is only about 3,000 square feet and he didn't think the space would be rented at a rate to give a reasonable return on the investment, taking heat light, water and other costs of upkeep into account.

"I would strongly recommend that instead of spending money on this old and obsolete building, the same be demolished, the site cleaned up and graded and used as a parking area and landscape," Mr. Winter concluded. "The removal of this eyesore would improve tremendously the city hall property."

Some time ago a special committee was appointed to investigate future use of the building, consisting of Ald. H. S. Longhurst, chairman of the property committee, City Clerk E. A. Outram and Mr. Winter.

AGREES

When Mr. Winter's report was presented to Friday's meeting of the property committee, Ald. Longhurst said he "agreed heartily" with the architect's recommendation. The city clerk said it was originally intended to tear down the building when the porperty for the new city hall was bought but the Department of Health had been located there while the city hall was being built.

When the property committee's recommendation was presented to city council Monday night, Ald. Longhurst said he had gone through the building with the architect and he "couldn't see anything for it but the architect's recommendation."

Ald. T. D. Miller said that in conversation with the Medical Officer of Health some time before he had been given to understand that facilities for the Board of Health in the city hall were inadequate and he wondered if Ald. Dewart had any comment. Ald. Dewart is chairman of the Board of Health.

Ald. Dewart said that when the city hall was built there was ample accommodation for the Board of Health but since the board had taken over the school health services all the space in the department was occupied.

"If a county health unit were to be formed— and that is pure speculation — more accommodation would be needed," Ald. Dewart said, "and it was thought the Turner house might be available."

Ald. Dewart said the idea of a county health unit was gaining favor with the various municipalities in the county and was encouraged by the provincial government.

Council subsequently decided to have a further meeting and arrange to have the house opened for their inspection before deciding on ultimate disposal of the building.

Signs Of Fall

THE harvest moon of 1953 is at the full tonight, almost coinciding with that other phenomenon of the season, the autumnal equinox Monday.

From here on the days grow shorter, and at the coming weekend clocks are set back an hour, ending the summer schedule of daylight as regulated by the people themselves, or the great majority of them.

Some lingering objection is raised annually by the few who ignore the fact that man made clocks anyway, and should be free to use them for his convenience and advantage. From here on the days grow shorter, but if this season is anything like the fall months of the last two years there should be many sunny and colorful days through October.

Firemen to Paint, Spruce Up Hall For $753

Add interior decorating to the list of talents of the versatile city firemen.

City council's property committee have given the fire department permission to repair and decorate portions of the inside of the fire hall at a cost of $753.30. This does not include any labor costs as the work will all be done by members of the department in accordance with a clause in the firefighters' working agreement.

The project calls for painting the walls and ceiling of the second floor, covering with marboleum tile the stairs from the first to the second storey and the floor of the second storey, except in the dormitory and battery room and sanding and refinishing the floor of the dormitory.

The color scheme will be two shades of green, the walls and ceiling a light shade and the wainscotting dark. The desks will be revarnished and the beds enamelled white.

PAINTING MATERIALS

Estimated cost of materials for painting the second storey —an area of 8,445 square feet — is $199.60, and includes the cost of brushes and roller coaters. Fire Chief W. D. Sorrie, who made a written request for permission to do the work, pointed out that the equipment would be available for further use in the event of future improvements.

Estimated cost of sanding and refinishing the dormitory floor is $30. A further saving would be made by borrowing the sanding machine from the Board of Education.

The cost of covering the stairs with marboleum was estimated at $43.50. Chief Sorrie said these stairs required covering because traffic on them was heavier than in the past due to the large number of employees in the department.

Most expensive item in the project is the marboleum covering for the second floor, which will cost an estimated $480.20 for 1,438 square feet.

Chief Sorrie said he felt this type of floor covering would last a great number of years and, in addition would beautify the property.

Spilt Oil Starts $1,200 Fire

Cellar Bakeshop Mass of Flames Start Up North Wall

Damage estimated at about $1,200 was done today when oil from a small tank burst into flames at the home of Mrs. Emma Dawson, 742 George St.

Mrs. Dawson told firemen she had just finished work in her cellar-bakeshop and was about to clean the two-gallon oil tank. She had removed it from the oil burner and spilled some of its contents.

Bricks of the firepot in the burner were still hot and it is believed the oil reached these bricks and ignited almost immediately.

Mrs. Dawson said she looked around and the flames were already leaping up, seconds after she removed the tank.

Neighbors on the north side of the Dawson home turned in the alarm and when the fire truck arrived they were trying to hold back the flames with their garden hoses.

The fire hit hardest at the north side of the cellar, and at one time flames were leaping the full height of the house on the north side.

In the cellar were 1,500 pounds of flour, 1,500 pounds of lard and a large quantity of sugar. The lard is believed to be unharmed, since it was in tin buckets some distance from the centre of the blaze. Wires and other parts of the cooking equipment were damaged. Smoke filled the whole house.

Two trucks—a pumper and a ladder truck—were sent to the fire under Chief Bill Sorrie.

Lang Girl, 12 Dies In Toronto Of Poliomyelitis

Beryl Kemp, 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp, of Keene, who was rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children Friday, died this morning in Toronto from poliomyelitis. This is the first death in the district caused by polio.

The first symptoms were noticed Thursday afternoon, when Beryl showed signs of a high fever and drowsiness. She was sent home at recess and Dr. Wilson Ford was called. Friday morning she was removed to the hospital where her condition was diagnosed as polio. She was later rushed to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Following the announcement that Beryl was suffering from polio, the Lang School, where she was a pupil was ordered closed for a couple of days. The school is attended by 51 pupils and Mrs. Eugene Rabbie is the teacher.

Beryl Ruth Kemp, daughter of Charles Thomas Kemp and the former Isobel Edwards, resided in Cavan Township before moving to Lang two years ago.

She was a member of the Full Gospel Pentecostal Church and attended school in Lang.

She is survived by a sister, Charlene 7, at home, two brothers, Roy of Oshawa, and John 5, at home, and her grandmother Mrs. B. M. Edwards of Lang.

The funeral service will be conducted at the graveside in Keene cemetery on Wednesday at 2:30 p.m., by the Rev. F. H. Parlee of Dublin Street Pentecostal Church, Peterborough.

Weeds In Lake Halt Search For Pair Thought Drowned

LINDSAY—(ENS)—Searchers for the bodies of two missing Toronto people, Glen South, 33, of Hallam Ave., and Lillian Watson, 31, of Bathurst St., York township, have settled down to waiting until the bodies appear either on the shoreline or surface of the waters of Pigeon Lake.

Provincial Police, under Corporal Ken Dennis, began dragging operations Monday morning after recovery of the couple's overturned boat was reported Sunday night. Officers and searchers spent most of Sunday night covering the islands near the spot where the boat was found.

According to police, the two victims hired a boat at Lakeview Lodge, four miles south of Bobcaygeon, on Sunday afternoon. A guide, Bob Swartman, later found their overturned boat, with its motor still attached and fishing tackle wrapped around one seat, about three-quarters of a mile from shore.

Police said the lake had been rough on Sunday afternoon and noted that the motor seemed too heavy for the small boat. The pair were identified from personal effects later found in South's car, which was found on the shore.

Dragging operations were suspended when the drags became fouled on the weedy bottom of the lake. A search of weedbeds was carried out Monday, but was also given up when weeds fouled the propellers of searching boats.

Late Monday police were still seeking Miss Watson's mother, believed to be living in Dundalk.

Because of high winds on Sunday, police were unable to confine the searching to any area smaller than one mile by a mile and a half in extent.

Change Method Of Fixing Salary Of Postmasters

Changes in the basis of determining postmasters' salaries were predicted today by Argyle McFarlane of the revenue post office division.

Mr. McFarlane said these changes would not necessarily mean increases in postmasters' salaries, but would make salaries commensurate with the work done. He was speaking at the three-day convention of the Canadian Postmasters' Association here.

"I am not promising you that you will get increases but we are preparing to do something about what you actually receive for the work you do. By the beginning of 1954, I expect salaries will be based on the transactions which every postmaster is called on to perform. Forms will be issued shortly by the department to get statistics of all the work done, for one week, by every postmaster.

"These forms will ask for detailed information on every transaction. They will be checked by the district offices and then at departmental headquarters. The change of basis in salary is not to provide general increases but to be fair," said Mr. McFarlane.

The speaker mentioned that the plan to fill the postmasterships of post offices of over $3,000 annual revenue was to do so through promotion from the ranks of qualified employees in the postal district.

Mr. McFarlane then straightened out some knotty points regarding the recently passed Public Service Superannuation Act which had replaced the old Civil Service Superannuation measure. Among the features of the new act were the admission to superannuation of temporary employees, and some minor changes regarding the benefits for widows and children.

The conference, which began Monday, will conclude Wednesday evening with a dinner at 6.30 p.m.

MOH's Salary Raised To $7,500

The committee of the whole city council, Monday night, unanimously endorsed a proposal to raise the salary of the Medical Officer of Health to $7,500.

The proposal was made by the chairman of the Board of Health, Ald. J. A. Dewart, who said that the MOH, Dr. J. P. Wells "had not pressed for the increase."

Ald. Dewart said Dr. Wells had come to the city on October 14, 1952, at the same salary as his predecessor, Dr. R. A. Kelly, $5,800 plus a 19 per cent cost-of-living bonus, which was slightly less than he had been paid in Prince Edward County.

With the amalgamation of the school health services, Ald. Dewart said, Dr. Wells had taken on added responsibilites He had reorganized the staff of his department and "the time has come now when I feel the board can say we have a thoroughly competent staff." Two new members are expected to report for duty shortly.

Ald. Dewart said Dr. Wells had also made a very extensive study of the grants available from the federal government and application had been made for them. He predicted the department would be well within its budget of about $54,000, chiefly because of a shortage of staff at the first of the year.

GETTING LESS

At the same time, Ald. Dewart said, because of a drop in the cost of living, Dr. Wells was actually getting less than when he started.

"He has certainly come through a trying year," Ald. Dewart said. "He hasn't taken any holidays but now he has a staff completely adequate for all purposes."

Mayor Hugh Waddell said he agreed with what Ald. Dewart said and Ald. T. D. Miller strongly supported the proposed salary increase.

"The whole health picture in the city has vastly improved in the past few years," Ald. Miller said. "I can't help but feel we are very fortunate in getting a man of Dr. Wells' calibre for $7,500."

Ald. A. B. Burrows commented "$7,500 is a very low salary for a medical man."

The only dubious note was struck by Ald. H. T. Rehill. "Isn't it a bit irregular giving a man a raise unless it's requested?" he asked.

"When Dr. Wells came his appointment was for one year," Mayor Waddell explained. "We wanted to find out two things: How he liked his job and how his job liked him. I know one other department head who was recently appointed for one year and then his salary would be revised."

"I don't recall any promise about salary," Ald. Rehill said.

"There was no promise about salary at all," His Worship said. "Dr. Wells' year will be up on October 14 and the thought was that the council might consider what it was willing to do."

Ald. Dewart warned that the fact that Dr. Wells was the only applicant for the position indicated the "extreme shortage of people qualified to do the work." There was one other applicant but he didn't have the necessary qualifications.

Expect First Frost To White Roofs

As to the crop effects of a heavy frost that is expected to whiten the roofs of Central Ontario tonight, Jack Oke of National Grocers said it couldn't do much harm to vegetable crops around here.

"It won't do any harm to potatoes, cabbages and cauliflower, and tomatoes and peppers are already picked, for the most part. Several light frosts recently held up growth of the peppers and tomatoes."

From the Niagara district the peach harvest is likely to come to an end this week. Grapes are rather plentiful and in fine quality, and gages and plums are also at the height of their harvest tide.

Information abroad this morning carried from the weather experts a warning of approaching frost tonight.

Businessmen Of Montreal Pleased with City

Montreal business men who are visting Peterborough as the guests of this city's manufacturers and merchants, climaxed their first offical day with a fowl supper and sing song at the South Beach Hotel.

Monday was spent by the group touring some of the local industrial plants and the only complaint of the vistors was the shortness of time which limited their inspection and in fact, their whole stay here.

At a luncheon at the Kawarthat Club Monday two members of the head table, John Madden of Outboard Marine and Tom Allen, assistant editor of the Examiner, addressed the assemblage in French and the applause was intermingled with such exclamation as "bon" and "tres bien."

"Most of our visit, we are speaking English," said Ovila Fortier, chairman of the dinner on Monday night, "and our Peterborough friends are speaking French. There will come a time when we will no longer understand each other."

ONE CITY A YEAR

This group of men visit at least one Canadian city annually, Peterborough in their mind, compares with any place they have yet encountered. "The cleanliness of your city is remarkable," said their travelling chairman, Roderigue LeClair, 'especially when you consider the number of industries here.

"We, speaking for myself and companions, are satsified beyond our hopes and only wish that our stay here could be longer. There is so much of interest."

Mr. Madden stated that the contact made by the visit of the Montreal businessmen is the stuff of which cities, countries and nations are built. "There results an inter-change of culture, language and ideas which is invaluable in the growth of any country, and this is Canada's era."

Many of the group will attend a fishing party today complete with guides and a short dinner. Others who prefer golf will go to the Kawartha links and tonight the entire group will assemble at the South Beach Hotel for a final supper in Peterborough. No doubt the dining room will long echo the French folk songs and general joviality so spontaneous in this group of men.

It is certain that Peterborough will stand in high regard by all those who have any contact with these Montrealers within the next year. Their praise of the city was sincere.

A special number on the program, for which Mrs. H. L. Scott was the convener, was a chorus by the grandmothers, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus."

Other items on the program were community singing, with Mrs. W. Anderson at the piano; readings by Mrs. W. Smith, Mrs. E. Goldsmith and Mrs. W. Ketchen; a piano solo by Mrs. H. L. Scott; a vocal solo by Lynn Anderson, 4 years; a vocal solo by Mrs. G. Wright; current events by Mrs. Scott.

Waterfront Fire

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—A three-alarm fire destroyed the Dold Feed Co. building on Buffalo's waterfront Monday, injuring eight persons and causing an estimated $100,000 damage.

Reforestration Described To Rotary Club

Methods being used to reforest the unarable land in Ontario was explained to members of the Rotary Club Monday at their weekly luncheon meeting, by John Bell, of the Department of Lands and Forests.

Mr. Bell said that the word conservation had a thrifty meaning. To conserve is to save and protect, to leave what we ourselves enjoy in such good condition that others may also share the enjoyment. Conservation is the opposite of extravagance and wastefulness. It is an expression of good manners to the nation and to our fellow man, including those of generations not yet born.

Today only 70 per cent of the forests' trees are able to be shipped to the mills. The other 30 per cent is lost to man because of fires and insects.

This summer alone in the Lindsay district, 11 fires were started by campers, four by settlers, four by road gangs, one incendiary, six miscellaneous, nine by lightning, and three by unknown causes. These figures show, pointed out Mr. Bell, that 98 per cent of the fires in the Lindsay district were caused by man.

There are three and a half million square miles of land in Canada today. One-third of it is forest and the other two-thirds is in production, watershed and erosion. To keep a stable water supply in any country, Mr. Bell pointed out, you must have forests. For if you cut down all your trees the water supply will slowly diminish and run off the land, carrying valuable top soil with it.

Europeans believe that 20 per cent of the land should be covered by forests if there is going to be a good farming community. In Ontario alone, there is less than 10 per cent.

Mr. Bell also showed the colored film, Return of the Trees, which showed what happened to the land after all the trees had been cut down and what the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests are doing to help reforest tae barren and unarable land in Ontario.

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP)—Capt. W. T. Myalls, 46-year-old skipper of the foundered North Sydney schooner Norsay, arrived here Monday night with his six-man crew.

The Norsay, a 126-ton auxiliary schooner, struck a floating derelict and sank in the St. Lawrence river early Saturday.

"We got away from her just in time because sticks were flying in all directions," the captain said. "That was our deck load of 40-foot logs."

The Norsya went down in about two hours. The crew saved only a few belongings.

CamborneMarks Church Birthday

COLDSPRINGS (ENS)—Large congregations attended anniversary services on Sunday at Camborne United Church. The Rev. Gordon Whitehorn, Campbellford, and ex-chairman of the Cobourg Presbytery, was guest speaker.

At the morning service Mr. Whitehorn chose as his subject, "The Parable of the Rich Fool," based on the Parable of St. Luke. Mr. Herbert Lander gave a welcome to the guest speaker. There was special music, with Mrs. O. McClelland at the organ.

At the evening service, Mr. Whitehorn based his sermon on words of the Apostle Paul on the meaning of happiness.

The church was decorated with baskets of gladioli and asters. Preceding and following the services, the chimes and bells pealed forth in old familiar hymn tunes from the church belfry. Mr. C. Willis was in charge of this arrangement.

Permanent Office Sought By Lakefield Chamber

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—The necessity of providing a permanent office for the Chamber of Commerce was voiced by president, Donald Hendren when he addressed a recent meeting. The chamber had been successful in making it possible for residents of the village and community to buy their motor vehicle licenses and permits in Lakefield instead of Peterborough and temporary quarters were set up in the council chamber, but a permanent office was desired.

The chamber now has 79 members, composed of 36 resort owners, 42 business men and one other classification.

During the year, under the chairmanship of A. W. Stewart, 575 maps of Lakefield were printed on durable linen cloth and distributed free to each family in the village. This was made possible by the sale of advertising. It is hoped, that by this means, people will become more familiar with the streets and although nameplates do not mark them yet, the first are on order and will soon be ready. This latter item is being looked after by the village council.

Probably the biggest venture of the local C. of C. is the Tourist Information booth located on Queen Street and under the capable management of the Chamber's secretary, Mrs. William O'Brien. The report from this division shows inquiries were slightly down from last year, but that many tourists, seeking direction during the five years the booth has been in operation, were returning each year. Tourists requesting information are given resort folders and any directions they might ask, but were left free to make their own choice of location.

The Tourist Comimttee also distributed, by means of advertising, 5,000 maps of the Kawarthas, which were of great assistance to the travelling public.

In conclusion Mr. Hendren stated that the chamber was still hoping and trying to influence industries to locate in the village and assured his audience that all possible steps were being taken to achieve this end.

Sailing Dinghy Be Given Prince Charles

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP) — The Auckland harbor board is to give the Queen a sailing dinghy for Prince Charles of a type in which thousands of New Zealand boys and girls have learned the rudiments of sailing.

Yachting is a people's sport in New Zealand and large numbers of schoolchildren have their own dinghies from which they graduate to larger craft and eventually to ocean-going keel yachts.

The craft to be presented to Prince Charles is a seven-foot "P" class boat, a type seen in dozens at regattas throughout the country. It is unsinkable and has a single sail with no jib.

Its big feature is that it can be rapidly righted after capsizing. Most regattas have a "capsize" race for P class boats. The one-man crew must capsize the dinghy in the course of the race, right it again, and continue to the finishing post. The art of choosing the right moment for the upset, to lose a minimum of wind and sailing time, is a big factor in success.

Auckland is the greatest centre of yachting in a country where every inlet and lake has its fleet of small craft, and Auckland yachtsmen plan to give the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh a memorable harbor welcome when they arrive at the end of the year in the liner Gothic.

"What the heck is happening?"

What a mixup!

Phil Rizzuto, Yankee shortstop (10) makes a fast jump back to third when Cleveland catcher Birdie Tebbetts (15) tries a run-down.

A spectator asks, "What the heck's happening?" Al Rosen is covering the bag—but what's second baseman Bobby Avila (1) doing in there?

It's an exciting incident, and one of many that spell out a story you can't get in full—even if you're there when it happens — until you see your newspaper.

Seeing an event or listening to one can be very exciting. A photograph can be exciting, too—or a headline, or a brief announcement.

But they only whet your appetite for news. They cannot satisfy your hunger for the whole story—fast. Only the newspaper can do that.

• That goes for advertising, too. The brief message that hangs in the air . . . or brief headlines here or there . . . may indeed have a momentary interest.

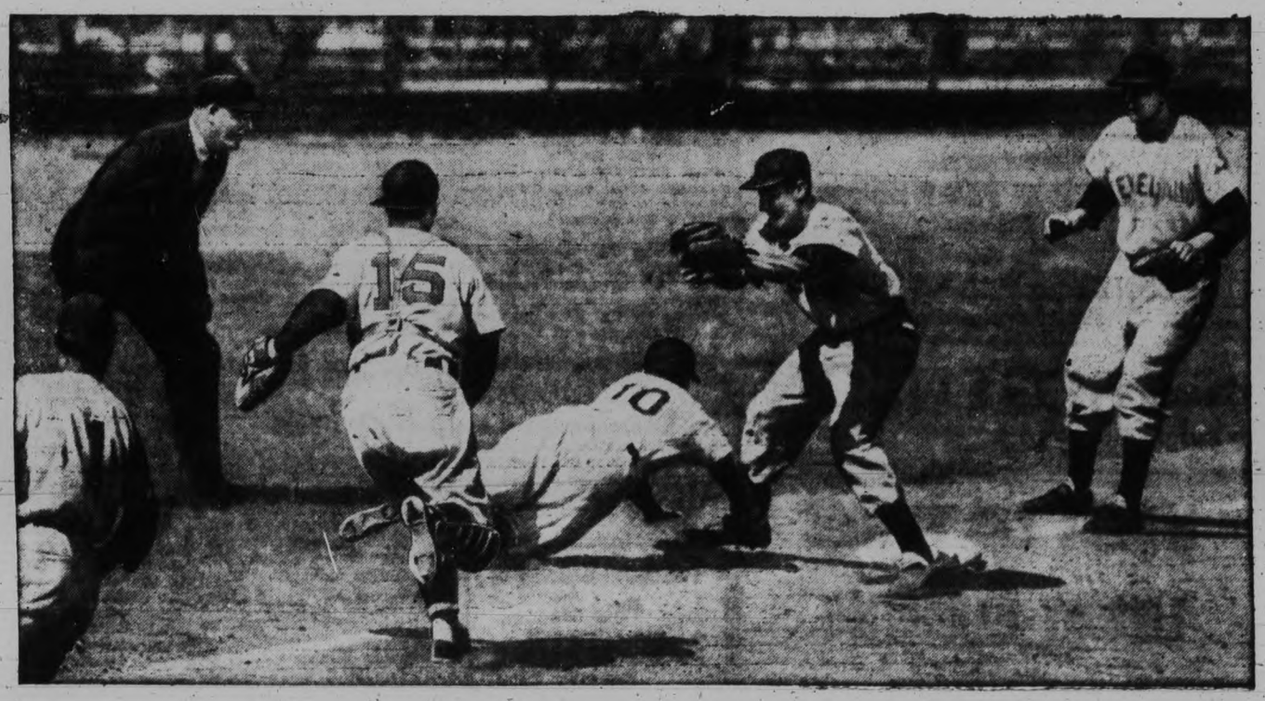
But the newspaper ad carries the brass-tacks quality, the urgency of the newspaper itself.

Like a news item, the ad can be examined and re-examined. Can be read any time. Anywhere.

And just as the newspaper speaks the special language of the town it mirrors, the ads themselves have the same important local quality. No other medium can match this quality.

Add the fact that the newspaper reaches almost everybody in town, and you know why the newspaper is the nation's most effective advertising medium.

The newspaper is always "first with the most"



This message prepared by BUREAU OF ADVERTISING, and published in the interests of a full understanding of newspapers by The Peterborough Examiner.

Lakefield Appeal Changes Bylaw

LAKEFIELD (ENS) — Lakefield village council met in regular session in the council chamber with Reeve W. C. Grant presiding and all members present.

R. C. Darling addressed the council about the use of Memorial Hall for a play being sponsored by the C.T.P. group, and it was suggested that, although it was a worthy cause the rules governing the renting of the hall would have to be observed, but promised that, if they should run into financial difficulties as a result of support, council would reconsider the matter.

Reeve Grant gave a verbal report of his meeting with the Smith Council on the question of night soil being dumped into Smith, explaining to them the position in which Lakefield would be placed were their bylaw prohibiting such dumping passed. He suggested that rather than prohibit the disposal they should make it one of control. His request was granted and regular inspections will be made and certain rules set up which will have to be observed by Lakefield.

A request from Leonard Cartwright to transfer the lease of lot 3, plan 30 to his daughter was granted.

The clerk was instructed to apply for the 1952 Interim Road Subsidy and Reeve Grant and Councillor W. A. Killoran were appointed delegates to the Regional Municipal Industrial Promotion Conference at Port Hope.

Council decided to defer the vote on the sale of park lots until the municipal election in 1953. This material will be prepared and placed in the hands of the ratepayers as soon as possible.

The Lakefield Sea Scouts were granted the remaining $50 from the funds set aside in the recreation budget for 1953. The finance committee approved payment of bills to the amount of $6,661.56.

Sussex Vicar Under Fire

BOGNOR REGIS, England (Reuters)—A Sussex vicar was under fire today from trade unions in his county for revising the fourth commandment ("Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy") to express his opinion of modern working and religious habits in Britain."

In a recent sermon the Rev. W. G. Sinclair Snow said the commandment nowadays might read: "Remember that thou go easy in the evil necessity of work.

"Five days thou may'st labor with every possible rest for tea. On the sixth day, or the seventh, thou may'st do overtime at double rates, for this is the law of the unions.

"On the seventh day thou canst please thyself about bed or sport and read the Sunday newspapers."

By 14 votes to three the Sussex Federation of Trades Councils resolved to ask the Bishop of Chichester, Dr. G. K. A. Bell, to rebuke the vicar and instruct him to "refrain from damaging and un-Christian-like conduct in the future."

Housewife Says Law Helps Unions Conspire

TORONTO — An attractive housewife, and mother of two children, delivered the grand jury report Monday and suggested that an antiquated section of the Criminal Code encouraged unions to conspire and break the law.

Mrs. Robert Ironside, of Yorkminster Rd., first forewoman of a grand jury in York County, made her personal criticism of the Criminal Code after reading the jury's report condemning the practice of remanding mental cases to the Don Jail.

"If Your Lordship will permit the forewoman to speak on her own behalf," she began her postscript before Chief Justice McRuer. Mrs. Ironside said she was particularly interested in the definition of conspiracy, which she thought was "queer."

"Is it not time to amend the 19th century law (it was passed in 1892) encouraging the largest group of conspirators? The law allows them to conspire for their own reasonable protection, but have they not gone beyond this point and are they not therefore breaking the law?" she asked.

NOT TOO CLEAR

Mrs. Ironside didn't make it clear that she was referring to unions, in her personal report to the chief justice. But she told a reporter later that this was her intent.

The grand jury returned true bills on indictments charging combines in the rubber and pine paper industries. Later, she said she felt it was unfair that companies could not get together "for their own reasonable protection."

"Labor organizations apparently are exempt and I don't feel they should be," Mrs. Ironside said. Labor has been well protected through the years, she felt, and it was about time that the code defining conspiracy was changed.

Chief Justice McRuer said he had been sending grand jury reports to the authorities for years, without results, but he expressed the hope that public opinion would demand that some action be taken.

27th Brigade Has Prestige–Sparling

HANNOVER (CP) — Maj.-Gen. H. A. Sparling, vice-chief of the Canadian general staff, says Canada's 27th brigade group in Germany enjoys high prestige among troops of other nations serving in Europe.

Gen. Sparling, who has just made a four-day inspection of the brigade, says its training accomplishments over the last year have been most noteworthy.

In Europe, troops have training facilities that are not possible in Canada, he said. "Over here we can exercise an entire brigade on realistic field manoeuvres with other large military formations."

Passenger Attempts Open Plane Door

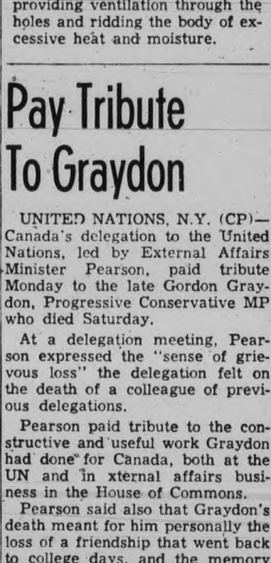
LOS ANGELES (AP)—A circus performer tried to force open a window and later a door in an airliner flying from Honolulu to Los Angeles Monday, Pan American Airways reported.

After the second try, the man, Frank Thomas Doyle, Jr., 33, of New Orleans, was subdued and tied by cargo ropes until the plane carrying 60 passengers landed here the airline said.

Police took him to hospital for observation. He gave no explanation for his acts.

Too Old For Army

TRENTON (CP)—Jim Macdonald of Toronto has finally decided he's too old for the army. At 68 he's not going to re-enlist. A veteran of both world wars, he joined the army again last year and went to Korea, where he served for 18 days in the front lines before authorities realized his age.



FOR WARMTH—The Climastat suit, developed by the Army Quartermaster Corps, will help GIs keep warm while in Arctic temperatures. Two layers of spongelike univellular polyvinyl chloride are used for insulating material. Worn beneath wind-resistant and water-repellent clothes, when the self-regulating temperature suit is active, a forced pumping action starts, providing ventilation through the holes and ridding the body of excessive heat and moisture.

Noted Journalist H. S. Pollard Dies In New York

NEW YORK (AP)—Harold Stanley Pollard, 75, chief editorial writer of the New York World-Telegram and Sun, whose crusading journalistic career was inspired by intimate association with Joseph Pulitzer, died Monday.

Pollard had written for the Boston Transcript and worked as a cub reporter and critic on the New York Times when in 1906 he became literary secretary and companion to Pulitzer, publisher of the New York Evening World and other papers.

He remained with Pulitzer until his death in 1911, then became chief editorial writer for the World. In 1918 he became editor.

Under his leadership the World won the 1928 Pulitzer award for meritorious public service.

In 1931, when the World and Telegram were combined, he was made an editorial writer and helped the new paper win the 1932 Pulitzer award.

He was later made chief editorial writer and continued in that job when the World-Telegram took over the Sun.

Pay Tribute To Graydon

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Canada's delegation to the United Nations, led by External Affairs Minister Pearson, paid tribute Monday to the late Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative MP who died Saturday.

At a delegation meeting, Pearson expressed the "sense of grievous loss" the delegation felt on the death of a colleague of previous delegations.

Pearson paid tribute to the constructive and useful work Graydon had done for Canada, both at the UN and in xternal affairs business in the House of Commons.

Pearson said also that Graydon's death meant for him personally the loss of a friendship that went back to college days, and the memory of which he would always cherish.

Graydon, who represented Peel in the Commons since 1935, was buried Monday at Brampton.

Extra-Nuclear Physicists Have Glamor

KYOTO, Japan (AP)—Atomic scientists are the glamor boys today with their awesome progress on H-bomb destruction and the unfolding potential of almost unlimited power for peaceful work.

But there is glitter too in the field of extra-nuclear physicists—scientists who explore outside the hearts of atoms in the mysterious spaces where electrons zoom in crazy patterns at fantastic speeds.

And their research promises to harness the elements even closer to man's needs in the world of tomorrow.

In fact, some of the 54 scientists from 14 countries meeting in this ancient capital of Japan with their Japanese hosts say that in the long run extra-nuclear physics may be more valuable to mankind than atomic energy.

Ever hear of custom-made chemistry? Non-stop electricity?

A group of scientists informally discussed their specialties outside the closed meeting.

"Looking into the future, we may some day be able to put all of chemistry on a prescription basis," said Prof. C. A. Coulson of Oxford University.

"We could decide just what we want the chemical to do. Its effect on industry would be incalculable."

Coulson, trained in physics, chemistry, bacteriology and mathematics, already has applied this technique to medical research with interesting results.

As a mathematician, he made long and complicated chemical calculations predicting the qualities of half a dozen hitherto-unsuspected anaesthetics. They were made and performed exactly as predicted.

Prof. John Bardeen of the University of Illinois said:

"We have now discovered something we call super-conductivity—or electricity without friction.

"When we get temperatures down as low as we can get them, close to absolute at 273 degrees below zero centigrade, we can start an electrical current flowing in a ring of wire.

"Then we take the original electrical impulse away—and the current keeps going around and around.

"If we could keep our power lines chilled close to absolute zero, what an advantage that would be! It is like starting water flowing with a pump, stopping the pump and having the water keep right on flowing."

Travel Director Gives Talk To Business Women

Highlight of the monthly dinner meeting of the Business and Professional Women's Club, Monday evening at the YWCA, was an illustrated talk by Miss Carol Lane, women's travel director of the Shell Oil Company of Canada, who was introduced to the members by Miss Helen Moore.

Miss Lane said "All one needs is a road map, a tank full of gasoline and an open mind to make geography a living adventure." She suggested visiting historic spots within a 200-mile radius of home for tourettes or weekend holidays. "Look for the unusual, and if possible get some prior knowledge before starting out."

"A well-planned suitcase of clothes should provide a trunkful of costumes" Miss Lane told the ladies. A travel wardrobe should provide for any adventure and any weather she reminded. "In selecting the wardrobe plan for color co-ordination and mix-match possibilities. Choose materials that are crease-resistant and easily cared for."

She then advised on good packing procedure, recommending that heavy articles such as shoes, travelling iron, folding ironing board, folding umbrella, etc. go in first. "Pack in layers with tissue paper separating each layer and between folds. Be sure that articles needed first are on the top." Miss Lane unpacked her bag as she talked, showing a well-selected list of costumes and accessories which the audience examined at the close.

As Miss Lane not only travels and gives talks on travelling, but writes travel ideas and edits bulletins and booklets, she provided each person present with an envelope containing advisory booklets, a packing record and a road map.

Mrs. Mabel Louden expressed the appreciation of the club for her visit.

President Miss Alice Hardwicke led discussion on several business items.

The delicious dinner enjoyed on this occasion was provided by South Group.

MR. AND MRS. CARL PETTIFER who will live in Lakefield are shown following their wedding in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Perrytown, on Saturday. The bride is the former Miss Cleo Morton.

Pettifer-Morton Wedding

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday in St. Paul's Anglican Church, Perrytown, when Cleo Isobel, only daughter of Mr. Reid Morton and the late Mrs. Morton of RR 1, Port Hope, was united in marriage with Carl Douglas Pettifer, youngest son of Mrs. Roland Pettifer and the late Mr. Pettifer of Campbellford.

The Rev. A. W. Smith of Omemee performed the ceremony and organist Mrs. Edwin Wilson played the wedding music. The processional hymn was sung by the choir. During the signing of the register the choir sang "God's Goodness Hath Been Great." Later the choir formed a guard of honor on the church steps for the wedding party.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a strapless gown of white nylon net over slipper satin, fashioned with a redingote of Chantilly lace. The front of the skirt fell into scalloped tiers of nylon net over lace. The jacket was of Chantilly lace over slipper satin, with a Peter Pan collar caught with tiny satin buttons, and the sleeves came to points over her hands. Her veil was of imported illusion and was caught to a headband of crystal beads and seed pearls, and fell gracefully to the floor. She carried a nosegay of red roses and white stephanotis.

The bride's attendants were Miss Barbara Gerow of Peterborough as maid of honor, wearing apple green, and Misses Erma Beatty and Jean Rowe of Port Hope in Lilac. The strapless gowns were fashioned alike in waltz length of nylon net over silk taffeta with redingotes of organdie embossed with silver flowers. They wore matching mittens and jackets, with headdresses of bands of flowers matching their gowns. Miss Gerow carried a nosegay of yellow and mauve baby 'mums with pink roses and the bridesmaids carried yellow 'mums with roses, also in nosegays. Flower girl was little Mary Gerow of Havelock, sister of the maid of honor. She wore a replica of the bride's dress, also of white, her veil caught to a row of tiny white flowers. She carried a miniature nosegay of red roses and white stephanotis.

Mr. William Oliver of Campbellford attended the groom and ushers were Jack Morton of Port Hope, brother of the bride, and Vince Forestell of Campbellford.

The reception was held in the St. Lawrence Hotel, Port Hope, where Mrs. Lloyd Campbell, cousin of the bride, received in a purple crepe dress, with a satin scroll piping. She wore a black feathered hat, with black shoes and gloves. Her corsage was of yellow roses. Receiving for the groom was his mother, attired in grey silk, with black accessories and corsage of pink roses.

For a trip to points west, the bride chose a champagne boucle suit and matching hat. She carried a squirrel neckpiece, and her bag and shoes were of copper calf, with copper shade gloves also. Her corsage was of chartreuse baby 'mums.

On return, Mr. and Mrs. Pettifer will live at Lakefield.

Spent 40 Years In China Cannot Feel At Home There

VANCOUVER (CP)—A tiny, grey haired American woman who gave her heart to China only to have it broken by the Red regime, has arrived here.

Geraldine Skinner, who lived more than 40 years in China, says "China was my whole life, and now I don't even feel at home there."

Born in Chicago, she was taken to China as a baby. She still uses her maiden name although she was married to a Chinese educationist named Yang, during the Chiang Kai-shek regime, and speaks Chinese as well as English.

"Modern China is only a shell of the country I used to know," she said. "The Chinese aren't Chinese any more. They are getting more Russian all the time."

Miss Skinner's husband died before the Sino-Japanese war and her daughter was married to a Chinese in a lonely country spot.

Before the Communist invasion the young couple were democratic thinkers, but "they couldn't resist the Russian indoctrination classes and the propagandists."

"The Chinese used to be individuals in every sense of the word, but now they attend meetings and think as one."

She said she was not under pressure to leave China, but that she made her living teaching English—a language that has become dead in China. "I got along all right because some of the Chinese thought I was a Russian. There were at least 100 Russians in Hankow where I lived. Every Chinese university department has a Russian adviser. Elderly people are forced to study the Russian language."

1953 Miss Canada Is Guest At Fashion Show

Tall, lovely Miss Canada of 1953, was the outstanding guest at the fashion show Monday evening at which Black's of Peterborough entertained about 175 ladies.

Miss Kathy Archibald, who is from Kelowna, B.C., is now on a trans-Canada tour from Victoria, B.C., to St. John's, Newfoundland, making personal appearances as "Miss Canada." She was a guest at Black's through courtesy of a brand of hose she sponsors, handled by the stroe, and the local distributor of a brand of soft drink which she is endorsing, and which was served to all the guests after the show.

This tour is a part of Miss Archibald's prize which included a $2,000 wardrobe and a $1,000 scholarship which she is going to use at the Ontario Veterinary College to become a veterinary surgeon. As she finds the duties of being "Miss Canada" somewaht demanding she is putting off entering college until next year.

The fashion show was presented by models who are all employees of Black's store except little Nancy Boulter and her older sister Marlene, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Boulter. The children displayed outfits from the children's department and their mother was modelling ensembles for the stylish young matron.

Outstanding among the smart fall outfits shown was a grey and turquoise two-piece wool dress with matching stole. For after five there was shown one of the popular black wool tops with a full taffeta skirt with unusual tucking. One unusual fall coat was in two-tone grey and had a cape collar. Another in the new grape shade had a beaded collar. Either grey Persian lamb or mink were used on the fur-trimmed coats shown. A selection of the all-purpose coats with matching hats included several reversibles.

Something new they are featuring is the "duffle coat" which it was suggested will replace the station wagon coat. These come in children's and adult sizes. They are modelled after coats worn by seamen, are lightweight and have attached hoods.

Racks of fur coats placed for inspection included a $2,000 mink jacket.

Dress-up dresses shown were mostly taffeta. Fall suits were of boucle and wool and included the box-type jacket. Several interesting sweater tops were in the sportswear display. The show closed with a most attractive television or lounging suit of red velvet slacks and a white quilted taffeta short coat which is trimmed with red velvet.

Draw prizes won by some of the lucky guests were of lingerie.

The show will be presented again tonight and prizes given, but Miss Canada cannot be there again.

Gloves Lend Slim Line

The slim line that is a focal point of the fall fashion picture is carried out in glove styles. Trend-setting gloves in the longer lengths follow a slender arm line, tapering to a snug wrist.

Even shortie gloves, slated for fall and winter success, are shaped to the wrist to effect a tiny, feminine hand appearance. Often a shapely cuff, banded, stitched or piped finishes a brief short glove.

Dressy gloves will be most popular in velvet. Shirred at the wrist and gently flaring to a disciplined gauntlet top halfway up the arm, many will feature rhinestone, jewel and jet sparkle. Others will be trimmed with satin for a shiny-dull contrast.

Black will continue to be important, but deep jewel colors will share attention. Colored cotton gloves take well to black or bright velvet cuffs or edging.

Gloves for daytime wear in cottons, suedes, calf, glace and even pigskin are equipped with smart accents, such as side tabs, side cuffs, button trims, contrasting panels and bits of embroidery.

Textured nylons are newsy early-fall glove fabrics as well as the printed and textured cottons that made a hit last year. Seventy-denier nylons will offer applique and embroidery touches.

Even knitted gloves have exchanged their usual bulk for form-fitted, neatness. Leather gloves with warm wool or sheepskin linings are treated for a new supple feeling and will be more gracefully designed.

Many beige colors in casual gloves will participate in the costume look when worn to correspond with other accessories.

MR. AND MRS. JAMES D. MURRAY as pictured following their marriage Saturday morning at St. John the Baptist Church. The bride is the former Miss Shirley Daniel. (Choate Studio Photo)

Murray-Daniel Wedding

At St. John the Baptist Roman Catholic Church on Saturday, the marriage was solemnized by the Rev. Dr. F. M. Grant, rector, of Shirley Frances Daniel and James Douglas Murray. The bride is daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Daniel of Peterborough and the groom a son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Murray of Kingston.

Bouquets of red roses were on the altar table. Organist Mr. Heribert Michel played the wedding music and a trio composed of Messrs. Lorne Ritchie, William Ritchie and Harold McLaren, sang "On This Day" during the signing of the register.

The bride's gown was of white tulle over taffeta and had a tulle and lace redingote with Queen Ann collar and skirt extending in a lace train at the back. Her veil of tulle fell to fingertip length and she was carrying a cascade bouquet or red roses. Shewas given in marriage by her father.

Miss Patricia Murray was the maid of honor and was wearing a gown with blue velvet top and bouffant skirt of blue net over taffeta and matching stole. Miss Joyce Foley and Mrs. Del Killian as bridemaids were in frocks of mauve and yellow net over matching taffeta and they wore lace stoles. Flower girl was the bride's 10-year old sister, Sandra Daniel and she wore a yellow taffeta dress with white net overdress. All wore matching feather headbands and they carried heart-shaped bouquets of 'mums and roses.

Groomsman was Mr. George Gimblett. Ushers were Del Killian and John Flynn.

The reception following was in the Assumption Hall. The bride's mother received in a blue taffeta dress and blue velvet hat and she wore a corsage of red carnations. The groom's mother was gowned in blue lace and she wore a grey velvet hat and a corsage of red roses.

For the honeymoon trip to New York city the bride donned a navy feather hat and pink scarf and gloves.

When they return Mr. and Mrs. Murray will live on King George Street.

DOROTHY DIX

Buys Cheap Jewellery – Mate Objects

DEAR MISS DIX: To what extent should a husband be consulted on the purchase of furniture or a wife's personal items? My husband gives me an allowance, and never questions how I spend it. Recently, I bought some jewelry—nothing expensive, and I'm paying for it out of my allowance. He says I should have consulted him about it; I claim that since it was a personal purchase it only concerned me. We have been married a short time.

Mrs. B. J.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The bride who doesn't consult or discuss the matter husband becomes the wife who complains bitterly later of her husband's disinterestedness. If you bear in mind that the early days of your marriage are the foundation of a long life together, you may appreciate the fact that if you begin with the supposition that certain decisions are yours alone, you may wind up with a man indifferent to anything you do.

The purchase of jewely that requires payment spread over a certain period is not a minor matter, and you definitely should have asked your husband's opinion about it. He is fair and reasonable with you in financial matters; it behooves you to show him the same consideration. You would enjoy the jewelry much more if you had made its buying a mutual project.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 70 plus, and find myself very irritated with old friends who seem to have one-track minds. Their main topic of conversation is about themselves and small personal matters in other people's lives. I care for my own home and run a small business which gives me lots of contact with the public. I live alone. My friends all have more material things than I have, yet they are interested in nothing but themselves.

Carrie R.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Alas, the same situation applies to many people far younger than 70. Mental isolation and complete self-centredness comes to many people, especially women, when their children leave home. If everyone could share your interest in life, and in things beyond your immediate horizon, there would be far less discontent among our oldsters. Do what you can to help your friends in developing their interests and spreading your own philosophy.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a girl of 15. Recently, several new girls moved into our neighborhood and I became quite friendly with them. My mother likes and approves of them with the exception of one who happens to be the one I like most. This girl has been trying to get me to double date with her, but my mother won't let me.

Elinor G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your mother's reasons are doubtless very good ones and you should heed them. Undesirable traits often have a queer trick of masquerading as glamorous in the eyes of a teenager. You are in the process of learning this distinction. While you are acquiring mature knowledge let your mother's judgment guide you.

Are You Up To Your Elbows In Grapes? Asks M. Moore

BY MARY MOORE

If you want to introduce a little purple into your lives go into the grape business. If you expect to have lovely white hands on the day after stay out of it. Of course you can always wash your hands with lemon, so on second thought maybe you will make some grape juice and jelly and jam after all.

In our neck of the woods grapes are selling by the bushel at prices low enough for everyone.

I think grape juice is the easiest of all grape products to make so let us start with it.

GRAPE JUICE

Use clean well-ripened but not overripe grapes. Wash them well and strip from stems. Place in kettle, barely cover with water and boil until seeds float on top. Strain through cheesecloth bag without squeezing — preferably overnight. Measure juice. Replace over heat and bring to boil. For each 4 cups of juice add ½ cup sugar—no more is needed. Let mixture boil 5 minutes. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

GRAPE JAM

Wash and stem grapes. Press pulp from skins and cook it for 10 minutes or until seeds float, then run through sieve to remove seeds. Add the grape skins to this pulp and measure. Bring to boil and boil uncovered 10 minutes. Then add 2-3 cup sugar for each 1 cup of measured skins and pulp before they were boiled. Boil about 20 minutes or until somewhat thickened and of jam consistency. Pour into hot sterile jam jars and coat with hot new paraffin, adding a second coating when cold.

SPICED GRAPE JELLY

Wash and stem Concord grapes. Weigh 6 lbs. To them add 1 cup vinegar, 1 tablespoon whole cloves and 5 pieces of 1-inch stick cinnamon. Boil together, stirring carefully at first until plenty of juice has formed, until seeds float free—about 15 minutes. Strain, without pressing bag. Measure juice. Measure ¾ cup sugar for each 1 cup juice but do not add it yet. Bring juice to boiling point, then add sugar and stir only until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until jelly stage is reached. Dip a large spoon into the boiling syrup and lift the spoon so that the syrup runs off the side. When the syrup no longer runs off the spoon in a steady stream but separates into two distinct lines of drops, which "sheet" together, stop the cooking. Pour into sterile jelly glasses and cover with hot new paraffin, adding second coating when first is cold. Plain Grape Jelly is made in the same way, omitting the spices and vinegar, and using water in place of the vinegar.

GRAPE AND PEAR CONSERVE

Eight cups Concord grapes, measured after grapes are washed and pulled from stems, 3 cups water, 10 cups chopped and pared pears, 4½ cups sugar, and if desired, grated rind 1 orange or lemon and the juice from this orange or lemon and ¼ or ½ cup blanched shredded almonds. Separate skins from pulp of washed and measured grapes. Add 1½ cups water to the skins and 1½ cups to the pulp. Simmer skins and pulp separately until tender—about 15 minutes. Press pulp through sieve to remove seeds. Add the cooked grape skins to sieved pulp, then the chopped pears and orange or lemon rind, and the sugar. Boil uncovered for about 45 minutes, stirring very frequently. Five minutes before pouring add fruit juice and nuts. Pour into sterile jars and seal.

From One Cook to Another

Carnation Home Service Director

MEALS THAT PLEASE MEN

Most of us cook to please the men in our lives. We'd love to serve them steaks and roasts every day. But alas, we must be realistic. Well, you can be realistic so far as your food budget is concerned — yet serve really interesting meals — if you use Carnation Evaporated Milk. For instance, here's a dish that men applaud. A simple dish that's outstanding — but only when you count on double-rich Carnation to give it eye-appeal and heavenly flavor.

EGGS POLONAISE

(5 servings)

2 tbsps. flour
2 tbsps. butter
1 tsp. salt
2 cups undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
3 cups hot cooked rice
5 or 6 devilled eggs

Blend flour, butter and salt over hot water or low heat, stirring constantly. Stir in Carnation. Stir and cook until smoothly thickened. Halve and "devil" the eggs. Arrange rice on hot platter, with eggs on top — cover with the sauce.

THERE'LL BE TIMES of course, when you'll "let yourself go" and serve a wonderful roast of beef. When you do, make the occasion really memorable by serving a Yorkshire Pudding . . . made with Carnation. Just as it improves all cooking and baking, Carnation makes Yorkshire Pudding more delicious than ever — so light and crusty and tender!

YORKSHIRE PUDDING

(6 servings)

1 cup once-sifted flour
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup Carnation Evaporated Milk
½ cup water
2 eggs beaten light

Have oven very hot, 425° to 450°. Mix flour and salt. Combine Carnation and water and stir gradually into flour. Beat smooth with spoon. Add eggs. Have all the drippings from the roast very hot in roasting pan. Beat flour mixture with rotary beater for 2 minutes. Pour at once into fat. Bake about 25 minutes at 425° to 450°, until puffy and golden brown. Serve immediately.

Serve coffee at its best — "creamed" with Carnation. Coffee-lovers everywhere agree that nothing makes coffee look or taste so good, as Carnation. Yet Carnation costs only half as much as cream.

DESSERTS RATE HIGH with men — especially lemon-flavored desserts, I've found. And you'll discover that desserts made with Carnation Evaporated Milk are great favorites with men because of their creamy-smoothness and rich flavor. Here's a quick, easy and wonderful dessert that combines Carnation and lemon — a sure winner.

LEMON CAKE-PUDDING

(5 servings)

1½ tbsps. soft butter
2 tbsps. flour
⅔ cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
1 cup undiluted Carnation Evaporated Milk
Grated rind and juice of 2 lemons

Blend butter and flour. Add sugar, then unbeaten egg yolks. Mix in Carnation, lemon rind and juice. Beat egg whites until stiff, not dry; fold into lemon mixture. Turn into baking dish. Set in pan of hot water. Bake about 55 minutes in rather slow oven (325 deg.), until set.

WHEN YOU USE Carnation, be prepared for the day friend husband says doubtfully — "Honey, that was a very special meal. But can we afford such rich-tasting food?" That's the time to be ready with Carnation's economy story! Tell him that the reason Carnation makes food so delicious, is that it is specially heat-refined. That heat-refinement means richer flavor and consistency — even when Carnation is mixed with an equal amount of water, for whole milk purposes. Tell him that undiluted, Carnation can be used in cream recipes and in coffee — at half the price of cream. So with Carnation, you serve better meals — yet save on your cream and milk bill. Meals are much more interesting when you use Carnation instead of bottled milk. Have you tried Carnation?

Communion Table Given Apsley Church

APSLEY (ENS)—A very impressive service was held in Trinity United Church on Sunday evening when the Rev. E. W. Rowland, assistant minister of George Street United Church, Peterborough, dedicated a beautiful oak communion table in memory of three brothers and their wives, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Hales, Mr. and Mrs. William Hales and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hales, who came to this district about the year 1867 and were among the founders of the Methodist Church here. The table was a gift from the grandchildren of these three men.

Benjamin Hales was a local preacher in the early days here often walking seven miles from his home to conduct services in the White Church, north of Apsley and walking home after the service.

Three generations of his family have served as organists in Apsley Methodist Church and later United Church. These are Mrs. A. W. Pattison, nee Julia Hales (deceased), Mrs. Wellington Lean, nee Bertha Hales and Mrs. (Rev.) R. G. Hazlewood nee Helen Lean of Mount Forest.

The table was presented to the minister and session by Jack Hales of Peterborough on behalf of the grandchildren and was unveiled by Everett Hales of Peterborough and Bobbie Hales of Apsley. Norman Wilson, clerk of the session, thanked the donors for their beautiful gift.

William Hales conducted a service in his own home when no other biulding was available and his daughter, Mrs. Alex Brown (deceased) was an ardent Sunday School worker. One of his descendants is now Mrs. (Rev.) Robt. Kitchen of Fort Erie.

Charles Hales was an ardent supporter of Eden United Church at Mt. Julian. He was a carpenter and helped in the erection of several churches in this district. His daughter, Mrs. Harrison Bronson, is a member of Eden United Church and was treasurer of that church as long as health permitted.

Music for the service was supplied by Trinity United Church choir with Mrs. Lean, oldest grandchild of the oldest brother, at the organ.

Those from Peterborough present were Mr. and Mrs. A. E.

The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Percy Honey. Committees are: devotional, Mrs John Coggins; lunch program, sandwiches; Mrs. Frank Atkinson; cake Miss Muriel Darling.

Mrs. Warren Atkinson took complete charge of the program, opening with prayer and a hymn. Readings were given by Mrs. F. Atkinson, Mrs. R. Richardson, Mrs. D. Pollock and Mrs. W. Atkinson.

A duet was sung by Ida and Clarice Honey, and a piano solo was offered by Ida Honey.

COSTLY INSECTS

NOTICE

On Thursday and Friday, September 10 and 11 edition of the Peterborough Examiner, Metropolitan Stores name appeared in an advertisement listing stores remaining closed on Friday evenings. The Metropolitan name was listed without the knowledge or permission of Metropolitan Stores Ltd.

We maintain that if the city bylaw is rescinded, we will be open on Friday evenings to give our customers an opportunity to shop on that evening which is becoming quite popular all across Canada and the United States.

We do believe that a busy city like Peterborough should have Friday night opening. However, insofar as our employees are concerned, we will have extra help, giving our own employees an opportunity of doing their own shopping.

In our opinion, if the present bylaw is changed, we would remain open Friday nights.

Come now, no secrets... how do you bake such a dream of a cake?

Only SMALL talk between girl friends but it's a BIG moment!

It can be YOURS this easy way!

In goes Freshness!

Yes, you put extra "freshness" into your cake yourself, by adding dairy-fresh milk. Shirriff's White Cake Mix is as complete as a good cake mix should be . . . rich with sweet, creamed shortening, yolks of graded eggs, Shirriff's famous flavouring, the finest cake flour . . . but NO skim milk powder such as you find in ordinary mixes. You NEED dairy-fresh milk for extra flavour, richness, keeping qualities.

Up-Up goes your cake!

You get the surprise of your life when you open that oven door! Here's a cake that rises to the heighths . . . and takes you with it. Heighths of success you've only dreamed about! You know if it's high, it has to be light and fine-textured and extra good. Hurrah for fresh, whole milk cake mixes . . . Shirriff's are expert cake makers . . . and now . . . so are you!

It's Magic!

Yes . . . Magic! White Magic . . . your beautiful light, white cake made with Shirriff's White Cake Mix. YOU and Shirriff's know the secret to that kind of magic . . . it's dairy-fresh milk, for a richer, fresher cake. Yes, Shirriff's is the "magic" word that passes from one good cook to another . . . but behind that magic word is a simple common-sense explanation . . . Only food experts can make the BEST mix for a cake.

It's no secret... SUCCESS is SURE!

Now that you're cooking with Shirriff's! You can give your recipe for SHIRRIFF'S WHITE CAKE to your best friends with pride and confidence. Like smart cooks everywhere, you've discovered the secret of successful cake baking . . . Only food experts can make the BEST mix for a cake!

French Cabinet Splits On Issue

PARIS (AP) — A split in the French cabinet over European unity policies, including the proposed European army with German troops, broke into the open today.

There were some predictions here that Premier Joseph Laniel might be thrown out of office on the issue within a month.

Four cabinet ministers, all former members of Gen. Charles de Gaulle's now-dissolved rally of the French people, told Laniel in a letter they do not like the instructions given France's delegates to a six-power meeting opening in Rome today.

The cabinet dispute basically is over how much sovereignty France should give up to such supra-national bodies as the proposed political union and the projected army of 2,000,000 men.

The Gaullist ministers, headed by Minister of State Edouard Corniglion-Molinier, told Laniel they would not resign over the present issue provided the government does not commit itself formally prior to a meeting of foreign ministers of the six countries at The Hague Oct. 22.

2 City Accidents Damage Cars

Two accidents in Peterborough Monday resulted in total damages of $235 to four vehicles involved. Both happened during the morning.

Frederick Anderson, 16, of 231 King George St., was driving north on Aylmer in a line of traffic when he was forced to stop quickly by traffic. Driving behind, William Brealey, 23, of Indian River, could not stop in time on the wet pavement to avoid Anderson's vehicle, and collided with it.

Damage to the Brealey car was estimated at $25 while Anderson's vehicle escaped injury, PC Harold Andrew investigated.

Another accident at the corner of Charlotte and Reid Sts., involving Thomas Cole, 50, of Bridgenorth, and Mrs. Eva Heinonem, 31, of 665 Frank St., resulted in damage of $210 to their cars.

U.S. President Asks Clothing For Germans

WASHINGTON (AP)— President Eisenhower asked the American people today to contribute winter clothing through private organizations for the people of Soviet-occupied East Germany. The move follows up the president's earlier gift of food for the East Germans.

The White House made public an exchange of letters between Eisenhower and Chancellor Adenauer of West Germany. Adenauer's letter, dated Aug. 30, appealed to the United States for warm clothing for the population of East Berlin and the remainder of Eastern Germany.

Bags 200-lb. Bear North Of Norwood

Norwood hunter, Verne Hughey was 10 yards away from an unwanted wrestle with a 200-pound black bear when he fired his single shot 12-guage shotgun. The blast of birdshot was effective but his companion, Fair Magee of Peterborough, who was a slight distance away didn't realize it. He, too, spotted a bear crashing through the underbrush but his shot failed to stop the animal.

The pair of bears were sighted in an area about two miles north of Norwood over the weekend.

Court Awards $6,545 For Fractured Skull

BOURLAMAQUE, Que. (CP)—A Quebec superior court judgment today awarded $6,545 damages to Walter Salamanchuk, 35-year-old miner whose skull was fractured by a policeman's blackjack in 1952.

Mr. Justice Henri Drouin ordered the damages paid by the town of Bourlamaque, a community of 2,400 about 350 miles northwest of Montreal. Mr. Justice Drouin found that Sgt. Lorenzo Labelle had used "more force than was necessary" in arresting the miner for alleged drunkenness.

Heroic Effort Fails To Prevent Drowning

KAPUSKASING (CP)—A heroic effort by Marcel Bedard of Val Albert, near here, to save the life of his 21-year-old companion, Bernard Sequin of Val Albert, proved useless after their canoe overturned on a fishing trip at Fort Lake Monday.

Driving Impaired Man Fined $50

Pleading guilty to a charge of impaired driving today, Harry Dafoe, 53, of 547 George St., was fined $50 and $2.50 costs in magistrate's court. The charge was laid September 6.

PC Gordon Gray said he followed Dafoe's car for one mile on that date after noticing it travelling half on the road and half on the shoulder. With OPP Constable Bruce Tilson, he saw it drive uphill in the centre of the road and wander from side to side.

Finally stopping the Dafoe vehicle on No. 7 Highway, close to Peterborough, they found the driver to be unsteady on his feet and noticed he had bloodshot eyes while his breath smelled of alcohol.

A second charge of having liquor in a place other than his residence, also laid at the same time, was dismissed.

Pleading guilty to a drunk charge, Albert Allen, 41, of 153 Stewart St., was fined $10 and $2.50 costs. Edith Traynor, 19, of Cavan, pleaded guilty to a charge of causing a disturbance, laid September 7 at the Brookside Pavilion. She was assessed $10 and $6.22 costs.

Desert Shrimp Puzzles Fisherman

WASHINGTON. — High on the list of aquatic oddities is the desert shrimp, a little crustacean that breathes through its feet, swims upside down, and lives a mere 40 days after a two-year hatching period.

Apus, as it is scientifically known, inhabits many sections of the western United States. Astonished anglers, seining for minnows in a rainwater pond near Panhandle, Texas, recently netted scores of the strange creatures. California ricefields are occasionally damaged by them, and they have been observed in parts of Europe.

HARDY EGGS

Apus lives and breeds in stagnant pools which evaporate in summer months and refill in the rainy seasons. According to crustacea experts, many swarms of desert shrimps contain no males; females reproduce by parathenogenesis. Before hatching, eggs must undergo alternate periods of soaking and drying for at least two years.

Often shrimp egg will remain dormant for years, awaiting suitable conditions for hatching. Eggs deposited in evaporated ponds are sometimes carried by the wind or on the legs of birds to other waterholes hundreds of miles distant.

Apus was discovered in an English lake in 1850. It did not appear again in the British Isles until 1907, when it turned up in a Scottish millpond. Because it appears only sporadically, the animal has no commercial value.

The desert shrimp looks like a miniature horseshoe crab. A member of the Notostraca or shell-back family of fresh-water life, it averages 1½ to 3 inches long. Its shell covers the front half of the body, and the eyes protrude at the bend of the shell. It has a narrow, flexible tail with twin feelers at the tip. There are two other feelers in the head.

For swimming, the shrimp manipulates numerous little feet like oars. Each foot has a gill plate which serves as a respiratory organ.

During its brief 40-day life span, the desert shrimp stays close to the lake bottom, usually lying on its back in the silt. Occasionally it ventures forth to feed on soft insect larvae or organic mud.

British Roads Getting Safer

LONDON (Reuters) — There are more cars in Britain every year, but by a strange paradox since the war the roads are getting safer every year.

In 1930, when "baby" cars were beginning to bring motoring to the millions here, 7,305 persons died in auto accidents.

In 1950, the death toll was 4,706. And in the first six months of this year there were only 2,274 traffic deaths.

There now are 4,500,000 motor vehicles in Britain compared with 53,000,000 in the United States, but in Britain there are 17 cars a mile of road compared with 16 in the U.S., including the less settled areas. Belgium ranks third in car congestion with 14 cars to the mile.

The ministry of transport ascribes post-war reductions in the death rate to its road safety campaign, started in 1945, which has made Britain so traffic conscious that although the death rate has fallen the monthly death tolls regularly cause dismay to the public.

Pedestrians are being constantly urged to use the "Zebra" crossings painted for them on the roads in black and white. A driver risks a £5 fine if he runs over the crossing while a pedestrian is on it.

London, with 339,600 registered vehicles and 8,000,000 inhabitants, is the most congested city in the country and traffic hold-ups of up to 10 minutes' duration are frequent.

The speed limit throughout London, and in all built-up areas, is 30 miles an hour, and police watch closely for offenders. Outside built-up areas, there are no speed limits, but any motorist driving too fast for safety can be charged with "driving to the danger of the public." Penalties for this are usually severe.

Motorists found guilty of driving when drunk have heir licenses suspended.

Many Miners May Go To Southern Ontario

TIMMINS (CP)—The strikes at five gold mines in this area which have thrown some 2,500 men out of work could mean large numbers of men will soon leave to seek work in southern Ontario, Mayor Wilf Spooner of Timmins said today.

He said there is no alternative employment in the Timmins district or "anywhere in the north," and the only alternative would be for the men to go south. He said he does not believe strike pay could keep strikers' families long.

Timmins, like Kirkland Lake where striking miners have been making an exodus during the last week, was an end-of-the-line community, he said.

He termed the strike a "serious situation." Timmins town council has appealed to the Ontario government to intervene to settle the strike issues.

La Starza Says He Knows How To Get Up

By JACK HAND

GREENWOOD LAKE, N.Y. (AP) "I know how to get up." That is Roland LaStarza's answer to Rocky Marciano's tremendous knockout punch.

Not that the 26-year-old challenger from New York is counting on hitting the deck Thursday night when he fights the Rock for the world heavyweight championship at the Polo Grounds, but he's ready —just in case.

"Gene Gosney knocked me down twice," he said. "Marciano did once and so did Walter Hafer. I got up and knocked out all of them except Marciano."

Boxing writers crowded around LaStarza as he sat in the gym here Monday awaiting his pre-fight physical.

THINKS ABOUT IMPROVEMENT

"Do I think about the first fight (with Marciano) and the punch that hit me? All I think about is how I got up and beat him (actually he lost a disputed split decision to the Rock, March 24, 1950.) I don't think about getting hit. I think about how much I've improved."

Roland has his own ideas about the kind of fight to expect from the champion. He doesn't expect Rocky to come rushing out trying for a first-round knockout as he did in his second match with Jersey Joe Walcott.

"I expect him to hold back," he said. "He'll try to make me lead and try to get in his right hand. If he can't do it, then he'll come in. When he comes in, I'll be ready."

Pressed for a prediction, LaStarza refused to elaborate on a simple statement: "I'm going to win."

Cooler Weather Brings More Polio

Dr. J. P. Wells, Medical Officer of Health today attributed the increase in polio cases in the city during the past 10 days to the sudden change in the temperature and house flies coming into the homes.

The total number of polio cases this year is 19. They have been distributed over a wide area in the city and there has been no definite concentration point.

Marathon Trial Continues For Doukhobor Prisoners

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—The parade of prisoners continues through a drafty meeting-hall courtroom in suburban Burnaby today as the marathon Doukhobor trials roll on.

Monday, 20 persons were convicted on the charge of being nude in a public place and two were held over for later hearing. The charge, jointly with one of contributing to juvenile delinquency, was dropped against seven others.

Of the 20 found guilty, eight were women.

The radical Sons of Freedom women caused most of the excitement Monday. Two were denounced as "ringleaders" by an RCMP witness and another, freed for lack of evidence, tore at her clothes in an attempt to disrobe in court and follow her "brothers and sisters" to prison.

Quelled by courtroom police was Dora Shoukoreff, solid-faced, suntanned woman nearing middle age.

She and three men heard crown counsel John Farris withdraw charges. The men sat silent.

"Why are the charges withdrawn," she asked in Russian. When this was interpreted, Magistrate Graham Ladner said:

"There is not enough evidence to convict in your case."

Mrs. Soukoreff jumped to her feet.

READY TO STRIP

"I am just like any other brother or sister Doukhobor. I want to stay with my brothers and sisters," she said in Russian.

Officers reached her side as she was struggling with the top button of her flowered dress. She was hustled outside where she sat quietly in the hallway until RCMP were ready to take her back to Oakalla prison farm to collect her belongings. She will stay with the Salvation Army until transportation has been arranged back to the Kootenays.

Three others—two women and a man—were not in court to hear the charges dropped. All three are in Oakalla prison hospital with others recovering from effects of the 10-day hunger strike which ended in a borscht feast Monday.

Monday was to have been sentence day for the 29 convicted Thursday and Friday. However, sentencing was put over until Sept. 25 to allow more time for the prisoners' documents to arrive from Nelson, B.C.

WON'T TAKE CHILDREN

Meanwhile, members of the orthodox Doukhobor sect at Brilliant, B.C., announced Monday that they will not adopt children of imprisoned Freedomites.

The Sons had asked that their children, now under the care of the B.C. welfare department at New Denver, B.C., should be "adopted" by orthodox families in order that they could grow up in Doukhobor homes.

Orthodox spokesmen said they did not object to their children attending school.

"Why don't the Sons of Freedom send their children to school and avoid all this trouble?" they asked.

Believes Canadiens Stronger

MONTREAL (CP)—Coach Dick Irvin, usually a dour pessimist at the outset of every season, climbed out on a limb Monday and said he believes his 1953-54 Montreal Canadiens will be stronger in every position when the National Hockey League schedule opens Oct. 8.

He made the prediction as he watched his Canadiens, 1952-53 winners of the Stanley Cup, take the ice at the Forum for the opening of the fall training camp.

"We have more proven NHL talent on hand this year than ever before," said Irvin. "I think we'll be stronger in every position."

A total of 33 players turned out for a "loosening-up skate." Among them was Jean Beliveau, starry centre of Quebec Aces in the Quebec Hockey League. Beliveau, considered a top-notch prospect for the NHL, scored five goals in two games while playing with Canadiens on a lend-lease basis last year.

However, he has not yet signed a contract.

Marciano Still Won't Predict Fight Result

GROSSINGER, N. Y. (AP)—Heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano was scheduled to climb into the ring at his Catskill mountain retreat today and box his final three rounds before taking on Roland LaStarza Thursday in New York's Polo Grounds.

The mild-mannered champion still declined to make any prediction as to the outcome of the title scrap. He says he's just going to do his best, despite the pleadings of his manager, Al Weill.

NEEDLES CHARGE

The former matchmaker for the sponsoring International Boxing Club, Weill has been needling his charge to make it short.

"I'm not as young as I used to be," Weill told Marciano. "Climbing up and down those ring steps won't do my heart any good. Get it over for me fast, boy."

All the Rock would answer was: "Okay, Al, you can count on me to do my best."

The followers at the camp didn't know whether to laugh or keep straight faces when Weill issued his plea.

The late Jack Blackburn, who trained Joe Louis, once told the old heavyweight champion he wasn't feeling too good, and Louis replied:

"Chappie, you won't have to climb those steps but once."

Weill undoubtedly remembered the Louis-Blackburn team.

Meanwhile, reports of dissension within the Marciano camp seemed to have evaporated.

Vessels Leads Scoring Race

REGINA (CP) — Billy Vessels, Edmonton Eskimos' high-scoring back from Oklahoma, tops the rushing department in the first six games of the 1953 Western Interprovincial Football Union schedule.

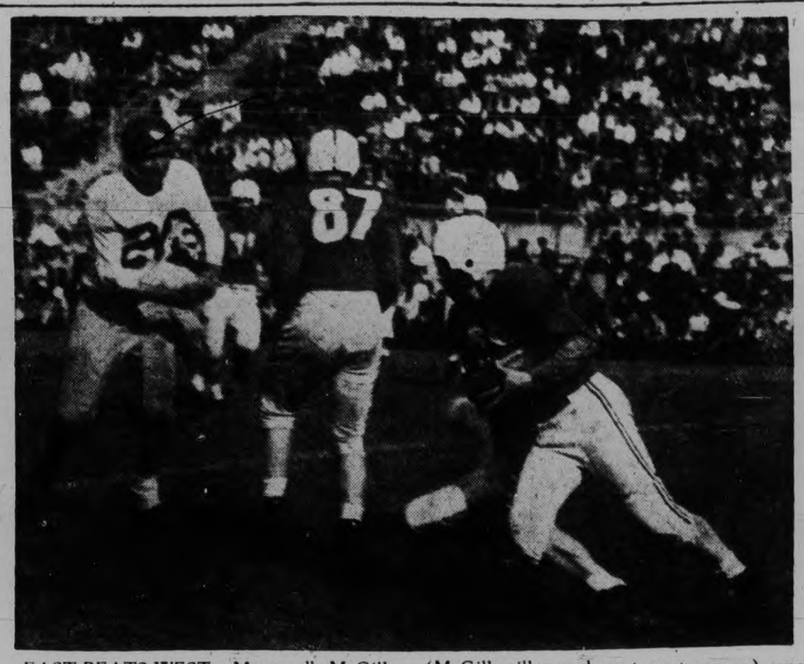
Statistics released Monday show Vessels, playing his first year of Canadian football, has picked up 348 yards on 48 tries for a 7.2 average.

Lorne Benson, Winnipeg Blue Bomber home-brew fullback and last season's rookie of the year, ranks second in net yards gained with 289 but his 4.5-yard average on 64 tries places him in sixth position. Bobby Marlow, former Alabama star back now with Saskatchewan Roughriders, and Calgary's hard-plunging negro fullback, John Henry Johnson, rank second with identical 6.8 averages.

Frankie Albert of Calgary Stampeders, left-handed quarterback from San Francisco 49ers, has gained the most yards—800—on forward passes. The veteran pro's completion average of 45.3 per cent, however, is far behind leader Tommy Thompson of Winnipeg, with 63.2.

Bud Grant, Winnipeg end from Philadelphia, has the best pass-catching record. A first-year man in Canada, Grant has caught 22 of 26 passes thrown for a terrific 84.6-per-cent record.

In the punting department, Saskatchewan's Frank Tripuka, with a 46.5-yard average, is slightly ahead of team-mate Glen Dobbs, with 45.9.



EAST BEATS WEST—Montreal's McGill University captured the Winston Churchill Trophy by turning back the University of British Columbia 22-4. The game, in which all proceeds went to the Paraplegic Association, is planned to be an annual affair (McGill will travel west next season) was played under the Canadian code with the exception of unlimited interference. The photo above shows McGill's Ken Wright running back a UBC punt as quarterback Jack McMullan moves to block BC's Ron Fieldgate (20).

DUKE DRIVING

NEW YORK (AP)—Duke Snider, having hit safely in 44 of his last 46 games for Brooklyn Dodgers, is staging a spirited stretch drive to overhaul team-mate Carl Furillo in the National League batting derby.

Snider, in second place, is hitting .339, while the injured Furillo tops the league with a .344 mark.

Washington's Mickey Vernon continues to set the pace in the American League hitting race with a .336 average. Runner-up Al Rosen of Cleveland failed to narrow the gap last week and his average remains at .329.

Ed Mathews of Milwaukee has 46 homers and appears headed for his first National League home-run championship. Brooklyn's Roy Campanella is far in front with 142 runs batted in.

In the American League Gus Zernial of Philadelphia has wrested away the home-run lead from Rosen, 41-40. Rosen still retains his supremacy in the RBI department with 137.

MILE RECORD THREATENED

NEW YORK (AP) — Greentree stable's Tom Fool, prepping for Saturday's $50,000 Sysonby Mile, worked out that distance Monday in a scorching 1:35 4-5—just one second off the Belmont Park track record set by Count Fleet in 1942.

Ted Atkinson, contract rider for Greentree, eased the four-year-old colt slightly in the last one-sixteenth of the mile. The clocking equalled the fastest time made in a race at Belmont last year.

OUT FOR BREEDERS'

TORONTO (CP)—Chain Reaction "the iron horse," drilled an easy mile in 1:43 as he prepared for Wednesday's renewal of the $5,000 Breeders Stakes. The Breeders is one of Canada's oldest races, having been contested first in 1889, and Chain Reaction is expected to go to the post as favorite.

Chain Reaction, shipped around the country all summer, has won more than $30,000 this season.

Cause of Accidents

Danger Spots On Highways Carry Blame With Drivers

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

WASHINGTON (AP)—For years most fatal traffic accidents on United States highways have been blamed on "the nut that holds the steering wheel."

Now experts believe that "obstacle course" highways — roads with many danger spots—may be as much to blame as the driver for the 38,000 traffic deaths the United States records each year.

"We've emphasized the driver's deficiencies for a long time," said Dr. Bruce D. Greenshields, traffic authority. "Now it's time to place more emphasis on better highways."

Safety authorities estimate that from one-third to one-half of the lives lost every year on United States highways might be saved by better roads. By roads which eliminate sharp curves, blind hill crests, intersections, and business establishments too close to the pavement: By roads which have better lighting, wider pavement and one-way traffic.

Better highways, James Cope of the Automobile Manufacturers Association told Congress recently, might save as many as 15,000 lives a year.

The U.S. bureau of public roads has estimated that if the highways of the interstate system — about 32,000 rural miles—were improved, almost half of the deaths on these roads might be avoided.

For example, in the state of Washington there is a 24-mile stretch of U.S. 99, south of Seattle, which has a fatality rate of 14.5 per 100,000,000 vehicle miles of travel. The rate for all rural roads in the state is 5.8. Why the heavy death toll in this one stretch?

Police blame most of the accidents on drivers who speed, fail to signal or fail to yield the right of way. But an engineering study also listed the hazards created by no less than 169 intersections, 264 private driveways, 74 motels, 68 service stations and 101 roadside cafes, drive - in stands, grocery stores and taverns.

"The motorist," said the engineering report, "is subjected to one potential accident situation after another at an average rate of one every 150 feet of travel."

While talking about the need for highway improvement, the experts keep stressing that there s no substitute for safe driving.

Two Airmen Found Guilty Of Stealing

MONTREAL (CP) — An RCAF court-martial has found two airmen guilty of stealing public funds and sentenced them to discharge and varying terms of imprisonment and detention.

Air transport headquarters said Monday that LAC. J. E. LaPorte, 30, of Montreal, was sentenced to discharge from the service and two years imprisonment less one day, and LAC. J. J. Lamberte, 21, of Grande Riviere, Que., to eight months detention.

The men were arrested with three others at Lachine RCAF station in July following an audit of accounts. Two other airmen were arrested later. It was reported at the time that about $4,500 was misappropriated. Most of the money was recovered.

The others are still to be tried.

Observatory At Greenwich Shifted To Castle

WASHINGTON—England has nearly finished one of the most difficult rehousing projects in its history—removal of the huge and delicate instruments of the Royal Observatory from Greenwich, on the Thames in London, to a 15th century castle in Sussex 60 miles southeast.

By January, 1954, when the seven-year transfer project ends, Britain's oldest scientific institution will no longer function astride the Greenwich prime meridian, world standard for measurement of longitude and time.

But because any change would affect global timekeeping and render all of the world's modern maps obsolete, Greenwich will remain the zero meridian even after astronomers shift to their new quarters in the story-book castle of Hurstmonceux near the Channel coast.

To allow for the one-third degree longitudinal difference between Greenwich and the new site, 14½ miles east of the Greenwich meridian, scientists will subtract about a minute and a half from observed time. The time is calculated by observation of the solar system.

The Greenwich Observatory was established by order of King Charles II in 1675, and its site has served as England's prime meridian since 1800. Until 1884, however, Paris, Washington, and other capital cities marked the zero meridian in their respective countries. In that year, representatives of 25 nations attending the Washington Meridian Conference agreed upon Greenwich as the world's official marking point for the prime meridian (zero degrees, zero minutes, zero seconds).

Greenwich was a country village when Sir Christopher Wren designed the Royal Observatory 278 years ago, but expanding London since has completely engulfed it. In recent decades, meteorological and astronomical operations have been seriously hampered by industrial smog. Smoke blinded the telescopes, corroded metal parts, covered lenses with soot. Electric railways interfered with magnetic observations. The glare of street lights and neon signs outshone the Milky Way.

In pastoral Sussex, observatory officials will have no such problems. Secluded Hurstmonceux Castle, built in 1440, has been described the "the last and most beautiful example of the domestic castle in the Middle Ages". A huge red brick mansion more than 200 feet square, it is complete with moat, drawbridge, portcullis, crenellated towers and dungeon. It has been a showplace of southern England for centuries.

The 500-year-old castle sits among 370 acres of wooded countryside, only seven miles from the Hastings battlefield where William the Conqueror led the Normans to victory in 1066. It lay in ruins until 1929 when private owners restored it and later sold it to the Admiralty for a fraction of the restoration cost.

Meanwhile, deserted buildings of the old Observatory at Greenwich are being taken over by the National Maritime Museum.

No Sacrifice Too Great For Freedom

BOSTON (AP)—President Eisenhower said Monday night that no defence' sacrifice—"no labor, no [illegible]vice"—is too great to bear against enemies of freedom "equipped with the most terrible weapons of destruction."

It was Eisenhower's first public mention of such weapons since Russia announced last month—and the United States atomic energy commission confirmed—that the Soviet Union has exploded a hydrogen bomb.

The president's remarks came in a speech prepared for delivery at a dinner of New England Republicans.

Nowhere in his speech did he say anything about reductions in income tax and excess profits tax scheduled to go into effect in January.

The fact that he did not mention tax cuts, coupled with his statement that no tax sacrifice is too great to bear, raised a question of whether the administration might be reconsidering its position on taxes in the light of Russia's possession of the H-bomb.

Britain Plans Long-Range Passenger Superjets

LONDON (CP)—Britain's globe-girdling Overseas Airways Corporation is planning a fleet of long-range passenger superjets to streak across the Atlantic in pace with the sun—arriving in New York at the same time by the clock as they leave London.

Sir Miles Thomas, BOAC chairman, explained in his annual report today that this will be the "third phase" in Britain's bid for world air supremacy.

To do it, the jet airliner of the future would have to fly the 3,443 miles from London to New York in five hours—the time difference between the two cities—at a near-supersonic speed of 690 miles an hour. Such speeds already have been approached.

At present, BOAC piston-engined liners fly from New York to London in just under 13 hours, averaging 270 miles an hour.

Sir Miles said the first phase in the battle was over when the Comet—the world's first jet airliner—was put into service on Commonwealth flights. The second phase is approaching with Comets and turbo-prop Britannias providing express jet and tourist services.

During this winter, British Comets will begin exploratory high-altitude flights above the North Atlantic.

"A reasonable amount of interchange of information with the United States military services about high-altitude North Atlantic conditions exists, but no one has done very much yet," Thomas said.

Train Kills Baltimore Man At Cobourg Level Crossing

A BALTIMORE MAN DIED in this car, struck Tuesday evening by an eastbound CNR freight train at the William St. level crossing in Cobourg. He was Earl Bray, 26, a construction worker at the Army Ordnance Depot in Cobourg. Impact of the crash threw the car around so that it knocked a wig-wag signal flat. Death was instantaneous. —(Murray Smith Photo)

COBOURG (ENS)—Earl Bray, 26, of Baltimore, was instantly killed Tuesday night at seven o'clock, when his car was struck by an eastbound CNR freight at the William St. level crossing. Mr. Bray was alone and driving north. The impact flung the car around until it faced west, knocking over a wig-wag standard. The car came to stop a short distance east of the east pedestrian crossing. The body was about 40 feet east of the car. Death was instantaneous from injuries sustained. The wig-wags were in operation at the time, police said.

Bray had stopped at a service station about 250 yards south of the crossing to use the washroom, just before continuing on to meet his death. George Beatty, of Belleville, brakeman on the freight, said he was at the right hand window and saw the car suddenly come up the grade into the path of the train.

The impact bent the right hand steps to the locomotive cab and broke a boiler return pipe.

Engineer of the train was Gordon Sharrard, of Toronto.

FEARED SECOND DEATH

When they found two lunch pails in the wreckage, police at first thought there might have been two persons in the car. But it later turned out one of the pails belonged to H. Ferguson, who also lives near Baltimore.

Ferguson and Bray were both employed in construction work at the Army Ordnance Depot here and usually drove to and from work together. But for some reason Ferguson got a ride in another car Tuesday evening.

Bray was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bray, RR 1, Baltimore. He was unmarried.

Doubt Sincerity If Reds Continue Tactics—Pearson

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—L. B. Pearson of Canada said today that continued Communist insistence on reconsideration of the make-up of the Korean peace conference would cast doubt on the sincerity of their desire to hold such a conference. In an address to the 60-nation UN assembly, the Canadian external affairs minister said it would be wrong "merely because the Communist governments of Peiping and North Korea demand it, to reopen at once the whole matter" of what nations should be represented at the conference.

"Insistence, for instance, by the Communist side that the Korean conference cannot convene unless the United Nations agree that the U.S.S.R. be present as a 'neutral' member would throw serious doubt on their desire to have the conference meet at all.

"We have the right to expect that the Communist governments to whom our resolutions have been forwarded should now without delay designate their own representatives, and express their views regarding time and place.

AMPLE OPPORTUNITY

"Once the conference meets there will be ample opportunity to iron out other difficulties which may arise. But are these of sufficient consequence to justify the other side in boycotting this necessary first step in peace-making, not only in Korea, but perhaps in a broader area?"

Pearson's mention of "boycott" was apparently a reference to the veiled threat by Russia's Andrei Vishinsky that the Reds might refuse to attend a conference unless it were framed along the lines they demand.

The UN assembly in special session last month decided that its side of the conference table would be confined to the countries which fought under the UN command in Korea. The Reds could name anyone they wanted to sit on their side.

The Communist Chinese and North Koreans countered with a demand that the conference be a round-table affair with such nations as Russia, India, Pakistan and Burma in the role of "neutrals."

WOULD BE OPPOSED

On another phase of the Korean question, Pearson said Canada "would be opposed to any attempt to interpret existing United Nations objectives as including the unification of Korea by force."

He said settlement in Korea should be possible "if there is good faith and goodwill on both sides." But any such settlement must provide for a free and united Korea with a government elected under UN supervision. "All foreign forces should, of course, be withdrawn, and Korea's security might be provided for under an international and supervised guarantee."

OPTIMISTIC NOTE

Pearson, who has resumed his position as head of the Canadian delegation since his term as president of the assembly ended last week struck a mildly optimistic note on the world situation when he said he believes there now is more hope for "progress toward real peace" than when the seventh assembly opened a year ago.

A Korean settlement, he said, would be a first step on "the long journey towards a wider peace."

Pearson challenged Vishinsky's claim that such organizations as the North Atlantic Treaty Organiza-

UN Won't Send Observers To PoW Transfer

SEOUL (AP) — The UN command today turned over to neutral Indian troops the last of some 22,600 prisoners who renounced communism, leaving Allied stockades empty of captives for the first time in three years.

With the final delivery came a surprise announcement that the Allies will not send observers to watch the arrival at the neutral zone Thursday of 359 Allied soldiers the Reds say don't want to go home. They include 23 Americans, one Briton and 335 South Koreans, according to a Communist correspondent.

Red observers watched the two-week transfer to the demilitarized zone of Allied-held PoWs refusing repatriation. But the UN command said "we do not feel that the presence of UNC observers is necessary to insure a fair and successful handling of the turnover from the Communists."

The Allied announcement added "we have confidence in the ability of the CI (custodial force: India) to carry out its mission."

ORDER REINFORCEMENTS

Simultaneously, India ordered 100 reinforcements for the 5,000-man force which will guard the unrepatriated PoWs. The additional Indians will be airlifted by the U.S. Air Force via Japan and are expected this week-end.

Final delivery of prisoners to the buffer zone brings the armistice to a new phase. Starting Friday or Saturday, Allied and Communist interviewers have 90 days to try to coax their former soldiers to come home.

A new source of tension in the eight-week-old truce was a statement by Lt.-Gen. S. E. Anderson, U. S. 5th Air Force commander, that the UN has had "two recent indications" that the Reds moved jet warplanes into Korea after the July 27 signing in direct violation of armistice terms.

Allied radar has tracked arriving Red planes, Anderson said.

A North Korean pilot who fled to South Korea Monday reported jet and propeller planes were moved into North Korea after the truce.

The North Korean will receive a $100,000 reward for bringing the UN command its first operational MiG.

The Communist jet was crated Tuesday and loaded aboard a giant C-124 cargo plane which took it on the first leg of a trip to the United States.

It will be taken to the air materiel command at Dayton, Ohio, where experts will analyze it.

Mayor Plans To See Daley

TIMMINS (CP)—Mayor J. Wilfred Spooner plans to go to Toronto, probably today, for talks with Labor Minister Daley to stave off threatened economic doom for this northern gold-mining town of 30,000.

The United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL) has its members on strike at five of the area's gold mines and threatens walkouts at others among the six still operating. Its officials have said they believe the mines are determined to smash the union.

The union, which called out 1,400 men and brought about the closing Tuesday of the big McIntyre mine, indicated last week that Hollinger, second-largest gold producer in the district, also is on its strike list.

It is believed the shutdown at Hollinger may be hours or, at best, days away.

Gold Price Conspiracy Millard Charges

TORONTO (CP)—Charles H. Millard, Canadian director of the United Steelworkers of America (CIO-CCL), said today he thought there was a conspiracy among gold-mining interests to get a higher price for gold.

The union has called out about 4,000 members in a strike against six mines in northern Ontario and Noranda, Que.

Mr. Millard said he was "more convinced than ever that association of gold mining interests are using the local strike situation to bring pressure on the government to get a higher price for gold.

"I think there's a conspiracy. They are not treating request of the workers on their merits."

Stabs His Landlord Jailed 2½ Years

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Albert Edward Stevens, 49, convicted of wounding, today was sentenced to two and a half years in prison.

A Supreme Court jury last week found Stevens guilty of stabbing his landlord, Howard Flannigan, 58, March 16.

At his trial Stevens maintained he had taken sodium amitol capsules in a suicide bid early in the morning of March 16 and suffered a mental blackout.

Bevan Thinks Time Ripe To Ease Tension With Reds

LONDON (CP)—Aneurin Bevan said today he thinks the time is ripe for strong efforts to ease tension between Russia and the West.

Speaking at a luncheon meeting of Commonwealth correspondents, the left-wing Labor party leader said he is convinced that there are definite changes inside Soviet Russia and that the moment may have come for a Western move.

But, he added, if the United States insisted on making ideological differences a bar to negotiations, she might well be more responsible for any future war than the Soviet Union.

"I take the view," said the chief exponent of the political philosophy known as Bevanism, "that there are profoundly important changes taking place within the Soviet Union—not anything like a coup d'etat is imminent, but merely shifts and adjustments which in themselves are some of the best protections against the possibility of aggression."

Bevan said he thinks Russia has found that the pace of industrialization was too hot and that she now seeks a better balance between industry and agriculture. This tendency in Russian policy might well occupy her to the exclusion of military adventures.

In a speech devoted almost exclusively to foreign affairs, Bevan warned of danger in Western Germany, saying once that country is rearmed "war will follow" inevitably; said there is a growing unity within the British Labor party on external affairs and recommended that Britain try to occupy a middle position between the United States and Russia.

Allow Generals To Suspend Season's Play

TORONTO (CP)—Oshawa Generals will suspend operations in the Ontario Hockey Association's junior A circuit this year and the OHA has agreed on distribution of the club's players.

Oshawa, which lost its arena in a fire last week, was given unanimous permission to suspend operations at a meeting of the OHA junior A council Tuesday night.

Neil Hezzlewood of Oshawa told the council he had 25 players lined up for this season. Nine of these were 19-year-olds and in their final year for junior A competition.

The council agreed to allow the placing of a price on each of the nine players and then distribute them through the nine clubs remaining in the league by means of a draw.

Following the draw, Bob Attersley, the loop's fourth-leading scorer last year was purchased by Guelph Biltmores and Jack Armstrong, with 36 goals and 29 assists last year, went to St. Catharines. Gerald Casey went to Barrie, Floyd Hillman to Kitchener, Bill Stewart to Hamilton, Stan Parker to Quebec City, Phil Chapman to Toronto St. Michael's, Bob Appleby to Toronto Marlboros and Carlo Montemurro to Galt. Prices involved were not disclosed.

The 16 remaining players will be allowed to play anywhere they choose this season but will be required to report to Oshawa should that club resume operations next year.

Council members also hammered out another 56-game schedule despite the loss of the Oshawa team. The season will open Oct. 9 and four Ontario clubs will play three games in Quebec City and the other four will play four games in order to balance the schedule.

Got 42 Black Eyes But Wants Hubby Back

DETROIT (AP)—Even though Mrs. Patricia Reeves, 30, testified that her husband had given her 42 black eyes and left home 50 times during their four years of marriage, she still wanted him back.

She testified in recorder's court Tuesday where her 33-year-old machinist husband, Richard, was found guilty of assault and battery because of the latest black eye.

When she pleaded that her husband be kept out of jail because "I want him back," the judge complied. She got him—on a year's probation.

3 Explosions Rock Plant Report 4 Dead, Many Hurt

TONAWANDA, N.Y. (AP)—Three explosions and fire ripped through a chemical plant near here today and fire headquarters in Buffalo reported that four persons were believed dead. The blasts shook an area of several square miles and billowing clouds of dark smoke rolled over the suburban residential sections north of the Buffalo city line.

Kenmore Mercy Hospital reported an hour after the first explosion that "seven or eight" injured had been admitted and others were arriving.

Flames raged through the Lucidol chemical plant and threatened to spread to neighboring houses.

Ask Hanging For Mossadegh

TEHRAN (AP) — An informed army source said today that Iran's government would ask a military court to sentence ex-premier Mohammed Mossadegh to be hanged on charges to be announced probably in "three or four days."

(This report from Tehran appeared to discount a dispatch from the Iranian capital to the London Daily Express today that the ex-premier had been sentenced on Tuesday to be hanged at the conclusion of a three-week secret trial. There was no immediate comment from Tehran on the Express report.)

The army source said the government still had not decided whether Mossadegh's trial would be held secretly or in public.

The Shah 10 days ago ordered that Mossadegh be tried by a court martial for his refusal Aug. 16 to obey the ruler's decree replacing him as premier by Gen. Fazollah Zahedi and his subsequent actions. Mossadegh was arrested Aug. 20, the day after a public uprising—in which 300 persons were killed—swept him out of office and put Zahedi in.

Gavel Presented From 2 Battleships

MONTREAL (CP)—An American delegate brought a bit of the war of 1812 to the International Municipal Congress Tuesday.

Commissioner Charles W. Hayes of Watertown, N. Y., turned the trick when he presented the president of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities with a gavel made from the wood of two battleships that fought on Lake Ontario in the War of 1812 between Canada and the United States.

Mr. Hayes told J. O. Asselin, chairman of Montreal's executive committee, the gavel was fashioned from pieces of a U.S. and a Canadian battleship that were sunk in the battle of Sackets Harbor in the first year of the war.

The battle was claimed as a victory by both sides.

Higher Food Prices Boost U.S. Index

WASHINGTON (AP) — Higher food prices and rents pushed the United States government's cost-of-living index to a record high mark today.

The rise to 115 per cent of the 1947-1949 average means a three-cent hourly wage boost, effective next month, for 1,300,000 rail workers. This will boost annual pay roll costs of U. S. railroads by $100,000,000.

Plan To Correct Defects In Act

ST. LOUIS (AP)—President Eisenhower, in a message to the American Federation of Labor, today described the Taft-Hartley Labor Act as essentially sound but promised to ask Congress in January to correct "a number of defects."

The president gave his message to vice-president Richard Nixon to deliver in person. It came in the midst of hot controversy between the White House and Eisenhower's former secretary of labor, Martin Durkin, over whether the president backed out of an agreement to support certain specific changes in the labor law.

Eisenhower did not refer directly to this controversy.

Eisenhower said in today's message that deliberations on modifying the law are still going on and "I shall send my own suggestions to the Congress at the opening of its session in January."

He expressed the view, however, that the enactment of the law by the Republican 80th Congress "was a substantial contribution to the quest for sounder labor-management relations," and he declared:

"I believe that the experience under the act has confirmed its essential soundness."

Bronze Tablet For A. S. Hardy

OTTAWA (CP)—The career of a distinguished Ontario citizen and former premier of the province, Arthur Sturgis Hardy, will be commemorated by a bronze tablet to be unveiled at Mount Pleasant, Ont., Sept. 30, the resources department announced today.

The tablet, placed in the Mount Pleasant school on recommendation of the historic sites and monuments board, will be unveiled by Senator A. C. Hardy of Brockville, son of the former premier, who died in 1991.

Premier Hardy was born in Mount Pleasant of United Empire Loyalist stock, was called to the bar of Upper Canada in 1865 and practised law in Brantford. A Liberal, he represented South Brant in the Ontario legislature from 1873 to 1899, becoming provincial secretary in 1877 and prime minister and attorney-general in 1896. He retired in 1899 and died in Toronto in 1901.

Red Delegates Sure Beria Would Escape

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Lavrenty Beria's reported escape from the Soviet Union was a "foregone conclusion" among Communist delegates at the recent second international economic conference in East Berlin, a San Francisco businessman said yesterday.

Oliver P. Vickery, who attended the Red-sponsored meeting, said also that Red delegates predicted a trial would be held with "a bogus Beria standing in for him." Beria was denounced as a traitor last July.

Vickery said he went to the conference "because they invited me and because I wanted to see what was going on."

He also attended the first conference in Moscow last year.

Beria Hiding In Spain New Report

Newspaper Declares Soviet Police Head Flew To Safety

MADRID (CP)—The newspaper ABC reported today that Lavrenty Beria, former Soviet interior minister, is in hiding in Spain after escaping from Russia.

The newspaper said it considered the story "probably" true, but offered no proofs.

It claimed that Beria was parachuted into the La Mancha region of central Spain. There he was picked up by a waiting car and taken to a spot on the Spanish coast.

FLOWN TO SPAIN

ABC said that "Beria was flown to Spain by Soviet pilots who had taken part in the civil war in Spain and were therefore fully familiar with the country.

"He and the crew baled out and left the empty plane flying with automatic controls set and with the fuel supply calculated so that it would fall into the Atlantic and leave no trace."

ABC claimed that representatives of the United States Federal Bureau of Investigation had reached Spain to interview Beria, who fell from grace in Russia in July.

It said they bore credentials from Vice-president Richard Nixon and Senator Joseph McCarthy's Senate investigations sub-committee.

RUMORS STARTED

Reports that the former Russian secret police chief had made good his escape from Russia started cropping up this week.

The reports, so far given little official credence, said he had asked for asylum in the United States in return for information on Kremlin secrets.

Commenting on its story editorially, ABC said:

"It is clear that any nation which maintains diplomatic relations with Moscow would be far less safe for Beria than would Spain.

"It is not a mathematical certainty that Beria is here, but the impression exists and it is possible."

So far no comment by U. S. or Spanish authorities is available.

CALL IT FANTASTIC

Most Madrid circles were inclined to dismiss the story as fantastic, but were puzzled to know why it had been passed by the press censorship here. Censors usually hesitate to pass stories in which decisions of the Spanish government are quoted, without making careful investigation into the matter.

ABC said that the government had granted permission for Beria to leave Spain.

Shoots Bear In Back Yard

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Steve Halushka shot a 100-pound bear in his back yard Tuesday.

Reports started early in the day that bears had been sighted but each time police investigated, the bears had disappeared. The alarm subsided in the afternoon when Mrs. Halushka reported her dog had treed the prowling bear and her husband had killed it with three slugs.

Bears have been coming close to the Lakehead recently looking for food because early frost has wiped out wild berries in the district.

Freight Strikes Car Flings It Around, Death Immediate

Declares Cards Don't Interfere With Business

WINDSOR (CP)—County clerk C. A. Keeley said today members of Essex county council do play cards while attending sessions in Windsor four times yearly, but the games are only played in off-duty hours and have never interfered with the council's business.

Mr. Keeley said he wished to refute statements made Tuesday by Judge J. A. Legris, who charged that the council "is just holding back and doing nothing except probably meeting four times a year, when the majority of the members of the council play cards, cribbage, and like of it."

Mr. Keeley said he knows that the county council's work is attended to promptly.

NOT IN USE

Judge Legris, who has several times in the past complained about inadequate courtroom facilities, Tuesday was forced to hear division court cases in his small chamber room, when both larger courtrooms were found to be occupied.

Clerk Keeley said that after reading an account of Judge Legris' comments Tuesday, he visited the courthouse today and found both chamber rooms, as well as one courtroom, not in use.

To criticisms that the courthouse has no law library, Mr. Keeley said county council pays rent for a law library maintained in downtown Windsor, on the request of the Essex County Law Society.

Sees A-Energy Plants In Canada In 5 Years

SASKATOON (CP)—Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, retiring president of the crown-incorporated Atomic Energy of Canada Limited, said here Tuesday that there is no doubt that atomic energy plants will be operating on a commercial scale within the next five years.

Dr. Mackenzie, head of the national research council for 13 years said industrial research has been moving forward rapidly at the atomic energy plant at Chalk River with AEC concentrating on building pilot power plants to produce atomic energy.

"There are hundreds of problems to be worked out before these power plants would be economically competitive with other sources of power," he said, "but there is no doubt now of their feasibility as a source of industrial power."

7 Pakistan Officials To Study In Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Seven Pakistan agricultural officers arrived here by air and will go to Toronto for a period of instruction under provisions of the Colombo plan for the economic development of south and southeast Asia, the trade department announced today.

The group will study the operation and maintenance of agricultural machinery under the auspices of Massey-Harris Company, Ltd., for six months. First stage of the program will be spent at the Massey-Harris experimental farm near Toronto. The second will consist of shop training in the Massey-Harris plant at Woodstock, Ont.

Railway Income Falling Off

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian railways had record gross revenues in the first half of 1953 but their net income fell off, the Bureau of Statistics reported today.

The gross hit a six-month peak of $590,627,000 but expenses increased faster than revenue, so that the operating income dropped to $16,076,000. This compared with $22,245,000 in the first half of 1952.

The figures were calculated after making provision for tax payments.

The gross compared with $567,853,000 in the same period of 1952. Operating expenses were $551,600,000, up from $519,862,000. Tax accruals and other miscellaneous charges added to these figures brought the operating income results.

The Canadian Pacific Railway, on whose results the board of transport commissioners bases freight rates, had operating income of $10,507,000, down slightly from $11,138,000. The CPR's gross was $231,485,000, an increase over $222,126,000 in the first half of 1952.

The government-owned Canadian National Railways had a six-month deficit of $880,000 on Canadian lines. This was accounted for largely by retroactive wage payments. It also included funds set aside for income tax, which the company started paying for the first time last year. The deficit compared with $3,819,000 operating income for the same part of 1952.

Flight Engineered?

Purged Korean Premier Said In Toyko

SEOUL (AP)—A South Korean intelligence officer said today Park Hun Yung, ousted foreign minister of Red North Korea, had been spirited to safety in Japan. A U. S. army spokesman in Tokyo denied knowledge of Park's whereabouts.

"Far East command headquarters has no knowledge whatsoever of the status or whereabouts of this man," an official spokesman said.

An intelligence officer for the RoK national police said Park's flight to safety was "engineered" by American officers. He added that the former high Communist official was now in custody of U. S. authorities in Japan.

He said Park's escape was planned as early as last January.

SWEEPING PURGE

Last August the North Korean Pyongyang radio announced a sweeping purge of about a dozen government leaders, including Park. Later it was announced that Gen. Nam Il, the chief Red truce negotiator, had become foreign minister.

Park was the No. 1 Red in South Korea during the U. S. occupation. He fled to North Korea before the outbreak of war.

He was purged for allegedly spying in North Korea for the United States. Last Aug. 7 the Moscow radio announced that Park was among 10 top North Korean officials sentenced to die for plotting armed rebellion and plotting for the United States.

SECOND ATTEMPT

Meanwhile, another South Korean intelligence source said a second Polish member of a neutral nations inspection tried recently to break to freedom at an Allied airbase in Kangnung.

Earlier, a Pole was given refuge when he appealed to a U. S. officer just before departure of a plane for the Communist zone.

An intelligence officer said the second Pole was pulled back by watchful Communist members of the team. He said the Reds are planning to shift Polish and Czech members of the inspection team as a result of the incidents.

Mine Titanium On Beaches Of Australia

By TONY SYME

MELBOURNE (Reuters) — Research scientists at Melbourne University are busily seeking new and better ways of "mining" the strategically important metal titanium from the sandy beaches along hundreds of miles of Australia's coastline.

Already their researches have brought interested inquiries from scientists and commercial interests in the United States, Britain, Sweden, Switzerland, Italy and Germany.

Once a curiosity, titanium won importance during the war as a metal which combines strength, lightness and freedom from rust. For many aircraft parts it is superior to aluminum or steel.

Jet engine development, which increased the need for materials which would resist high temperatures, boosted the value of titanium.

IN BLACK BEACH SAND

Australia is unusually wealthy in easily-mined deposits of titanium ore, found in black beach sands along hundreds of miles of its coastline. It is already "mined" in a 50-mile stretch along the southeast Queensland coast.

The "mining" is done by lines of spiral machines, about 12 feet high, which work continuously, washing out the titanium and zirconium concentrates from the black sands.

Swimmers ignore the "mining" which returns the sand to the beaches whiter than before.

Commercial separation of the metal concentrates last year yielded 13,800 tons of rutile, the titanium concentrate, and 10,500 tons of zircon, valued at $1,500,000.

The main problems which hampered the development of titanium until a few years ago were chemical extraction and treatment. Some problems now have been solved, some remain.

Three laboratories in Melbourne University's engineering school are working on titanium research.

At one laboratory, investigations are concentrated on improving methods of extracting titanium concentrates from the sand. Methods so far tested include spiral water separation — already used on beaches; shaking the ore on electrically-agitated tables to separate the heavier particles and electrification of the particles in electrostatic separators.

At another laboratory, a team of scientists is experimenting with the production of pure titanium from an electric current passed through a solution containing compounds of the metal.

The third laboratory is experimenting with titanium alloys—combining with oxygen, iron, manganese, chromium and nickel—for strength, lightness and heat resistance.

The Australian research workers hope to reduce the price of crude ore by 75 per cent from its present rate of between $4.50 and $6.75 a pound.

THREE WERE INJURED in this automobile Saturday in a collision on Highway 7, seven miles east of Peterborough. Mrs. Dorothy May, 45, of Toronto, and her two sons, Stuart, 14, and Donald, 8, were taken to Civic Hospital, suffering from multiple cuts and bruises. The husband and father, Claude May, 43, was sleeping in the back seat and received only a scratched nose and shaking up. The other driver, John M. Hayes, also of Toronto, was remanded until next Monday on drunk and careless driving charges and illegal possession of liquor. (Examiner Staff Photo) tion are designed for aggressive war.

"Nothing could be more remote from reality," he said.

Pearson's comments on the Korean problem indicated that Canada is in full agreement with the Western position.

Britain and the United States, together again after their split over Indian attendance at the Korean conference, laid plans today to throttle any more UN debate on the question until after the parley is supposed to get under way.

That would postpone further UN talk about Korea until well after the tentative Oct. 28 starting date for the peace conference.

Such a postponement would thwart chief Soviet delegate Andrei Vishinsky's plans, announced Tuesday, to revive in the political committee his demands that the UN discuss Communist China's bid for India and other neutrals to attend the conference.

EXPECTED SOON

The fight over more Korean discussion is expected to hit the committee floor as soon as the members' statements of general policy are concluded. These statements are due to be wound up by the end of the week.

The United States trounced an identical Vishinsky demand for Korean debate Tuesday in both the steering committee and the General Assembly. U. S. sources were reported confident they could win a third round also.

Although Britain originally supported the view that neutrals should be represented at the peace parley, her delegation now takes the position that the question has been settled the other way by assembly vote and that there is no point in re-opening debate.

Both British and Americans appeared relieved they were once more united in fighting the Soviet Union here instead of battling each other.

CAN DECIDE LATER

Chief U. S. delegate Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., suggested Tuesday that once the conference opens, its members can decide for themselves whether they want to invite neutrals.

He also said the United States was willing to send a representative to talk face-to-face with the Chinese Communists and North Koreans on details of time and place for the conference. Lodge said the United States made this offer to emphasize its desire to get the meeting underway on schedule.

U. S. sources said Lodge was merely "stating the obvious" when he pointed out that conference members could decide whether to ask other countries to join them. They said this had always been the U. S. view. Other delegates said they had not realized this.

Lodge's statement pleased many delegates who had originally supported attendance by India and possibly other neutrals. It left open however, the question of what South Korea would do if the conference decided to expand itself to include such countries.

Welfare Aids

OSLO (CP)—Nearly 1,300 families were aided during the past year by a staff of 83 "municipal home-makers" on the municipal staff of the Norwegian capital. For the coming winter an additional 12 home assistants are being trained.

Indian Pleads Not Guilty To Violent Theft

Leonard Taylor, 24-year-old Curve Lake Indian, pleaded not guilty in county court today to a charge of robbing 79-year-old Charles Smith of Lakefield with violence.

Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw's case is that Taylor was the mysterious assailant who struck Smith over the head on May 1 with a spike or hammer and then robbed him of more than $100. Smith, a pensioner from the Quaker Oats Co. and a First World War veteran, worked part time in A. J. Hudson's second-hand store on Queen St., Lakefield.

After the brutal beating Smith was found wandering about in the rear of the Hudson store in a dazed condition. He was bleeding from a severe head wound.

Today Taylor appeared before Judge John de N. Kennedy and elected to be tried by judge alone. Three Crown witnesses were heard before court adjourned for lunch. All three of them were Lakefield men.

Douglas J. Hamblin said that two days before Smith was beaten and robbed he saw Taylor in Stan Goodall's poolroom, where a window overlooks the rear entrance to Hudson's store. Hamblin said that Taylor sat around on a bench in the poolroom for a few minutes; then left and went around to the rear of Hudson's store where he tried the door and looked in.

LIKE SAME MAN

Walter MacDonald said he saw Taylor sitting on a chair in Hudson's store, late on Thursday morning, the day before Smith was assaulted. Several others were in the store, as well.

"He looks to be the same man," said MacDonald, nodding toward Taylor, "but I couldn't swear, positively."

Stanley Goodall, who runs the poolroom, recognized Taylor as being in the poolroom on Wednesday and Thursday. But he didn't notice him on Friday, the day of the assault and robbery. Some Indians did come in to play around 5 p.m. but he didn't notice if Taylor was one of them.

"You'd have recognized the accused if he had come in, wouldn't you"? asked Defence Counsel Edward Fanjoy.

"Yes," said Goodall.

Taylor entered the prisoner's box, handcuffed. He was neatly dressed in a light grey suit and followed the evidence closely. From time to time he turned and smiled to a large delegation of friends who had come down from Curve Lake to hear the trial.

The case is continuing.

Judge Warns Reporter About Stories

TORONTO (CP)—Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of Ontario said Tuesday that newspaper reporters are in contempt of court if they seek to interview members of grand or petit juries about their duties and reasons for decisions.

He said it is improper for newspapers to publish such interviews if they are obtained and that jurors must not discuss their court work with reporters.

The occasion for his remarks, he said was the publication Tuesday of a front-page story in the Toronto Globe and Mail dealing with the presentation of the grand jury's report by Mrs. Robert Ironside.

He ordered Mrs. Ironside, Fred Thompson, Globe and Mail reporter, and the city editor of The Globe and Mail before him Tuesday at a session of the Ontario Supreme Court.

Mrs. Ironside was the foreman of a grand jury which criticized the practice of remanding cases to Toronto's Don jail. With permission of the chief justice she added her personal views that criminal code sections dealing with conspiracy should be revised.

Mr. Thompson later obtained from Mrs. Ironside a statement that she thought the code should be revised to cover labor unions.

Chief Justice McRuer said that had he known Mrs. Ironside's remarks applied to labor unions, he would not have permitted her to make them. Their application had not been clear to him.

The chief justice said the arrangement of the Globe and Mail report had produced the implication that he had endorsed Mrs. Ironside's views upon labor unions and he felt it necessary to dissociate himself publicly from any such implication.

C. H. Walker, Globe and Mail counsel, apologized on behalf of the newspaper.

Need Skilled Tradesmen

ST. ANDREWS, N.B. (CP)—Ontario may find it necessary to appeal to Ottawa to step up immigration of skilled tradesmen to man the province's industry, Ontario Planning Minister W. K. Warrender said Tuesday.

Mr. Warrender, here for the annual conference of the provincial governments' trade and industry council, said records show that within three or four years Ontario's supply of tradesmen will be exhausted unless the demand is met by immigrants.

In 1952, he said, the number of industries attracted to Ontario included 128 from the United States alone. All of these were not large projects, but they represented a diversification of industry.

The minister said a selective policy of immigration is used, whereby workers go to specific jobs where they are needed.

Mr. Warrender said his department encourages new industry to locate away from densely-populated areas and is noting success in this endeavor, when management is shown a combination of desirable factors.

Bishop Wilkinson Preaches At Ida

CAVAN (ENS)—St. John's Anglican Church, Ida, celebrated its annual Harvest Festival service Sunday evening.

The church was decorated with fruit, flowers and grain for the occassion.

The Rev. L. R. Pocock, rector of the Parish of Cavan, had charge of the service. Mr. Clair Winslow read the first lesson and Mr. Walter Dyer the second. Miss Jean Laugh was at the organ and led the hymn singing.

The Rt. Rev. F. H. Wilkinson, coadjutor bishop of Toronto, preached the sermon. He spoke of the fertile farm lands in the district, from which a bountiful harvest had been garnered this year and how thankful the people of this locality should be for having this place as their home.

As an offertory the choir sang "Fear not O Lord".

The church was filled to capacity. After the service the congregation was invited to the parish hall, where bishop Wilkinson dedicated the new furnishings and decorations.

A search was started for the men when they were reported missing Sunday. RCAF planes were withdrawn from the hunt after it was learned the men landed at Bryson lake Sunday night.

Salaries, Stamps In Resolutions Conference OKs

Resolutions ranging from clerks' salaries to the size of postage stamps featured the morning session of the conference of the Ontario branch of the Canadian Postmasters' Association.

The afternoon session—including the election of officers—will conclude the three-day conference which began Monday at the Empress Hotel, and will conclude there with a dinner tonight.

A resolution favoring half-day closing on Saturdays was carried. Two subsequent resolutions put by the same man—Postmaster L. A. Bromley, Grimsby—were carried: better mechanical equipment, and a new type of change of address card.

George Day, Rockwood postmaster, urged that all clerks in semi-staff offices be given a $300 increase annually, owing to difficulty postmaster of these offices had in obtaining clerks. This passed, as did a resolution that such postmasters be given authority to hire Christmas help.

A. D. Smith, Bluevale, offered a resolution urging that regular postage stamps from one to four cents be of the same size and color, and that figure colors be in contrast to the body of the stamp.

Aim of his motion, said Mr. Smith, was not to depart from the practice of issuing commemorative or pictorial stamps, but to have all ordinary issues the same size.

Addresses were given by district post office inspectors G. E. Macklen, Ottawa; James Allen, North Bay; W. A. Pearson, London and Harvey Reeve, Toronto.

3rd Canadian Division Plans 'Second Invasion' Of Europe

KITCHENER (CP)—About 300 former members of the 3rd Canadian infantry division will go to Europe next year to mark the 10th anniversary of D-day June 6.

In charge of getting the men over for this "second invasion" of the continent is Clare Millar of Kitchener, formerly a lieutenant. "Inquiries are coming in from across Canada, from top officers on down," says Mr. Millar. "The interest in this trip is very keen."

The intention of the tour is to provide a second trip to Europe for men who landed on the beaches of Normandy with the 3rd division in 1944. It is hoped a cenotaph will be erected on the beach to be dedicated and unveiled by the Canadians.

Three methods of making the ocean crossing are being arranged. One group will sail on a Cunard liner from Quebec May 26. Another will fly from Montreal by Trans-Canada Air Lines June 1, and the third follows the next day from Montreal by BOAC.

Hotel and meals are being arranged. Wives of service men have been invited, and side trips and sight-seeing tours of England and the Continent are also planned.

Plans call for the whole group to assemble in Normandy June 5. Dinner that night will be at Caen, scene of bitter fighting for days after the landing. The actual anniversary, June 6, will be spent touring the battle fields and war cemeteries.

The group will work their way down to Groningen June 7 and then disperse.

Those making the trip will be asked to wear grey flannels, with regimental blazers, and a grey 3rd divisional beret with regimental badge.

The 3rd division for the invasion of Normandy included the western infantry brigade, two eastern Canada infantry brigades and three Canadian tank regiments, the whole division embracing men from the Maritimes to British Columbia.

Sees Revival Of Religion In Japan

Unless a world war intervenes, there will be a great revival of religion in Japan in the next few years, predicted the Rev. H. S. Hilleyer, addressing an open meeting of the Mission Circle of the Lakefield Baptist Church.

General secretary of the Canadian Baptist Foreign Mission Board, Dr. Hilleyer has recently returned from a trip around the world, sponsored by the Foreign Mission Board. He spoke on the subject, "Open Doors in Portugal, Africa, India and Japan".

Japan is a country of 85 million people, of whom 95 per cent are literate. The country has 178 universities as well as many colleges, secondary and primary schools. The people were polite and gracious, showing no spirit of hatred or revenge towards their conquerors.

Japan now has 1,900 missionaries. Of this number, only 150 have had five years or more experience in the country.

OTHER COUNTRIES

Portugal, Dr. Hilleyer said, was a country where the truth of the Gospel was earnestly sought. The Baptist Church was doing a great work towards this end.

In Africa, one marvelled at the fact that missionaries were able to exist there before the days of modern medicine and inoculations, so hard is the climate on those not born to it.

Church membership in Africa is only granted under strict rules. Marriage ceremonies are performed only for those who have become church members and learned to read and write.

Dr. Hilleyer referred to India as a Communist's paradise. A land where millions go to bed hungry every night is quick to embrace the promises made by Communists. In spite of this, he felt Communism would not conquer India except by force of arms.

Mrs. Wallace Hendren, president of the circle, presided for the meeting, which was attended by many from other churches of the village as well as from Peterborough and Gilmour.

The Scripture lesson was read by Miss Ruby Nichols and the Rev. W. B. Walker led in prayer. Mrs. J. Binghom, of Norwood, contributed a solo, accompanied by Mrs. J. A. Arnott. The benediction was pronounced by the Rev. Ivan C. Morgan of Peterborough.

Suggests Study Of Price Set-Up

TORONTO (CP)—A study of the price structure of the milling industry to discover "whether profits in this industry are adding to the consumer's cost of living unnecessarily" was suggested today to the Canadian Association of Consumers.

In a report to the association's sixth annual meeting here, Mrs. Hugh Summers of Fonthill, Ont., agricultural convener, said the outlook was "not rosy" in Canada where wheat was of major economic importance.

The "one bright spot" was an interest in barley by heavily-populated eastern countries.

"Time may prove that barley is a profitable export crop," Mrs. Summers said.

State Monopoly

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—The Brazilian Congress sent to President Getulio Vargas today a bill creating a $500,000,000 state monopoly in the production, transport and refining of petroleum. It prohibits foreign participation of any kind in the government-controlled corporation to be set up and provides that private oil companies at present operating here cannot expand their facilities without the corporation participating.

Property Sale Quite Proper Says Mayor

COBOURG (ENS)—Replying to criticism expressed in a letter to the Sentinel-Star, a local weekly newspaper concerning transfer of industrial property to Curtis Products, a Cobourg firm, Mayor Jack Burnet, at Tuesday night's council meeting, declared that the sale was proper in every way and had not been done behind closed doors as sugegsted in the letter.

The writer of the letter declared that sale of the four acres for $100 was ridiculously low and he challenged the authority of the town council to sell it to Curtis Products when a member of the firm, Otto Curtis, was a member of town council.

BOUGHT FROM HEPC

Mayor Burnet explained that the land was acquired from the HEPC througuh "the good offices of the Hon. W. A. Goodfellow" at a nominal sum. He said Mr. Goodfellow stipulated it was conveyed to the Industrial Commission for the purpose of industrial expansion and was not to be sold for a profit.

Curtis Products some time ago advised the Industrial Commission of its intention to expand. At the request of the Industrial Commission the necessary authority was received from the town council to deed the property to Curtis Products.

The expansion of the firm would, with the erection of its first additional unit, provide taxes of $3,000 a year, compared with $171.82 received when the HEPC was owner, as well as the benefits to the community from increased payroll, the Mayor said.

Councillor Harold Richardson, a lawyer, pointed out that Curtis Products was a separate entity. The fact that Otto Curtis was a town councillor did not present any illegal aspect, he said.

See Latin America Excellent Market

TORONTO (CP)—Canadian exporters were told today to look for an even richer potential in the Latin American market, which paid off to the tune of $560,000,000 last year.

A report to the fall meeting of the executive council of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association here today, said the southern markets had tripled their percentage share of Canada's trade with all countries since the pre-war period.

Expressing "concern" over the Canadian tariff structure, the council urged government investigations into the effect on the country's economy before reductions were made in the "already limited protection" which exists.

British Magnate Tours Canada, U.S.

LONDON (CP)—Isaac Wolfson, chairman and managing director of Britain's booming Great Universal Stores Limited, leaves Thursday for a three-to-four-week trip to Canadian and United States holdings. He will inspect expansion possibilities in both countries.

Wolfson Tuesday told the company's general meeting that "during the next 15 years he will build in Canada and the U.S. a bigger business than we have at home." The firm's trading profit last year was $31,900,000.

Turn-over in the Canadian subsidiaries—90 stores and depots across the country handling furniture, furnishings and some clothing—increased 22 per cent last year, Wolfson said.

Finds Imports Hurt Factories

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—F. S. Wallace, president of the Canadian Electrical Manufacturers Association, said today that imported electrical products are beginning to hit Canadian factories.

In a statement released at the association's annual meeting, he said that imports of electrical products during 1952 were valued at about $200,000,000 and that the percentage of imports to domestic production is increasing. Domestic production was estimated at $715,873,342.

"If this trend continues to develop," the statement said, "it can have serious repercussions not only in the manufacturing capacity of Canadian plants, but in the ability of our electrical manufacturers to purchase Canadian raw materials and maintain high levels of employment in the industry."

WA Plan Bazaar In New Parish Hall

All Men Are Philosophers, Professor Tells Sales Club

Whatever you are, you're a philosopher, Dr. Murray A. Cayley, Presbyterian minister and U.S. college professor told the Sales and Advertising club Tuesday night.

If a man is a philosopher, he is one of three kinds.

His mind is either set for the material things of life, for doing good work, or for correlating both and seeing that there is something greater than himself.

Dr. Cayley recalled the moral tale of the three stonemasons, each of whom was asked what he was doing. One said he was making $10 a day. The second said he was carving a fine stone. The third pointed to the building beside him and said he was building a beautiful cathedral.

Too many people, he declared, thought no further ahead than their pay cheques. Their worship of gain distorts their aims.

Even those who concentrated on doing good work made a fetish of it; they became prima donnas. They forgot that there was something they were building larger than themselves.

The doctor charged, too, that religion, instead of helping man to know his fellows, had been made a divisive thing.

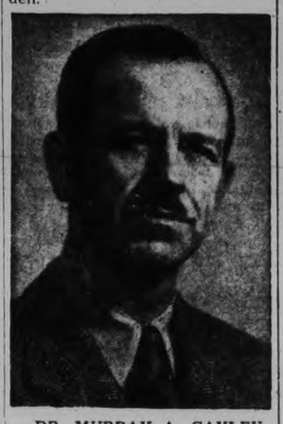
Through organizations of various kinds that over-rode these divisions, they were able to know each other.

"TWISTED VIEWS"

Dr. Cayley declared that many believed nothing was more important than themselves. They influenced—"twisted" was his word—their children's views with their own "twisted beliefs", and in doing so lost sight of the fact that their homes and families were more important than they.

The doctor was speaking to the club's annual stag held at Club Aragon. He was introduced by Gordon McGavin and thanked by Bud Fortner.

During the early part of the program, Lionel Browne spoke briefly on the work the club had accomplished under the presidency (1952-53) of Russ Baer. It was announced that the club's "Retail Night" would be held October 20. Chairman for the meeting was President John Madden.



DR. MURRAY A. CAYLEY, Presbyterian minister and U. S. college professor, was guest speaker Tuesday night at the first fall meeting of the Sales and Ad. Club.

Alberta Gas For Peterborough?

In Ottawa, Washington, Texas, Tennessee, the American West Coast and Alberta gas warfare is being waged as deadly as anything that ever hovered over trenches. The fumes reach even to Peterborough. It is an intense and powerful struggle for control of natural gas resources and markets. In Canada the field of battle is the gas of southern Alberta and the objective the markets of the east, particularly Toronto and Montreal. The most hopeful and strongest contender for both is the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, a company incorporated in Canada several years ago but directed and financed chiefly in the United States. The company has already tapped large gas supplies in Alberta and Saskatchewan. It proposes to construct a pipe line from Alberta to Winnipeg through Northern Ontario and south to Toronto. Feeder lines would be built to smaller Ontario centres and Montreal. This is a gigantic undertaking, physically and financially. The estimated cost is three hundred million dollars. If the Trans-Canada Pipe lines is to serve Ontario cities as well as the Canadian middle-west, the first requirement is that it secure the franchise for Alberta gas, and secondly the eastern markets for it.

* * *

Six companies, American and Canadian, are contending for permission to build pipelines for transmitting prairie gas, but Trans-Canada Pipelines is the only one with immediate plans to build through Canada entirely, and into Ontario. The Alberta Natural Gas and Petroleum Board is disposed to favour Canadian rather than American markets for its gas, but it wants to make the most profitable deal possible and to ensure that the company which gets the franchise also has sufficient and secure markets. It is expected that that Government board will make its decision on the six applications this autumn.

* * *

A few weeks ago the American Federal Power Commission approved the export of Tennessee gas across the border at Buffalo into Ontario. The Niagara Gas Transmission Company, a subsidiary of the Toronto Consumers' Gas Company, intends to extend the American pipeline to Queenston and Toronto. If this takes place Trans-Canada Pipe Lines' market in Toronto would virtually be eliminated. Without it, would Alberta gas ever be piped into Ontario?

* * *

The nub of the case for the Trans-Canada Pipe Lines seems to be this: it alone has a plan to serve not only Toronto but other southern Ontario centres, north-western Ontario and the prairies. It could operate without direction, interference or sanction from the American government, because it is a Canadian incorporation and its pipes would lie entirely in Canada. It would be wholly under Canadian provincial and federal jurisdiction and would not be subject to American legislative or tariff whims or the shifting condition of American markets and American consumption. Objections are made to the trans-Canada line on the ground that it would be too expensive—too many miles through too thinly populated territory with too few customers. It would have to be subsidized by tax-money, the objectors say. The company asserts that it can sell Alberta natural gas in Ontario as cheaply as other companies say they will sell American gas here, and it guarantees a constant supply.

Peterborough has a direct interest in the matter. Trans-Canada Pipe Lines' representative has told our Utilities Commission that it expects to be able to supply Alberta gas to Peterborough within three years, if all goes well, and at a price almost a third less than the cost of the gas now distributed in Peterborough. This is important—both the cost and the supply, for natural gas is fast becoming a continental utility, essential to industry, supplementary to homes. If only Toronto gets natural gas, and that from the States, the rest of Ontario will suffer the lack of Alberta gas.

President McCarthy

The notorious American Senator Joseph McCarthy seems to have constituted himself a U.S. government above and beyond the constitutional one headed by President Eisenhower. The mighty in the land hold themselves breathless at the call of McCarthy. McCarthy's pronouncements on topics as various as religion and taxes, literature and generalship, and his innuendos and threats on anything under the sun or above it are broadcast to the world and discussed in whispers behind closed doors. McCarthy agents prowl around Europe, subverting it in a clanking crusade against subversion. Sub-committees have pullulated from his investigating committee, like departments of a government, increasing McCarthy's reach and extending his power.

Now, it seems, all really important matters are filtered through McCarthy's hands or come from his office, if not the lips of the master himself. The fateful disappearance of Beria, for instance, is too delicate and complicated for the Department of State. A McCarthy subcommittee takes it in hand. It will disclose in a few days the whereabouts and wherefores of Lavrenty Beria, former head of the Russian secret police. Leave the case to McCarthy. He knows what is right and best and most American in all things. He will deal with Beria. Of this one may be sure: if there is any notoriety to be got, McCarthy will have it.

There has not been a revolution in the United States since the eighteenth century, nor an armed challenge to the central government since the Civil War. Are we not now witnessing a coup d'etat, vicious though bloodless, when this notorious man can usurp governmental authority, impale individual freedom on the spikes of his calumny, pollute the air with police-state suspicions, and change the home of the free into a chamber of inquisition, as outsiders see it and him?

If McCarthy gets much more rope he will hang not himself but the American democracy, and make a gallows of the American constitution.

Food: Russia's Problem, Our Opportunity

Stalin once told Churchill that his most terrible task was the war he waged against peasants to force collective farming on them. His weapon then was hunger. Some ten million small landowners in western and southern Russia were involved in the struggle and between three and five million of them died, mostly of starvation. The Stalin Government won the fight—at a terrible cost. That cost is still being felt in Russia and its satellites, for hunger still exists. Twenty years later, today, Russia has not yet replaced the seed crops or the breeding stocks that were destroyed in that war for collective farming.

Collectivization has been imposed since the war on new Communist countries, but with difficulty and no success; many have had to give up the notion. Even Russia is modifying the collective course; new incentives have been offered this week by Malenkov to encourage small Russian farmers to produce more. Malenkov admitted that there were almost nine million fewer cows in Russia today than there were in 1928 when the pitiless extermination of small farmers began.

Hunger if not actual starvation has been the chief force behind the restlessness and revolts of people in Russian satellites. It is making communist regimes unstable. They are being forced to make concessions. By contrast, the West has a full breadbasket. The most appealing claim the West has made for the support of East German citizens has been to their stomachs. The food parcels distributed to East Berliners and other Germans in the Soviet zone have been the best propaganda weapon the West has used since the Berlin air lift.

Mr. Walter Reuther, president of the CIO, proposed in Montreal this week that Canada and the United States should wage war against Communism by supplying the hungry Red world with food. There is on this continent a surplus of 2,729,000,000 bushels of wheat. Mr. Reuther suggested that part of the great surplus be distributed as gifts or on long-term credit to impoverished and starving areas of the world "to take the wrinkle out of the empty belly." A well-fed, well-clothed, well-housed person is likely to be a contented person. A contented person is not likely to become or to remain a Communist, particularly when the example Communist countries has to offer is poverty and oppression.

The most dramatic demonstration of Western superiority and liberalism which could be made now is to pour food into Communist and Communist-tinged countries which need it. It would show first that the West has food and to spare. It would show, secondly, that the West has the welfare of mankind at heart. Let the West thus demonstrate at the same time its superiority and its generosity.

NOTES AND COMMENT

A Pennsylvania woman has divorced her husband because he made her sleep in the coal bin. The Ottawa Citizen's indentured wag says that "he was doing his best to soot her". Perhaps, but now she's giving him his lumps.

A daughter of Count Leo Tolstoy, returning from a tour in Europe, reports that Communism is dying, that the Russians are afraid of war, that a revolution is coming and that it will begin at the top. We shall file this with the predictions during the recent war that Hitler was about to be overthrown by an enraged Germany.

Where The Dead Lie

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

ALL over the world, like signs to mark the high tide of British expansion, are small graveyards. For very often, the living British have receded and left their well-buried dead as the only evidence that they were ever there.

✧ ✧ ✧

PERHAPS the most lovely is in the Portuguese colony city of Macao, on the China coast. It is like a high-walled room without a roof, crowded with good eighteenth century carving and classical inscription cut into grey stone. It contains a Churchill, and an Irish painter, and the clergyman who first translated the Bible into Chinese. Behind the yard's tight-shut door the stones lean gently, shaded by strange trees, tended by an old Chinaman.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is a more melancholy graveyard in the heart of Singapore. It is like an untended hayfield. The graves are Gothic, in the early nineteenth century manner, and their shabby pinnacles and pointed arches crumbling with moisture, are draped with green moss and half hidden by the rank grass that nobody tramples.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is one in the middle of Accra, where colonial servants were once buried. It is surrounded by a broken wall; it is littered with half bricks and dusty refuse. It looks like a place waiting to be built on. The African slums have engulfed it and ignored it.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is the British cemetery in a suburb of Shanghai which is a forest of white marble. This is where they buried forty British sailors who were killed on the Yangtze River by Communist guns. And in Korea, seven miles outside Seoul, there is another.

✧ ✧ ✧

THIS is a little different. None of the graves is older than 1890, and all religions and all races lie side by side. British, Canadian and American missionaries, Russian priests and merchants, Italian diplomats, German officials, nurses, doctors, an American brigadier who tried to train the old Korean Royal Army. And nearly half of them are children.

✧ ✧ ✧

ALMOST every grave has been marked by bullets. The most beautiful, which was for an Italian consul, has been overturned and split in half. The Russian graves have been carefully defaced, shot across with submachine guns, and the little ikons at the centre of their double-barred crosses carefully smashed. The thing looks curiously deliberate.

✧ ✧ ✧

THESE are the graves of those who came to Korea when it was first opened to foreigners. The graveyard stands on a low hill and overlooks the broad sweep of the River Han, curiously alone and withdrawn from the bustling rice fields around it. A notice at the gate signed by the Director of Police, Ma Po District, warns of extreme penalties for anyone who desecrates this "Holy Ground." The way in is through a caretaker's house that smells powerfully of chickens. And there, starting at the top of the hill, sloping down in terraces, clipped, mowed and tended beyond anything else in Korea, is the Foreign Cemetery.

✧ ✧ ✧

THE STONES are massive and the inscriptions elaborate. It is as if they were erected to stave off the dreadful anonymity of death in Asia. At the top of the hill, dominating the graveyard, is a tall column of polished black basalt crowned with a white stone carved like a miniature temple roof. This is how the Koreans commemorate their great men, and the Koreans put up this column. On it is carved 'Ernest Thomas Bethell, born at Bristol, England, 1872, died at Seoul 1909." There used to be a long inscription in Korean on the back, but the Japanese neatly chipped it all away. For Bethell was a journalist who ran an English newspaper in Seoul, and, almost alone, opposed the Japanese absorption of Korea. He was a gay journalist who loved the country. He died of fever and no foreigner is more kindly remembered here.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are several hundred others. There is "George Alexander Taylor, Pioneer Mining Engineer in Korea, born Nova Scotia, died in Korea 1908." There is a military-looking German grave, black and massive. "Heir Ruht in Gott, Herr Franz Eckert, Musikdirector, d. 1916." He trained a military band here. There is "Carol, little daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Hirst. Called from her sweet songs to join the heavenly choir 1920. After four years of abundant life here."

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE is "Mabel Young, R. N. Missionary Nurse of the United Church of Canada, 1883-1935— She hath done what she could." There is "Ellen Lewis, one of the first servants of God in the Land of the Morning Calm. Erected by her adopted son, W. O. Yun."

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are the tombs of the best-known of the missionaries, the Underwoods, who came from America. On a hill a few miles away you can see a huge school, only partially ruined, that they founded. A descendant of the Underwoods in the American Army, is today interpreter for the United Nations negotiators at Panmunjom. The last person to be buried here is Mrs. Ethel Underwood, from Michigan, America, who was murdered in 1949 by a Communist student who mistook her for the lady who was the first Korean delegate to the United Nations.

✧ ✧ ✧

THERE are stones such as these all over the world. And this is not a very sad place. There is a strange exultation about it, as if these graves were monuments to victories. One of the latest says: "I would rather be buried in Korea than in Westminster Abbey." Quite a lot of them here would have felt the same way.

Reciprocal Respect

(Windsor Star)

Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire lunched with Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill. We suspect the old rebel has a sneaking admiration for the old imperialist, and vice versa. The man who said he did not become "His Majesty's first minister to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire" doubtless chatted amicably with the man who liquidated Southern Ireland out of the Empire.

CAUSE AND EFFECT

The Isles Of Misfortune

By C. FLETCHER-COOKE

THE earthquake in Cyprus will have had a bad effect on the work of reconstruction in Greece's Ionian Islands, where "self-help" is the only means of getting nearly one hundred thousand people into permanent shelter before the winter. For "self-help"—which means building your own wooden shed with salvaged timber and bent nails—does not appeal to Mediterranean peoples if they think that their handiwork is soon to be brought crashing down by another earth tremor.

Some time this month Greece's General Iatrides will leave his headquarters at Argostoli, and his two deputies will leave Ithaca and Zante. The navies, with their bread ovens and helicopters have already gone. The Minister for the Islands and his civilian staff will take over, this change symbolising "relief" and the beginning of "Reconstruction". They will take over a population living twelve to a tent, just as the rains are beginning—rains which will wash away not only the paths and the floors, but also the very soil on which the people live; for the elaborate retaining walls around the slopes of the vineyards and olive groves are mostly destroyed.

The Greek Government insists on isolating the problem by keeping the people on the islands because it fears the creation of an unmanageable refugee problem on the mainland, and the aggravation of the unemployment figures in Athens (capital of Greece) if the islanders start to leave. Yet if this policy is to succeed, the new civilian administration must galvanise the population into taking some initiative for its own preservation. Timber, nails, tar-paper, hand-tools and wheelbarrows are promised and are coming from Britain and America. But the spirit of co-operative endeavour cannot be so easily transferred.

At present the people are stunned by their misfortunes. In Zante the only two buildings left intact were the Church and the Bank; and the people tend to look to these institutions for every requirment. In the smaller villages, the people want to leave the islands quickly and for good, whatever the official reports may say. They are jealous that the towns are getting the pick of the relief; and their ancient family vendettas survive even the most horrible of catastrophes.

At present, food supplies are good and well distributed. Roads have been reopened and children's hospitals are working. Boy Scouts have built a model "tent village". The Greek Army has shown great initiative in assuming responsibilities for which it had no immediate legal powers.

But the long-term outlook is black. As one surveys the total destruction of fixed capital equipment, the olive presses, the reservoirs, shops and small factories, one wonders if these beautiful islands, so largely developed by the British during their half-century of occupation, can, in the foreseeable future, hope to support anything like the present population.

The Greek Government may yet be driven to the problem of evacuation.

Our Lost Markets

(SUDBURY STAR)

A NEWS REPORT from Vancouver states that the lumber industry in British Columbia is facing an economic crisis so severe that sawmills can buy timber cheaper than it cost the logging companies to cut it.

Hemlock is selling on the Vancouver market at $27.50 per thousand and operators claim it costs them $37 per thousand to produce the lumber, and the reports state the hemlock and cedar markets are glutted.

Not to be ignored in this economic picture is the statement of a spokesman for the industry, in which he said:

"Our traditional markets have shrunk to an extent where drastic price cuts are needed to keep up sales.

"We have lost the United Kingdom market to a large extent, and the prairie and eastern market is slackening off."

Once again, in Canada's trade picture, we can see the familiar pattern of the Dominion's products being priced out of the market—at least the United Kingdom market.

Because of the Canadian government's insistence for an extra five cents a bushel for wheat, the United Kingdom has sought its wheat supplies in Argentina. The story of lost bacon and dairy product markets to Denmark and Scandinavian countries is an old story.

Nor can we close our eyes to the fact that union demands for higher and higher wages are boosting the cost of production above the level at which Canadian products can compete on the world markets.

The inevitable result is perhaps the goal of the Communists and Socialists in this country. The signs require serious study by serious-minded workers who do not want to see the No Help Wanted signs on shut-down industries, for the simple reason that the labour movement plays a major role in pricing Canadian goods off the world markets.

This Is Canada

(Camrose Canadian)

Our attention was drawn to a certain incident in Camrose earlier in the summer. A gang of eight artisans was engaged in finishing off a new residence job. There were eight automobiles parked outside the new building, three of them being 1953 models. Two of the workmen were immigrants from war-torn Europe with less than a year's residence in Canada.

When we see such incidents right at hand we are given to wonder why the Communist cause can draw a single vote in Canada. Far from criticizing these artisans for spending their money on cars, we glory in the fact that this community, this Canada of ours can give its citizens such a high standard of living.

Bible Message

(From Authorized Version)

God that made the world and all things therein, seeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands, as though he needed any thing, seeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things . . . For in him we live, and move and have our being; as certain also of your own poets have said, For we are also his offspring. (Act 17: 244, 25, 28.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And call no man your father upon the earth: for one is your Father, which is spring. (Act 17: 24, 25, 28.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Incline your ear, and come unto me: hear, and your sould shall live; and I will make an everlasting covenant with you, even the sure mercies of David. Behold, I have given him for a witness to the people, and a leader and a commander to the people. Behold, thou shalt call a nation that thou knowest not, and nations that knew not thee shall run unto thee because of the Lord thy God, and for the Holy One of Israel; for he hath glorified thee. Letters To The Editor

TRIBUTE TO W. C. MORTON

Sir: I wish to pay tribute to a kindly gentleman whose funeral was held on Friday. I refer to Mr. William C. Morton, piano tuner.

Mr. Morton has served in capacity as piano tuner for many years in Peterborough, and by his quiet manner made many friends in this district who have missed him since his retirement a year or so ago.

His was not an aggressive manner, but by his unassuming way, he succeeded in making many friends in the musical world in the course of his work as piano tuner.

His excellency of work is established by the fact that he was engaged as piano expert for Heintzman Co. store in Peterborough for years.

I am sure all the musical folk in Peterborough who knew Mr. Morton will miss him very much, and will agree with me, that in his passing, we have lost a good friend, a kindly gentleman, and a master in his profession.

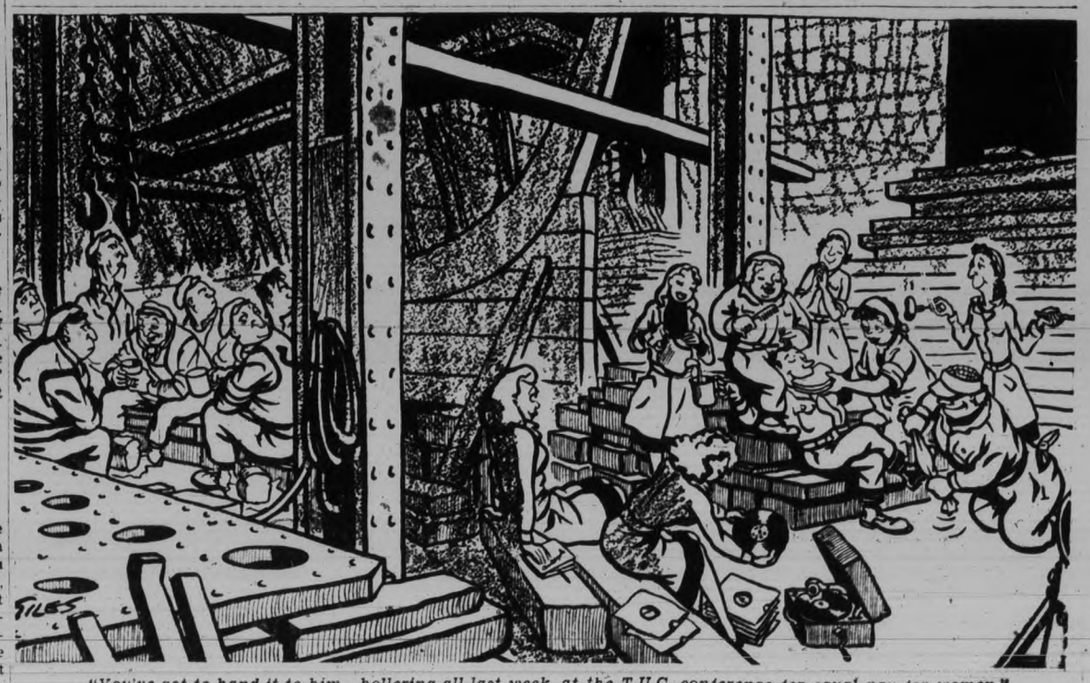
W. R. POTTER,
Organist, Knox United Church,
Peterborough.

EUTHANASIA, MERCY KILLING

Sir: I often wonder at the vindictive, and intolerant remarks of some people, when the subject of "Mercy Killing" comes up. I got quite a panning the other day for a letter I wrote and which was published in the Examiner. The letter was entitled "Believes in Mercy Killing." All I did was to remind some cloud dwellers about a few simple facts of life— that the Strong survive, and the Weak go to the wall. The successful breeder of blood stock cannot allow any contamination and very little sentiment either. What the world needs is fewer, and better mentally and physically adjusted people. You don't get 'em by building bigger and better lunatic asylums.

Take the case of one wretched woman I know personally. An idiot-bed-ridden son, 18 years old and diapered like a baby every few hours. Sometimes he knows his mother and sometimes he doesn't. Most of the time he sits and rolls his head hour after hour and makes noises like a kitten. For whom is the pity? I asked the woman if she wished it dead—for this subhuman creature could not be called a man. Yes, she said, many, many times but what can we do? I often wonder, if our attitude would not be changed, if any one of us were in the dreadful position of this poor woman.

FRED HORN.



"You've got to hand it to him—hollering all last week at the T.U.C. conference for equal pay for women."

HE'LL BRING HOME THE DUCKS—Headed for a duck dinner is happy Gordon Parker of Kirkfield Park, Man., who bagged a brace of mallards on opening day of the duck season in Manitoba. He was hunting in Netley Marsh, 35 miles northeast of Winnipeg.

Douk Trials Move Quickly, Dull Affairs

By BRUCE LEVETT

VANCOUVER (CP)—In the Russian patois of the Doukhobor, Ivan Ivanovich—John, son of John—is everybody and nobody. He is the average man.

And Ivan Ivanovich is on trial in a drafty meeting hall in suburban Burnaby for appearing in public while nude. To Ivan, this is no sin but a virtue, for to appear nude is to appear in the form in which he was put on earth by God.

There are 70 others like Ivan on trial and 72 like his wife, Dascha, charged after staging a nude parade at Perry Siding to protest the provincial government's order to send their children to school.

To date 79 Sons of Freedom have been found guilty on the nude charge, including 30 Tuesday. Charges against two women and five men were dismissed Monday, leaving 58, all women, still to be tried when the hearing continues next Friday.

Ivan arrives at the courtroom in the back seat of an RCMP patrol car. With two others, he is hustled into the "cell," to await his turn in the kitchen-chair prisoner's box.

The cell is a narrow room. Over the doorway is a sign reading "men."

WAITS TURN

When there are 11 like Ivan ready, court begins. Ivan waits his turn, sitting on a chair with his back to the wall or slumped on the board floor. There are two booted and spurred RCMP officers at the door marked "men."

When his name is called—"Regina (the Queen) vs Ivan Ivanovich"—he is led forward for his three minutes in the kitchen chair facing the judge.

He hears the charge in English, then again in Russia through an interpreter. Throughout every trial, the business of the court goes on against the steady monotonous drone of the interpreter.

The magistrate mounts to the stage, which still bears mementoes of the last Christmas pageant, from his chambers which aren't really chambers at all but the pantry off the meeting-hall kitchen.

Ivan does not answer when the charge is read. He does not answer when he is asked to plead. He makes no sound throughout.

Occasionally, an older, more fanatic Son will murmuer in Russian: "We do not recognize this trial."

HAT IN HAND

But Ivan says nothing. He sits with his hobnailed boots tucked under the chair. And always there is a hat in his hand. He wears rough work trousers—jeans, usually—a heavy wool shirt and a mismatched jacket. His face shows the beard which has developed during his week in prison. It also shows a pinched look from the hunger strike which he just ended.

It is usually a regular-featured, handsome face. Always it is tanned.

In three minutes, Ivan is found guilty and led away. Then the khaki-clad RCMP corporal intones: "Regina vs Dascha Ivanovich."

Find Doorman Has Doctor Of Laws Degree

VANCOUVER (CP)—Bruno Milinkovich, 30, is one of Canada's best educated doormen.

The young Hungarian is a doctor of laws and taught international law at Budapest University where he graduated cum laude.

One night he slipped over the Hungarian border into Austria with two of his students by hiring an ex-secretary of the Communist party as guide. Austrian police almost sent him back, but he convinced them he had a scholarship to Chicago University and they let him go.

Milinkovich says he prefers carrying luggage to practising law behind the Iron Curtain.

IT'S IMPROVEMENT

For opening car doors, calling taxis and answering questions he gets $182 a month. But this is an improvement over loading lumber, picking fruit and selling encyclopedias—just a few of the jobs he has had since coming to Canada.

It's a promotion, too, as he first worked as bus boy. Now he wears one of the flashiest uniforms in town.

"This is a most interesting job" he said. "Yesterday I met the vice-president of the Alliance Francaise for North America. I'm learning the language and learning about people."

Award $5,000 Damages Against Members Of Union

WINNIPEG (CP)—Damages of $5,000 and costs against members of a union have been awarded by Chief Justice E. K. Williams in a judgment arising from the suspension of a Winnipeg milkman.

The chief justice also granted an injunction to restrain local 119, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America (AFL-TLC) from stopping John Evers Tunney, the milkman, from deriving full enjoyment of his rights as a member of the local.

The 46-page judgment criticizes the action of Ed Houle, business manager of the local, and instructs that he account for certain monies he handled during his term as business manager.

ASKED DAMAGES

Tunney, in his original claim, asked damages because he was suspended by the local and as a result lost his job with the Crescent Creamery Co. The suspension allegedly resulted from a personal dispute between Tunney and Houle.

The creamery was made joint defendant with the union, but, on instructions from the chief justice, was dismissed from the case at the trial, held in 1950.

Tunney sued the local and its officers.

Pope Takes Rest

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Vatican sources said Tuesday that Pope Pius is taking a two-day respite from audiences "to allow himself a short rest." A spokesman said a neuritis condition in the pontiff's right arm and shoulder has disappeared.

Easterners Get Eyes Opened In Tour Of Peace River Area

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

On the Canadian Chamber of Commerce tour of western Canada easterners get their eyes opened about what is going on in the vast reaches beyond their own bailiwicks, and westerners learn that not all easterners are born with horns and tails.

Following last week's chamber meeting in Edmonton, we went to Alberta's Peace river country—first to Rycroft, 357 miles northwest by train.

Both Rycroft and nearby Spirit River are growing towns of some 1,000 population. Some of us, thinking only of wheat, were somewhat surprised to see there a lumber mill which employs 150 men in winter—the first of many lumber mills which we were to see in the next couple of days.

Rycroft sent us 50 miles south to Grande Prairie (population about 5,000). There we learned that you can't judge Peace river centres by the bare figures of their populations. For they are distributing centres and the numerous smart stores with sleek fronts are supported by the purchasing power of huge areas.

MAGNIFICENT VIEW

At Grande Prairie, we looked out over 1,000,000 area of farmland—probably the most magnificent view of its kind in Canada.

We went to the Dominion experimental farm to be greeted by Mayor Howey of nearby Beaverlodge, and by piper the Rev. Don Fraser, United Church minister at Beaverlodge.

Next morning, at McLennan, 140 miles northeast, Bishop Routhier, grandson of the author of "O Canada," showed us over the new Roman Catholic Cathedral, an edifice of beauty and simplicity.

From there, we went 50 miles northwest to the town of Peace River, a centre of some 2,500 population, located just below the place where the Smoky river joins the Peace and surrounded by magnificent hills with miles of rolling prairie behind them.

GRAIN SHIPPING POINT

We saw nearby Grimshaw, which vies with other Peace river centres as the largest grain shipping points in the world. Grain is trucked in from as far as 300 miles away. And we were told that each winter $350,000 worth of fish from Great Slave lake in the Northwest Territories leaves the Grimshaw station for New York.

From there we might, if we had had time, have driven over the Mackenzie highway 250 miles northeast to Fort Vermillion, where a 4,000,000-acre farm country is opening up.

We couldn't get over to Dawson Creek, B.C., but L. R. Roskin, of station CJDC, made sure that we heard of it. It has some 4,000 population, is the terminal of the Northern Alberta Railway, the start of the Alaska Highway, and describes itself as "the hub of the Peace river district of British Columbia."

Disabled Vets Meet

CALGARY (CP)—Disabled veterans of two world wars will be represented by 250 delegates from coast to coast when the 24th biennial Dominion convention of the War Amputations Association of Canada is held here next weekend. The convention will discuss resolutions on amputees, pensions and hospital care.

France Is Getting Tough With Income Tax Dodgers

By ALAN HARVEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — France, that enchanting, exasperating country, has taken a simple step that may prove of importance to the Western world.

She has started getting tough with income tax dodgers.

A report from Paris told of steps taken by Premier Joseph Laniel's government to penalize wealthy Frenchmen who salt their francs away in foreign countries and blithely report no income.

Among the chief offenders are large industrialists, big business and the small "commercants," the thousands of shopkeepers who regard invoices as something they can do without.

GRIM HUMOR

The tax situation has been accepted with fatalism and grim humor. But even so intrinsically rich a country as France can't go along indefinitely on such a topsy-turvey system. The recent spontaneous strikes, which came at the worst possible time for the lucrative tourist industry, showed that. In part at least they were a protest against tax iniquities.

This correspondent spent three weeks in France during and after the strikes. Everyone agreed that lack of social justice lies at the roots of the French problem.

A particularly unforgettable figure was that of the fast-talking little postman in our district. He had been off work three weeks, without pay. He is at the twilight of his career, but makes only about $17 a week and sometimes goes without lunch on the job.

Each new year, French postmen deliver a calendar along with the daily mail. In return, they usually get a small tip for the year's services. After the strike, the mailman was told by some of his more important clients not to bother calling with his calendar next year.

"They told me they'd lost millions because I didn't deliver their letters," he said angrily. "That hurt. Well, I just told them maybe the tax collector might be interested to hear about those millions!"

For the free world, the postman's significance lies in his country's key position. France is recognized widely as the sick man of Europe, the weak sister of the Western alliance. Plans for European defence hinge on France, and France is wavering.

Already Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's election victory in Germany has revived an old French nightmare—German hegemony in Europe. Herself politically unstable, her production dropping, France sees a stable, booming Germany bidding to be America's darling and Europe's most powerful force.

So the news from Paris about tax dodgers could be important. The French people as a whole are greatly superior to their politics and with their growing birth-rate could still bound back to greatness.

That fireball pitcher of the TPT Petes of the men's City Softball League, Haddy Eakins, has been voted the most valuable player to his team in the loop this season. He gets the Peller Trophy for this. Each club submits the name of its most valuable player to the executive which makes the final vote. Others submitted this semester were Red Sullivan of Seabrooke's, Reg Leether of UEW and Dick West of Revoy's. The TPT-ers took the city championship and Taylor Trophy after a keen series with Seabrooke's. The Robert Hotrum Trophy, recently donated by Ray Tanner, Sr., was voted by the executive to Neil Wasson of Revoy's. The executive has its windup banquet on October 17.

Peterborough Trailermen trip lightly into the fifth game of the best-of-seven Mann Cup senior lacrosse finals in Victoria tonight. They boast a 3-1 lead in games, requiring but one more win to retain possession of their twice-won Canadian championship trophy. A brief recap on the series to date. The Thorpe team yanked out a 13-12 victory to open it a week ago Monday, and they made it 2-0 on games next start with a convincing 10-7 decison. However, they dropped the third by 8-7 in a rough argument-ridden joust, blaming one Referee Gord Folka for their loss. They came back strongly last Monday in the fourth fixture to win 13-4. The champs hope to wrap it up late tonight and fly home Friday.

Re The Football Picture

Closer to home, let's look at the football picture. After all, this is Autumn and the grid holds sway for a few fall months. An ORFU intermediate "A" scheduled game is listed for 8.30 tonight under the lights at Morrow Park. It's Oshawa Red Raiders 'gainst the local Orfuns. Latter are sporting a four-game winning streak, having taken a close one to start the season in Oshawa, beating Cobourg here, and twice downing Toronto Marauders. They should win tonight, but the Raiders are due to cause a few upsets ere the schedule winds up. Drop around and see the classy Kotowski crew in action— the 1952 Canadian finalists are well worth watching this autumn.

High schoolers go, too, this week in a twin exhibition bill at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon. It'll be Toronto Humberside vs. PCVS juniors at 1.15, followed by Humbersides and the senior PCI-ers. Coach Bev Goulding hasn't been saying much of his Collegiate seniors yet, and we know he has a stiff rebuilding job to do, but he usually comes up with a contending club each year. Al McQuarrie, with Charles Ward assisting should field a pretty potent junior Collegiate crew this semester, but that remains to be seen. Saturday will give the local coaches an excellent line on their material this year. Meantime, St. Peter's High and the Kenner gridders are drilling daily, with the school football schedule due to open shortly.

Trying Out At Western

While we don't see any Peterborough boys listed as trying out with universities like McGill, Toronto and Queen's, two former PCVS stars are working out with the seniors at Western U. under Coach Johnny Metras. They are sophomores tackle Jim Telford and half Brian Young. Latter is 19, five-eight and scales just 140 pounds. Jim, at 21, goes five feet 11 and bumps the beams at 184. Up from the Colts, he is mentioned in a Western bulletin as having a good chance at making the line. The intercollegiate champs lost quite a few first-stringers by graduation last year, including Blair Thomson, plunging and running half with this year's local edition of the Orfuns.

* * * * * *

Larry Ball, Jack Kane, Bud McDougall and Bob Gardner of Peterborough are still trying out with Hamilton's junior "A" puck squad in the Ambitious City, a training school for Detroit Red Wings. Red Creighton, who scouts this area for the Wings, informs us that so far none of the Peterborough boys has been cut from the list of prospects there, though quite a few other lads of the 90 who started have been sent home as not ready yet. This is the second week of the camp and the survivors— probably just enough for two teams— may get one more week up there before the Wings' brass is satisfied. It could be that one or more of the local puckists may be kept in the Detroit chain even as junior "B" players. However, more again on them.

Odds Favor Marciano, May Go Higher

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP) — The odds favoring heavyweight champion Rocky Marciano over challenger Roland LaStarza soared to 4½-to-1 today and may go even higher when the two step into the Polo Grounds Thursday night for their 15-round title fight.

Despite the long odds and the fact that there are few among the fight mob who give the 26-year-old contender a chance, interest in the fight continues to mount.

Ringside seats are selling beyond the 18th row. Ticket scalpers are demanding and getting handsome premiums for the $30 ringside seats within the first 10 rows.

Jim Norris, president of the promoting International Boxing Club, predicted he would have at least $300,000 in the till the morning of the fight.

DO ALL RIGHT

"With any kind of a break in the weather—and the forecast is excellent—we'll do at least $100,000 at the Polo Grounds for $400,000 or better," he said.

"With the minimum guarantee of $100,000 for theatre-TV, the fighters have every chance of getting paid off on $500,000.

The weather bureau's forecast for Thursday evening is "fair and warmer."

The bout, starting at 10:30 p.m. EDT, won't be broadcast or telecast into homes. A telecast will be beamed over a closed circuit to 45 theatres in 34 cities and towns from coast to coast at prices running about $3.60 a head.

There was more betting action reported on knockouts within a certain number of rounds than on the actual outcome. It was 12 to 5 that Roland would not go the distance; 9 to 5 LaStarza wouldn't go 12; and even money that Rocky would stop his opponent within eight. The odds were 8 to 1 that Roland wouldn't knock out the champion.

The 29-year-old Brockton blaster had been a 3½-to-1 favorite for weeks but the odds jumped when heavy Marciano money showed with few LaStarza takers.

One reason was the almost-solid support for the champion by the boys in the trade—the managers, trainers, matchmakers and seconds. Several said the same thing in different words. It added up to Marciano by a knockout because of his "ring viciousness, intense desire to win, overpowering punch and strength."

Worsley Status Still In Doubt

SASKATOON (CP)—The status of Lorne (Gump) Worsley, National Hockey League rookie award winner last season, is in doubt.

Worsley, called from Saskatoon Quakers of the Western Hockey League last season to replace the injured Chuck Rayner in New York Rangers' goal, now is reported ready to line up with Vancouver Canucks of the WHL. The Rangers have a working agreement with the Canucks.

As substitute goalie for the 1953-54 NHL season, Rangers have obtained Bev Bentley from Saskatoon. Bentley was regular goalie for the Quakers, Rangers' WHL club, last season.

Ranger manager Frank Boucher also announced before leaving on a western tour with his club that negotiations are being made to bring Bob Lalonde, graduate from Flin Flon Bombers of the Saskatchewan junior circuit, to Quakers as understudy to the veteran Rayner.

Primeau Says Leafs Look Good

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Joe Primeau, coach of Toronto Maple Leafs for the last three years, visited his former team's training camp here Tuesday and was impressed with what he saw.

"That's a good hockey team with a couple of real big-league lines," he said. "That Kennedy - Smith-Bailey trio looks real good."

Primeau resigned from his coaching duties at the end of last season and entered private business.

The National Hockey League club worked hard again Tuesday under freshman coach King Clancy, sparing nothing in a 60-minute scrimmage.

Howie Meeker, his ailing back apparently giving him little trouble on the ice, notched one goal for the Whites. Tod Sloan and George Armstrong came up with the others. Sid Smith tallied twice for the Blues and Bob Bailey scored the other.

M. Barringer Leads

The Girls' City Bowling League started season's play this week with 10 teams in action. They are bowling two games this year and the count is a point for each game played and a point for the team with best pinnage. Sevenaires and Collis had 3-0 wins over Curtin's and Bassel's, Marines also beating Black's by a similar count, while 2-1 wins went to Sunoco over Aces, Austin's against Cardinals.

M. Barirnger had high for two of 513, followed by B. Castle 478, M. Wasson 451, B. Pogue 440, P. Hawthorne 418, K. Beatty 417, M. Hunt 412 and G. Milliken 410. Good singles were: M. Barringer 250, 263, M. Knights 284, B. Pogue 243, M. Thompson and W. Wasson 231, and L. Millar 234. Blind score of 385 went to Hazel Wilson with 380.

Favor Trailermen To End Series In The Fifth Game

By DON GRANT, Examiner Staff Reporter

VICTORIA, B.C.—Leading the Canadian senior lacrosse championship series three games to one, the Peterborough Trailermen are heavy favorites today to take their third successive Mann Cup by winning the fifth game tonight at Memorial Arena. After Monday's convincing 13-4 victory over the Victoria Shamrocks, the Trailermen left no doubt in the minds of western lacrosse fans and sports writers who will win the title. The Trailermen have too much senior experience for the over-rated Shamrocks.

Although no official announcement has been made (the CLA officials are harder to find than a live moth in a box of mothballs since Friday's game), it is generally believed that Gord Folka and Sid Greenwood will again be referees. They're the same pair who caused the fiasco in the fourth game Friday.

"They're asking for trouble if those are the referees," said coach Bob Thorpe. "There'll probably be three or four more end up in the hospital."

The trailermen threatened to forfeit the series if Folka and Greenwood refereed again in the series. But this would be ridiculous since they're so close to the championship again.

NO DIFFERENCE

It actually doesn't matter to the players who referees tonights game for the Trailermen feel that they can easily win the championship, providing they aren't plagued with petty penalties such as the ones handed out by Folka Friday.

After the Rocks poor showing Monady night against the 1952 champions, even the rabid home town fans saw the light. They now realize that given a chance (especially in refereeing such as that by Bill Wilkes and Bill Dickinson) the Trailermen will win four games to one.

With the final game a possibility tonight there has been many speculations about the Mike Kelly Memorial award winner, the most valuable player to his team during the series. The trophy was won last year in the series against Vancouver Pilseners by defenceman Lou Nickle. In 1951 Lloyd (Moon) Wootton won it for the second successive year when the Timbermen played the Vancouver Combines.

This year in all probability it will be given to a forward for the first time in four years. The first choice with the players of both teams is Ross Powless, the Trailermen's top scorer this season and their most valuable player. The big Mohawk youth has been a standout both offensively and defensively in the series, always running both ways, something which a few players have forgotten to do. Powless has been a continual thorn in Rock's goalie, Jim Hetherington's side.

A GREAT GOALIE

His closest competition will come from the Moon. The chunky net minder has amazed lacrosse fans in this stepoff to Japan with his agile movements between the pipes. He's come through with marvellous goaltending to save the Trailermen on more than one occasion in the four games.

Harry Wipper and Rusty Slater should also be considered for the trophy. Both these players have been goal producers, especially in the first two games and have acted as penalty-killers. But on the strength of game-to-game performances Powless and Wootton should get the nod.

Sitting out a suspension as a player in the fourth game, Coach Thorpe had more time to guide his Trailermen from the bench. In fact he had so much success that he's even thinking of sitting out tonight's game. If he does, he will stick to the winning combinations of Monday's game, working in Derry Davies with Ken Croft, Dootch Vitarelli, Harry Wipper and Lou Nickle, and keep the first line of Curly Mason, Powless, Slater, Roger Smith and Don (Nip) O'Hearn intact.

No screams for help have been heard from the Shamrocks' camp for a replacement for the injured Archie Browning. He had a finger, already in a cast, broken for a second time in the last minute of the fourth game. Browning's been playing for the past month with a broken finger and breaking it a second time won't likely keep him out of the remaining games, especially tonight's. If the starry forward wasn't in the Rock's line, it would take a good deal of starch out of the Victoria team.

SAME OFFICERS

During the past week and a half the CLA did manage to accomplish one thing at their 28th annual meeting; they re-elected the 1952-53 executive. Just in case the fans didn't know who was (man) handling the country's lacrosse affairs, here's the rundown: President, James MacLeod of Owen Sound; Dr. F. P. Kenny of New Westminster, B.C., Arthur E. Brown of St. Catharines, Les Gilmore of Steveston, B.C., vice presidents; secretary-treasurer Gene Dopp of Toronto; assistant secretary, Tommy Gordon of Vancouver.

Little Mann cuppers—Russ Slater, Lou Nickles and Rog Smith are reported heading for Nanaimo next year; Ross Powless going to Vancouver North Shore Indians. Practically every member of the Peterborough club will be leaving according to the western newspapers.

Mick Magee, the Trailermen's old timer (he's been quoted at 45 years) played for a short while in the fourth quarter of Monday's game. He was in better condition than most of the Rocks.

Penalty totals for the first four games of the series have the Trailermen outdistancing the Rocks 61 minutes to 26 minutes.

Vancouver's Tommy Gordon has some miniature lacrosse sticks which he has asked players and officials to sign as souvenirs of the series. They're exactly like the player's stick, but on a much smaller scale.

Several lucky program prizes in the series games have been lacrosse sticks signed by the Trailermen.

Seven Players Still Holdouts

GALT (CP)—Galt Black Hawks of the Ontario Hockey Association junior A circuit are having contract problems. Seven of last year's players are holdouts and one has already left camp.

Manager Bob Wilson Tuesday said he told defenceman Ralph Markarian to "go ahead and make a deal for himself if any other club in the league is prepared to meet his salary demands." Markarian left.

Other players on the holdout list include defencemen John Muckler and Leo Mantha, centres Hec Lalonde and Neil McDonald and wingers Frank Bettiol and Hillary Menard.

None of the players still unsigned was permitted to take part in ice drills under the new coach, Bob Dawes.

Kitchener - Waterloo Greenshirts join the Black Hawks in training here today and will take to the ice two hours each day until their own arena is ready for hockey.

Don't Believe Baltimore To Get Browns

NEW YORK (AP)—Toronto or Montreal—and not Baltimore as everyone thinks—will get the St. Louis Browns' American League franchise in the opinion of one major-league executive, but his prediction ran into denials on all sides today.

The executive, who asked not to be identified, said that "at least three clubs will vote against moving the Browns to Baltimore."

"Clark Griffith of Washington and the Macks of Philadelphia don't want Bill Veeck (Browns' owner) between them," he continued. "Don't expect the Yankees to vote for Baltimore, either. . . It's my guess the Browns will be in Toronto next year.

"I'd say it is a 60-40 proposition right now between Toronto and Montreal with the odds favoring Toronto. I understand Veeck and Jack Kent Cooke of Toronto have some sort of an agreement between them."

DENY FACTS

But all the parties concerned were quick to deny that the executive had had his facts straight.

"It's news to me," said Veeck in Chicago. "That informant knows things I don't."

Griffith was even more emphatic. "It just isn't so," he said. "On the contrary, I'll vote for Baltimore no matter what the other clubs favor."

Commented Roy Mack, executive vice-president of the Athletics: "I intend to go to the owners' meeting with an open mind on the Browns' situation. I do not intend to reach a decision on the matter until Veeck has presented his plans to the owners."

The meeting to decide on the fate of the Browns is scheduled for this Sunday here.

The Yankees also are keeping an open mind on the matter, said president Dan Topping.

WANT BEST SHIFT

"We want the Browns to shift to the city which would be best for the American League," he observed. "At this time, Baltimore is as much in the picture as Toronto or Montreal."

In Toronto, Cooke said he had no comment, while in Montreal general manager Guy Moreau of the Royals said he was in favor of the Browns coming there.

"Major league ball is bound to come to Montreal sooner or later," he said. "Why not now?"

President Walter O'Malley of Brooklyn Dodgers, who also owns the Montreal franchise, said he would not stand in the way of the city getting the franchise.

Although city officials would make no comment, Baltimore remained confident that it would get the Browns.

Yankees Defeat Philadelphia In 7-2 Triumph

By BEN PHLEGAR, Associated Press Sports Writer

It could well be that Allie Reynolds has fastballed his way into the job of opening the world series for the New York Yankees a week from today. The veteran speed merchant certainly has erased all doubts as to his fitness. And Tuesday night he gave Charlie Dressen's spies an eyeful of some of the best pitching performed by any member of the Yankee mound staff this season. Working against the admittedly weak Philadelphia Athletics, Reynolds blazed his way to 11 strikeouts in seven innings while giving up two measly singles and walking four.

He struck out the side in the first inning and whiffed seven in the first four innings. At the end of seven Casey Stengel decided he had seen enough of Reynolds for the evening. And what he had seen had made him very happy.

NOT REVEALED

Neither Stengel nor Dressen has disclosed his world series pitching rotation. But Reynolds' fine form in recent weeks has inspired considerable support for the big chief to pitch the opener.

The Oklahoma Indian is 36 years old. He has appeared in five world series, pitching 69 1-3 innings in 12 games and has a 6-2 record. New York Giants beat him once in 1951 and the Dodgers beat him once and lost to him twice last fall.

The Yankees beat Philadelphia 7-2 Tuesday night, both Philadelphia runs coming off Bob Kuzava who pitched the last two innings. One of them was Gus Zernial's 42nd home run, a blast which kept him one ahead of Cleveland's Al Rosen in the American League home run derby.

HITS 41ST

Rosen hit his 41st in Cleveland's 8-3 decision over Chicago White Sox. By winning the Indians virtually clinched second place. They lead the White Sox by three games with four to play.

In other action Brooklyn Dodgers closed their Ebbets Field season by tying the National League home record of 60 victories and 17 losses. They beat Pittsburgh 5-4 in the final game. Milwaukee and St. Louis Cardinals split as did Cincinnati and Chicago Cubs. Milwaukee beat St. Louis in the first game 4-3 and lost the second 10-7. Cincinnati edged Chicago 1-0, then lost 4-1. Philadelphia Phillies whipped the New York Giants 9-3.

St. Louis Browns continued to pick on the only team in the league they can beat, Detroit Tigers, and scored a 7-3 victory. The Browns defeated Detroit 15 times in their 22 meetings. Satch Paige held the Tigers to one hit through the first seven innings and gained his third victory with aid from Don Larsen in the eighth.

DODGERS WIN

The Dodgers' victory over Pittsburgh was their 20th in 22 meetings. Junior Gilliam scored the winning run in the eighth when he socked a pinch hit double, stole third and scored on a wild throw. Brookly now is one shy of its all time best winning total of 104 games.

Eddie Mathews hit his 47th home run in the first game at St. Louis, but he committed two errors in each game of the twin bill. Stan Musial, still fighting to keep his batting crown, collected five hits in nine times at bat. He raised his average to .333 and would need an average of three hits in every four times up the rest of the season to catch the injured Carl Furillo of Brooklyn who leads with .344.

A three-run homer by Bill Serena gave the Cubs the second half of the Cincinnati twin bill after they had been blanked by Fred Baczewski, a former teammate, in the opener.

The Phillies pounded four New York pitchers for 13 hits, making it easy for Curt Simmons to win his 15th game.

Signs Contract For One Year

DETROIT (AP) — Freddy Hutchinson, who guided Detroit Tigers out of the American League cellar this year, signed a one-year contract Tuesday to manage the club again next season.

No salary terms were announced but his signing must be considered a vote of confidence. Earlier in the season, when the Tigers floundered in last place, there were rumors that this would be Hutch's last season.

After a dismal start, the team pulled itself together and moved out of the cellar and into sixth place.

The 34-year-old Hutchinson took over the Tigers July 5, 1952, from Red Rolfe, who was fired. The Tigers finished last that season for the first time in history, 45 games out of first place.

It looked as though Detroit would finish last again this year. But after acquiring third-baseman Ray Boone from Cleveland the club perked up and passed both St. Louis Browns and Philadelphia to take sixth place.

They'll Do It Every Time — By Jimmy Hatlo

Wings Make It Three In Row

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Rochester Red Wings, International League pennant winners, are all set to put their record on the line again in the post-season finals.

The Wings made it three in a row over Baltimore Orioles Tuesday night, winning 8-1 to take their best-of-seven semi-final 4-3.

Rochester now awaits the winner of tonight's Montreal-Buffalo clash for a final series to determine the league entrant into the little world series.

Buffalo Bisons travelled Tuesday to Montreal for tonight's game. Montreal could win the set-to with a victory as they now lead the best-of-seven series 3-2.

The Wings won Tuesday night's game after Baltimore starter Bob Greenwood walked the first three batters and the Wings picked up four runs in the first inning.

It's Like Old Times

Reese And Rizzuto Meet 5th Time In World Series

NEW YORK (AP)—It'll be like old times for rival shortstops Pee Wee Reese and Phil Rizzuto when Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees meet for the fifth time in world series competition starting next Wednesday at Yankee Stadium.

Both veterans, considered by many to be the key performers on their pennant-winning teams, were opposing shortstops when the two clubs got together for the first time in the world series of 1941; and they're still around 12 years later, a trifle slower but as classy as ever both at bat and in the field.

For Reese, this is his fifth series—all against the Yanks—and he still is looking to play on a world championship team. Now 34, the Louisville colonel has a .297 overall world series batting average.

Rizzuto, appearing in his eighth fall classic, has been on the winning side six times. The little scooter, who will be 35 Friday, has compiled an over-all series batting mark of .235.

This season there has been little to choose between them both offensively and defensively. Rizzuto currently is hitting .277 as compared to Reese's .271. Reese has a slight fielding edge, .964 to .963.

Suits Change So Gradually Most Men Never Notice

By RICHARD KLEINER
(NEA Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK (NEA) — If you think your new suit is the same cut as your old suit, you should look more closely. From year to year, men's styles change — so slowly that most men never notice.

That's the general idea. Men don't like radical changes in their clothes. If, all of a sudden, tailors come out with suits with pointed sleeves, men will avoid them like they were contaminated. But, if the tailors introduce pointed sleeves gradually, men will never know what hit them and they'll be swearing by pointed sleeves in four or five years.

Right now, there's a revolution in progress in men's fashions. Not pointed sleeves, but something else that's being changed ever so slightly each year. That's the notch in the jacket lapel.

"We've been raising the notch a little each year," says Spencer Witty, head of a top New York tailoring firm. "Just a little. You never notice it. We're trying to slip it over on the men. We think the higher notch looks neater, but we can't do it all at once."

RULE FOR YEARS

That kind of carrying-on has been the rule for generations. Tailors keep finagling around with a simple suit of clothes—putting padding in the shoulders, taking it out; putting flaps on the pockets, taking them off; lengthening the jacket, shortening it—but it's always done so sneaky that you'd swear this year's suit is the same as last year's.

Just for kicks, look back at what's happened to men's suits since, say 1900. Over 53 years, the changes become fairly obvious Compare this year's dapper Dacron with grandpa's sorry Sunday serge.

Start at the shoulders. Grandpa would have thought padding in the shoulders positively indecent; in his suit, he had the manly shape of a limp banada. It wasn't until after World War I that men started developing colossal shoulders.

BIGGER SHOULDERS

Between World Wars, shoulders grew bigger. It got so, at the zoot zenith, that it was difficult to tell whether a man was wearing a suit or two landing strips. Came World War II, and the fashion plates found themselves in padless GI uniforms. From then on, shoulder pads melted away. Today there's just a hint of padding in most shoulders.

Grandpa's suits all had flaps on the pockets and a slash in the back of the coat, technically called a "center vent." For a long time, anybody with flaps on his pockets was strictly from 23-skiddoo. And, at the same time, the center vent went. But, look around you now. Everybody who is anybody is flipping over flaps and is handsomely center-vented.

Grandpa had a single-breasted jacket. Came the Prince of Wales—who did more to influence men's fashions than anybody except Sears, Roebuck—and he introduced the double-breasted jacket. The single-breasted model became old hat, or, more precisely, old suit. Like the belt-in-the-back.

BACK TO COMFORT

But, of late, men have been more interested in comfort than in the Prince of Wales. The double-breasted jacket has abdicated.

Pants cuffs, since the 19th Century, have been in and out more often than a relief pitcher. They were worn in the 1870s, taken off in the '80s, came back around 1910, out again in '41 by government edict to conserve material, and now they're back once more.

And buttons. Grandpa had four on his jacket. During the Prince of Wales, or double-breasted, period, there were only two. Nowadays there are three. Buttons on jacket sleeves have been equally unpredictable.

All these changes were slipped over on the poor man. There'll be more to come. As Witty says, "Fashions have always changed, so there's no reason to think they won't continue to change."

The only thing any man can do is keep a stiff upper lapel notch.

Charge One Man In Ottawa TV Theft

OTTAWA (CP)—Police charged one man Tuesday with receiving stolen goods and are holding another in connection with theft of nearly $10,000 worth of television sets from an Ottawa warehouse.

Robert Lachapelle, 40, was charged with possession of stolen goods. The second man has not been charged and police withheld his name.

The thefts were discovered when a person who bought a stolen set asked the company for service. No set bearing the registration number given had been sold by an authorized dealer.

Police recovered 11 sets worth $550 each and expect to get back six others known to be missing.

Birds Hit Building

NEW YORK (AP) — An early-morning haze plus a gale wind sent 300 migratory birds crashing to death Tuesday against the Empire State building. About 1,000 other feathery migrants flying over at the same time missed the haze-shrouded upper floors of the building, flocked safely to the street and perched on building terraces. Their species was not determined.

BASES FOR U.S.—AID FOR SPAIN—Upon completon of present negotiations, an agreement between Spain and the United States is expected to be signed which will give the U.S. air and naval bases in Spain in exchange for economic aid from the U.S. Newsmap indicates where key facilities will be located. Location of other bases are to be arranged for at a later date.

Labor Union Membership Hits New High This Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Labor union membership reached a new Canadian high of 1,219,714 at the start of this year, the labor department reported Tuesday.

The increase over a year earlier was 73,593, or 6.4 per cent. Most of it was in already-established labor organizations.

Unions affiliated with the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada had a combined membership of 558,722, an increase of 35,757. The Canadian Congress of Labor had 352,538 members, up 21,760. The Canadian and Catholic Confederation of Labor had an increase of 15,473 for a total of 104,486.

(All three central labor bodies have reported further substantial membership gains since Jan. 1.)

IN THREE PROVINCES

About three-quarters of all union members were in three provinces—Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. More than half were in the metropolitan areas of Montreal and Toronto.

About 43 per cent of the union members reported were employed in manufacturing and another 23 per cent in transportation and communications. The service industry had 11 per cent of all union members. Other industries each account for less than 10 per cent of the total of union members.

Slightly more than 30 per cent of the non-agricultural paid workers in Canada belonged to unions.

Greet Air Designers

TORONTO (CP) — Twelve of Britain's top aircraft and air engine designers will visit Canada Oct. 9-20 to exchange ideas with Canadian government research experts. A. V. Roe of Canada at suburban Malton and government officials will play host.

Continue Imports At High Rate

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's imports continued at a high pace during July while exports lagged, widening the country's trade gap to a deficit of $206,200,000 for the first seven months of the year.

Imports during the month rose to $407,600,000 from $343,200,000 last year, while exports increased only to $398,300,000 from $375,100,000, the bureau of statistics reported today.

The unfavorable balance or deficit of $9,300,000 compared with a surpluse of $31,900,000 in July, a year ago.

Mr. T. N. Thatcher, Clarkson, Ont. writes:
"After taking PETAVIM along with their regular food for only 20 days, our four Scotties, aged 2 to 9 years, all showed marked improvement. Their coats took on a new gloss and their general condition greatly improved. I recommend PETAVIM heartily to other pet owners."

Mr. Ronald Purdy, Schau Belein Kennels, Port Credit, Ont., writes:
"I gave PETAVIM to three Dobermans and a Daschund along with their regular food. I don't know whether PETAVIM can take all the credit, but after the 30th day treatment, the youngest Doberman won First Prize in the Puppy Group at the Sportsman's Show. The judge said his condition was excellent."

Mr. W. C. Brown, R.R. #1, Oakville, Ont., writes:
"When we started including PETAVIM in our 7 year old Collie's diet, he was in poor condition, no pep or appetite. His hair was falling out and he was very excitable. But within 7 days his appetite perked up and he seemed more peppy. After 14 days, his hair stopped falling out and his coat became sleek. By the 30th day, he was in good shape, eating, sleeping and acting much better."

Mrs. Marjorie J. Snider, Deer Haven Kennels, Oakville, Ont., writes:
"We gave four dogs—a Belgian Shepherd, an English Springer, a Collie, and a Cross Breed—a regular dose of PETAVIM with their food. Within 21 days, all four dogs had better coats and were in excellent spirits. By the 30th day, they were enjoying unusually good health."

Planning New Community Of 30,000 People

TORONTO (CP)—A new community of about 30,000 persons is scheduled to [illegible] in metropolitan Toronto within the next few years.

The new development, for which land is being expropriated by the province, will cover a complete concession of suburban Scarboro township and will include the village of Malvern, all at Toronto's eastern outskirts.

Expropriation of the 2,900-acre area opens the way for one of the largest land assembly programs in Canada. The plan calls for the subdivision of the land and the building of roads and sewage and power service by the province. Once this is complete, the lots will be sold to builders or individuals.

8,000 UNITS

Some 8,000 housing units can be accommodated on the 2,000 acres if the whole is given over to homes. However, it is expected there will be some move to include a shopping centre and schools.

Work on the project is expected to begin some time early in 1954.

The new subdivision came as a complete surprise to most municipal officials. Reeve Oliver Crockford of Scarboro said neither he nor his council had been notified of it.

"If they are planning to put up subsidized housing in Scarboro, we didn't have an inkling of it and we don't want it," he said.

Need New Effort To Aid World Trade

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower says the economic health of the United States and of the free world depends largely on a new effort to find an "acceptable" way to promote world trade.

On that serious note, the president Tuesday launched a 17-man commission on a study aimed at hammering out new recommendations for Congress on the politically touchy trade-tariff issue.

"No group of citizens has been called to a higher mission than the one on which you are setting forth today," Eisenhower told the foreign economic policy commission in the White House cabinet room.

"Above all, I urge you to follow one guiding principle—what is best in the national interest."

College Sophomore Confesses Strangling

UPPER SANDUSKY, O. (AP)—A slender, 19-year-old college sophomore who planned to be a minister confessed Tuesday to strangling to death and stabbing his college sweetheart.

Roy Roger Schinagle of Mayfield Heights, near Cleveland, whom his high school teachers described as a "nice boy," confessed the brutal slaying of pretty, 19-year-old Cynthia Pfeil of White Plains, N.Y., police said.

Her mutilated body was found last Friday in a lonely woods near this central Ohio town. Clad only in red slippers and a flannel nightgown, the body bore signs of a beating and her face was pierced beyond recognition by more than 20 stab wounds.

The dark-haired victim, who met Schinagle last year while both were freshmen at Ohio Wesleyan University at Delaware, O., was pregnant and had been criminally attacked, an autopsy revealed.

SOBS OUT CONFESSION

Schinagle, who just turned 19, sobbed out a confession that covered nine typewritten pages a few hours after he was arrested on the college campus, some 40 miles south of Upper Sandusky.

Until Tuesday, police had no clues to the identity of the victim.

The girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pfeil of White Plains, said she left home Aug. 24. They said they did not know whether she planned to visit a brother in Columbus, Ohio, or re-enter Ohio Wesleyan.

Schinagle said he went to Delaware to enrol at college. A few days later, Miss Pfeil came to Delaware to be near him.

COULDN'T REMEMBER

Schinagle's account of the murder was sketchy and he often experienced difficulty remembering what happened last Thursday, the day of the murder.

He told police the couple argued after she told him another man had "annoyed" her. During the argument, Schinagle related, the girl swung at him. After that, the youth said, he lost his head and strangled her, and put her in the back seat of his car and started driving. He could remember nothing after that.

Wanted Man To Be Deported

CHICAGO (AP) — Isaie Aldy Beausoleil, 46, who was on the Federal Bureau of Investigation's list of "most wanted men" until he was arrested June 26 in Chicago, is going back to his native Canada.

He pleaded guilty Tuesday in federal court to a charge of entering the United States illegally.

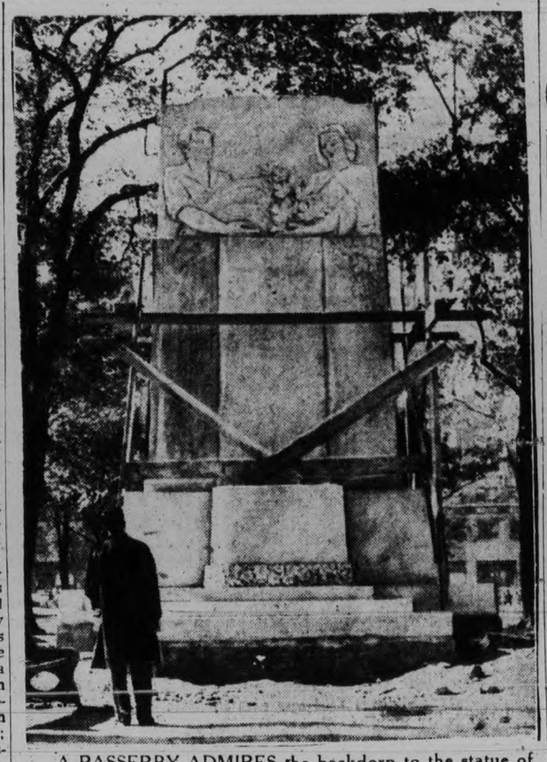
Judge Joseph Sam Perry placed him on probation for five years, and warned him that if he sneaked back into the U.S. he would be subject to a two-year prison sentence and a $1,000 fine.

Beausoleil was seized by police June 26 while he was dressed in women's clothing. The FBI was seeking him at the time on a warrant charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution on a murder charge.

The FBI said this was based on the death of Rose Trahan, who was slain in Monroe county, Mich., in 1949. Assistant U.S. attorney Richard Tobin said the Michigan warrant had been dismissed.

Statistics Rained Out

OTTAWA (CP)—The entire water works of the ultra-modern bureau of statistics went on the blink Tuesday, forcing the 1,300 employees to close up shop and go home early. A break in the water main outside the new west-end building was believed to have been the cause. Engineers worked all day looking for the break but had trouble finding it.



A PASSERBY ADMIRES the backdorp to the statue of Sir Wilfrid Laurier which will be placed on the pedestal in Montreal's Dominion Square some time next month. Senator Thomas Vien heads the committee which has arranged for the monument to be constructed.

Flag Stop In Rockies Claims To Be Canada's Birthplace

CRAIGELLACHIE, B.C. (CP)—Canada, say the people of Craigellachie, was conceived at a table, but was born here, now a flag stop on the main Canadian Pacific Railway line about 300 miles west of Revelstoke.

Craigellachie has a small station, water tower, four spur tracks and a neatly-kept lawn. Also, there is a simple cairn, on which an engraved plaque reads: "Here was driven the last spike completing the Canadian Pacific Railway from ocean to ocean, Nov. 7, 1885."

There were not many people at that great event, and there are even less at Craigellachie today. There now are about six railway section workers, and about 25 farmers and loggers in the district.

TRAINS DON'T STOP

The trains don't stop at Craigellachie today. There was a time when they slowed up in tribute during daylight hours, but the only way you can see the monument is from the nearby Trans-Canada Highway.

There was no impressive ceremony, and no golden spike. William Cornelius van Horne, a tough Dutchman from Illinois who became one of the driving wheels in the CPR, was against golden and silver spikes; some American railroads which had used them had ended in bankruptcy.

When an ordinary spike, the same kind used to hold track to ties all across the country, had been driven, van Horne was asked to make a speech. He responded with an understatement:

"All I can say is that the work has been well done in every way."

Craigellachie has been asleep ever since.

But it has left its mark on Canadian history. Andrew Onderdonk, the contractor working eastward from the coast, imported 1,000 Chinese to ease the labor shortage. They worked side by side with unemployed clerks and bartenders from San Francisco, but were decimated by disease and the rugged mountain country.

The Chinese laborers created such a controversy in Ottawa that the legislators were urged to insert a clause in every CPR contract that "no man wearing his hair more than 5½ inches in length be eligible for employment."

Among others at the ceremony which ended the labor was a boy who went down in history as a little fellow peeking around the legs of a frock-coated gentleman in a picture which has become a part of Canadian history books.

The boy, E. Mallandaine, became widely known in the B.C. interior before his death in 1951 at Creston.

"Cave Monster" Gets Second Life Sentence

INNSBRUCK, Austria (Reuters) Guide Zingerle, the "cave monster of Tyrol," already imprisoned for life for a previous murder, received another life sentence here Tuesday for murdering a British tourist with an iron bar after raping her in a mountain cave.

Zingerle, 51, was found guilty of murder, rape and robbery. The swarthy, cave-dwelling "hermit" took the sentence calmly and his face remained blank.

Earlier he told a hushed court how he dragged Miss Helen Munro, 42, a vacationing London stenographer, into a cave, bound and raped her and then battered her to death.

As an additional punishment, the court ordered the Italian to be locked up in solitary confinement in a dark cell on the anniversary of the murder each year and to sleep on bare boards for one night every third month.

An Italian court sentenced him to life in November, 1951, for killing Gertrude Kutin, a Tyrolean teacher, five years earlier.

The Italians handed him over last January for trial here at Austrian request. He now will be returned to Italy to continue serving his sentence for the Kutin slaying.

Neither Italy nor Austria inflicts the death penalty.

Heath Files Writ Of Suit For $10,000

HAMILTON (CP)—Quarterback Stan Heath Tuesday filed a writ of suit for $10,000 damages against the Hamilton Tiger-Cat football club and general manager and coach Carl Voyles.

Heath, who played part of a game with the Cats at Montreal Sept. 11, claims he signed a non-release contract with the club for $9,500 during the regular season, and an additional $700 for each playoff game.

In the writ, Heath claims he was "wrongfully" dismissed Sept. 18.

Voyles and the club will have 10 days after the writ is served to enter notification with the Supreme Court of Ontario of their intent to fight the suit.

RECALL CASE

The move recalled the case of Zeke Martin years ago, and Tex Fugler in 1952, both of whom were cut by the club and received settlements. Martin played two games and was reported to have received a full season's pay.

Heath a University of Nevada product who starred with Green Bay Packers, played with the Hamilton club during the 1950 Big Four season before an ailing arm forced him to quit. He was brought back this year after Calgary Stampeders of the western conference cut him loose.

WHITHER BROWNS?

NEW YORK (CP)—Will Toronto or Montreal become the new home of the St. Louis Browns?

A major-league baseball executive predicted Tuesday that the Browns' American League franchise will be transferred to either of the two cities—more probably to Toronto—within the next few weeks.

The informant, who asked not to be identified, said he understood that the American League owners preferred either of the two cities to Baltimore. All three cities now are members of the International League.

A formal announcement settling the matter is expected to come from a meeting in New York next Sunday to discuss the Brownie move.

HARNESS RECORD SET

DELAWARE, O. (AP) — One world's record was broken and another equalled as Grand Circuit harness racing began its Little Brown Jug stand at the Delaware county fair Tuesday.

Hugh Grant's Adios Betty of Bradford, Pa., driven by Del Miller, erased the 6.20 4-5 divided-heat standard for two-year-old pacing fillies in winning the $10,103 Walnut Hall Farm Stake.

Adios Betty won a race off from Walnut Hall's Phantom Lady to clinch the verdict. Grant's filly took the first heat in 2:05 but dropped the second by a nose in 2:04 2-5, as Phantom Lady's mile equalled the world's record for age and gait set earlier this year by the same Adios Betty.

The third heat was timed in 2:09 1-5 as Adios Betty won by 1½ lengths.

COUNTS SELF OUT

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Wayne (Curly) Smart ordered himself out of the sulky Tuesday only a few hours after he succeeded in delaying a one-year suspension handed him Monday by the United States Trotting Association.

He said he withdrew from the opening-day program of Grand Circuit racing at nearby Delaware "because of the confusion surrounding my status."

Earlier the veteran trainer and driver won a temporary restrainer against the USTA ban, placed on him because of an alleged infraction of a rule forbidding administering medicine to a horse before a race.

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—American Association baseball clubs drew 1,506,386 cash customers this season, the top league attendance since 1,999,270 paid in 1949.

The league reported Tuesday that all clubs showed gains, with attendance up 22 per cent over the 1952 figure of 1,226,386.

NO HOME RECEPTION

NEW YORK (AP) — With no home television or radio for the Rocky Marciano-Roland LaStarza heavyweight title fight Thursday at the Polo Grounds, the International Boxing Club says blow-by-blow descriptions from ringside will be limited to newspaper publication only.

Jim Norris, IBC president, said these restrictions had to be enforced out of fairness to Theatre Network Television, which is offering the fight on theatre screens simultaneously in 45 theatres in 35 cities.

The IBC authorized a 75-word summary of the progress of the fight for broadcast every three rounds.

Two Germans Asked Join Foreign Legion

WOODSTOCK (CP) — Two German immigrant workers Tuesday said an agent of the French Foreign Legion has been enlisting German workers in this area for service in Indo-China.

Heinz Basekow and Lothar Joneit, immigrant workers on farms at nearby Embro, said the agent offers workers a specific sum to sign a contract with the service. Those who signed were taken to Montreal and placed on ships.

A mysterious stranger was reported in this area last week, talking to immigrant workers. Some were said to have left their farm jobs and gone away with him.

HEARD OF ONE CASE

R. E. Poste of the national employment service here said he has heard of only one case of the actual disappearance of a worker.

However, police in Cooksville reported that two men moved in from the Oxford county area two weeks ago to take jobs with a Cooksville construction company.

The police investigation followed reports of the "mystery man" and a later report stated the Germans were being wooed to higher-paying jobs.

Immigration authorities in London, Ont., scoffed at the Foreign Legion report.

Four Canadiens Ink Contract

MONTREAL (CP)—Four more members of Montreal Canadiens, last season's Stanley Cup champions, have signed their 1953-54 contracts with the National Hockey League club, it was announced Tuesday.

They are defencemen Bud MacPherson and Tom Johnson, and forwards Dick Gamble and Bert Olmstead.

Coach Dick Irvin put his charges through stiff drills and expressed satisfaction in the play of most. However, he was a bit unhappy about the excess weight of a couple of players.

Irvin also will put his team through workouts today and Thursday in preparation for the club's first exhibition game of the season here Thursday night against Buffalo Bisons of the American Hockey League. The Bisons are training in suburban Verdun.

JEAN BELIVEAU looks a little puzzled over the Canadien sweater. Beliveau has been the most talked about player in amateur hockey for some time now and the Montreal Canadiens have been trying to land him in a centre ice position for the last two years. This season, although he still hasn't signed his name to a contract, the Canadiens feel that Le Gros, as he was referred to by Quebec City fans and rightly so—Jean stands 6 foot 4 inches and weighs 225 pounds —will be included in the line-up in time for the "All-Star Game" on Oct. 3rd.

Monarchs Squeeze 8-7 Win Over West

By BILL SENYK

TORONTO (CP) — No disgrace will befall the team that comes second best in the fight for the Minto Cup Thursday night.

For no matter which team wins—New Westminster Salmonacs, western Canada champions, or Long Branch Monarchs, eastern representatives — fans attending the games agree that the best-of-five Canadian junior lacrosse final can go either way. Witnesses here claim the series is one of the closest ever seen for a national junior championship.

The claims were justified Tuesday night when the Monarchs scored a goal with little more than a minute of the game remaining to squeeze out an 8-7 decision that forced the series to the limit. The victory tied the series 2-2. The Monarchs had spotted New Westminster the first two games—both squeekers.

Tuesday night's contest, postponed twice after the Salmonacs were stricken with food poisoning Friday, was in doubt all the way until Normie Neave fired the winning goal at 13:24 of the final quarter.

But New Westminster coach Truck MacDonald did not blame the loss on the food poisoning.

"The boys had all recovered from that," he said after the game. "It was our own mistakes that beat us."

The Monarchs were the opportunists. Although outshot for the first time in the series, most of their drives found the mark and again, only the outstanding play of Salmonac netminder Ron Delmonico saved New Westminster from a real beating.

Porky Russell in the Long Branch nets wasn't idle either. Salmonacs were foiled many times on hard drives that the 210-pound goalkeeper turned away.

Salmonacs lost strength when Barry Pfaff, one of their star forwards, stepped on a rock during a morning practice and twisted his ankle. It is not known if he will be ready for Thursday.

Salmonacs tied the score five times, but never could take the lead.

Monarchs scored the first goal of the game in the second quarter and held a 3-2 lead at the end of the period.

Larry Ruse, high scorer for the Monarchs all season, and Howard Smith, each with two goals, led the Long Branch marksmen. Glen Passmore, Jack Coleman and newcomer Denny McIntosh added singles.

Alfie Angel, Jack Barclay, Ivan Gujar, Don Martin, Noble Collins, Stan Cowie and Don Sepka fired singles for New Westminster.

Only penalty was to Neave, a two-minute minor for slashing in the third quarter.

McGill Hopes Of Title Rest On Bench Strength

By BARRY WEST

MONTREAL (CP)—McGill Redmen's hopes in Senior Intercollegiate Rugby Union play this year depend on bench strength.

Coach Vic Obeck of the Redmen says he has the best starting team in the league but "lack of depth in almost every position" is his greatest cause of concern.

Obeck says:

"Football no longer is a game for 12 men. Strength on the bench is essential. At least 24 men are needed for a good squad."

Obeck's second stringers are mostly untried. While many of the players saw action in McGill's 22-4 rout of the University of British Columbia Thunderbirds last Saturday, the McGill mentor was unable to gauge his team's potential from that exhibition tilt.

McGill won the Sir Winston Churchill Trophy in the encounter with the Thunderbirds. The fixture was in aid of the Canadian Paraplegic Association.

OPEN SCHEDULE

The Redmen open their schedule at home next Saturday against McMaster University.

Jack McMullen, up from Loyola College, has the inside track to replace Geoff Crain, starry quarterback for McGill for the last few seasons. Crain is now with Calgary Stampeders. McMullen was the choice among three players seeking the signal-calling berth. Ken Wright, one of the other aspirants, has been switched to left half.

Jack McGill, Vince Capogreco, Garnett Bertrand and Lionel Whitman, all veterans of intercollegiate campaigning, are back in action.

Lionel Quinn, back after a year's absence, and Hal Biewald, starry scatback, will lend plenty of power to the backfield. George Klein, a fleet-footed halfback with the team in 1951, has also returned after a year's absence. Fred Wilmot, the Redmen's place-kicking star, will play at end this year.

IN GOOD CONDITION

The team has been working out for about three weeks and is in good condition.

Always cautious in his forecasts, the coach says McGill will have a "fair season."

"I can give the best starting line-up in the league, but when it comes to depth I'll have to wait and see. We'll cause a lot of trouble."

Obeck was named coach at McGill in 1947. In 1950, his Redmen won the league title but lost out to the University of Western Ontario in the playoffs. In 1951, the Redmen lost out in a three-cornered battle with Toronto Varsity and Western. Toronto copped the title.

Last year, the Redmen finished second, but had not defeated the league winners so could not challenge in a playoff. Western again was the winner.

53 DISTRICT FIRES

The Department of Lands and Forests for the province of Ontario announced that since April 1 there have been 53 fires in the Trent district and have burned more than 636 acres of forest. Careless smokers were responsible for 14 of the fires, campers 12, nine lightning fires, six by miscellaneous causes, four by settlers and road construction gangs, three to unknown causes and one fire of incendiary origin. Thirty-one of the fires occurred during the last week of August and the first two weeks in September.

Loss By Fire In August Set At $847

Estimated property loss in the city due to fire during August was $847.

Of this total, $420 was in buildings and $427 consisted of contents of buildings, Fire Chief W. D. Sorrie said in his monthly report to city council.

The fire department responded to 49 alarms during the month, 40 by telephone, five verbal and four sprinkler alarms.

The department travelled a total distance of 136.8 miles, used 2,100 feet of 2½-inch hose, 1,350 feet of ¾-inch hose, 17 booster tanks, 19 hand pumps, 32 feet of ladders, 120 square feet of tarpaulin, four pounds of carbon dioxide and one inhalator.

Drills and lectures were carried out during the month at the central station. Two practice drills were held by the substation volunteers.

A PETERBOROUGH-BOUND TRAIN and a yard engine tangled on the CNR lines early this morning near the Whitaker Wool storage building, just west of River Road North, near the city limits. Police Intensify Safety Check, To Charge Offenders

Further intensification of the police safety check started earlier this summer, began today. Charges will be laid instead of the previous warnings to have the vehicle repaired. Any car operator whose vehicle is found to be deficient in its mechanical operation to a degree potentially dangerous for safe traffic, will be summoned to court. Fines of from $3 for a tail-light infraction to $12 and more for ineffective brakes will be levied upon those found guilty.

The drive is motivated by the increasing number of cars on the road which are not fit for safe driving. The Peterborough Traffic Safety Committee have been attempting to initiate the program of authorized safety checks but the results have been slow. So far 700 safety stickers have been issued at the police station which is a small fraction of the 15,199 vehicles registered in Peterborough county.

Constable Don McKay said today that the majority of these cars already checked were in good shape to begin with. "Those drivers that realize their cars are defective refrain from having their cars checked, because they don't wish to pay for repairs. Every moment that they are allowed on the streets increases the danger of costly accidents, if not loss of life."

YEARLY CHECK AIM

It is the hope of the city traffic committee to install a system whereby every vehicle in Peterborough county will undergo a safety check at least once a year. With this method, the number of traffic accidents due to mechanical failure will be cut to a minimum, and it is their collective opinion that the insurance rates now prevalent in this city, will be lowered considerably.

Reference was made to the city of Vancouver where a car inspection bureau is in existence. The traffic accident rate was reported to have dropped considerably after its introduction and consequently the car insurance rates. In that city car licenses are not issued until the car has received the approval safety sticker of the bureau.

Frost Opens 77th Fair At Lindsay

LINDSAY (ENS). — Premier L. M. Frost was welcomed to Lindsay Central Exhibition at a luncheon of the directors of the annual fair at noon today, then escorted to the Fair Ground where he officially opened the 77th annual exhibition.

The Premier took part in the opening ceremonies at the grandstand then settled down to watch with hundreds of others the feature race of the program and Fred Orpen special for three-year-olds with a purse of $1,000.

The exhibition grounds and the midway were in full swing Tuesday, but officially, the judging and other events do not get under way until today.

There will be two grandstand performances a day, featuring Ronald Rogers, New York baritone star, and supporting acts.

Fine weather today, combined with Citizens' Day and the closing of all Lindsay stores and most business for a half-day promise a large opening day crowd.

Dean Of Women Appointed At Bible College

The Eastern Pentacostal Bible College will have increased its staff with two new members when it opens its doors for the 1953-54 term, next Monday.

Miss Salome Cressman, teacher from the French language Berea Bible Institue, Montreal, will take over as Dean of women. She has had 10 years experience at Berea. The Rev. George Griffin, a graduate of Western Bible College, Winnipeg, with 20 years experience in pastoral work, including 10 years in Toronto, will take over bible classes in the historical and dispensational line. Mr. Griffin and his wife have already purchased a house in the city.

Numbering 145, an increase of 30 over last year, the students will come from all provinces of Canada except P.E.I., and from other countries including Bermuda, South Africa, Argentina and the United States. President of the college is the Rev. William Found.

Four Men Escape Through Car Windows

KENORA (CP) — An escape through rear windows was made here by four men after the taxi in which they were riding tore through a bridge guard rail after going out of control and landed on its roof in five feet of water.

The men—cab driver W. D. Loudon of Kenora and passengers A. Brandth, Griswold, Man., A. Morriseau and C. Copenace, both of Kenora—waded ashore with only minor cuts and bruises.

The accident occurred Tuesday.

NEW DEAN OF WOMEN and a new teacher for the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College have been appointed. Shown above they are Miss Salome Cressman, from Montreal, and the Rev. George Griffin, Winnipeg. Enrolment at the college is up to 145, an increase of 30 from 1952.

Locomotives Collide, Nobody Hurt

Blame Morning Mist As Yard Engine, Freight Hit Head-On

A mist-shrouded CNR spur at the city's northern limits was the scene of a head-on crash between two locomotives this morning. No one was injured in the crash but one train suffered extensive damage in the impact.

Coming from Lakefield, one locomotive hauling four box-cars of freight from the Nepheline Mines, smashed into a yard engine in front of the Whitaker Woollen storage plant, west of the River Road.

Engineers were Norm James of Peterborough, in the yard engine, and Jim Seton of Lindsay in the freight.

Strangley enough, the yard engine backed away with little damage while the freight lost its cowcatcher and pilot wheels in the crash.

Early morning mist from the nearby Otonabee river was blamed for the engineers' failure to see each others' locomotives in time to avoid the crash.

The accident occured at 6.30 a.m.

Plan To Honor Hy Wood On Retirement

Retiring at the end of this month as vice-president in charge of manufacturing, Hy Wood will be the guest of the company at a farewell dinner Monday Sept. 28 at the Empress Hotel.

When Canadian Johnson Motors was being organized and the nucleus of a staff was being engaged by Hugh M. Campbell, Mr. Wood was one of a number of applicants interviewed for the position of plant superintendent. That was late in February if 1928.

Previously he had been an assistant superintendent with the Henry Hope Company, an English firm that had located in Peterborough and carried on operations for some years chiefly in the manufacture of steel window frames and sashes.

"Mr. Wood showed a lot of ability and came along with us through the 25 years of our establishment in Peterborough," was the tribute today of Mr. Campbell, retired president of Outboard Marine and Manufacturing Co. "After he had joined us, the late F. G. Paterson, who was general manager of Canadian General Electric Co., told me Hy Wood was the best machinist they had turned out in his time."

C. B. Neal, president and general manager of the company, said today that associates of Mr. Wood and executives from the United States would be present at the dinner.

"Drug Addict" Waits Sentence

Joseph Harold (Bud) Redmond, 27, formerly of Peterborough, today pleaded guilty in county court to a charge of breaking and entering the General Medical Clinic on Nov. 9, 1952, and stealing $20 worth of drugs.

Judge John de N. Kennedy remanded Redmond in custody to Thursday for sentence.

Defence Counsel Gordon H. T. Farquharson bluntly described his client as a "drug addict". He said Redmond had repeatedly got into trouble because of his addiction and he asked Judge Kennedy to take this into consideration.

To stand trial in Peterborough, Redmond had to be brought down from Burwash Reformatory where he still has 11 months of a one-year sentence to serve. He was convicted in August for possessing narcotics and was sentenced by a Toronto judge.

He broke into the General Medical Clinic, 234 Romaine St., last November and stole $20 worth of morphine tablets, nembutal capsules and other drugs. However he slipped up by leaving his thumb prints on one of the bottles in the Clinic's dispensary.

Cold And Close

White frost on car tops and ice on windshields greeted many motorists today as they went to their cars. The frost and ice were obvious clues to the fact that Tuesday night was the coldest of the fall to date. Temperature dropped to an official 32 degrees above zero, and by 9 a.m. had risen only to 41. And there are only 79 more shopping days before Christmas.

Kennedy Warns Teachers-To-Be Of Responsibility

"The young man or woman who chooses the teaching profession is in one of the most important careers found in a democracy—in their hands rest the moulding of the next generation."

Judge John deN. Kennedy was addressing the assembly of new students and reception committee at the opening of the 1953-54 season at the Peterborough Teachers' College.

Judge Kennedy pointed out how easily and quickly the youth of a nation may deteriorate. "Germany was converted to Naziism. Italy to Fascism and Russia to Communism, all within the span of one generation. A great deal of this country's future rests in your hands as teachers."

When this year's students had completed their course, he pointed out, most of them will be filled with a "missionary zeal" for their high profession. "But some will find that they are not cut out to be teachers, and it is their responsibility to recognize this fact and leave the profession they have spent so many years of study in and find something which they feel they will like.

NEED HAPPINESS

"The one who chooses a life simply for the security it affords, for a mercenary return, will never truly succeed. For our happiness it is essential that one find a vocation to his liking, both now and in the future."

He warned the prospective teachers of falling into the pitfall of specialization to an absurd degree. "Never lock yourself up in the ivory tower of your work. Learn diversions, painting, writing, sculpturing and games and avoid your work as your sole interest."

The judge questioned that enough thought was being given to basic education, which he termed as the education received until the age of 18. "Pounding facts into their heads is not important. They must be taught to think for themselves and to know where to find the facts."

Teachers should develop some means of making their subjects interesting to the children. The use of anecdotes will help to stimulate interest and the application of theory to practical problems is a great aid in increasing a child's comprehension.

Another factor to be stressed is the moulding of character. Traits of honesty, kindness, discipline and good manners are more important than knowledge, and the development of these traits is particularly adapted to participation in games. Children must be shown that it is not the winning, but the playing of games, that is the important factor. All too often they develop an admiration for the professional player and applaud his dishonest tactics. They, too, begin to believe that it is right to win by any methods and these are the first steps to criminal dishonesty.

Judge Kennedy substantiated his claim with some recent statistics on prison population, indicating that Canada with a population one-third that of the United Kingdom, had a prison population four times as great.

"How will teachers mould the coming generations?" asked the judge in conclusion.

Buy Three Homes For Employees

COBOURG — Three men's dreams of the day when they might own the houses they rent came true here today when they were given the homes outright by their landlord, Canadian Oil Companies, Limited.

The firm has bought the three-house tract and adjoining land on Cobourg's waterfront as the site of a $200,000 marine terminal, to add to its present ship terminals at Toronto, Hamilton, Parry Sound, Fort William, Montreal and Quebec. It had planned to offer the houses and some industrial buildings for sale, to make way for its new warehouse and storage tanks.

Cobourg, however, has a housing shortage aggravated by establishment of a defence department ordnance depot. When the oil company learned of its new tenants' problem in finding other quarters it cancelled plans to advertise the dwellings for sale and presented them to the occupants, who are now moving them to other sites.

Plumbing Firm To Build $60,000 Warehouse On N. Monaghan Property

Purchase of 2½-Acre Lot, Building Plans Mark Two Important Steps In Development of City's Township Land

Two important steps have been taken in the commercial and industrial development of city-owned property in North Monaghan township. City council have approved the sale of approximately 2½ acres fronting Lansdowne St. to Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Supplies Ltd., and City Engineer E. A. Chalmers has completed tentative plans for roads and sewers in an area of about 185 acres surrounding this property. Sale price of the 200 by 500-foot block to Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Supplies is $4,000.

The company plans to build a $60,000 warehouse on the property, it was announced today by President Alex Clark. The building will serve as a plumbing wholesale warehouse and will also serve a subsidiary. Trent Metals Ltd., a wholesale distributor of metals for eavestroughing, warm air furnaces and so on, to the sheet metal trade.

Mr. Clark said the new building was necessary for present and future needs of the rapidly-expanding company, which was organized in October, 1949. It has since grown to the point where it leases space in two separate buildings in the city.

SERVE LARGE AREA

Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Supplies Ltd. are wholesalers serving plumbing and heating contractors in the area from Picton to Bowmanville in the south and as far north as Beaverton, Haliburton, Bancroft and Kaladar.

The one-storey warehouse, of concrete block construction, will measure 50 by 225 feet. Future plans call for exhibit rooms to be added to the building about 18 months after construction and the construction of additional buildings on the property for light manufacturing by Trent Metals Ltd.

It is expected that the company will move into the new warehouse by September 1, 1954.

HOPES HIGH

Hopes are high around city hall that sale of the property will lead to further development of the city-owned land in the area. With this in view, City Engineer E. A. Chalmers has prepared a tentative plan of services should future growth require it.

The block bought by Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Supplies Ltd. has 200 feet frontage on Lansdowne St. with a depth of 500 feet to the south. It is located on the former Adamson farm with its eastern boundary about 200 yards west of the Trinidad Leasehold service station. There is still room, east of this block, for a 25-foot right-of-way and another 200 feet of frontage on Lansdowne St., owned by the city.

West of the block is a two-storey white-brick house which will be demolished to make room for a roadway, if the city engineer's plan is adopted. City council have referred the plan to the manufacturers' committee for approval.

After study and possible amendment of the plan by the manufacturers' committee, it is intended to have the entire 185 acres surveyed and divided into lots for industrial and commercial sites, after which it is proposed to have it registered as a plan of subdivision.

Plans for annexation of the area have so far been discussed only informally.

FEAR LIMITATION

One of the main reasons for having the tentative plan made is the fear that future sales might be limited to Lansdowne St. frontage at the expense of sites further south where there is access to both CNR and CPR lines.

With this in mind, the city engineer has proposed the extension of McKellar St. west across the property from the point where the CNR crosses Erskine Ave. The proposed street along the western boundary of the property bought by Kawartha Plumbing and Heating Supplies Ltd. would be an extension of Cameron St. to the south. Another shorter north-south street would be constructed half way between this street and Erskine Ave.

This would provide for a number of industrial or commercial sites anywhere from 425 feet to 625 feet in depth with street frontage and access to two railway spur lines for which the tentative plan allows.

Sewage facilities are also provided for in the plan although this is admittedly a major problem. The new system would tie in at Erskine Ave., a considerable distance from the Lansdowne St. development but more accessible to the southern part of the city property where it is hoped to encourage future development.

Turn First Sod For Co-op Homes

LINDSAY (ENS)—First sod for the Maryknoll co-operative housing project will be turned Thursday according to Guy Mills, chairman of the board of the co-op.

Negotiations for the beginning of the large housing project in the East Ward of the town have been going on for some time. Members were enlisted last year, and have been taking special courses for the building of their own houses, under the auspices of St. Patricks College, Ottawa, for some months. In all, eight classes have been given preparatory to the beginning of the project.

Only Tame Bears Dangerous Hunter Says

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — John Linden of Kelowna, who has shot 33 grizzlies, says only tame bears are dangerous.

"They are the ones that hang around back doors of mountain lodges waiting for garbage to be thrown out or panhandle on the highway hoping some motorist will feed them," he said.

"A grizzly is just as easy to kill as any other bear, but it should be done with one shot in the right place. The only time a grizzly will put up a fight is when the hunter gets between a she-bear and her cub."

At 76, Mr. Linden has been hunting and trapping in the mountains for 55 years and next year he plans easing the grizzly situation for cattle and sheep men in the Gray Stokes range near here.

His rule for shooting a bear is "always go for the heart, about six inches under the lower jaw."

Peterborough Pastor Preaches At Cavan

CAVAN (ENS)—The Rev. H. G. Douglas, of Knox United Church, Peterborough, was guest speaker at Ebenzer United Church Sunday afternoon for the annual thankoffering service.

He preached on the topic, "What will you do with Jesus?"

Miss Estella Hetherington, Millbrook, was accompanist.

The male quartet from the choir of St. Andrew's United Church, Millbrook, contributed two numbers.

The sturdy little church, standing high on a hill overlooking the fertile farm lands of north Cavan, was built by the pioneers more than 80 years ago. It was filled to capacity and was decorated with flowers and fruits.

Experts Revise Figures Growth Of U.S. Population

WASHINGTON (AP) — The people of the United States are multiplying faster than the experts thought they would.

Will the food supply keep pace with this rapid growth?

Agricultural economists in Washington are confident it can.

A year ago, the census bureau looked ahead and estimated that the population of the United States would reach 190,000,000 by 1975.

The bureau recently revised its thinking and has come up with a new forecast—close to 221,000,000 by that same year, if the trend of the last three years holds.

That would be about 61,000,000 more than now live in the United States.

Other nations—India and China—reached mighty proportions many years ago. They have been plagued with famine off and on for centuries. But U.S. government economists say they have slight fear that hunger ever will invade the United States.

India and China, they point out, were guilty of land waste and archaic farm practices.

The current food problem here is not one of shortage, but of surplus.

The carry-over from the 1952 United States wheat crop totalled 559,000,000 bushels, while this year's crop may produce an 800,000,000-bushel surplus. As a result, wheat farmers have voted to accept government production controls.

Agriculture department economists are training an eye on the future when the surplus problem conceivably could give way to shortage.

They conducted detailed studies of anticipated food needs on the basis of the census bureau's 190,000,000 population estimate for 1975.

These showed that such a population would need 27,500,000,000 pounds of meat.

Should the population actually rise to 221,000,000 in the next 22 years, it would require about 31,987,000,000 pounds—or roughly 50 per cent more than the United States produced last year.

It is clear that only a fraction of the additional food supply can come from pressing new lands into crop production.

There were 360,000,000 acres planted or growing in July. This is pretty close to maximum.

But government economists retain their optimistic outlook when they glance back over the record. Through application of scientific methods, U.S. farmers were able to boost their average crop yield by 32 per cent an acre between the 1935-1939 and 1947-1951 periods. They also increased their average livestock production by 17 per cent a breeding unit.

Salmon End Their Life Span In B.C. River

VANCOUVER (CP) — Teeming thousands of sockeye salmon, wine red as they prepare for death, are completing their life cycle in a three-mile stretch of the Horsefly river, 150 miles north of here.

The area is almost a solid mass of spawning fish, churning up gravel to prepare nests for their eggs, using their last vestiges of energy to propagate their species.

On the river banks thousands lie bleaching and rotting in the sun, their life span ended.

The spawning will ultimately mean the addition of millions of dollars in value to the sockeye production of the Quesnel river system, only a few years ago written off as near extinction.

If the present rate of increase of spawning is maintained, future peak years of the four-year cycle may show as many as 10,000,000 spawning fish in the river.

False Alarm

HALIFAX (CP)—Firemen were called to St. Mary's girls' school here when the alarm was sounded. For some unexplained reason the school's sprinkler system had been touched off.

IT MAY TAKE "two to tango" but it takes a fifteen-man team of daring motor cycle riders to perform this feat. This group of dispatch riders of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals, from Kingston, Ont., sent shivers up the spines of 5,000 Montreal spectators as they dashed through flaming hoops and built up pyramids.

Action On Gas Needed Soon, Face Reduction

CALGARY (CP)—Carl O. Nickle, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Calgary South, said Tuesday that a favorable decision must soon be reached on the disposition of Alberta's natural gas, or reductions in western oil and gas exploration programs can be expected.

Mr. Nickle, editor of the Daily Oil Bulletin published here, said during a service club address that the best decision could be reached only by a top-level meeting between Ottawa and Washington officials after Canadian producers and consumers have come to a common understanding with the federal government.

Such a solution could include the acceptance of American gas piped to Canada by the most economic routes and Canadian gas piped to United States consumers, he said.

Following such an interchanging of markets, Canadian gas could be made available to serve a part of the eastern U.S. market through a proposed pipeline from Toronto to Buffalo.

Mr. Nickle said arguments against Canadian gas by supporters of U.S. projects were comparable to those voiced in Canada by advocates of a strictly all-Canadian policy of marketing.

The argument was against the possible insecurity of both supply and price if the gas source were foreign and controlled by a foreign government.

Mr. Nickle said Canada can only be sure of capturing the American market if she gives a firmer guarantee of supply and price for at least 20 to 25 years.

Trade Officials Hold Conference, Boost Provincial Co-operation

ST. ANDREWS, N. B. (CP)—Trade and industrial development problems were slated for further discussion today as the Trade and Industry Council, comprising representatives of all provincial governments, entered the third day of their four-day annual conference.

Delegates from the 10 provinces opened the iscussions monday. With them are members of the federal department of trade and commerce, representatives of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Canadian Chamber of Commerce, railways, banks and trade representatives from Great Britain, the United States and Western Germany.

Chairman F. J. Lyle, director of the trade and industry branch, Ontario department of planning and development, said the aim of the council is to provide a medium for interprovincial consultation and co-operation on matters relating to trade and industrial development. It strives to supply traders and manufacturers in Canada and abroad with a country-wide provincial service in this field, and to promote greater understanding throughout Canada of the economic conditions affecting the development of each province.

WORK WITH OTTAWA

Mr. Lyle said council members work closely with the federal government, chiefly through the trade and commerce department as well as with Canadian chartered banks, the railways, manufacturers' association, chamber of commerce and other interested organizations.

"The annual conference provides the members with an opportunity to review the progress achieved, discuss plans for the future, establish practices and formulate recommendations which will further the council's aims and promote the economic development of Canada."

One factor favoring establishment of the council in 1949 was "recognition of the fact that industrial development is a provincial government responsibility." Another was the conviction that a federal-provincial-municipal co-operative effort is the most efficient.

Seven provincial trade and industry ministers are attending. They include Ontario's W. K. Warrender.

Indian Princes Asked To Take Cut In Income

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Pushing ahead with its drive to carve away all special privileges for India's former princes, Prime Minister Nehru's government has asked the former rulers to accept a voluntary cut in the size of their government-bestowed incomes.

Nehru himself is believed to have originated the tactful request, asking that the ex-princes "move with the spirit of the times." If this gets no response, the government may take more direct action to reduce payments totalling $12,000,000 a year to more than 500 former rulers.

The step follows close on the heels of legislation to reduce large hereditary estates. A real estate duty bill passed by both houses of Parliament imposes heavy inheritance taxes, and finance officials have made it plain that the princes will get no special exemption under the law.

Both actions show that Nehru is intent on carrying out a pledge made in 1951 when he declared that the sooner the former rulers lost their privileges, the better it would be for the country. Titles, large estates and great fortunes now are about all that remain of the princely authority that once directly ruled 50,000,000 persons in states now constituting almost one third of present-day India.

The princes yielded up their personal "ownership" of the states during the national consolidation process that ended in 1949. At the same time the national government took over the responsibility of paying out the princes' privy purses, previously provided directly from states' revenues.

Tax-free payments range from the $1,050,000 a year provided for the 66-year-old Nizam of Hyderabad down to the $40.20 drawn by the former ruler of Katodia, a small state in western India.

As the separate states were assimilated into the Indian republic, they gave up their private armies, their individual money systems and their direct-rule administrations. Rulers were reduced to the role of titled gentry, and many have now departed their native lands to live on their comfortable incomes in western Europe.

A bid to retain influence, made by the 90-member "Union of Rulers," was put down effectively by the central government when it revoked its recognition of the Gaekwar of Baroda, president of the union, for "activities prejudicial to the constitution." The action entailed loss of the title "his highness" and the Gaekwar's privy purse of $560,000.

More philosophical in his acceptance of changing times was the Nizam of Hyderabad, who the Aga Khan once said, could fill a swimming pool with his diamonds if he wanted.

The Nizam, who despite his wealth lives frugally on bread and rice while smoking home - rolled cigarets, handed over his palaces to the government in return for an increase in his privy purse.

Now, as the state seeks unsuccessfully to find buyers for the costly palaces, the Nizam is known to be the largest single holder of government bonds, while much of his personal fortune has already been converted to trust funds for his grandchildren.

Find Combat Zone Meals Interfere With Jet Flying

By VERN HAUGLAND

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two U. S. Air Force medical officers said today that digestive gas generated by combat zone meals apparently interfered with the flying and fighting of Sabre jet pilots in Korea.

A squadron fed a special diet of non-gas-forming foods averaged 4.2 times as many claims of success against enemy planes as did pilots in two other squadrons similar in all respects but fed regular messhall fare, the researchers reported.

The test was described by Capt. Frederich J. Hinman, a psychiatrist, and Capt. Mary C. Horak, a dietitian, in the Air University Quarterly Review, an air force publication.

They said the difference in performance records "can be considered significant," although they were unwilling to credit it entirely to the diet.

MANY COMPLAINTS

The tests were undertaken because of "an increasing number of complaints from fighter pilots reporting abdominal cramps of varying severity during flight."

Some pilots, flying at more than 45,000 feet with cabin pressures equivalent to altitudes a high as 35,000 feet, suffered abdominal pains so sharp and cramping they had to discontinue their missions or descend to lower altitudes.

"It is conceivable that this type of pain could be of sufficient intensity to induce shock in which the pilot would be incapable of controlling his aircraft," the medical researchers said.

They explained that low air pressure at high altitudes caused gas enclosed within the body to expand and give pain.

In the mess-hall experiment, one squadron was given a special high protein diet free of "excessive carbohydrates and fats, high residue foods and excessively spicy dishes."

The men had milk, fresh frozen vegetables and salads in addition to the regular foods, were fed stewed or fresh fruit twice daily, and were served broiled or fried meats only in the evening so that they would not be called upon to fly after a fried meal.

Gas Chamber Looms For 3 Convicted Killers

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The gas chamber of San Quentin prison looms today for convicted killers Barbara Graham, John A. Santo and Emmett Perkins.

After 5½ hours of deliberating, a jury Tuesday found Mrs. Graham and her two gangster pals guilty of the first degree murder of 62-year-old widow, Mrs. Mabel Monahan.

There was no recommendation for clemency. California law thus makes the death penalty mandatory.

Titian-haired Mrs. Graham, 30, and the two men face sentencing at 9 a. m. Friday, but a defence counsel move for a new trial may delay it.

Mrs. Monahan was brutally beaten and garrotted in her Burbank home last March 9. The state contended the gang, led by Santo, sought $100,000 believed hidden there by Mrs. Monahan's former son-in-law, Las Vegas gambler Luther (Tutor) Scherer.

Santo, 48, and Perkins, 44, also have been linked to northern California crimes, including the mass murder of grocer Guard Young and three small children in Chester last October.

Santo and Perkins were also charged Tuesday night with murdering Ed Hanson, Nevada county miner shot to death in a 1950 robbery attempt.

The trio took the verdict with little show of emotion, other than the tears that welled in Barbara's eyes. She pressed the hand of her attorney, Jack Hardy, and whispered:

"As long as they've found me guilty, I'd rather have the death penalty than life imprisonment."

Perkins snarled, "It's phony all the way through."

M.R.A. Blunts Red Drive In India And Pakistan

By ANGUS MUNRO
Windsor Star Staff Writer
(Special to The Examiner)

CAUX, Switzerland—Moral rearmament is providing an answer to Communism in India and Pakistan, acocrding to leaders of the student bodies of those countries who are here for the opening sessions of the industrial section of the MRA World Assembly.

In Canada and America it is difficult to realize the powerful influence exerted by the students attending universities in Southeast Asia. Their influence goes far beyond that of their colleagues and counterparts in Western nations. Students are the leaders of most of the revolutionary thinking. Russia knows this even if the West does not, say the spokesmen of India and Pakistan students who are here.

Southeast Asia must be given something with which to fight Communism or in five years' time it will be too late to turn the tide. Russian strategy has reached far and deep. It is still winning students by the thousands to the cause of world Communism. Canada and the United States may be providing food for hungry bellies, but both are far behind in the race to win hearts and minds, the Caux visitors explain.

Soviet strategy is aggressive, thorough and effective. For example, the wide distribution of Communist literature covers the newly-independent lands of India and Pakistan. It is the better printed, the better illustrated sort of publications that find their way from Russia direct or from Soviet China to the news-stands of the teeming Indian and Pakistan centres of culture. The Western World answers this with cheap movie magazines, paper-covered thrillers and confession periodicals that stir no interest in the minds of young India and Pakistan.

The Soviet Embassy in New Delhi makes it easy for young Indians to meet Communism head on. The young undergraduates are wined and dined lavishly and the meetings are spiced with the presence of attractive young Russian women members of the embassy staff. In the glow of such an atmosphere it is not too difficult for zealous propagandists to get in their best work.

The students with whom your reporter taked are leaders in their respective schools — New Delhi and Karachi. They pointed out that Moral Rearmament is giving the students the only alternative to Communism, but there is still a vast majority of young Indians and Pakistani enrolled in the Communist ranks.

The people of India are not impressed by the current crop of Western statesmen who have visited their nation, but they have found an anchor in the task force sent by Moral Rearmament, say the student spokesmen.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles, former Premier Clement Attlee, and Adlai Stevenson, all visited India this year, but the man remembered most is Dr. Frank Buchman because he and his team brought a positive alternative for the Communist threat. The MRA task force spent seven months in Southeast Asia earlier this year.

The students with whom your reporter spoke are typical of the young, aggressive intellectuals of their nations. Both are champion debaters in their universities. They have tasted Communism and found it thrives on the hatreds that divide East and West. Exploiting these hatreds is Russia's game and it is being played to the hilt, say these keen young men who are finding at Caux some of the answers they are anxious to take back to their nations.

They make no bones about the Communist threat. It is alive and potent with danger for their generation. It must be answered, they say, by something positive that will unite peoples rather than divide them.

The Caux sessions are featuring youth presentations. The young of more than a score of nations are here, eager and articulate; all of them a post-war group whose reaction to the war of ideas and ideologies is instant and enthusiastic.

It is difficult to realize, surrounded by these peaceful Swiss valleys, that the cold war exists at all. Then you listen to the testimony of these leaders of tomorrow and you are quickly brought down to earth.

The danger in Southeast Asia is real. The battle is already joined. It must be fought with ideas and beliefs as well as with Colombo Plans and United Nations palliatives. If these young men can be believed, the hour is getting late. The West must provide moral standards as well as material gifts.

It is later than we think.

Robert Schuman, former foreign minister of France, told the Assembly of the great hope he saw for world and for international relations — the work of Dr. Frank Buchman and Moral Rearmament.

He now knew "the massive support and will to work together" which Dr. Buchman has inspired throughout the world. "What impresses me more than anything else is how this is applied between the nations and international affairs, Mr. Schuman said.

"I am accustomed to international meetings, but they are very different from this assembly. Whether it is in parliament or international conferences they normally end with great disappointment. Here we find nothing but satisfaction and a great hope.

Jiro Hoshijima, member of the Japanese Diet and one of the six signatories of the Japanese peace treaty, said he had learned here at Caux "how to create real unity in the world."

The Japanese statesman said that his country had "made great mistakes and started the war." He mentioned his meeting with Dr. Buchman at the signing of the peace treaty and said that it was through Dr. Buchman he had met Schuman and other world leaders.

Deny Application For Rehearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal power commission Tuesday denied an application by Trans-Canada Pipe Lines for a rehearing of the order which authorized Tennessee Gas Transmission Company to export natural gas to Canada.

Trans-Canada's request to argue orally its application for rehearing also was denied.

The order to which Trans-Canada took exception authorized Tennessee Gas and Niagara Gas Transmission Ltd., Toronto, to export gas from the United States for ultimate consumption in the Toronto area. Trans-Canada had intervened in the proceedings. The Canadian company is proposing to build a pipeline to carry natural gas from Alberta to eastern Canada.

The commission said in denying the two requests that they raised substantially the same issues previously presented by Trans-Canada. Those issues were fully considered in its Sept. 1 opinion, it ruled.

Drop 4th Member Off Policy Committee

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters) — The feuding United party today dropped a fourth member from its policy committee in a squabble over the leadership policies of Jacobus Strauss.

The party caucus, which last week expelled dissenter Frank Waring, today took the same action against Blaar Coetzee. Two other members, Abraham Jonker and Bailey Bekker, have resigned from the committee in protest against Waring's expulsion.

All four were active critics of Strauss' leadership of the official Opposition.

Pinay Arrives

MONTREAL (CP) — Antoine Pinay, former premier of France, arrived here Tuesday by air on the first leg of a short "unofficial" visit to Canada and the United States.

Search For Iron In Ungava Changes Life In Village

By PETER BUCKLEY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SEPT ILES, Que. (CP)—Fishing trawlers and dinghies still go out from the wharves and beaches of Sept Iles to drop their nets in the St. Lawrence river.

But most of the 3,600 townsmen have turned their faces inland to the bountifully-rich iron ore reserves of the Ungava region of northern Quebec.

As jumping-off spot for the $250,000,000 Knob lake development, on the Quebec - Labrador boundary, Sept Iles now is in the third stage of a 300-year evolution.

EARLY FISHING BASE

Founded in 1652, it was a base for the fishermen and trappers who made up its early settlers. At the turn of this century, a pulp mill was started at Clarke City, about eight miles across the bay from the town. Mill hands, who built their own homes at Sept Iles rather than live in the company town at Clarke City, mixed with the earlier settlers and the town expanded.

Then came the boom. With discovery of high-grade iron ore some 355 miles north, Sept Iles became crowded with workers—construction men, engineers, railway section hands, immigrants, displaced persons and others lured by a pioneering instinct or a chance at high wages.

Most of the early townsfolk stayed on to take jobs with the development companies or to continue working with the pulp mill. There are few now who set out to take salmon and cod from the river.

The town itself huddles in a bay on the west side of a sandy promontory pushing out into the St. Lawrence river, about 360 miles along the north shore of the river from Quebec.

TREE GROWTH POOR

Scraggly fir trees and scrub brush surround the community—about the only growth that will take root in the sandy soil which extends some 10 miles inland.

Sept Iles is faced with the myriad problems to be expected in a town whose population has tripled in five years.

At the helm is mayor Jack Layden, an alert, personable young man who is owner of the town's two theatres. He is responsible for much of the civic - mindedness among the population's younger element.

Municipal financing is helping mayor Layden in his efforts to modernize Sept Iles. High on the list of "musts," he says, are paved roads to replace the sand streets that crisscross the town.

"There's a lot of work to be done, but we know where to start, which is half the battle," the mayor said.

ELECTRICITY NEEDED

At present, all the town's electricity comes from diesel units at the Sept Iles airport, 10 miles east of the town. Present plans call for a dam on the nearby Moisie river. Plans have been drawn up and construction should start shortly.

The town's sudden growth has brought a housing problem only temporarily remedied so far.

Tar-papered houses and army-like barracks are home to many of the men working on the single-track railway to Knob lake and other construction projects.

Some neat, white clapboard or asbestos-shingled homes have been built and others are being constructed. There is a modern department store and stylish two-storey hotel and the rough wooden Roman Catholic church is being replaced by a bigger structure.

Another major problem is the soil. The townspeople can grow little in the way of vegetables or flowers in the sandy ground without first putting down layers of topsoil.

Of these and other problems facing his administration, Mr. Layden says: "We'll just have to take them as they come."

Toronto Plan Told To Mayors

MONTREAL (CP)—The council chairman of Canada's first metropolitan corporation said today the Toronto corporation is "a calculated attempt" to give local communities freedom in local matters while banding them together for services that are "metropolitan in nature."

Frederick G. Gardiner told Canadian and United States mayors in a statement prepared for delivery at the International Municipal Congress that the new scheme left the way open for eventual amalgamation of the communities if that is "considered the best course to follow."

"On the other hand," he went on, "if this new metropolitan form of government operates successfully, there may never be necessity for actual amalgamation."

Mr. Gardiner was one of a panel of three experts who spoke on "the government of metropolitan areas."

Outlining the events leading up to the corporation's creation, Mr. Gardiner said it was founded only after the City of Toronto and 12 neighboring communities realized they could not tackle some of their problems individually.

U.S. Navy Plans Try For Record

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Los Angeles Times says today the U. S. Navy will challenge Britain's new jet speed record of 727.6 miles an hour within 10 days but that the U. S. Air Force may "unofficially" beat it to the punch.

Although the navy declined comment, The Times says, it learned that the navy tentatively plans an assault with the Douglas F4D Skyray interceptor next Tuesday in southern California. It is a triangular craft with a slim protruding nose.

The paper says Lt.-Col. Pete Everest made practice runs Tuesday in a North American F-100 super Sabre.

It said it was indicated that Everest was being timed unofficially and if his speeds top the English record "they would be announced as 'unofficial' marks just prior to the navy's forthcoming assault. . ."

Sqdn. Ldr. Neville Duke of the RAF set the new mark in a Hawker Hunter fighter at Tangmere, England, Sept. 7.

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR POSTONS who were married in the Pentecostal Church on Saturday. The bride was formerly Miss Nancy Spring, daughter of Mrs. Frank Spring, 422 London St. The young couple will reside in Hamilton. —Parks Studio Photo)

Nancy Spring Is Bride Of Arthur Godfrey Postons

The Pentecostal Church in Peterborough was the scene of a pretty wedding on Saturday, September 19, when Nancy, the daughter of Mrs. Frank Spring and the late Frank Spring, became the bride of Arthur Geoffrey, the son of the late Mr. H. Postons and Mrs. Postons of Orleton, Shropshire, England. The church was decorated with baskets of white and yellow gladioli and ferns. The Rev. F. H. Parlee officiated at the service and Mr. Cecil Lapp was the organist.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Ed. Spring of Toronto, was lovely in an original gown of delicate white Chantilly lace, over layers of nylon and taffeta. The neckline was scalloped, the same design being carried out in the short sleeves and the hemline of the bouffant skirt. The bodice was quite fitted to enhance the beauty of the bouffant lines. Her veil was elbow-length of tulle d'illusion caught with a tiny half cap of Chantilly lace. She carried a bouquet of Shasta 'mums.

A strapless gown of copper nylon tulle over taffeta with matching bolero of copper lace was worn by the only attendant. Miss Ruth Knight of Toronto. Her headdress was a small matching cap and she carried yellow Shasta 'mums.

The groom was attended by Mr. Wm. Raygroft and the ushers were Mr. Fred Spring, brother of the bride, and Mr. Keith Davidson.

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the Kawartha Room of the Empress Hotel where the bride's mother received, wearing a gown of rosewood crepe and navy accessories. Her corsage was of white baby 'mums. The groom's aunt, who also received, wore navy with pink accessories, and her corsage was of pink-tinted 'mums.

For her honeymoon the bride donned a blue tweed suit with navy accessories and wore an orchid corsage. Following their wedding trip to Boston and Cape Cod, the bride and groom will be at home to their friends at 1024 King St., Hamilton.

ORIGINAL SANTA CLAUS

The original Santa Claus, or St. Nicholas, was Bishop of Myra during the fourth century. The present name comes from Germany, Holland, and Russia, and seems to have originated with the conversion of the Teutons to Christianity.

Canadian Consumer Group Reports Larger Membership

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Association of Consumers reports great strides in its membership in reports prepared for delivery at its sixth annual meeting here.

Branches of the national women-en's organization in Ontario reported the greatest increase—a 75-per-cent jump all across the province. Quebec chapters boosted enrolment by 50 per cent.

Rural group membership in Alberta increased during the last 12 months. In New Brunswick, 32 chapters of the Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire and 13 Women's Institutes have appointed liaison officers to co-operate with the CAC. It is hoped to have a provincial organization operating in Nova Scotia by next year.

CAC branches in Prince Edward Island were responsible for having an inspector appointed to grade and mark fruit and vegetables for sale in Charlottetown and Summerside. The provincial chapter is pressing for meat inspection and has officially objected to the low butterfat content of milk sold throughout the province.

USE HOME PRODUCTS

The Alberta executive reported it has encouraged members to use Canadian food products as opposed to imported ones, especially cheese, eggs and fish. Saskatchewan complained that manufacturers generally made crib sheets too small and attacked the use of staples in packaging goods.

The Kelowna, B. C., chapter forced bylaws prohibiting the strong dyes used in popsicles and banning the sale of uninspected meat in the community.

The meeting heard a discussion on carton-packed milk for store sales and the variation of sizes in different cities. They agreed to take up the matter of the proper labelling of processed fluid as to weight.

The CAC will also approach meat packers with a view to having the striped and patterned wrappers for side bacon eliminated.

The meetings wind up today with election of officers and a luncheon.

'Annie Laurie' Once Sung As Fine Old Italian Opera

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Japanese opera star — who sang "Annie Laurie" as a fine, old Italian ballad—visited here on her way to Toronto.

She is Aiko Saita, British Columbia-born contralto who was touring Japan when her country entered the Second World War.

"Songs from the Western world were banned," she said, "so Annie Laurie, 'Comin' Through the Rye' and a few others I decided were from Italy. Sung in Japanese, you couldn't tell by the words, so I sang them—and they liked them."

After the war, she gained fame singing the lead in "Carmen" with the Fujiwara opera company of Tokyo.

She stayed here with her brother, Dr. Harold Saita, whom she left here in 1939 on tour to Japan.

Born in Cumberland, B.C., she started a singing career when 15 and gave her first recital in 1929, graduating from the Toronto Conservatory of Music in 1931. The next year she went to Italy to continue her studies.

In 1937 she toured Canada and in 1939 made a successful United States tour, later leaving on her Japanese tour.

"I still can't get used to the idea I am back," she said. "I have been speaking almost always Japanese and now I have to change to English I haven't used for years."

Red Cross Reviews Its Summer Activities

The first fall meeting of the Canadian Red Cross Society, Peterborough Branch, was held Tuesday evening in the Red Cross Rooms. A letter was received from the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund to the effect that the quota has been set at $22,500 for 1953. Reports were presented by the heads of the various committees which were active during the summer months. Miss Ethelwyn Dix reported for the Apsley Hospital Committee that Dr. Lehinant of Bancroft will be in Apsley on Wednesdays, and recommended that his transportation charges be paid by the Peterborough branch. Dr. and Mrs. Lehinant have offered their services at blood donor clinics in Apsley. The sewing committee, under Miss Helen Gerrard, will soon be in full swing again and plans were discussed to make more sewing machines available to them. Mrs. Watts gave a most interesting report of swimming and water safety work in June, July and August. During that period a total of 253 certificates were presented at various pools and camps in the city and district. Mrs. Watts spoke glowingly of the enthusiasm and efficiency of instructors and examiners connected with this phase of Red Cross work. She announced several events for the fall and spring Red Cross classes at the YWCA, an examiner's clinic in November, and an instructors' class at Easter. She also recommended that new kick-boards be offered to the YWCA, the Lions Club, and the YMCA as a gift from Peterborough Red Cross.
